THE ALLEGIANCE LAWS

It is indeed fortunate for the University and other State educational institutions that the General Assembly has seen fit to "snub" any move toward making of the "I Pledge Allegiance" laws a requirement for teachers and students in this state.

The utter incongruity of forcing college professors to take these oaths has certainly been sufficiently demonstrated in eastern cities to prove that it is a worthless practice, too childish for even the slightest consideration of the mature and intelligent minds of the majority of our professors.

It seems ridiculous to believe that the mere taking of an oath would thereby automatically change a person of Socialist instincts into one of a conservative nature. The watchword of many radical organizations is "Bore from Within" and under the protection of such an oath, the liberal could more easily expound his dogma.

Naturally, we do not want teachers who impress Communism on the immature and half-formed brains of the young collegian. The way to avoid this, however, is not to be found in required oaths of allegiance. Every person goes through a period in which socialistic theories become very appealing, and he is the better for it when the idea passes. Hence, such procedures as taking an oath would tend to draw the student closer to the liberalism which the Allegiance laws attempt to control.

It has been humorously written that the perpetration of such a law might lead the way toward a furtherance of this practice whereby one would be forced to make an oath of allegiance before he could be married or execute a contract. A year or two ago, the statement that a college professor would be required to pledge allegiance would have seemed just as ridiculous as the above statement appears to us today. It merely proves conclusively the utter worthlessness of the allegiance laws.

It must have been the brain child of some politician with a highly distorted idea of creating patriotism. When a man loves and respects his country he does not have to be coerced into an ostentatious display of it. On the other hand, if he does not respect the laws of the land, the mere taking of an oath will not create such a respect.

For just this reason the esteemed eastern educators who so strenuously objected to be forced to take the oaths were mostly men of well-known conservatism. Teachers who obviously leaned toward Communism or some other 'ism, preserved a well-maintained peace.

Outcroppings of Communist teaching have been negligible at Kentucky. If such doctrines had been presented, it has been done with the idea of giving the student a well-rounded point of view and not of converting him to the other cause. It seems to The Kernel that Communism and Socialism lost a round by virtue of the Assembly's failure to consider these allegiance oaths.

However, college is supposed to be an institution in which young people are taught to think for themselves, to express their own opinions, and to develop individuality.

Hence, there are frequently instructors with whom we would enjoy a short chat in the privacy of an office, merely for the sake of coming into closer contact with that person. Just as we make friends among the people of our own age, so would we like to do the same occasionally with older persons, and not with a view of trying to get a grade.

The difficulty lies in the fact that although this is given a trial on a purely fair basis, the students' idea is usually misunderstood by everyone except himself. Leaving the professor's office, he has mental pictures of a disdainful and a "Well I'm glad that's over" look on the face of the person within. Met by a classmate who says, "Ah, ha, dirty nois!" he comes to the conclusion that further visits are futile.

Cannot professors receive such meetings in the spirit in which they are meant and not with a suspicious gleam of the eye?

In return we believe students will accord them the corresponding courtesy of not playing upon their good graces, but will attain a higher opinion of them as a result of the more democratic attitude with which they were met.

CUTTIN' UP THE CAMPUS with "Scoop"

IMPOSSIBLE LAST WORDS OF FAMOUS SENIORS

Elvis Stahr—"Everything I am, and everything I hope to be—I owe to Bechtum!" Andy Anderson—"Jazz? Phooey!" Moon Garling—"Being the editor of The Kernel was the easiest year of my life. It was a cinch!" Dave Diford—"Scram."

The Men's Student council—"We must tighten down on the drinking present on this campus. Hi!" Charles Zimmer—"Keep your hands out of politics. It never pays." Jack Crain—"I miss the lights of the big city. Broadway keeps calling me back."

Fritz Borries—"Wimmen are the source of all evil. Keep foot loose and fancy-free, like me." O. D. K. Seniors—"The Student Union Building? We never heard of it!"

DON'T LOOK NOW, BUT—you're stepping on your glasses, prof!

