

Romanian ambassador speaks of cooperation

By RALPH C. LONG
Kernel Staff Writer

The key to international cooperation is the respect of one country for another, according to Romanian ambassador Corneliu Bogdan.

In a lecture last night, highlighting his three day visit to the bluegrass, ambassador Bogdan explained his country's role in the world today.

Bogdan said his country seeks the "active cooperation of all countries and an equality among nations."

Interference

According to Bogdan, the main international problems in the world today arise from interference of one country in the affairs of another. He said "the right of all people to chose their own way" is necessary for progress in the world today.

A main premise of Romanian foreign policy, Bogdan explained is opposition to interference in other people's problems. He said differences on political issues should not prevent cooperation in other areas such as economic and cultural exchanges.

Progress?

Bogdan said the United States and Romania were "making good progress" in these areas. "We can't expect, under present circumstances, any better," he said.

The ambassador said he hoped the exchange in the areas of economics, sciences and culture will aid in political understanding in the future.

Was coach and athlete

Kirwan loved UK sports

The death of Dr. Albert D. Kirwan was not only the loss of a fine professor, but the loss of a true sports lover as well. As a student at UK, Kirwan lettered in football and track in addition to heading the Wildcat football squad his senior year. Following his graduation in 1926, Kirwan became teacher and athletic coach at Louisville Male High School, from 1926 to 1931, and at DuPont Manual High School, from 1931 to 1937.

Returned in 1938

In 1938 "Ab" Kirwan came back to his alma mater as head football coach. His players always held a deep respect for his dedication and sincerity.

Harold Black, a member of the 1938 squad, recalled "Dr. Kirwan was a well-respected man with a good sense of humor who meant business when he walked onto that football field."

In his six seasons as the first University of Kentucky graduate ever to hold the coaching job, his teams compiled a record of 24 wins, 28 losses, and 4 ties.

Famous players

Two of Kirwan's more notable players were Luke Linden, formerly of the Detroit Lions, and Irmal Allen, the number one assistant for the Dallas Cowboys.

One of Kirwan's advantages on the football field was his supreme intelligence. Said Bill McCubbin, Kirwan's assistant coach in 1940 and 1945, "His intelligence definitely showed in his coaching strategies. He was an ideal coach who was a real asset to the team."

'Square-shooter'

Off the field Kirwan earned as much respect as on. He was said to have been a "square-shooter, who allowed his intelligence and leadership to prove him a gentleman in every sense of the word."

"He was so personal and gave so much individual attention that he was almost like a second father," added McCubbin.

A great man

"Probably Kirwan's greatest contribution to the football program here at the University," remarked associate Dick Robinson, "was the stature that he brought to the game and

CLASSES CANCELLED IN MEMORY OF DR. KIRWAN

All University classes and offices will be closed Thursday from 10 to 12 a.m. while the body of Dr. Kirwan is on campus in Memorial Hall. All 9 a.m. history classes will be cancelled. 9:30 a.m. classes may meet for half an hour at the discretion of the instructor, but the University will still close at 10 a.m.

UK Parking permit holders who will attend the funeral and desire to accompany the procession to Lexington Cemetery should make arrangements for special parking upon arrival Thursday morning with the officer at the main gate on Limestone Street.

Several parking spaces for the general public will be reserved at the main entrance and the Rose Street entrance.

Bike pikes? Lack of funds is biggest hassle for UK cyclists who want pathways

By KATHI MILLIMET
Kernel Staff Writer

Temporary plans for bike routes around the UK campus are being drawn up, but the major problem now is a lack of funds.

According to David Mattingly of the SG Physical Environment Committee and UK representative on the Lexington-Fayette County Planning Commission, "the most difficult part of bike routes is money."

He said a law recently passed in Oregon requires "five percent of the appropriations to highways in Oregon go to bicycle and pedestrian safety."

Mattingly has "asked a state senator to study and see if a bill of this nature is feasible." (He would not identify the senator.)

"What will happen remains to be seen," Mattingly said.

Several problems

The Planning Commission has several problems to deal with. "We decided the biggest problem is the great number of bikes within the University community," Mattingly said. "There are about 1,500 bikes parked on an average class day."

