Talk of peace unsuccessful; war inevitable

By BRIAN MURPHY Associated Press

Iraq's rubber-stamp legislature yesterday unanimously backed Saddam Hussein's no-concession stand on Kuwait with the blood of the nation, and U.N. Secretary-General Javier Perez de Cuellar said he had lost hope for peace.
"Unfortunately, I don't see any more reasons to be optimistic. I don't see any reason to have real hope," the secretary-general said grimly after meeting with President Francois Mitterrand in Paris yesterday.

His 2 1/2 hour meeting with Sad-dam in Baghdad on Sunday had been considered the last best chance to avoid an attack on Iraqi forces by the U.S.-led multinational force. President Bush on Sunday called Iraq's apparent intention to have troops in Kuwait beyond tonight's midnight EST withdrawal deadline "a tremendous mistake." In Bagh-dad, Saddam said any "last-minute initiatives" for peace were up to the United States.

Some people sought gas masks, others hunted for a flight out.
Fearing the attack Iraq has promised if it is struck, Israel called up reserves and the United Nations ordered the dependents of its staff members to leave that country.

"The hope that I had is already gone," Perez de Cuellar said after his 45-minute meeting with Mitternand. "I'm a diplomat but as you can see I'm going to be honest and direct."

He was also scheduled to meet with Foreign Minister.

He was also scheduled to meet with Foreign Minister Jacques Poos of Luxembourg, which holds the ro-tating presidency of the European MOREHEAD, Ky. — UK's drive toward establishing a community college in the London-Corbin area, which stalled last week when Sue Bennett College trustees rejected affiliation with UK, appears to be back on track.

Members of the state's Council on Higher Education gave no indication yesterday that they would block a move in the area by UK to create its 15th community college, despite the fact that it could drain enrollment for already-existing schools in the area. "It's right where it ought to be," said UK President Charles Wethington. "We're at a stage now that the council will look at the region to determine a need for a community college."

UK had hoped to merge with Sue Bennett in London, but it was forced to look elsewhere when the private junior college voted 20-3 last Friday to continue operation in-dependently.

A study is underway to determine the feasibility of a community college in London, said Gary Cox, executive director for the CHE.

The CHE will continue studying the issue, but board member W. Terry McBrayer urged that the council try to get a clear, defined focus and reiterate its policy on building commanity colleges at the next CHE meeting.
"I can foresee we're headed to-ward controversy and overlapping of services as the University be-comes more aggressive" toward stu-dent recruitment, said McBrayer, an attorney.

Simon expands creativity on 'Rhythm of the Saints'

REVIEW

By MEREDITH LITTLE

"The music suffers/The music business thrives."

That oxymoronic truth helps explain why Paul Simon devoted years to his most recent release, The Rhythm of the Saints.

Rhythm of the Saints.

In an industry that considers fluff entertainer Whitney Houston an "artist of renowned stature," as one music show recently called her, the depth of a musician like Simon is a reason to go to the record storee.

Rhythm of the Saints is a powerful album, both in its music and in its lyrics.

Simon can pen.

For Rhythm, Simon went to Brazil and came back with hypnotic percussion and backing vocals.

The opening track, "The Obvious Child," starts off with drums rolling like a breaking storm surge. It is an example of Simon's fascination with nonsense — the lyrics sound good, but we're not quite sure what he means.

The songs on this album are di-verse and obviously represent sever-al periods in both Simon's profes-sional and personal lives, yet the album as a whole has a sound dis-

"Can't Run But" is an attack on complacency — "I can't run but I can walk much faster than this." "The Coast" and "Proof" sound strongly like tracks that came together too late to make it on "Graceland."

On these tracks Simon uses some of the same brass and African instruments, and their lyrics, like those on Graceland, depend more on sound than words.

But despite Simon's recent musi-cal globe-trotting, it always has been his lyrics that have given his music its characteristic depth since the beginnings of Simon and Gar-funkel.

While many of his songs address love and relationships, no one could really call Simon a romantic. Just as on Simon and Garfunkel albums, Rhythm doesn't let us forget the pain associated with love.

