

Guignol Opens New Season With "The Queen's Husband"

L. Cass Robinson, Captain Criswell Star in Production

By DAVE SALTERS With excellent cast and unusually good all-around portrayal of characters that made somewhat heavily satirical comedy...

The story concerns the trials and tribulations of a small kingdom in the middle of Europe. Queen Martha is hot-headed, forceful, social and publicity minded...

However, it develops that Lord Birten, the country's star diplomat, has arranged a royal marriage between Anne and Prince William of Grek...

Meanwhile, the royal family is apparently unaware that rumblings of a revolution are beginning in the distance, incited by a group of radicals under one Professor Fellman...

Into this complex state of affairs steps the king, up to now apparently indifferent to the situation.

The methods he uses to obtain an abdication between the king and Queen Martha, which ends when the general resigns and Fellman becomes premier...

And his clever direction of affairs so that Anne is wedded with Prince William and elopes to Panama with Granton...

Cass Robinson as King Eric gives an unusually excellent performance and handles the heavy satire on his lines and the simplicity of his character superbly...

Queen Martha is played by Catherine Reid as Queen Martha, who is a beautiful and talented and puts plenty of punch into her lines.

Lieutenant Harold Criswell as General Northrup turns out one of the most outstanding male performances and gives great naturalness to his part.

Mrs. Catherine Whelan as the princess Anne does a clever piece of work and is very good in the romantic scenes with Granton.

Jack Nelson, as Frederick, who is the prince's secretary, gives a very natural portrayal. Waldon Green just as Professor Fellman puts well the right amount of the sinister in his radical character and without doubt turns in the most convincing male performance.

As Prince William, Frank Williams gives one of his excellent pieces of work and well might steal the show with his peculiar accent and stiff carriage.

Paul Mansfield as Lord Birten, C. T. Hertz as Major Bent of the palace guard, George Fescow as Phiggs, the king's checker-plant, and Thelma Goodrich as Petalyle, the queen's lady-in-waiting.

Dorothy Wunderlich, Virginia Robinson, Cassie T. and Ouida Jones as ladies-in-waiting, Ross Chepelet as the sergeant, and John Adler as the soldier, all give finished performances and serve to enhance the fitness of the play.

An outstanding factor of the presentation was the set, beautifully and correctly arranged under the direction of Mary Armstrong Elliott. Credit is also due to Malcolm Shover, stage manager, Virginia Robinson, in charge of costumes, Julian Miller, in charge of lighting and Milton Rosenboom, in charge of sound effects, for their excellent work.

Russian-Manchukuan Border Incidents Threaten to Complicate Matters in East

Manchukuan sincerely," newspapers said with unanimity which betokens official inspiration, "serious consequences are likely to occur."

The foreign office spokesman, Eiji Amano, confirmed that a protest had been received from Moscow Saturday over the clashes in the Suifuho sector of the Eastern Manchukuan-Siberian frontier, but he said official comment was being withheld for the present.

Three incidents were mentioned in dispatches from both Moscow and Hanking. The Russian version said shots were fired in the third infamy, Saturday, and there were several casualties. But the Japanese government, it was authoritatively indicated, retailed with the Manchukuo version. This said that six Soviet cavalrymen on October 6 fired on a Manchukuo patrol, and forced the Manchukuo to respond.

MOSCOW AWAITS REPLY Moscow, October 14.—(INS)—The Soviet Union was calmly today for a Japanese reply to her protest against Siberian-Manchukuo border incidents and her suggestion for an establishment of a mixed investigation committee.

While the incidents were regarded with a certain seriousness by the Soviet foreign office in war the Japanese embassy indulged in war scares concerning them.

Japanese spokesmen declared the border violations with Manchukuo troops under Japanese officers were charged were not made under orders of Tokyo.

The opinion of the Japanese embassy here is that the incidents probably resulted from over-zealous or mistakes on the part of local commanders. The embassy regards the matter primarily as an affair between the Soviet and Manchukuo, concerning Japan only in a secondary way.

FOOTBALL TICKETS FOR HOUSEMOTHERS

Kentucky's star is rising in the football heavens! The Wildcats through superior playing have earned for themselves the right to be called the "greatest Kentucky team of all times"

Of those characteristics mentioned, goodwill is perhaps the most important and at the same time certainly the most easily promoted.

However, there remains one particular field the goodwill of which could easily be secured by this method and the benefit of which would be outstanding.

And so would we pay tribute to that oft-forgotten but vitally important part of college social life, that guiding hand to the straight and narrow, that builder of men and comforter of all—the fraternity housemother.

OUR MONEY'S WORTH There are few persons in the world who do not like to get as much for their money as they possibly can, but strange as it seems, college students as a whole are not included in this category.

We work hard during the summer months and force the college to give themselves many things in order that we may return to school in the fall, and then we start "cutting" classes and trying to go to school as little as possible.

This does not seem logical, but it is true in the majority of the student bodies all over the country.

who have been absent at more than one-fourth of the class sessions from taking the examination in that course.

