A BEAR STORY

Wildcat Success Is 'Bear' Possibility

By Zipp Newman, Birmingham News Sports Editor

Kentucky can't go any way but up in football. That is if Paul (Bear) Bryant gets anything like his share of the breaks. And he will make a lot of his own breaks with tremendous will power.

This columnist wrote when Kentucky signed the former Alabama star: "Kentucky is most fortunate in obtaining the finest young football coach in America today." That still goes. Here's one former Kentuckian who is much concerned in Paul Bryant's future.

Paul Bryant has every qualification of a great grid master. He was the most fearless football player I ever knew. He has a thorough knowledge of football. He has a flare for imparting the "know how" to players. Bryant is a tireless worker. He has the patience to rehearse a play 100 times. He not only knows how to handle players on the practice field but off the practice field. No coach has more personality. He was always popular with the players as an assistant coach at Alabama.

Coach Bryant was schooled under one of the greatest teachers football has ever known—Frank Thomas. He learned well Thomas' way of running a football team with the pressure on.

As a recruiter—and a football coach nowadays must know how to get material—Paul Bryant is in a class by himself. He could sell gold bricks to bankers and they would like it.

Paul Bryant was one of the finest ends in the history of football at Alabama. He was one end, who could not only catch a pass but rack up a tackle in cellophane. He gave one of the greatest exhibitions of handling a bruising tackle in Alabama's great victory over Stanford in the 1935 Rose Bowl game.

After Don Hutson, who went on to become the All-Time professional end, left Alabama, Bryant was switched to left end. He was switched because he was a good pass receiver.

Bryant played his greatest game on a broken leg against Tennessee. If you don't believe this, there are X-ray pictures in a doctor's office in Birmingham to prove it. Alabama beat Tennessee 25 to 0 and Bryant was the spearhead. "The Bear" got mad and the Vols couldn't handle him. He forgot about himself and what re-injuring the leg might mean to his football career.

Paul Bryant was born in Fordyce, Arkansas 33 years ago. He entered the University of Alabama in 1932 and was a hellion on the freshman team. He lettered in football in 1933-34-35, receiving his B.S. degree in Physical Education in 1936.

Paul married his campus sweetheart, Mary Harmon

Black, one of Birmingham's charming belles in 1935. They have two children, May Martin, nine, and Paul Jr., two. They are looking for Paul, Jr. down at Alabama, counting on him at least making the All-Conference team twice as his Dad did—and playing in a Rose Bowl game.

Paul stayed on at Alabama after graduation. He became a line coach and on the side got some business experience in operating a dry cleaning business with his old side-kick—Don Hutson.

Bryant was a fine line coach. He turned out two All-Americans, (LeRoy Monsky and Taran White) and three All-Conference linemen (White, Monsky and Bostick, who coached at Kentucky). Paul went back to the Rose Bowl as a coach with Alabama in 1938.

Red Sanders employed Paul Bryant as his line coach at Vanderbilt in 1940. The next year Vanderbilt beat Alabama. Alabama supporters attributed some of the credit to Paul Bryant talking the Commodores into believing they were better than the Crimson. It was one of the hardest played games in the history of the old series.

Paul Bryant is a man of action. He wanted in the war in 1942. He went to Washington and camped on Tom Hamilton's doorstep for days. He finally talked his way into the Navy—spending 16 months in the European theater. And he loved it.

Paul had a fling at coaching the North Carolina Pre-Flight team. The Pre-Flighters twice defeated Duke, 12-0 and 35-13 in practice games. North Carolina was beaten twice before the team was disbanded.

Maryland signed Paul Bryant to a head coach's contract in 1945. Maryland had won one game in the two previous seasons. Under Bryant, Maryland's football stock took a terrific rise. The Terps won six, lost two and tied one, winning for the first time against Virginia in 16 games.

Kentucky was looking for a football coach for the 1946 season. Kentucky was told by Southeastern Conference coaches, hire Paul Bryant if you can get him.

There's a different spirit at Kentucky. Paul Bryant had his players playing like Wildcats last year. They didn't go into big games with any inferiority complexes. Kentucky is on the way to becoming a power in Southern football. Give "The Bear" a little time and the Commonwealth of Kentucky will again thrill to the exploits of the gridiron.

