EASTER

To the pagan, in ages long past, Easter meant the festival which celebrated the coming of that joyous season when all nature takes on new life and literally, it seems, makes a "new heaven and a new earth." To the civilized world of today, where Christianity prevails, it means the time at which we celebrate the resurrection of the One on whom the ideals and beliefs of all Christian peoples are founded.

To all too many students it means only a time when one buys new clothes and is given a holiday from school. There are many students who will go to their homes on Wednesday, spend the five days in various pleasurable pursuits, and return to school without having once given serious consideration to the season which is the occasion of their holiday. Such an attitude defeats the very purpose of the university in extending to them the privilege of time in which to observe this sacred season.

For more than two years now, the world has been laboring under a burden of suffering and gloom brought on by the economic depression. Among the countless solutions offered for the lifting of the burden, the most potent has been the plea for a new spirit of optimism and faith on the part of the people. This year, more than ever before, perhaps, do we need the rejuvenating influence of the Easter spirit. Should not we make this Easter season one of redemption and reconsecration to the task of restoring to a suffering people security and happiness? Doing so, we may come forth with a new courage and a new strength to help lift from the world its burden of depression.

Long ago, one man died because He believed that by His death men would be morally and spiritually set free. Since that time many others have offered up their lives in the same altar under the influence of His death and resurrection. Can we do less than serve to the best of our ability the world for which they gave so much? Is it not to our credit that we should devote our thought and consideration through this Easter season?

SOCIAL CALENDAR CHANGES

The university senate should, and doubtless will, approve the resolution proposing advancement of dates on the social calendar and passed Tuesday by the men's student council. For some time, now, conflicting and ill-appointed dates have brought about confusion and dissent among social groups and between the university and these organizations. Unless this course is remedied, there can never be that harmony and pleasantness among the interested factions which should come as a natural consequence of any social season. Such a corrective attempt as that fostered by the council is most commendable.

As the calendar stands today, dance activities sponsored by campus social organizations during the first semester are almost non-existent. During the second semester an entirely different condition is found. About the first of February dance activities begin with a rush, and week after week, with hardly a pause, fill out the remainder of the school year. Such an increasing and undiminished furor typifies very well the spirit of the season; however, the effect upon the scholastic standings of the socially harassed students is one of havoc. It has been said, time and again, that it is easier to attain satisfactory grades the first semester than it is the second; some of the responsibility for this must rest upon the faulty arrangement of the social calendar.

Students will attend dances, whatever the semester. Because of the scarcity of university entertainment during the winter months, many students attend dances sponsored by organizations not affiliated with the university. The present social calendar, fostering such practices, does not act to the best advantage of either students or the university. If dance dates were so arranged that they were distributed evenly throughout the school year, there would be neither an overabundance of entertainment during the second semester, nor a scarcity of it during the first.

THE UNIVERSITY AS A STATE AGENT

Although the state legislature may be harshly criticized for its severity toward the university appropriation and its many failures to act upon important bills during recent session, two measures were passed which should gain widespread approbation. Both the control of the Kentucky geological survey and the distribution of seed were delegated to the University of Kentucky.

Heretofore these functions of our state government have been directly in charge of the state and departments created by the state for that special purpose. The state itself, realizing the need for such agencies but having no further need for the scientific equipment and the technically trained experts naturally employed in such works was forced, nevertheless, to maintain this equipment and hire specialists in order that the functions of its departments be successfully and properly fulfilled. Kentucky, at the same time, supported another state institution, the university, already equipped to handle these works. Three separate agencies were maintained where one would serve. Involving the temptations of the spoils system, on one hand, and the repetition of function, on the other, any such system naturally entailed an inefficiency of operation and an annual financial outlay given over to waste.

The university, modernly and scientifically equipped, as it is, is fully able to take over the duties of the two outlawed departments of state government. It is free from political influences and employments and women both capable and interested in the work they are doing. As the state usually employed university graduates through its agents, it now serves itself and its potential employees by availing them the opportunity to work under the very conditions they will meet with later at no additional outlay to the government.

MUSICALES

With the program presented by Pip Beta on Sunday afternoon at Memorial hall, the series of musicales which the university has presented during the past year came to an end. It is in gratitude for the opportunity given to the student body at large through these programs that one feels a tribute should be given.