He noted the Planning Commission has no jurisdiction over UK property, but their first priority is to construct bikeways around town. Bike routes are a possibility on Nicholasville Rd., Rose St., Euclid Ave., and Limestone.

Another proposal was presented by Grace Donnelly of the Sierra Club, Mattingly said. She favored widening the sidewalks on the campus side of the street starting from the Med Center going out to Nicholasville Road. She said a majority of Med Center people live on Nicholasville and ride bikes to work.

Rose Street a problem

Mattingly said Don Burrell who heads the Planning Commission favors a comprehensive program of bikeways on Euclid Avenue and Rose Street, but called Rose Street a problem because it is so narrow.

Burrell suggested when bike-riders go downtown they use Harrison or Lexington Avenues instead of Limestone which he called "too clogged."

Burrell is a member of the Wheelmen Club, a recreational group that has also designed several rural bike routes, said Mattingly.

In 1966 there was a study concerning "A recreational trail from Lexington to the Kentucky River in the Tates Creek area corridor." "This is in the process of being developed," Mattingly said. He admitted again the big problem of a lack of money.

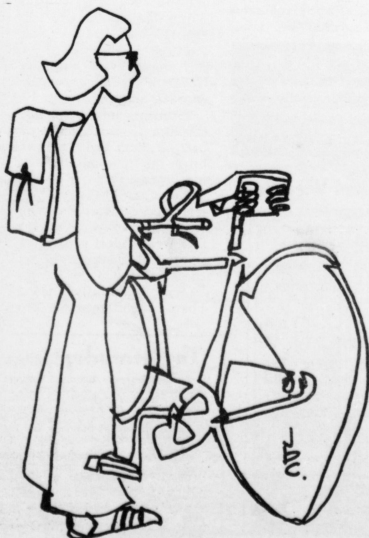

Campus surveyed

A committee in Keates Sparrow's Business English (203) class did a survey concerning bikes on campus, and found UK students favor the building of more ramps while they complained about steps and crowded sidewalks.

The committee revealed reckless motorists have taken their toll of bike-riders. Since Nov. 5, there have been 38 "personal injuries and six non-injury accidents."

Mattingly said there was one fatality. "With the growing number of bicycles, it's going to get worse."

Mattingly feels "it will be two years before anything concrete is realized. The UK campus is already crowded—even the sidewalks are crowded."

Peking, Shanghai, Hangchou on itinerary

Nixon's China journey will last one week

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon plans to spend a full week in Communist China, visiting three cities, during his historic journey there in February.

After the White House made the announcement Tuesday, Dr. Henry A. Kissinger said summit talks to be held in Peking, Shanghai and Hangchou Feb. 21-28 will not result in bringing peace to Vietnam or settling the future of Taiwan.

Kissinger, the President's national security affairs adviser, said Nixon's conferences with Chairman Mao Tse-tung, Premier Chou En-lai and others would focus on problems of direct concern to the two countries rather than those involving third parties.

Successful outcome

The White House foreign policy specialist said arrangements which have been made indicate "a reasonably successful outcome" for the first visit ever made to mainland China by an American president.

Kissinger said Nixon will spend at least four days in Peking and that the early-morning hours may be devoted to face-to-face talks with Chinese leaders.

Schedule uncertain

The President's full itinerary has not been fixed but Kissinger said Nixon would stop only on American territory during the flights to and from China. At least one stop, he reported, would afford the President an opportunity to rest and adjust himself to time-zone changes.

Secretary of State William P. Rogers and Kissinger will accompany the President.

In summarizing the American approach to talks, Kissinger said of Vietnam: "We do not expect to settle it in Peking."

While he predicted the Chinese will raise the subject of Taiwan, he said, "the United States position is that the ultimate relationship between Taiwan and the People's Republic of China should be settled through direct negotiations."

Romanian calls for cooperation

At present Romania is "in a stage of development", said Bogdan, where it cannot be considered one of the more developed countries of the world.

Bogdan said Romanians are "aware of all our (the Romanians) difficulties and shortcomings," and because they recognize their difficulties need world peace. "Peace is vital to us," he said.