Alabama will keenly follow the fortunes of the Kentucky Wildcats. Paul Bryant is home folks, destined to become one of the great coaches of football.

Shed No Tears For The Volunteers Today

By Kyle Vance, Associated Press Staff Writer

Lexington, Ky., Nov. 22 — Weep no more for Tennessee. Shed no more tears for the Volunteers. The Rip Van Winkles of 1947 football woke a week ago to do just what they had been tagged to do all along. They woke refreshed to turn what was doped to be a Boston Tea Party into a T-N-Tennessee party, with big Boston College, one of the East's proudest elevens, suffering the short end of a 38-13 manhandling.

True, the victory came too late to save Tennessee its worst season since Bob Neyland started shaping the Vols' football future, but the decision had to be recorded as one of more than passing significance.

It was interpreted as the Vols' warning that they were not through; that they were capable of doing some of the things they had been expected to do.

Last week-end changed the whole complexion of today's renewal of the olden Tennessee-Kentucky rivalry, a rivalry richly deserving of a rating as one of the National gridiron classics.

This had been Kentucky's year to get itself a little revenge for past humiliation at the hands of ever-mighty Tennessee the year to cap its own best season in modern times with the victory that counts most; the year that such a victory would not be hailed from the headlines as a major upset.

This was the year everything weighed in Kentucky's favor. Old Man Football Form, in one of his most playful moods, had been setting a strange stage for today's battle—the Wildcats unaccustomed as they were to the favorite's role and the Vols likewise unfamiliar with the role of the underdog.

But last week's new chapter in 1947 football history was written in understandable terms. Suspicions in Kentucky circles that Tennessee this year would be a soft touch flew out the nearest window and were replaced by suspicions that a lot of football game might be provided in this pre-Thanksgiving renewal.

Even through lean Kentucky years and fat ones for the Volunteers, the rivalry has survived as one of the most colorful in Dixie. It has been marked by some totally unexpected reversals, some that have cost Tennessee bowl bids, but form has been served in each of the last eleven meetings.

Not since 1935, when the Wildcats plastered a Neyland-less Tennessee team, 27-0, has Kentucky won or tied a game in the series. In seven of the eleven, the 'Cats suffered shutouts.

Tennessee is Kentucky's oldest rival, the series dating back to 1893. Only Vanderbilt, carded in 1892, is older among the Vols' rivals.

Kentucky won the first meeting, 56-0, but Tennessee has been busy ever since avenging that one. In 42 pairings, the Vols have won 25, the Wildcats have won eleven and six have ended in ties. Few have been won by bigger margins than one or two touchdowns by either side.

Last season's game was supposed to have marked the beginning of a new era in the series, Kentucky having started its big rebuilding program. Tennessee won that one, 7-0, and that brings us up to today.

The future promises even more interesting renewals. It can be assumed that Tennessee will return to its place among the nation's big powers, and Kentucky is hopeful that Paul Bryant's rebuilding efforts will produce rich results.

So make room for a real classic!

Governor of Kentucky

PRESIDENT H. L. DONOVAN

Wildcat Sketches

LEFT ENDS

Dick Hensley, 19-year old six-feet four-inch 195-pound Williamson, West Virginia product returns for his junior year this fall . . . Ranked by Coach Bryant as his best left end . . . Lettered in both his freshman and sophomore seasons . . . Considered an outstanding pass receiver and a fine defensive player. . . . Was an All-Stater in high school . . . Should be one of the Southeastern Conference's outstanding ends this season.

George Sengel, six-feet one-inch 179-pound senior from Louisville, is considered one of the roughest defensive players on the squad . . . Lettered in '42 and again in '46 after returning from the Army Air Corps . . . This being his senior year, Sengel should have a good season.

LEFT TACKLES

Wash Serini, six-feet one-inch 215-pound Tuckahoe, New York native, returns for his fourth season with the Wildcats . . . Played for Kentucky during the war and earned All-S.E.C. honors . . . His sheer determination won him a spot on Coach Bryant's first eleven last fall . . . Voted the most popular man on the campus . . . Serini should be a mainstay in Kentucky's line.