The melodic sorrow of "Further to Fly" and "She Moves On" is like cold water after the lightness of "The Coast" and "Proof." These songs are probably a result of the breakup of his relationship with his ex-wife, Carrie Fisher. If nothing else, Simon's personal problems have given despair its own sound.

Paul Simon Warner Bros. Records

Warner Bros. Records

"Further to Fly" traces the relationship from its beginnings. After presenting loneliness, "There may come a time/When you'll be tired/ As tired as a dream that wants to die," he presents hope, "Maybe you will find a love/That you discover accidentally." but he moves to the realization that, "There may come a time/When I will lose you/Lose you at I lose my sight/Days s you as I lose my sight/Days span for the sent of the sent of the song when Simon is, once again, alone.

"She Moves On" has no happier an ending, Anyone familiar with Simon and Garfunkel lyrics will recognize the theme of never having the words to express intense emotions: "Maybe these emotions are/ As near to love as love will ever be."

All Simon can say is, "So I server"

All Simon can say is, "So I

All Simon can say is, "So I agree."

Unfortunately, Simon's penchant for recording track on track makes this album sound too slick in places. The notes after each track show that each was recorded in New York and Brazil, and some in Paris also.

The "live" feeling of the one-studio recording is lost with the multiple tracks and extensive digitalizing of this album.

True, it would have been difficult to have coordinated the vocals, extensive percussion and occasional brass of this album, but Simon could regain an "in-concert" sound by using QSound on his next effort.

His layered sounds would benefit by using QSound on his next effort. His layered sounds would benefit greatly from the new QSound technology, which electronically creates ambience for the music and "places" the sound in different areas of that ambience to create the auditory illusion that all the instruments are playing simultaneously.

(QSound can only be heard now on Madonna's Immaculate Collection.)

In this time of musical unoriginal-ity, with even the biggest hit of the summer — M.C. Hammer's "You Can't Touch This" — stealing the music of a previous hit — "Super-Freak," Rhythm is unusual in that it has both musical and lyrical quality. With its Resyllen druws and of has both musical and lyrical quality. With its Brazilian drums and often-painful lyrics, The Rhythm of the Saints is not destined for the too of the charts in this time of careful prepackaging and bubble gum pop aimed at the adolescent market.

But then, the gap between quality music and what's on the charts has been wide for years.

No. 9: UK among nation's elite

For the first time since 1988, Kentucky is in the Top 10. The Cats jumped from 11th to ninth in this week's Associated Press rankings after beating Mississippi State and Tennessee to improve to 12-2.

"We expect to be in the Top 10,"

Some in SGA may argue that it is not appropriate for SGA to take a stand on the Persian Gulf issue.

But what is more appropriate than having elected leaders — elected to represent on campus and in the community at large — take a position on the most important event in many students' lives?

Realistically, the SGA Senate has missed the opportunity to state a position on the Gulf. But the senate has not lost the opportunity to

The choice unambiguous. The terror Saddam Hussein has

The terror Saddam Hussein has imposed upon Kuwait violates every principle of human decency. Amnesty International has documented: "Widespread abuses of human rights have been perpetrated by Iraqi forces ... arbitrary arrest and detention without trial of thousands ... widespread torture ... imposition of the death penalty and the extrajudicial execution of hundreds of unarmed civilians, including children."

dreas or unarmed civilians, including children."
Including children. There's no horror that could make this a more obvious conflict of good vs. evil. The man who used chemical warfare on his own people — once again including children — now oversees public hangings of dissenters. And daily his troops commit atrocities against Kuwaiti citizens. This brutality has reverberated throughout the entire world. If we do not follow the dictates of our in-ner moral compass and stand up for human life, then his lawlessness human life, then his lawlessness will threaten the peace and democracy of the emerging New World Order we now see: this long dreamed-of vision we've all worked toward for so long.