MAY DAY CONVOCATION NOTES

The pledges of Lamp and Cross trying to look nonchalant as they were ribboned. . . . The dazed faces of the Mortar Board girls when presented with a rose. . . . Campusulates to Frances Kerr and Elvis Stahr, winners of the most coveted senior honor, the Sullivan Medallions. . . . The Cwens girls, singing "I Love You Truly" as though they really meant it. . . . The Kernel gang greeting you, as you left the auditorium, with—"Congratulations! Buy a Sourmash!" . . . And then there was the boy who got mixed up and said, "Congratulations! Buy a Sourpuss!"

THE CAMPUS GOON—Somebody ought to attach a compass to her forehead so she'll know whether she's coming or going. . . . She's the kind of a girl that men would like to forget. . . . she never forgets a face. . . . and if you had a date with her when you're a freshman, she'll still act coy when you're a senior. . . . Her slogan is the same as the Northwest Mounties. . . . Leap Year is her idea of a time when anything goes, with every girl for herself, and no holds barred. . . . and if she doesn't succeed in getting married, she gets murdered. . . . so what difference does it make? . . . She's the gal that's always brought along when you ask "Have you got a friend?" . . . She happens once in the lifetime of every collegian. . . . so you might as well get it over early. . . . but if you do manage to escape her. . . . write a book and tell the rest of us how to keep out of her clutches. . . . If you want to know what she looks like. . . . glance at page eight of the new Sourmash. (Adv.)

By RIFPO

Ho hum, the running of the Classic of the Commonwealth is over and plenty of people are sorry they didn't have their chips on Bold Venture. In other words the famous Kentucky DUBBY of the year 1936 has gone down in the annals of turf history. But, why dwell upon that? This isn't a sports column. Anyway, I can't glow and say as 't had planned to. "Me, I went to the thing the year it didn't rain," cause it was a pretty day for the race in spite of the predictions of the weather man. The worst thing of all is the fact that I was offered a pass and couldn't make the trip. I know two girls that had a ticket on the winnah. They didn't keep a thing about past performances and all that, they just played a blind hunch and it worked, ah well, maybe it's the best way after all.

May Day impressions: Parades late as the devil, floats very good what there was of them. Doty Haring made a rather stately Bo Peep. I guess that's who she was supposed to be. A. T. O's float appeared to those having that type of humor, some of the better (?) babies looked rather mature.

"Cutting up the Campus" is the most clever thing on this page, in fact, I feel rather insignificant spotted alongside of it. Carry on, Scoop. You're doing splendid work. Height of absent mindedness: The cashier in a downtown foodery who took a five-dollar bill from a customer, punched it, thanked him, and handed it back.

LOST—good romantic gone to join the immortal ranks of the Fourth Estate. I didn't see him when he left, but I got a note givalling him a bit of advice that he might or might not be able to use. Elvis Stahr, Rhodes Scholarship recipient, Sullivan Medallion winner, et cetera, et cetera, was heard to yell on the tennis court the other day. "Hey, look, the advantages of a higher education!"

A feller came up to me the other day and says, "Now I'm gonna do so and so and I would appreciate it if you would sorta give me a spot in your column." Sorry but I don't run this thing on that sort of basis. If you make it, you do it, my opinion of your worth, not your own. "Would be better if you kept that in mind."

Cuba Hardin says, "Here I've been going to school six years and when I finally got a bid to an honorary degree, I had to drop out. I'll be crory 'n' can't let it." There'll be another day, Cuba, cheer up. The guys aren't gonna overlook a good old like that.

Ed Carder, former University student, now writing continuity for WLV, dropped in the other day on his way to the Derby, driving a brand new car. Started to work in February and is now the veteran of the continuity staff. I looked through one of his scripts and believe me the work looks rather complicated, from a layman's viewpoint.

Nothing makes a person as self-respecting as having a job. A friend of mine, who was down to his last cent, was offered a job for $200 a month and the first thing he did was buy some new suits and a dozen pairs of shoes. I asked him wotthell he was gonna do with so many shoes and he replied, "I've been on my uppers once, and I don't intend to be on them again for a long time."