The modern conception of the educated man is that of one who is well-rounded, whose experience is broad and whose interests are wide. He is acquainted with all the factors which make up our life. In this ideal, music plays an important part as a cultural and spiritual influence which may be shared by all. To the ordinary student, nevertheless, little opportunity is given to hear the highest type of representatives of the art because of the high prices usually attending their appearance.

In giving to the students the opportunity to hear, without cost and with convenience, trained musicians of many fields, the university has lifted to a higher degree its lofty purpose of producing truly educated men and women. Dr. R. D. McIntyre is due special tribute for the excellent and efficient way in which he has directed the presentation of the programs.

Jest Among Us

We'll Hazard that Louisville Male isn't feeling so good right now.

And that thoughts of the Paintsville girls Woodburn anybody up.

Now that the legislature has placed the distribution of seed in the hands of the university and also given it charge over the state geological survey we can safely say that if the university isn't going to seed it is at least on the rocks.

Well, since the high school tournament is over we can go back to feeling like ourselves and not like we have to appear before our younger soon-to-be college students. At least, until Junior week.

There was no foolin' about this "Revision" edition of the Kat. Notice how they had only 12 pages?

A few much better jokes appeared in the Kat this time. Wonder if Professor Portmann's being out of town had anything to do with it.

Kernel society editrix (over phone). "Have you had any weekend visitors at your house?" Pledge (also over phone) "Oh, yes, but please don't mention it."

Yeah, it was just as we feared. We offered to print any original cracks that any one interested in this column would send in. So far, no answers. We are wondering what that proves. If anything.

It has been Leap Year for almost three months now, and we have seen only one sorority pin on a vest. It isn't the heat; it's the timidity.

We've been here almost three years now.

And people wonder why we don't take this column down. And go someplace and die!

Something has to end this column, so I might as well be a crack about hell week. Now that it is over, and the freshmen can make a false move or two without getting the order. "Get it, and assume the angle thereafter," the old concept of free speech can be put back on the books and nearly every initiate will be darned glad of it.

PRISONER

How free she seems, and yet— She is entombed in a cell Whose walls are frozen dreams. Better it would be if she had never had Those dreams that now as solid rock Shut against outside her cell and everywhere—

Life lives and joys are shared: The flowers invite the bees To drink their cooling nectar; The trees hold out their berries And their perches to the birds.

How good a freedom can life be! How futile otherwise to live!

TSK TSK!

Kentucky Kernel, Office of the Editor, Dear Sir:

While the higher politicians of the university campus are, heart and soul, at the election of the most popular male and female chairmen in our midst, the real annual question is brought to our minds. What is the fact that over one hundred and fifty members of the senior class will not have their pledges slide down the banister? Regardless of this fact, every one of them will be taxed $2.75 and the taxation is done through and by the Business Office of the University of Kentucky. Who pays for the Kentucky? Ask any member of the senior class. Who wants to see the Kentucky? Ask any member of the senior class. Who wants to see the Kentucky? Ask any member of the senior class.

There is no doubt about it, it only remains to be proved, that Kentucky does have its "annual racket." Yours for a real institution of higher learning without such expensive jokes as the Kentucky. —SIDNEY T. SCHELL, JR.

The Three Masseurs

As a result of the installation of the new city manager plan of municipal government in Lexington, many sweeping reforms are being promulgated; but the surprising interest manifested by certain students at the university is a matter to cause reflection among the municipal organizers.

Despite the winter gale which swept along Main Street, Wednesday, a tiny band of students labored diligently to contribute their bit toward the current clean-up campaign instigated by the city administrator. Fired with the zeal that should characterize all public servants, three boys polished to a new and charming immaculateness the zero milestone which stands at the foot of the Lexington avenue viaduct. They alone, of the multitude which pass the marker seemed to realize that its solid condition was a reflection upon the eschewance of our fair city.

Despite the blizzards and gales of those passing, they remained at their self-imposed task until the spotless appearance of the figure was restored.

Had not the roving eye of a Kernel reporter been caught them at their task, it is more than likely that the shining example which they had set would have gone unused. Such, however, was not to be the case; for your reporter paused to jot down the names of these public benefactors. The boys, fraternity pledges, declined to make a statement.