Our major contribution to the world, said Bogdan, must be to establish relations between nations.

Bogdan said Romania at present is in an "underprivileged position" in its trade relations with the United States. Bogdan explained the new import surcharge placed on goods had no effect on Romanian products.

Surcharge didn't hurt

He said the tariff on goods imported from his country is already so high without the surcharge that the surcharge addition did not hurt Romania as much as it hurt those privileged trading partners, such as the western European countries.

Ambassador Bogdan left the bluegrass at seven this morning. His visit to the University and the surrounding area was at the invitation of President Otis Singletary.

Antiwar veteran to speak

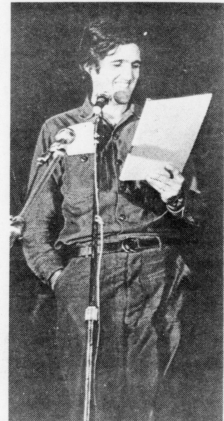

John Kerry, a leading spokesman for the Vietnam Veterans Against the War, will speak Thursday night in the Grand Ballroom of the Student Center at 8 p.m.

Kerry was one of the leaders of the VVAW demonstrations in Washington, D. C. last May and has been an active in political efforts to elect candidates opposed to the Vietnam War.

He himself received an early discharge from the Navy in order to run for Congress in Massachusetts, but later withdrew in support of the eventual winner, Father Robert F. Drinan.

While serving in Vietnam, Kerry was awarded the Silver Star, the Bronze Star, and three Purple Hearts.

His appearance is sponsored by the Student Center Board and is free.

Wendelsdorf asks for chairmanship

Student Government President Scott Wendelsdorf has asked Governor-elect Wendell Ford to name him chairman of the Student Code standing committee at the Board of Trustees meeting Dec. 14.

In a letter to Ford dated Nov. 29, Wendelsdorf said, "The current chairman, George Griffin, goes off the board at the end of the month, so the appointment of a new chairman is certainly in order."

Ford, who will be inaugurated Dec. 7, will succeed Gov. Louie

B. Nunn as chairman of the UK Board of Trustees and will have the power to appoint committee heads.

Tried lost September

Last September Nunn rejected Wendelsdorf's proposal to be named Student Code standing committee chairman. However, Nunn urged chairman Griffin to call a Code committee meeting "as soon as possible."

"Nothing has happened (about Nunn's request)," Wendelsdorf wrote Ford. "Indeed, more had been done by the Code committee last year by this time even without the Governor's express mandate to expedite matters."

"Students understandably see this as a deliberate move on the part of Nunn and the board to brush the Code under the carpet by making generous announcements before the television cameras and then not following through."

If Wendelsdorf is named Code committee chairman, he will be the first student trustee in UK history to be chairman of a board committee.

Gives birth control information

CWC distributes booklet

By KATIE MCCARTHY
Kernel Staff Writer

A booklet which strives "to provide men and women with the information they need to control their own bodies" is being distributed free by the Council on Women's concerns.

The quote is from the introduction to "Birth Control Handbook," originally published by McGill University, but now under the auspices of a private group.

One thousand copies of the booklet were ordered but Ms. Barbara Sutherland, a member of the Council, said she wanted to order 20,000 copies, "one for everyone at the University." The booklet was ordered due to a "tremendous amount of women at UK who have gotten abortions through Women's Lib in Lexington," Sutherland said.

The estimated 300 UK women who have obtained abortions have not gotten the information they need on birth control, Sutherland said, and "this booklet is the best one" because "it has the most complete information in it."

The handbook tells why birth control is used, how it is used and the side effects which could result from each method. Sutherland feels this is an important aspect of the information, since the circulars provided by pharmaceutical companies often minimize the dangers of their products.

Illustrations and diagrams on the female body, hormone cycle and proper use of birth control methods are "really good," according to Sutherland, but the booklet "shouldn't take the place of a physician. It should give women enough information so they can ask intelligent questions of their physicians."

The booklet is "geared toward women, urging women to take responsibilities on themselves," Sutherland said. But "it gives a couple the opportunity to talk about and decide what method is best for them. The man is able to participate and share part of the responsibility, too, that is really important," she said.