A year after the joyous dawn of freedom's light in Eastern Europe, a dark evil has descended in another part of the world. But we have the chance — and we have the obligation — to stop ruthless aggression. I have been in war. I have known the terror of combat. And I tell you this with all my hear: I don't want this with all my heart: I don't w this with all my heart: I don't want there to be war ever again. I am de-termined to do absolutely every-thing possible in the search for a peaceful resolution to this crisis — but only if the peace is genuine, if it rests on principle, not appeasement. But while we search for that an-swer, in the Gulf young men and women are putting their own lives on hold in order to stand for peace in our world and for the essential value of human life isself. Many are younger than my own children. Your age, most of them. Doing their duty for something they be-lieve in.

lieur unity for somenting usey believe in.

Let me tell you about one of the soldiers over there, S.F.C. Terry Hatfield, a young man from Georgia. He sent me a Christmas card.
And this was what he wrote.

"Mr. President, I just wanted you to know my soldiers and I are ready to do whatever mission you decide.
Freedom as we know and enjoy has been taken away from another country and must be restored. Although we are separated from family, friends, Joved ones, we will do what must be done ... We stand ready and waiting. God bless you ready and waiting. God bless you and the U.S.A."

and the U.S.A."

Terry understands the moral obligation that has compelled our extraordinary multi-national coalition to make this stand in the Gulf. To look this international terrorist straight in the eye and say: no concessions. To proclaim for now and for the future: no compromises. To bear witness by our presence to the fact that aggression will not be rewarded.

warded.
Terry waits thousands of miles from the White House, yet we share the same thoughts. We desperately want peace. But we know that to reward aggression would be to end the promise of our New World Order.

To reward aggression would be to destroy the United Nation's promise as international peacekeep-er. To reward aggression would be to condone the acts of those who would descerate the promise of human life itself.

And we will do none of this. There are times in life when we confront values worth fighting for. This is one such time.

Each day that passes means another day for Iraq's forces to dig deeper into their stolen land. Another day Saddam Hussein can work toward building his nuclear arsenal and perfecting his chemical and biological weapons capability. Another day of artocities for Amnesty International to document. Another day of international outlaws, instead of international all.

stead of international law.

I ask you to think about the economic devastation that Saddam Hussein would continue to wreak on the world's emerging democracies if he were in control of onefith of the world's oil reserves.
And to reflect on the terrible threat hat a Saddam Hussein armed with weapons of mass destruction already poses to human life and to the future of all nations.
And so let us remember and sup-

future of all nations.
And so let us remember and sup-port Terry Hatfield, all our fine ser-vicemen and women, as they stand ready on the frontier of freedom, willing to do their duty and do it well. They deserve our complete and enthusiastic support — and lasting gratitude.

What To Do About Saddam Hussein

It's time for Saddam to be removed

N. Alan CORNETT

s everyone knows, today, Jan. 15, is the deadline for Iraq to withdraw from Ku-vait. Saddam Hussein has continu-illy refused to listen to reason and persists in his refusal to leave Ku-ally refused to tisten to reason am-persists in his refusal to leave Ku-wait. The American choice is unfor-tunate but clear: We must go to war. Since Saddam invade Kuwait last summer, he has insisted that Iraqi withdrawal be linked to the Israeli-palestine question. His love of his fellow Arab is truly a joy to see; it's too bad that he didn't extend that same love to the countless Kuwaitis that have been brutally killed.

Of course any linkage between an Iraqi pullout and a resolution to the Palestinian question is unaccepta-ble. The Iraqi invasion of Kuwait was in no way precipitated by any sympathy for the Palestinians. It was a glorified mugging, plain and simple. Saddam lusted for the rich oil fields and ports of Kuwait, and he decided that would not be denied them.

He then eyed Saudi Arabia like a serial killer on the prowl. The only thing that saved the Saudis was the speedy deployment of U.S. troops by President Bush.

Many who claim to back the American objectives, but insist that continued economic sanctions are the proper course, refuse to face the reality of the situation: Saddan Hussein cares nothing about a reduced standard of living for his people.

duced standard of living for his people.