DOTES AND ANTI-DOTES

By CRAIG VAN DRUTEN

FLAMES A spell of gloom has been cast around Tiger Tom Phipps since Mina Pate left for home. The trouble is not that she is not typical of the Tiger. Mighty Signals have begun their pre-season training... Woodson Knight was seen coming out of the ChiO house carrying a book... Kappa Kait was a remarkable edition of rehashed jokes... no new scandal except a few new slanders on Yeager and Ardrey... Louise George and Johnny Watts are seen constantly together... they get married... then maybe they wouldn't be seen together so often.

Wedding Bells Kappa Margaret McAdister, erstwhile Beauty Queen, and Fidel Joe Ferguson have decided to venture upon the sea of matrimony (though both can swim). Announcement came as a shock to many dejected dames and gents. Joe is holding the tradition that a Fidel should marry Beauty Queens.

Lovelets Thredpidge Mary Jo Armstrong and Piesop Cozy Foster are in the race for the most form of the spring lovers. In an interview the femme stated that she did not desire a pin, for she desired to keep her neckling privileges so that she might distribute them by bit.

Gone Students, that knew Kappa Mary Kate Gray, mourn her departure from the dear old college. She was admired by everyone that knew her, for she always had a smile. This smile did not mean that she tried to be gushing or tried to make people like her, but a smile that disclosed her good nature and disposition toward all of her friends.

'Ixnay,' Admonish Deans Aghast at Hell Week Pranks

By AE AE DARTY

The biggest coup d'etat pulled during Hell week was authored by John M. Kane. To prove his mettle it was incumbent upon him to obtain and present look of hair and holographic signatures of the ten most beautiful girls on the campus. John came through by merely producing the desiderata from his catalogued files. Other Alpha Sig initiates polished the mile stone at the corner of Main and Ayres alley viaduct. One neophyte brought a pig to the Kappa house and caused much consternation of a chibrenyone borrowed a hen from Prof. Walter Patterson, promising to return it promptly. Still another escorted a pig and a turtle on a perambulation. The Zetas centered their attention on having their pledges slide down the banister. For this scene they were bathing caps. One Hell week they ordinarily do not wear bathing caps when doing that. As in all other sororities, the girls are necessarily did columns of cleaning and declared that, compared to the other sororities, they were the most debased of mortals. The Kappas were carrying umbrellas but the said rain was not a drop of dry humor, and the idea collapsed. The Alpha Xis carried each of them a loaf of bread, and the eating it autographed. The astute reader will recognize such an item as symbolical of the august organization, according to the man who never went.

Four stacks of dandruff were collected in a box by a Delt to prove that he was worthy of being a member of that august organization. He and their other proselytes

QUIS VADIT? —Cradcock

By JOHNNIE CRADDOCK

If Shakespeare were alive today he would undoubtedly be ashamed to the point of public humiliation by the literary efforts of this man. He places literature into two piles—bad and worse. He says that the more one reads the poorer it gets (Like the Kampus Kat).

Do you remember the dear, dead days when skirts were long, shoes were high, and good liquor sold for two-bits a throw? Do you remember? Well, neither do we, for those were days in the "nasty-nineties" when this man made his debut as a literary book-worm. He read Tom Swift, Jesse James, and The Rover Boys. But after slaving alone in an old garret for nine years trying to work The Three Bears into a cross-word puzzle, he became disgusted and turned to a more inferior class of literature, Shakespeare.

He admits that it is not his motive to teach English drama, but to criticize old Skake for his inexcusable oversights. Who has ever heard of a stock company producing a play without using a dressing room or an asbestos curtain? This critic thinks that such absurdity topple old Shakespeare from his traditional position as a "ham actor" and a "poular playwright." Who is this man?

INCENTIVE TO STUDY

In Monticella, Arkansas, at the A. & M. College, the professor of the chemistry department gives outstanding students of the month free movie tickets to inspire them to higher efforts. This is a very ingenious method of attaining higher standing in school work, and serves as a double incentive to study, according to authorities.

Magazine Fosters Contest on Topic Of 'Prohibition'

A national intercollegiate editorial writing contest dealing with "The Problems of Liquor" in which any undergraduate of a college or university throughout the country is eligible to compete has been announced by the Intercollegiate, national publication of the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A.

The contest is being sponsored by the magazine with the hope that some constructive proposals will be suggested by the students. Last fall the Intercollegiate sponsored a similar contest dealing with disarmament and the results were so favorable that this contest on prohibition was planned.