Booklet is political

When asked whether she felt the booklet was political, Sutherland said, "it is political in that it takes a strong stand on the population movement," but she does not feel "that disagreement with the political philosophies" espoused by the booklet should "hinder it from being useful."

The Council on Women's Concerns plans to staple a page to the back of the "Birth Control Handbook" with information on where to get birth control advice and devices in Lexington. The handbook is available to the UK community in the Student Government office.

This week's Guerilla Theatre

The Committee on Militarism met Monday night and planned two Guerilla Theatre skits for this week.

Members plan to satirize the Lexington Herald-Leader's "Nail the Pusher" anti-pusher campaign in a skit scheduled for Wednesday, Dec. 1. One member will be tied to a pole and deposited at the Herald-Leader office and the group will ask for the "bounty."

A lottery skit is planned for Saturday, Dec. 4, at the Student Center patio. One member will portray an army general calling off birthdates while other members drop dead.

Another good program faces a possible veto

One of the better proposals that may go down the drain if President Nixon decides to veto the tax-cut bill now in Congress is an amendment to current income tax laws that would grant a tax credit to taxpayers who have dependents in public or private colleges.

The bill, sponsored by South Carolina Senator Earnest Hollings, would grant, on a sliding scale, a credit of up to $325 to families that are putting someone through a college or trade school.

The bill excludes room and board as allowable expenses and thus favors state-supported and low-cost institutions. Also because of the sliding scale of credits allowed, the bill favors families of low and middle incomes.

The bill has already passed the Senate by a vote of 56 to 27 and now sits in a House-Senate conference committee with several other proposed tax cuts.

Not surprisingly Hollings bill and the whole tax cut package, which includes raising personal exemptions plus the controversial campaign spending proposal, is being opposed by the Nixon administration.

Administration spokesman Clark MacGregor calls the whole package "highly inflationary" and said the President is opposed to Hollings bill.

With tuition costs skyrocketing beyond the grasp of many while at the same time scholarships are being cut back at most colleges, we think Hollings bill is a good one.

If Hollings bill doesn't pass colleges may return to what they were several years ago: repositories for the sons and daughters of the rich while the sons and daughters of the poor and middle class are denied an education.

Hollings bill may help arrest that trend since it seems state legislatures are determined to cut education budgets and as we all know the first programs cut are usually those that help the poorer students.

By threatening to veto the entire tax-cut package, which we feel gives some much needed relief to the poor and middle class who are caught in the throes of a recession, Nixon has shown his true colors.

By vetoing these measures for middle Americans while still demanding a $70 billion Defense budget and a $30 billion tax credit to industry, Nixon will prove that he is a Republican in the truest sense: a tool of the rich and powerful and an enemy of the poor and weak.

Lost: an old friend

In 1965 Dr. A. D. Kirwan spoke at the first annual Issac Shelby Festival in Danville, Ky. He commemorated Issac Shelby with these words:

"We honor his name and memory in the hope and expectation that his noble career will inspire in future generations of Kentuckians and all Americans that selfless devotion, to country and duty that guided him through his long and illustrious life."

It seems appropriate to apply the same statement to Dr. Kirwan, UK's seventh president.

Dr. Kirwan was of the old school. He was responsible, hard-working, enthusiastic, and made few enemies. He believed in his country, and worked selflessly to defend what he determined to be in the better interest of his fellows. Some may criticize such traits today, but after considering the record of such a human as Kirwan, it seems more difficult.

He received recognition not only from his academic colleagues. Students nominated him for high honors almost as often, and those honors were not unmerited. In a statement to the Board of Trustees during his tenure as acting president, Kirwan said, "...we need to concentrate more of our attention and more of our interest upon the undergraduate students."

His phrases were not hollow platitudes. A former student writes, "I have two sons who anticipate attending UK in the near future. I hope they are fortunate enough to have Dr. Kirwan, or a man of his integrity, as president."

We pay tribute to Dr. Albert Kirwan. The University of Kentucky will miss his presence.