Doc Ferrell, six-feet 198-pound sophomore from neighboring Richmond, displayed great improvement in spring practice . . . He's being counted on heavily to help the Wildcats in one of their really weak spots this autumn . . . Majoring in business administration Could be Kentucky's No. 2 left tackle.

Bob Gain, a giant-like six-feet three-inch 220 pound freshman from Wierton, West Virginia, is rated as one of the best line prospects to ever enroll at Kentucky . . . If he had some game experience under his belt, he would prove extremely valuable to the 'Cats this fall . . . He's fast, aggressive, and extremely agile for such a big young man.

LEFT GUARDS

Leonard Preston, a six-feet 196-pound junior from Louisville, is another one of those boys who was never given serious consideration until Coach Bryant arrived at Kentucky . . . A veteran, Preston last fall had trouble in conditioning his legs . . . He's in top form now and should have a great season . . . Prematurely grey . . . Married and has a two-year old son . . . Should be Kentucky's starting left guard.

Hut Jones, six-feet one-inch 196-pound senior from Corbin, Ky., plays either at tackle or guard . . . And he'll probably see service at both positions this fall . . . Was at Kentucky before the war . . . Strictly the rough type . . . Has a tremendous charge on the offense, and on the defense he is as rough as any man on the squad . . . Jones will play a lot of ball this season.

RIGHT TACKLES

Bill Griffin, six-feet five-inch Mayfield, Ky., man-mountain, is the No. 1 performer in this position . . . Played at Kentucky before entering the Army . . . Hit his stride after returning last fall for his junior year . . . If Kentucky had several more like Griff, the tackle position wouldn't be such a weak spot in the forward wall . . . Recently married . . . Plans to coach after his graduation in June.

Frank Smotherman is another player who showed possibilities in spring practice . . . If he continues to improve, he'll be of immense aid to the line . . . Smotherman has the physical qualifications to be a good end . . . He stands six-feet four-inches and weighs 215-pounds.

BERNIE A. SHIVELY
ATHLETIC DIRECTOR
University of Kentucky

WILLIAM (DOC) RODES

Although University of Kentucky's present success in the sport of football is due in a large measure to Coach Paul Bryant and his staff, the rise to a place of prominence in the South came after many previous attempts had failed.

Before the advent of the Bryant era, two prominent Lexingtonians - - both former football players and coaches - - had been trying for years to rally the people of the state to the support of the University and make the Wildcats a power in southern gridiron circles.

These two men were the late Wallace Muir, Lexington attorney, and the late William (Doc) Rodes, Lexington businessman, who gave much of their time and effort toward building up football at UK. For years they were the leaders in every movement which was launched in behalf of the gridiron sport.

Mr. Rodes was a former Wildcat star, having played quarterback on the 1915 team which won six games, lost one and tied one under the mentorship of Dr. J. J. Tigert. He also played the same position the following year. After leaving the University, he served on the coaching staff of the institution in 1919.

Although Mr. Muir never attended the University of Kentucky as it is now known, he was a student at Kentucky State College - - now Transylvania. Later he studied law at Washington and Lee, then took graduate work at now defunct Central University at Richmond.

Even though Mr. Rodes and Mr. Muir passed on before Kentucky became a major figure in the Southern football picture, the groundwork which they laid years before had much to do with the ascension of the Wildcats from the gridiron cellar.

THERE WILL BE NO TICKETS SOLD FOR ANY OF THE GAMES PLAYED IN LEXINGTON

The home game schedule involves only eleven games. Because of the large student body, ten of these games will be for students only. Due to the small seating capacity of the Alumni Gymnasium, it will be necessary for the student body to be divided into two groups so that each group will see five games.

The January 3rd game will be reserved for the faculty and staff, without cost. Each member of the faculty and staff will be limited to two free tickets.

LOUISVILLE GAMES

Jefferson County Armory

De Paul	-----	December 10
Creighton	-----	January 2
Temple	-----	February 24

NO PRIORITY

There will be no priority for anyone for the Louisville games.

HOW TO APPLY

Applications for tickets should be made by mail addressed to:

Ticket Office
University of Kentucky
Athletic Association
Lexington, Kentucky

Checks or Money Orders should be made payable to:

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY
ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

If checks are improperly made out, they will be returned to the applicant and his order of position will be forfeited.