Iraq is a fertile country, anyway, Saddam will continue to live in comfort, regardless. Smugglers pour through the Iranian and Jordanian borders like a sieve; the sanctions are ineffective. Their continuance merely gives Saddam the option of riding out the storm until the international coalition loses its resolve and compromises its objectives.
Even a last-minute pullout by Saddam would not satisfy our longrange objectives. The status quoante is unacceptable.
Saddam would still have to pay Kuwaiti rebuilding costs, pay repations to the families of those he killed during the invasion and occupation and allow internationally supervised destruction of his nuclear facilities, as well as his biological and chemical weapons. Saddam will never agree to this, therefore, he must go.
Saddam's assessment of our rehevet agreement of our resolve may have been confused by our Congressional debate on the ior and a Kernel columnist.

war. The resolution to authorize offensive military action should clear up his misconceptions, though. There has been much ado about nothing concerning the closeness of the Senate vote.

For some reason, the peace-at-all-costs crowd is upset that we have majority, and not consensus, rule in this country. Well, this has been a valuable lesson in democracy that I'm sure they will always cherish. This is part of the same crowd who chant with giddiness their new slogan: "No blood for oil." They do so with ignorance of the ideals of our country. Freedom does not come cheaply, and millions of American lives have been given in defense of the freedoms enjoyed by those who demonstrate against the war.

The uninibilited flow of oil is a digital to the control of the deal of the control of the control those who demonstrate against ine war.

The uninhibited flow of oil is a vital U.S. interest. Our freedoms and standard of living are dependent upon oil in this modern age. The opportunities of all our citizens are hampered if we give into Saddam and the idea of "pursuit of happiness" is trodden underfoot.

Saddam is now in for a raide awakening as he comes up against the American military machine. His war against Iran was in no way preparation for the fury of a U.S. attack. Saddam has made his stand—now it's time to blow the ground out from under him.

or quite a few weeks now, many governments — especially our own — have pretended to tipioe gently along the fragile line between diplomacy and dodging bullets.

But the cruel calendar tells us the time to prevent war is all but over, and we have no one to blame but ourselves.

In our nation, where we hold free-om so dear that we will risk all to dom's o dear that we will risk an to kill those who oppose it, we have neglected it.

Leaders have been so enraged with hate and so consumed with the power to destroy, they have forgot-ten to build.

So our country lies in a state of espair, where the poor and hungry alk the street, the middle class fiances the nation and the rich grow icher — and no one takes the time kill many Iraqis in the name of freedom, and yet to the majority of us freedom is nothing more than something we abandoned long ago to collect the dust of time. How can we kill for somebody else's freedom when we do not even value our own?

Another question we must ask ourselves and fellow Americans is are we willing to sacrifice the lives and innocence of another generation of men, women and children so that George Bush can increase his militury spending, keep our cars full of gasoline and spread manifest destiny to the ends of the world as we rape another land to line our pockets?

rape another land to line our pockets?

Do we want to give any man or even a small group of people the power open season on the Arab races? The very power we have given our president to protect freedom, is the very power to destroy it.

How much freedom lies in a starving and desolated land?

By fighting for freedom war doing no less that destroying it.

Gasoline may run you $1.50 a gallon, but war costs us our fathers, our mothers, our children, and our bothers and sisters. How much are we willing to pay for freedom void of true liberty?

Saddam Hussein is definitely aman wearing the black hat of the bad guy, and something should be done, and soon, before he breathes another breath. Ideally, I am a pacifist, but Sad-vote. Ideally, I am a pacifist, but Sad-dam has become a threat to interna-

So our country lies in a state of despair, where the poor and hungry walk the street, the middle class finances the nation and the rich grow richer - and no one takes the time to vote.

tional freedom.

I would shed no tears if he did not

Iwould shed no tears if he did not wake one morning.

So I call for covert action to offer a solution not void of bloodshed, but void of mass bloodshed. Calling for the death of an individual makes me uneasy, but the saved lives, both U.S. and Iraqi citizens and a preserved chance of freedom, would be comfort enough.

We have put ourselves in the position where I believe a purely peaceful resolution is impossible; the quiet assassination of the Iraqi leader might be the nolly sane resolution possible.

We know that Saddam has alienated anyone of power in his regime, so his death would save having a major military action from Iraq. We cannot fight a war for freedom, when we do not respect or value our own.