Several topics are suggested. Among them are: "Beverage Alcohol—Should Society Control Its Use?" "A National Policy of Education and Legislation." "Is There an Adequate Alternative to Complete Prohibition?" and "A Constructive Campus Policy."

The first prize is $40.00, the second $30.00, the third $15.00, and the fourth and fifth, $10.00. Judges in the contest will be Emma Baily Spear, James L. McConaughy, and Stanley High.

Easter Sunrise Service Planned

The Lexington Young People's Religious council will conduct an Easter sunrise service at 6:30 Sunday morning at Memorial hall. Dr. Howard M. Morgan, pastor of the Maxwell Street Presbyterian church, will give the address, and Roscoe Stephens, chairman of the council, will preside.

The council, which consists of representatives of every church in Lexington, held a similar service last Easter, which was attended by several hundred young people. The plan was adopted originally because of the success of the meetings held in London, 20,000 persons having attended the service in that city last year.

The program: Two songs by the entire group; Scripture and prayer—Amy Perkins.

Two special numbers by the Transylvania male quartet.

Violin solo—David Young, accompanied by Dr. A. W. Kelley.

Address—Dr. Howard M. Morgan.

Song—Benediction.

Industry takes a hint from the kitchen

The domestic art of baking is closely paralleled in telephone manufacture at Western Electric, where plastic molding is an exact science.

Telephone bell boxes, for instance, are no longer formed of metal. They are molded from a phenol plastic compound—containing carbolic acid, formaldehyde and other ingredients—because Western Electric manufacturing engineers saw the way to make a better product at lower cost. These men developed a new and exceptionally efficient type of plastic molding press—and determined precisely how long to bake the mixture and the exact temperature to use.

In quickly taking advantage of the new art of plastic molding, Bell System engineers once more showed that they have the kind of imagination that keeps American industry forging ahead.

Analysis of Clover Failure Published

Prof. E. N. Fergus, Agricultural College, Is Author of Bulletin

"An Analysis of Clover Failure in Kentucky" is the title of the research bulletin which was recently published by the university Agricultural Experiment Station under the authorship of Prof. E. N. Fergus, department of agronomy.

The bulletin is the result of much study and experimentation that has been made for the last several years with clover by members of the experiment station staff. It includes a short history of red clover in Kentucky, methods of study and results of experimentation, and a separate discussion of the principles of diseases and causes of clover failure in the state.

Professor Fergus in his summary states, "Winter killing is probably the most common cause of failure." In conclusion he says, "The apparent solution of Kentucky's clover failure problem lies in the use of varieties which have become adapted to Kentucky conditions by years of natural selection within the state." It was found that imported clover, especially the southern European variety, survives with only the greatest difficulty in this state.

Reeves Will Compete In Regional Contest

Competing in the regional representation for the national oratorical contest, H. Clyde Reeves, Midway, will represent the university in the orations to be held at 8 o'clock Friday, April 8, at Butler University, Indianapolis. His subject, "A Reconciliation of Independence" will be the same topic used in the intra-state competition.

Reeves received first prize in the annual Kentucky intercollegiate contest held in Georgetown March 5, and will compete against winners of similar state contests in Missouri, Illinois, and Indiana. The winner of that regional contest will represent in a western section in the national contest to be held at Northwestern University May 8.

Reeves is a member of the College of Arts and Sciences and a pledge of Alpha Sigma Phi fraternity. He is also a member of the university debating team, and is president of the Ohio Valley International Relations Clubs Conference.

Y.W.C.A. To Elect New Officers April 4

The election for the new officers of the Y. W. C. A. will be held Monday, April 4. Voting privilege will be limited to members of the association.

A list of the members will be at the ballot table, and students must report to the cabinet member in charge of the balloting so that their name may be checked from the list. The place and time of voting will be as follows: from 9 o'clock until 12, in the hall of the administration building; from 12 until 1, in the lobby of Boyd hall; from 1 until 3, in the administration building. All voting will be over at 3 o'clock.

The nominating committee has submitted the following list of nominees:

For president, Eleanor Dawson and Katherine Jones; vice-president, the candidate for president who achieves second place; secretary, Winston Byron; and Emily Reeves; treasurer, Virginia Collins and Clara Margaret Fort. The retiring members of the Senior cabinet will be appointed by the officers, when they come into office May 8. The election will be announced at the W. A. C. banquet Monday night, April 4.