Do NOT send a letter. Fill out the attached application card and mail with your remittance to the above address.

Applications will not be accepted at the Ticket Office unless delivered by mail.

DATES TO APPLY

Applications for tickets should be mailed so as to reach the Ticket Office in Lexington during the period of:

November 17 to 29, 1947, Inclusive

Applications reaching the Ticket Office prior to November 17th or after November 29th, will not be honored and will be returned.

Tickets for all three games will be sold during the single period designated above. Orders will be taken at that time for a single game, two games, or three games.

PRICE OF TICKETS

The price of tickets will be as follows:

- (1) For those seats located on the sides between the goals, $2.50 each, including tax.
- (2) For all other seats, $2.00 each, including tax.

For each order there will be a mailing charge of 25 cents. Stamps and cash will not be accepted. In other words, an applicant for two tickets for each of the three games at a price of $2.50 would submit a check for $15.25. For a like number of seats at $2.00 each, the check should be made in the amount of $12.25.

Ticket orders will be filled in the order in which they are received at the ticket office. The orders received first will be filled with the best ($2.50) seats. When these are exhausted, the orders will be filled with the $2.00 seats.

In order to avoid refunding money, MAKE OUT TWO CHECKS, one for the $2.50 seats and one for the $2.00 seats. When the applicant's ticket order is filled, the unused check will be returned with the tickets.

LIMIT ON TICKETS

Each individual will be limited to two tickets for each game.

GENERAL INFORMATION

In the event that all tickets are not disposed of during the period designated (November 17 to 29, inclusive) those remaining for a particular game will be placed on box-office sale three days prior to the game. One-half of any remaining tickets will be available for purchase at the Ticket Office at the Alumni Gymnasium, and one-half at the ticket office at the Armory in Louisville.

The Auditorium-Fieldhouse is under construction at the present time and should be completed in the near future. With the completion of this building, there should no longer be any shortage of tickets. The Board of Directors of the Athletic Association has set forth the foregoing policy on the distribution of tickets, and the Board requests your patience and cooperation until the Auditorium-Fieldhouse is available.

CENTERS

Jay Rhodemyre, six-feet two-inch 196-pound senior from Ashland, Ky., is the best center in the Southeastern Conference, Coach Bryant claims. . . . And Coach Bryant is not one to give undue praise. . . . Played a major portion of all Kentucky games last fall. . . . Majoring in engineering. . . . One of the best team-play leaders on the squad. . . . Was never more than a second-stringer until Bryant started to work on him. . . . There's no doubt about this former Army Air Corps pilot, he's a great football player.

Harry Ulinski, six-feet two-inch 196-pound sophomore from Ambridge, Pa., gives Kentucky a terrific one-two punch in the middle of the line. . . . Never before in recent Wildcat history has Kentucky had two centers as good as Rhodemyre and Ulinski. . . . They'll both be in the line-up when the 'Cats are on the defense. . . . This boy is just a good football player and that's about all you can say.

RIGHT ENDS

Wallace "Wah Wah" Jones is the pride and joy of all Kentuckians. . . . Jones will probably be regarded as Kentucky's greatest all-around athlete if he continues his fine work. . . . Lettered in football, basketball, and baseball both his freshman and sophomore years. . . . Was an All-S.E.C. end last fall. . . . Jones was named to the All-S.E.C. basketball five in both his freshman and sophomore seasons. . . . Considered one of the best pass receivers in the Nation without question. . . . Has a tremendous amount of competitive spirit. . . . He's one boy whose desire to win could never be questioned. . . . Called "Wah Wah" by his host of friends and admirers, but just plain Wallace by Coach Bryant. . . . He's six-feet four-inches tall and weighs 195-pounds. . . . A native of Harlan.

RIGHT GUARDS

Leo Yarutis, "The Little Tiger," is one of Kentucky's best vest-pocket guards in the school's history . . . Five-feet eight-inches . . . Leo is a master of his position . . . He weighs but 180-pounds, but he can mix it up with the biggest and best of them. . . . A fiery player, he's a great leader in the 'Cat forward wall . . . Majoring in pre-med . . . An exceptionally fine student . . . Broke his arm in last year's opening game . . . He should have a fine senior season.