Hear that the executive secretary of Sigma Delta Chi, honorary journalism fraternity, is coming down to investigate the miscreant group next week. Guess if they pay for their share of the convention, at which only a group of gray beards kept up by a bunch of glibbie youngsters, are allowed to have the floor, and will pay his expenses to Kentucky he will condescend to take them back into his bosom maybe! The local group is, at present, self-sustaining. The more that it ever was as a national organization.

I've been accused of using a bunch of books and giving a bit of constructive criticism on the poems that I placed in the copy. That's right and since some of you guys don't like that type of stuff you've made this column darned short, today's something for you to be thankful for. I'll leave this passing thought with you, or bust a nut, anyway.

Other Fellow's Impression Oh, for the life of a Columist. "For that's the life of ease. Recording what other gals might've missed. Writin' when ya damn well please."

Mine Three hours I've groaned, sweated, and toiled. Still don't know what it's all about. I'll admit I'm stupid, thwarted, and toiled. Guess I'd better say LIGHTS OUT.

from his mighty right fist. Well—the next guy walked by and as Fox stepped up to deliver he looked at him, kinda smiled and walked away. Yeah, it was none other than Barney Ross, the champ, in the company of the old Maulier, Jack Dempsey. Needless to say, Fox was subdued for the rest of the day.

Many of the coeds were bewailing their plight Sunday night when it was discovered that the smooth Franchot Tone and his loonie were at the Lafayette hotel Friday night without any of them finding it out. Oh, to be a movie actor.

NOTE: The new column, "Cuttin' Up the Campus," is quite interesting, and worthy of mentioning. Have heard more favorable comments on it than any recently initiated column.

It just cost Hesse $2 to make the following mistake: Walter Riddell ordered gardenias for his date, Anne Marie Peery. But Hesse got the order mixed up and sent them to Ann Law Lyons with the name card signed Walter. And she had a date with Walter Burn. Ann Law said that she was rather surprised to get them but thought perhaps W. B. was trying new tactics.

Set 10 to 1 the announcer of the running of the Kentucky Derby wasn't a true Kentuckian or he would never have made the statement after the race, that although Bold Venture won, the horse of the day was Brevity. Of course, every one has a right to his opinion, but it looks to us like pretty punk sportsmanship, especially when it was said about something that is a symbol of gallantry and sportsmanship combined. . . .

and Sally Galkskill as she can't tell him about the similarity in the two words. "Tormented" and "I Must Have Been Moonlog?" "Christopher Columbus" seems to be on an extended tour this spring if we can judge by the number of times it's played daily.

How is Betty Earle going to survive with her journalism lover, Fritz Borries, way up there in Dayton, Ohio. Presume Show Slights will become more frequent now as there is no outside attractions.

INTROSPECTIONS: Have you ever noticed the similarity in the two words "Tormented" and "I Must Have Been Moonlog?" "Christopher Columbus" seems to be on an extended tour this spring if we can judge by the number of times it's played daily.

See by the invitations that the Alpha Gamma Rho are throwing their annual hill-billy dance this coming Saturday. Judging by the past it promises to be swell. Sunny how people loosen up and have a big time when they are dressed, harm-sarum. We advise you not to miss it.

How many of you realize that final examinations start exactly three weeks from tomorrow? Ah, I thought that would get you. But you ought to know that for every other there must be a thorn. (subtle, huh?)

It's all a lie about Bob Forsythe being jilted by his Twidtel dream girl, so the rumor goes, as they are seen courting in the Tavern just as hard as before. You can't stop a power house like him.

Wonder how many of those box seats so many are bragging about were soap box seats down below the grandstand? If none, the Churchill Downs must have grown to double its original size overnight.

No Easy Chair Is Attached to Job States Ex-Editor

Editorship of a college newspaper creates more enemies than any other one activity on the campus. Norman "Moon" Garling, retiring editor of the Kentucky Kernel, declared yesterday.