The retiring officers are: president, Eleanor Smith; vice-president, Eleanor Dawson; secretary, Martha Carlton; and treasurer, Mary Allison Threlkeld.

DISMISS TRAINING SCHOOL

The university Training school will be dismissed Friday, March 25, for the Easter holidays. It was announced by Mr. Crayton, director of the Training school.

LE CERCLE FRANCAIS

Le Cercle Francais will hold its next meeting at 3 p.m. Wednesday, March 30, instead of Wednesday, March 23, as previously announced. Miss Margaret Horsfield will speak on the subject of "Lafayette and Washington."

CLASS HEARS BIGGE

And now that the smoke of another state basketball battle has cleared away, we can just sit back and relax for a brief week, but before we relax there are a few things that should be recalled, and some other matters that ought to be disposed of before the issue becomes dim and dark history.

Track Squad Will Work Out During Spring Vacation

While the rest of the student body journeys home for a four day vacation, the members of the Lexington track squad will remain in Lexington and work out twice daily in preparation for their first meet of the season to be staged with Louisville on Stoll field, April 9.

The schedule originally called for a meet with the Tigers of Georgetown college, but according to recent information received by Coach Bernie Shively the meet will be held not against Georgetown alone, but with Kentucky Wesleyan and Eastern also. The three schools will add up their totals against the Cats. This meet, however, is only tentative, but will very likely be staged April 28.

The candidates for the Wildcat squad will be put through their paces twice daily during the Easter vacation period. This intensive drill was necessitated by the long spell of cold weather which has handicapped the track men from getting into condition.

CADET HOP TO BE APRIL 2

Scabbard and Blade, honorary military fraternity, will hold the next of the year's series of cadet hope between 4 and 6 o'clock, Saturday afternoon, April 2, at the alumni gymnasium. Keys, honorary fraternity for outstanding freshman, will hold pledging exercises at the hop. Music will be by the Blue and White orchestra.

Backgammon and bridge have taken a big seat at the University of Alabama and whiffie has taken their places.

Inspired by the classroom instruction in a class in the automatic control of electric generators, Z. W. Pigue, Water Valley, his senior in the College of Engineering, devised the above arrangement.

"Just Among Us" is beginning to attract a lot of attention, and readers are beginning to write and inquire. The magazine is a difficult job, and the paragrapher receives little or no credit for his cleverness, so we thought we would spill the beans and let everyone know that Marvin Waels is guilty.

According to a rough estimate by officials of the tourney, some slightly less than 10,000 persons saw the games. Very few kids came by, but one-eyed Conoley could have learned something in the way of gate-crashing rackets had he been on the door or near there.

One person interested estimated that there were 27 Western Union and Postal telegraph messengers and boys there scattered in the stands. Persons claiming to be Suky salesmen came in in exchange for a hat and a funny looking ticket and it was honored. Kentucky's track season was double and redoubled, and on and on and on.

Next to the actual play of the tourney, the betting that goes on is most interesting. Between games and during the half time the professional gamblers find the room under the stands and wager large amounts of money at odds or against points on the games.

The gamblers, a motley crowd of young boys to old men, are here every year, and they always have plenty of money to bet. They are in short order, and without a conference they declare odds that agree with the odds of the bookies. The big money, and the backers of the home town team are small money.

Little or no betting is done on the girls' games, except for the final game. But all of the boys games are bet. The odds are set by the bookies, and the odds are high as 10 to 1 against Hazard, which put them in a bad place. Hazard gave as high as 10 points against the Paintsville girls and failed to make the money. Whether or not he will be back again with another pile of dough to wager.

Just a matter of opinion: Newport had the roughest team on the floor, and they apologized to no one for it. ...Loves, and they were in Birmingham had the best team on the floor. ...Paris had the smoothest working team in the state. ...Woodburn, who has beaten some of the boys teams. ...the smoking in the stands was worse than the drinking.

For over a month this department has expected "Shipwreck" Kelly to announce he would not go for the Olympic games. He has been working out daily indoors and apparently in good shape, but Monday he gave it up.

"Shipwreck" Kelly will not attempt an Olympic try-out. He dropped the football season Kelly developed a severe "charlie horse" in one of his big muscles. Whether or not he would attempt any speed trials this spring depended on whether he could work the muscle free. Now he has decided it will not let up sufficiently to allow him to do his best.

