ABOUT THE LIBRARIES

AV archives demonstration:

Audio-visual Archives will present a demonstration program based on the various projects that the unit is involved with (oral history, archives taping, radio and television archives, etc) at 12 noon, March 17 (St. Patrick's Day) for the entire Library staff in the basement of King Library North. Bring a bag lunch. Coffee will be provided. For further information contact Terry Bird-whistell or Bill Marshall.

Art Studio in MIK-South:

A studio workshop for art students has been conducted this week in the reference room of MIK South by Pat Steir, a contemporary artist from New York City. Under Ms. Steir's direction, the students have drawn and painted several panels that represent the progress of an idea from conception to graphic representation. Ms. Steir will present an illustrated public lecture of her work on Friday at 11 AM in 118 Classroom Building.

Henry Clay exhibit opens:

The current Gallery exhibit is HERE'S TO YOU, HARRY CLAY!: an exhibition of books, manuscripts and memorabilia from the Department of Special Collections in celebration of the two hundredth anniversary of the birth of Henry Clay. The exhibit will run through April 15, and a catalog is available in the Gallery.

Correction: Faculty book display and reception:

The date for the Faculty book display and reception is April 7th (not the 9th, as noted in last week's Bean). As noted last week, the reception will be hosted by the Staff Organization to honor university faculty members who have published monographs, translations, and contributions to monographs since 1 January 1975. Librarians are requested to notify Terry Warth (Special Collections) of any publication by faculty.

Browsing room dedication:

The newly refurbished Browsing Room (MIK-South, Room 504) will be publicly dedicated on Thursday, 24 March at 4 PM. The ceremony will be attended by President Singletary and will be open to the public; refreshments and other arrangements are being handled by the Staff Organization.

The Browsing Room will be one of the comfortable reading rooms on campus with its thick carpet, over-stuffed furniture, and a sizable collection of current paperback books.

WORKSHOPS, SYMPOSIA, ETC.

Copyright symposia:

A one day symposium on the revised Copyright Legislation is scheduled at the College of Library Science on 22 April 1977. Ms. Joan Titley Adams, Register of Copyrights, and several noted authors will be on the program. Additional information available from Jim Nelson, Office for Continuing Education, College of Library Science.

Indiana University's Graduate Library School has also scheduled a copyright symposium entitled, "The copyright Dilemma--A Rational Outcome." It will be held at Bloomington 14-15 April, and further information is available from Prof. Herbert S. White at the IU Graduate School.

Library instruction workshop:

"Library Instruction and Orientation" is the title of a workshop to be conducted at Bowling Green, Kentucky, 14-15 April. The workshop will be conducted by Carla Stoffle, who will offer assistance to librarians interested in building library instruction and orientations programs. Further information is available from Jim Nelson, Office for Continuing Education, College of Library Science.

Data Base retrieval course:

The College of Engineering, Cornell University, is offering a short course on "Automatic Information and Data Base Retrieval," at Ithica on 20-24 June. Information from Office of Continuing Education, Cornell University, Ithica, NY 14853.