In his column, "Night and Day," conducted under the name of "Engy," Garling stated that the editor is "fell guy" for everything that appears in the paper and for a lot of things that don't appear.

Stepping down from the position which he took one year ago, Editor Garling put his last Kernel—the edition of April 21—to bed and wished the new staff "all the luck in the world in its new endeavor." Garling, whose home is in Chillicothe, entered the University in 1932. He joined the staff of the Kernel as sports writer and in 1935 conducted the column, "Ivory Tips."

Later in the same year he joined the editorial staff and from that position he assumed the editorship. "Most people who know nothing about the internal workings of a newspaper think the editor's job is one with an easy chair attached to it," Garling declared.

"This may be true to a certain extent," he went on to say, "but on the other hand, there is much to be accounted for that never comes to light, especially what the people think he ought to account for."

CLUBS TO SPONSOR BANQUET

A Mexican banquet, sponsored by the Spanish club of the University of Kentucky, will be held at 6:30 o'clock Friday, May 8, at the Patio. There will be short talks made by Charles Ashford, president of the club; Dr. Hobart Ryland of the Department of Romance Language, and J. E. Hernandez. Favors from Mexico will be at each plate and Spanish songs will be sung.

For Mother's Day we've taken special efforts to have ready for you a splendid variety of lovely blooms and potted plants—for we know you'll want flowers to express your wishes on this day. Just drop in and make your selection—or phone us—and we will see that Mother gets them fresh and fragrant at the right time.

After 40 years of active duty in the United States Coast Guard, Captain J. I. Bryan, B. M. E. '05, is now on four months' leave of absence at the expiration of which he will retire from service. Captain Bryan entered the Coast Guard service in December after his graduation from the university and has had 26 years of sea service during the 40 years since he first was assigned to duty. He has served for eight years as division engineer for the Northern division, the New York division, and the Norfolk division in the maintenance, upkeep, and repair of vessels of the Coast Guard. He has been commended for participation in the U. S. S. Bear Arctic relief expedition of 1897, for service in the U. S. Navy during the Spanish-American war, and for several other meritorious activities in the Coast Guard service. Captain Bryan has made his home on North Shore road, near Aquin Park, Norfolk, Va., where he and Mrs. Bryan and his son, John I. Bryan II, expect to make their permanent home.

Joseph C. W. Frazer, B. S. '97, M. S. '02, is professor of chemistry and chairman of the chemistry department at Johns Hopkins University, a position he has held since 1916. He received his Ph. D. degree from Johns Hopkins in 1901 and his Sc. D. degree from Kenyon college in 1905. He is a member of the American Chemical Society, the University Club of Baltimore, Md., a foreign member of the Society of Arts and Science, Utrecht, Holland, and is a member of Phi Beta Kappa, Tau Beta Pi, and Sigma Xi, honorary fraternities. Professor Frazer's name has been included in Who's Who in America and in American Men of Science. He resides at 3607 Roxbury Place, Baltimore.

Logan L. Lewis, B. M. E. '07, recently published an article on "Air Conditioning in Relation to Water Consumption" in the magazine, "Waterworks and Sewage." Mr. Lewis is chief engineer for the Carter Engineering Corporation with offices on Philadelphia avenue, Newark.

Reinert, army officer, and lawyer, Walter Christian Kiesel, B. M. E. '08, is a patent attorney affiliated with the Western Electric company and the Bell Telephone laboratories of New York. Mr. Kiesel, who received his LL. B. degree from the New York Law School, is a member of Tau Beta Pi, honorary engineering fraternity, and the New York Patent Law association. His home address is 350 Rockwood road, Madison, N. J.

Evans Layton Shuff, B. M. E. '10, is a sales engineer, handling mechanical equipment, headquarters at 724 First National Bank Building, Atlanta, Ga. He is a member of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, the Atlanta Athletic club, and the East Lake Country club. His residence is at 200 Montgomery Ferry drive, N. E. Atlanta.

Mrs. John Emerson Lewis (Marquette Schwears), A. B. '15, is a former member of the faculty of the Frankfort and Paducah, Ky.