Charles Browning, five-feet ten-inch junior from Montgomery, Ala., won a spot on the squad because he has the desire to play . . . Weighs 190-pounds . . . Suffered a back injury last summer and was counted out . . . The doctor prescribed corrective exercises and Browning faithfully followed his advice . . . As a result, he played a lot of ball for Kentucky last fall, his sophomore year . . . Majoring in electrical engineering.

QUARTERBACKS

George Blanda, a six-feet one-inch 190-pound 19-year old junior from Youngwood, Pa., was Kentucky's regular quarterback last fall when the Wildcats were using the single wing system exclusively . . . Now Coach Bryant plans to mix-up some single wing with some T-formation . . . And Blanda, despite the fact that he is ranked the No. 1 man, remains much of a mystery . . . He has never been tried under game conditions . . . And that's what they pay-off on . . . He's a fine kicker and a fair passer . . . Lettered in his freshman season . . . This position is a really big question mark.

Jim Babb, 177-pound five-feet eleven-inch sophomore from Lebanon, Tennessee, was a left halfback last fall . . . Has been switched to the signal calling spot this season . . . Possesses a tremendous amount of native ability as a kicker passer, and runner . . . If Babb develops into the player that he is capable of being, then Kentucky should have a good quarterback . . . A veteran, Babb was in the Coast Guard during the war . . . He's the strong, silent type . . . A physical education major.

NUMBER, PLEASE! — '47 RULE CHANGES LIBERALIZE SUBSTITUTION

BY CAL SMALL

THE FOOTBALL RULES committee of the National Collegiate Athletic Association is all for giving the weary footballer a break. Time was when Joe Ruggedrock, Class '03, could cavort through a full game of bruising football. Maybe modern pig-skin-toters are not of the same strenuous stuff as the tireless titans of the past, perhaps the tempo of the game has picked up, but the fact remains there are very few sixty-minute men left today. The tendency is for major schools to have two almost equally balanced teams splitting up the action, with a dozen or so more hulking lads ready to stem the breach if need be.

In tune with the times, the football rules committee has gradually been recognizing this revolution in football technique. Colleges last fall were able to substitute without limit while time was out, and the public was treated to the spectacle of whole teams exchanging places at critical junctures. Some schools had an "offensive" and a "defensive" eleven. Algernon Fancypants could treat the crowd to some stylish dipsy-doodle on offense and then sit it out when the opposition took over.

Now the rule-makers of the N.C.A.A. have gone even the unlimited substitution rule one better. They are taking the unprecedented step of allowing a college team to substitute one player while time is in. The ball must be dead (i.e.—no scrimmage going on), but a team does not have to use up valuable time-outs in making necessary or strategic substitutions. So this fall the football fan will go in for plenty of program flipping as grid mentors try to out push-button each other.

Also continuing the trend of recent years, the rules committee gave the offense another shot in the arm. For years fans and players alike were irritated by the cramping confines of plays close to the sidelines. Finally an inbounds line was moved in fifteen yards and there was less tight-rope running down the narrow corridor between inbounds and offside lines. Still, coaches specializing in bold, sweeping plays, long-distance passes, or quick-striking T-tactics, campaigned for more of the wide, open spaces. This year the committee ruled to move the inbounds line from fifteen yards in to a line one-third the width of the field (17.8 yards). As a result, spectators this year can look for more wide-sweeping maneuvers on the "short side."

In line with its constant attempt to prevent certain abuses as well as improve the quality of the game the committee decided that a shift play which simulates a regular play will be ruled a false start. This involves two or more players and refers to either a fake pass, fake run or feint in the charge. "Cutie tactics" of the sort had been used to draw opposing players into a premature charge and a resulting off-side penalty. Now a planned fake of this sort will bounce back on the attacking team in the form of a penalty if too much time is consumed in getting a legitimate play started.

In its never-ending fight to cut down on the number of injuries sustained on the football field, the rules committee ruled that if a kick is attempted on a try for point after touchdown and the kick is blocked or deflected the ball becomes dead. This will prevent the mad scrambling around after a "loose" ball on such kicks. Along this line, the committee rewrote the rules with respect to illegal use of the hands in an effort to tighten up on their enforcement and prevent injuries.