War may be hell, but preparation is worse

MANAMA, Bahrain — Kuwaiti women, dressed in black silk from and to toe, clutch airline tickets and await flights to the West. Their children clutch dolls. An American oilman gives a thumbs-up sign and hollers, "I'm outta here."

In airports, on the highways, in the cities and towns of the countries lining the Persian Gulf, people are preparing for war.

Some in the region are hunkering down in their homes. They are covering the cracks in their windows with plastic and duct tape, buying canned food and preparing rags to stuff under their doors in case of a nation are safe.

But many others appear to be doing very little, meeting the crisis with a mixture of nonchalance and resignation.

For them, the main form of preparation seems to be buying U.S. dollars, considered the strongest currency around.

Hopes for a peaceful settlement of the crisis dimmed last week following failed talks in Geneva between Secretary of State James A. Baker III and Iraqi Foreign Minister Tariq Aziz.

"Inshallah" Arabie's acquirelent

"Inshallah," Arabic's equivalent of "God willing," now sums up the attitude among many in gulf nations such as Saudi Arabia, Bahrain and the United Arab Emirates.

"A little plastic on my windows won't stop Saddam. It won't stop the Marines either," said Adnan Nowailed, an agricultural expert outside his apartiment in Manama. "It is up to God, not me."

Civil defense preparations have goten off to a shaky start.

When Bahrain, about 300 miles south of Iraq, tested its air-raid warning Saturday, many people in downtown Manama didn't hear it. The siren's whine started and failed and then started again.

A reporter who called the Civil Defense Bureau in Dubai, United Arab Emirates, was instructed on Sunday that the man in charge was napping at his desk and could not be disturbed.

Sauut Arabai, where the oulk of the U.S.-led multinational force is located, has been criticized as slow by some residents and foreigners. Others have complained of reciving poor-quality masks. On Sunday, the Bahraini government postponed examinations at the University of Bahrain in its first significant response to the crisis. Drilling firefighters were seen extinguishing a massive oil fire in a drum the size of a swimming pool. Saudi Arabai's Ministry of Health began a blood donation campaign in most Saudi cities and towns. And supplies of equipment for protecting houses were increased in stores.

He said the Iraqi leader "never mentioned the word withdrawal, or if he mentioned the word, it was not in the sense of being prepared to withdraw." White House officials said Bush expected to hear from Perez de Cuellar by telephone yesterday.

In Baghdad, members of the National Assembly shouted that they were willing to back Saddam "with our blood, our souls, we are ready to sacrifice for Saddam." At Saddam's urging, the body had voted in August to absorb Kuwait and last month to release all foreign hostages.

The assembly speaker, Saadi Mehdi Saleh, called Saddam "the knight of the Arab nation" and said the nation was behind him in his showdown with "U.S. imperialism, Zionism and Arab stooges." "We declare here and now that we are ready to sacrifice everything for the cause of Palestine. Palestine should be liberated and rights of Palestinians restored," he said.

rights of Palestinians restored," he said.

The United States has called the Iraqi claim that it seized Kuwait to push for a solution to the Palestinian problem baseless, accusing Saddam of seizing the emirate in the Aug. 2 attack purely for his own aggrandizement.

"A last-minute initiative is now up to the Americans because they are the ones now raising the slogan of war," Saddam said Sunday in comments carried by the official Iraqi News Agency.

Secretary of State James A.

Baker III was headed to Washington today following a nine-day visit with allies. Baker, who wrapped up the trip in Canada today, said he found all 12 leaders he spoke with remain in support of the international coalition against Iraq.

Last week, the Senate voted 52-47 and the House 250-183 to authorize the use of force against Iraq after the deadline. Defense Secretary Dick Cheney has said the deadline expires at midnight EST.

In the United States, the threat of conflict has led to anti-war marches and events reminiscent of the Vietnam era.

Peace demonstrators marched outside the White House on Sunday, and the gulf crisis dominated religious gatherings.

"War is not inevitable. Peace and honor and justice is possible. We must pray like we never prayed before and let us pray with our deepest sincerity." Roman Catholic Cardinal John J. O'Connor of New York said in sermon.