Kernel Forum: the readers write

Food stamps and veterans

In that never-ending comedy-tragedy known as the Kentucky Kernel a new low has been reached. In Monday's editorial entitled "Special Interests?" the Kernel has slithered to the depths from which it may never return.

What begins as a typical Kernel tirade at the Republicans or anyone to the right of Abbie Hoffman, ends in a disgusting put-down of the American veteran.

What rationale does the author of this Kernel editorial use when hinting that college deserve their food stamps whereas the veteran deserves no consideration for time spent in service of his country? I am not knocking college students getting food stamps, for as long as everyone else is getting a hand-out, why not students? What offends me is the author's total insensitivity to the sacrifices of a serviceman.

I am not pro-military. In fact, I am almost as disgusted with the military as I am with the Kernel. However, the American veteran and the American military establishment are separate entities and one should not be criticized because of the other.

At the risk of some psychology student accusing me of having a martyr complex I will list a few of the reasons why I feel I earned the $175 a month educational allowance I am receiving.

I doubt if the Kernel can produce similar justifications for the college students: (1) In the 46 months I was in the service I received poverty level pay (I began at less than $90 a month.) (2) A forced loss of identity (3) long separation from family and friends (4) being subject to the whims of persons of dubious fairness and intelligence (5) being thought of and treated as service trash by the civilian population.

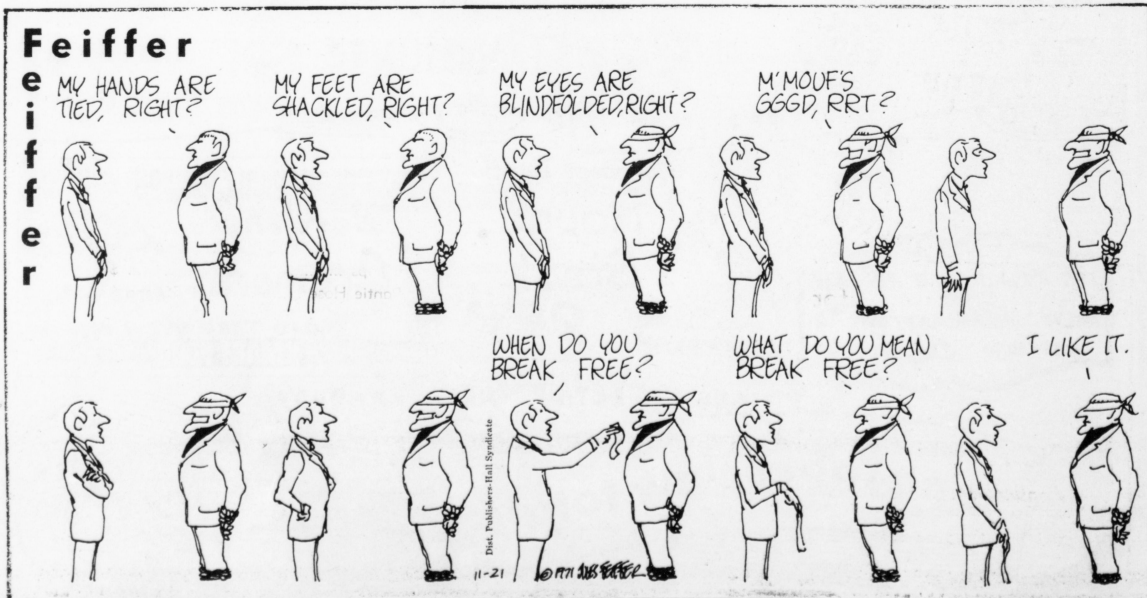

Such an ill-founded editorial deserves a re-evaluation and apology, but it will never come, at least not from the Kentucky Kernel.

'Articulate' John Kerry

Many thanks to the Student Center Board for bringing John Kerry to the University. Probably the most attractive and articulate young man to appear on the national scene since the death of President Kennedy, John Kerry should be heard by many members of the campus community this Thursday evening. Birth control boutique?

Nation's first love shop does a booming business in sex aids

CHAPEL HILL, N.C. (AP)—A bright little shop in Chapel Hill billed as the nation's first birth-control boutique is doing a brisk business in its self-proclaimed role of bringing "sanity and taste to the sexual revolution."