The last two rulings of the N.C.A.A. group referred to penalties. It was decided that on disqualification fouls, although the player would still be removed from the game, the penalty would be changed from half the distance to the goal line to fifteen yards. A ruling was passed also that after a ball has been kicked across the scrimmage line and before it has been touched by any player, penalties on all fouls except unnecessary roughness and illegal use of the hands will be inflicted at the point of the foul.

The committee made two other important decisions. One was to provide a general recodification of the football rules, which have grown like Topsy, and are a hodgepodge of inconsistencies. The other was to recommend a specific system for unity in the numbering of players. What with substitutions galore, the fan will need a precision instrument to keep players straight. The committee urged that ends be numbered in the eighties, tackles in the seventies, guards in the sixties, centers in the fifties, backs in the tens, twenties, thirties and forties. Number please!

LEFT HALFBACKS

Bill Boller, five-feet ten-inch sophomore from Beaver Falls, Pa., is placed ahead of Dopey Phelps by Coach Bryant as Kentucky's No. 1 left halfback. . Phelps is remembered as the freshman last season who led the Nation in punt returns and kick-off returns . . . This seems to be an indication that Coach Bryant has complete confidence in Boller . . . He passes well, kicks well . . . And runs hard for a 177-pound back . . . He's another one of those boys who's playing because he has the desire and determination . . . This should be the season he receives the experience for being a fine player in his junior and senior seasons.

Dopey Phelps, called Don by only his immediate family, stands five-feet eleven inches tall and weighs only 172-pounds . . . Led the Nation in punt returns and kick-off returns last season, his freshman year. . . Has been switched from right half to left halfback this fall . . . Has that initial burst of speed to blaze his way around end or dart through a hole which is open for only a split second . . . As a runner, Phelps hasn't an equal on the 'Cat squad . . . Hails from near-by Danville.

RIGHT HALFBACKS

Jack Farris was a fifth string halfback before the war . . . Last fall, Coach Bryant used Farris as his starting right halfback until he received a severe knee injury against Georgia in the fourth game of the season . . . Farris hasn't scrimmaged since being injured . . . His physical condition is still a mystery . . . Farris isn't particularly speedy, but he has an elusive style of running which makes him hard to stop . . . He stands five-feet eleven-inches tall and weighs only 175-pounds . . . Another one of those determination players.

Jim Howe, an even six-feet tall, he lettered in '44 . . . Returned from the service too late to play last fall . . . Has shown a lot of possibilities in practice since then . . . Like Farris, he isn't particularly swift, but he possesses the ability to pick his holes . . . And away he goes . . . He could aid Kentucky immensely this year . . . Weighs 175-pounds and served in the Army . . . Hails from Fort Thomas, Ky.

Dick Martin, 170-pound six-feet freshman from Chicago, is one of the few first-year players you see who is capable of playing a lot of ball in his initial season . . . On the defense, he's something for the boys to write home about . . . He's destined to see a lot of action in a Wildcat uniform.

FULLBACKS

Bill Mosley, five-feet nine-inch 178-pound senior from Montgomery, Ala., typifies a boy who wants to play football . . . Mose hasn't a lot of native ability, but he has more courage than a dozen ordinary players . . . And he usually manages to churn his way for good yardage . . . An honor student, Mose is president of the K-Club, the letterman's organization . . . Plans to coach following his graduation . . . An Army veteran.

Ralph Genito, 170-pound 23-year-old sophomore from Duquesne, Pa., is a speed merchant type of fullback . . . Injured last year, Ralph has just begun to hit his stride . . . And the opposition's line . . . With a little more seasoning, he's going to develop into a good football player . . . Is a brother to Carl Genito, who lettered last fall, his freshman season at Kentucky.

Lee Truman, 188-pound six-feet sophomore from Owensboro, is a fast, hard-driving fullback who needs only seasoning to be a top-notch performer . . . Played with the "B" squad last fall and gained valuable game experience . . . He's a high-stepper with a nice change of pace and plenty of speed . . . Truman will see action this fall, and plenty of action before he graduates.