Mr. Kelly further stated that if the member in question did not let up he probably would not compete in Interscholastic track. That would be a terrible blow to Bernie Shively, for Kelly was a big point gainer last season, and he is always a big drawing card.

In the recent indoor meet at Chapel Hill, N. C. Kelly did not do as well as was expected. The very short dashes did not suit Kelly and in the broad jump, but he did place Heel, college abet, ran a two column lay-out of Kelly and gave him ever so much publicity. Kelly's sort of proves how well known he is in southern circles.

And they have heard about him in the north, for Monday morning Kelly received an offer from the manager of the Boston Braves, professional football team, to play football with them next fall.

The manager, one named Corcoran, said his offer, that he had heard a lot about the sensational playing of Kelly, and they were anxious to have him join their team for the next season. Kelly said that he would like very much to continue playing football, but he did not want to turn professional. However, the salary offered was most tempting and the work only lasts for three months. It is an offer he will keep in mind.

Did you know that Bernie Shively is taking some courses on the campus. "Spitzer" Campbell, a student summer school in Southern California would give him the idea he intends working on a masters degree.

Forensic Team To Meet Loyola

University debaters, under the direction of Prof. William R. Sutherland, are scheduled to meet a team of Loyola College, Chicago, Wednesday night in 111 McEvoy Hall, on the question, "Resolved: That Congress Should Enact Legislation to Provide for Centralized Control of Industry." H. Clyde Reeves, Albert E. Benjamin and Sidney T. Schell, Jr. will represent the university, upholding the affirmative side of the question.

The university team has a clean record so far, having been awarded decisions over teams from Berea College, and the University of Florida. Contests with the first two college constitutions, a state triangular debate, while the victory over Florida resulted in the defeat of two veteran debaters, John Lind and Joe Wilensky, who are making a debate tour of Kentucky and adjoining states.

The university debating squad is composed of Clifford Amos, Phil Aldrey, Albert E. Benjamin, J. D. Palmer, Clyde Reeves and Sidney T. Schell, Jr.

Junior and Senior Students See Films Of Work in Athens

M. D. Carrel, president of the Engineering Service company, is showing a series of films with an accompanying explanatory talk on the subject of "The Water Supply of Athens," before the seniors and juniors of the College of Engineering, at 3 o'clock, Monday in Dicker hall in the Mechanical building.

Mr. Carrel had charge of the work on the Marathon dam and the water lines with new supply water to Athens, Piraeus, and their environs. There were four series of films. The first showed birds-eye views of the Acropolis, the modern city of Athens, views of the Polytechnical school buildings in Athens, and the Temple of Jupiter.

State Titles Go To Woodburn, Hazard

(Continued from Page One) sank two long losses, the last just as the gun boomed. Woodburn played well, but it was Wright and Hazard who were the stars of the game. Hazard was knocked very little chance of turning back the giant Male five, whose chief cog was Goforth, who footed two inches, gave who scored half of his team's points in every game.

"H" by the name succeeded to the athletes of Louisville Male High school because that institution when it began 75 years ago last month it was the only high school in the South. It rated so long as just "High School" that when it came time for athletes to receive their awards it was deemed that "H" would be definite enough.

And yes, the writer was sorry but he was going to be busy after the game, and that is why he cannot give a diverting paragraph or two for anything, but he will be back from the hinterland of Kentucky.

Phi Beta Holds Election of Officers

Hazel Nollau was elected president of Phi Beta, women's national honorary and professional drama and musical fraternity, at a meeting yesterday afternoon in Patterson Hall. Hazel Nollau, treasurer; Lois Robinson, vice-president; Mary Anne O'Brien, secretary; Mary Hopewell Laytham, treasurer; and Elizabeth Hardin, historian.

Pledging exercises for Phi Beta were held Monday. The pledges and the accomplishments for which they were elected to the organization.

Dance Plans Are Discussed by O.D.K.

Plans for a dance to be given during the later part of April were discussed at a meeting of Omicron Delta Kappa held last night at the Teacup Inn. The dance will be given as an event of the meeting of the Southern Federation of College Students.

The election of Ben Stapleton to take the position of treasurer also was a part of the business of the evening. Glenn Feinmann recently resigned the position, to which he had been elected last spring.

School of Speech is undertaking to cultivate an understanding of the power of spoken word, to quicken sensitiveness to beauty, and to encourage a love of good poetry. A high standard of work will be required of all contestants.