High schools, an active civic leader, and is now a resident of Whitesburg, Ky., where her husband is manager of a commissary for the Sandlick Coal company. Mr. Lewis attended the University of Arizona and the University of California before receiving his degree from the University of Kentucky. Mrs. Lewis was installed as president of the Curry Breckinridge unit of the American Legion Auxiliary at Lexington in September of 1935, but served only one month before moving to Whitesburg to make her home.

Earl Maxwell Heavrin, LL. B. '23, is a special agent for the Federal Bureau of Investigation, United States Department of Justice, at New Orleans, La. Mr. Heavrin's wife was formerly Miss Martha Carolyn Pate, B. S. '24, and they have one daughter, Mary Carolyn, now eight years old. Their residence address is Apartment I, the Monterey, 4506 St. Charles avenue, New Orleans.

A former research worker in county government and cooperative farm marketing at the University of North Carolina, a graduate student of the University of Illinois and of the University of California, Clifton James Bradley, B. S. '26, is now employed as research worker in rural credit and taxes at the university agricultural experiment station. Mr. Bradley received his M. S. degree from the University of Illinois in 1927, and has completed the course requirements for his doctorate at the University of California. He is a member of the American Economics Association, the Research Club of the University, and Alpha Zeta, agricultural fraternity. His home address is Summit Drive, Montclair Subdivision, Lexington.

Miss Olive Marion Brown, A. B. '32, is teacher of the fourth grade at Kanawha school, Charleston, W. Va. She is a member of the West Virginia Education association, the National Education association and the American Association of University Women. Her residence address is 1814 Washington street, Charleston, W. Va.

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By JOE QUINN
Kernel Sports Editor

Biographical department: ... The student directory has him listed as Lorin Lillis, A & S 1, Schenectady, New York... but it doesn't say anything about Lorin's idea of pleasant diversion... which is trick horseback riding... while a lad upon his father's upstate New York acres he learned to tame wild horses and when things became a little dull in the country he decided to shift for himself... and so applied for a job as a trick rider with a Canadian circus... in a tryout he did so well that he was signed immediately.

However, it seems that Parent Lillis didn't like his son's new position and informed the boy to return to the parental roof or else... Lorin else which stated him doing one night stands from Nova Scotia to Vancouver he says that life with the circus was hard but romantic... Lorin's been all over Canada but has actually seen very little of it as all the traveling was done at night.

When the circus finally hit a financial snag in Quebec, Lorin decided to stay there... it was only a few weeks later that landed another job, this time as a Canadian customs officer... and he gave that up to come to school... he hasn't always escaped unharmed from his riding... most serious injuries were a broken shoulder and a broken foot.

He says that horses are very humane and the only chance one has of being injured is accidentally... at the present Lorin is considering going to Texas... he has never been there but he feels that he will have an opportunity to do some more riding and after all that's what he likes.

This information was furnished us by Samuel J. Tedesco, the bashful barrister. Sam just interviews people as a sideline... he wants to have something to do when he opens his law office and is waiting around for customers.

Dosselt Reid, after one of the professors told his class that he had played Granville, "Yeh, everyone was on Granville but I jockey." Some unknown freshman passing through the postoffice, "And I bought one of those Derbyscopes and all I saw was the hat of the lady in front of me."

In the Kernel where the wits are wont to gather, "In finishing last, cold Swiker ran true to form. The filly always has the final word."

"Tommy Atkins," It was almost a bold venture to say that that horse as a possibility before the race.

One of the coeds who was present for the race, the first she had ever seen, "All I could see was a lot of horses running." Which was all anyone could see.

And the clincher, "I picked the winner but didn't get a bet down."

And so the contributors write the column.

What's going on here

...what's happening in these 40 houses

—the curing and ageing of leaf tobacco, that's what's going on.

Thousands of hogsheads of mild ripe tobacco are under these roofs... just lying here ageing and sweetening and mellowing for Chesterfield cigarettes.

Like Rip Van Winkle, they sleep—the tobaccos getting mellow and milder for the cigarette that Satisfies.