The Adam and Eve shop near the campus of the University of North Carolina, looks at first glance like any other college-town boutique.

But stacked on its modern glass and chrome display shelves are a wide variety of nonprescription contraceptives for men and women.

Love boutique

Calling itself "America's first love boutique," the store opened Nov. 17 to capacity crowds. Its backers are making plans to expand nationwide.

The store, a subsidiary of Population Planning Associates, was founded by Dr. T. R. L. Black and Philip D. Harvey who received their master's degrees in family planning from North Carolina.

Harvey is a former director of CARE in India and Black, a member of the Royal College of Physicians, is a former officer in the New Guinea medical service.

No sexual revolution

"We're not here to start a sexual revolution," said John J. Quinn, director of marketing.

"This is the middle ground between the clinical drug store approach and the lasciviousness of the smut shops."

The Clean Air Caravan will be at the Sports Center Parking Lot from 9 to 12 a.m. and 1 to 4 p.m. through Dec. 3.

Nutter to meet Nixon

CINCINNATI (AP)—It was announced Tuesday that the Republican nominee in Saturday's election, Army Lt. Col. Raymond Nutter, has been invited to meet Wednesday morning with President Nixon at the White House.

Nutter said he was pleased to have a chance to discuss his campaign with the President and said he would use the opportunity to discuss problems of the Sixth District. He said he would stress the importance to that area of the tobacco industry and express his opposition "to the discriminatory tobacco legislation under consideration in Congress."

"I also will take this opportunity to confirm my intention of sponsoring a constitutional amendment to end the busing of our children outside their normal local school zones," Nutter said.

Rupp's singing the 'Blues' as Cats host Northwestern

By CHARLIE DICKINSON
Kernel Staff Writer

Adolph Rupp's pre-season visions of doom have become a tradition at UK, like the first snow. They are so regular and predictable that Norman Rockwell ought to be commissioned to do an oil painting of them someday.

He could pose Rupp talking to newsmen telling them why his team won't win five games because this guy broke such and such or that guy left for the pros.

Then on the second half of the painting, Rockwell could have Rupp in the same room with the same newsmen, add a shiny trophy for the conference championship, and caption it with Rupp chuckling, "Golly, we sure did develop."

Well, Rupp is up to his old tricks again but the way things have been going he may finally be right.

In his throne room in Memorial Coliseum, Rupp summed up his 1971-72 model. "This is the worst team I've had since I've been here."

Scholarship players

At the beginning of school, Rupp's charges looked like easy winners in the Southeastern Conference and possible national contenders.

Then players began straining, pulling, and breaking various parts of their bodies. One day Tom Payne, the 7-2 junior center, took a look in his icebox and, seeing nothing, signed with the Atlanta Hawks. He now has a full icebox and a reserved seat at the end of the Atlanta bench.

What Rupp was left with were remnants of his team being bolstered by what he calls, "the worst freshman team ever at UK."

Going into Wednesday's game with Northwestern, UK has nine scholarship players ready for action.

Three starting positions for Wednesday night's game with Northwestern have been filled. Tom Parker will be at a forward, Stan Key will be one of the guards and Jim Andrews will be the center.

Where UK goes this year will depend a lot on Andrews.

Only Andrews stayed

Three years ago, as a scoring machine, freshman Andrews' future was bright. Then Mark Soderberg and Payne developed to claim the lane vacated by Dan Issel. As a sophomore, Andrews sat watching Payne build into a competent and sometimes awesome player.

Now Soderberg and Payne are gone—one out west to seek his fame, the other south to seek his fortune. Jim Andrews remains as the key to the season.

"If Andrews gets injured," Rupp said, "we won't win a game all year."

Senior Tom Parker has become a pleasant fixation in the minds of UK fans. He will be relied on to work his jumper and help relieve the scoring pressure brought on by the loss of Payne, Mike Casey, and Larry Steele.

"If they stop Parker we're dead," said Rupp. Who fills the other remaining spots will remain a mystery until tipoff time.

'Put in Lyons'

"The people will holler and scream for me to use (Ronnie) Lyons. But I can't play him," Rupp said. "He's too small and he throws the ball way to much."

"I'm not even sure he's fast or whether he just take short steps and move his feet quickly."

"The key to the game will be the boards," Rupp said. "See how the rebounding is going the first few minutes and that will tell you how the game will turn out."

"We won't have any fast break because we won't control the boards and get the ball. With Hollenbeck out we won't have any speed."

The worst record Rupp has ever fashioned at UK was in 1966-67 when he finished 13-13. He thinks they might do worse than that this year.

"I can't say for sure but for the first time in ten years we aren't picked to win the conference. That's how bad we are."

So amidst charges of dissension, broken bones, money hungry centers, and a stiff schedule, Adolph Rupp begins his 41st season.

Women's group guards concerns

By KATIE MCCARTHY
 Kernel Staff Writer

Despite its brief existence, the Council on Women's Concerns has reached nearly every woman in the University community and quite a few men. Margaret Wendelsdorf and other women active in the Wendelsdorf-Westerfield campaign last April created the council as a commission of the Student Government.

The Council is an action group broken down into specific committees dealing with nearly every aspect of women's concerns. The goal of the council is, in the words of Margaret Wendelsdorf, chairwoman, to "raise consciousness," to make women aware of discrimination and give them an opportunity to do something to correct the situation.

The council made a very "strong debut," according to Nancy Ray, assistant dean of students, with the publication of the booklet, "Women in the Ivory Tower," in September. The booklet included information on the status of women at UK, where to go and not to go alone in Lexington and birth control and abortion counseling information.

This council project, which was financed by the Student Government, "has been met with much acclaim" according to Wendelsdorf. It was endorsed by the National Association of Students at a convention last summer.

Affirmative Action Plan

As a result of the complaint of sex discrimination in employment filed against UK with HEW in September, a committee was formed to write an Affirmative Action Plan. This plan would propose concrete steps the University must take to remedy the situation presented in the complaint.

In other action spurred by the HEW complaint, the council has sent out letters to all faculty and staff requesting they register any specific complaints of sex discrimination with the council. Besides "looking at the broad issues, the investigators will also talk to complaining groups" according to Wendelsdorf. The council, as a complaining group, will have specific instances to present to them.

Women's studies courses

Primarily due to the council, the University curriculum included four women's studies courses for the spring semester. The teachers of these courses met with the instructors of similar women's studies courses at Transylvania College to exchange syllabi and keep abreast of women's information, in order to familiarize themselves with the current studies and avoid overlapping in the courses.

Although the committee is "still hashing over what to do about a complete program of women's studies," Wendelsdorf said, its main purpose is to institute women's studies and possibly develop a topical major in this area.

A pressure committee attempts to keep abreast of the legislation before Congress, summarize it and decide who needs to be written to, such as senators and congressmen who are sympathetic to women's issues or influential in certain areas. This information goes into the newsletter mailed by the council to those on the list, urging the recipients to write a letter to certain person on a certain issue.

A grievance committee was established to handle the more "subtle kinds of complaints," Wendelsdorf said. The group has already received complaints of sexism in textbooks and sexism by professors. The committee has not decided how to handle these complaints yet, but the members hope they can remedy the situation.

Preparing booklet

A report drawn up by the members of Susan Drysdale's class, "Women in Contemporary Society," last semester is in the process of being examined and prepared for publication in a booklet by a committee formed to handle this. According to Wendelsdorf, the report is massive and requires a great deal more time and research before it will be ready for publication.

A lecture series is in the offing for January and February. A joint effort of the Association of Women Students, the Student Center Board and the council, the series will present different speakers who will talk on women's problems.

Other activities of the council include the writing of a leaflet to be given out to maintenance workers emphasizing race discrimination more than sex discrimination. The council has also ordered and received copies of the McGill University "Birth Control Handbook," which will be distributed free to the University community.

Legal help

Students who come to the council in search of legal help are referred by it to women law students working in the legal service. Recently a group, not necessarily under the auspices of the council, is trying to have the his-her want ads abolished in the Lexington newspapers. They were referred to the law students.