However, it seems that such measures should not be necessary in schools of secondary education where the students are supposed to be intelligent, clear-thinking individuals. It seems to be an insult to the students, but they do not resent it in the least.

Let us take an inventory of our selves and see if we belong in this category, and if we do, let us mend our ways.

FREEDOM GOES TO PRESS A notable feature of many editorial comments and political discussions columns has been the frequent censorship of the press as indicated by the New Deal system of special press releases and discrimination against super-critical reporters.

The press of this country has always jealously guarded against any efforts made to curtail its so-called "freedom." This policy is wholly justifiable.

YOUTH PUTS SOCIETY ON TRIAL

Society went on trial last week before a youth organization in New Jersey. A jury made up of men and women of college age found society guilty on six counts, not guilty on three.

- 1. Employing workers at starvation wages. 2. Inadequate instruction to youth on the choice of a mate. 3. Forcing youth, because of death of jobs, to postpone matrimony. 4. Surrounding youth with hazards to morals, such as obscene literature and gambling devices. 5. Maintaining a harsh attitude toward ex-convicts. 6. Incomplete use, for recreation, of public buildings.

Not guilty of: 1. Providing inadequate facilities for youth agencies. 2. Maintaining inadequate employment services. 3. Allowing racial and national prejudice to interfere with employment.

The jury disagreed on the charge: society fails to give adequate sex education to young people.

It is a creditable thing for youth to put society on trial, if it remembers and rectifies those criticisms when it takes over control. More creditable would be youth's putting itself on the stand.

Clothes, I think, are frightfully important. Yet I hate to spend a lot of time going from shop to shop trying to find the right formal... the right street dress and all that sort of thing. It was a great relief when I found a shop that carried smart styles in several types of dresses. I know that everything they show me is correctly styled, and carefully made.

becoming increasingly hard to handle. Louisiana State, of course, has been coming up in conference circles in the past few years and seems to be even more powerful than usual this season. When Abe Mitchell, last season's great L. S. U. back, is relegated to the role of second-stringer, the Baton Rouge Tigers must have a powerhouse. It is too early, yet, to be making any predictions about the eventual outcome of the conference race, but it seems a safe bet to say that a new king will be crowned in December. As to who it will be, you supply the answer.

We received a letter yesterday from Elmo Firenze, who was graduated from the University in '32. Of course, he is still interested in the progress of the Wildcats and he sends us a clipping from the New York World-Telegram which contains a write-up of Kentucky's team. The account, filling more than half a column, is written by Francis Wallace. Some excerpts are contained here.

"The star of Kentucky is rising in the national grid heavens. . . . In the Ohio State game, Coach Wynne presented two backs who were better than Francis Schmidt could find among all the wealth of Buckeye material. They were Bert Johnson, a Junior, and Bob Davis, a sophomore. . . . Playing against Ohio State, Johnson was a marked man. The Bucks played practically an eight-man line against Johnson and his flashy running mate, Davis, but despite this difficult opposition, the Kentucky race horses got more than their share of yardage. . . ."

gained it back on the next play going over from the 16 for Kentucky's first touchdown, and then booted the ball squarely between the uprights on the extra point try to put Kentucky in the lead by 7-6.

The Wildcats' second touchdown came as suddenly as had Tech's marker. Kentucky received Sim's punt on their own 25 yard line. On the first play they went into punt formation with Davis back. Instead of Davis taking the ball Ayres received the pass from center and ran toward the right sidelines. As he was about to be tackled he lateraled to Davis and the Dayton flash was off like a streak of lightning. Due to some nice blocking by McClurg, who cut down the safety man, Davis traveled 75 yards for the marker.

The game went scoreless until the fourth quarter. On the first play of the last period, Davis went over left end for nine yards and the touchdown. Five plays later, Davis scored again, this time after receiving a 10 yard pass from Ayres, running 25 yards into the end-zone.

Adversity thins the hangers-on from the ranks and leaves only men.

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By JOE QUINN Kernel Sports Editor

Playing without the services of Bert Johnson who could not even view the game from the sidelines, under doctor's orders, the Kentucky Wildcats fought off both Georgia Tech and the abnormal heat to take a 25 to 6 decision in their southeastern conference debut last Saturday.

The heat probably accounted for it, but much of the time the 'Cats looked sluggish on the offense, though only once or twice were they caught napping defensively. And one of these times was enough for Tech to chalk up its only score of the afternoon on Koneman's 42-yard sprint.

However, when Kentucky did register, the touchdowns were the result of well-executed maneuvers. After the surprising run of Koneman before the game had hardly begun, the Wildcats settled down to business. With the 'Cats in possession of the ball on their own 35-yard line, Coach Wynne inserted Quarterback McMillan into the fray. Immediately Able Ayres tore off a substantial gain around right end. Elmore Simpson followed with a long dash around the opposite side. Davis was stopped at the middle of the line, but Ayres ran wide again around right end for 16 yards and a touchdown. Just four plays for that score.

Kentucky received the kickoff, and after two tries at the line, Ayres started around the end and then lateraled to Bob Davis, who stepped off 75 yards through the entire Tech team to place the ball over the goal line. A pass from Ayres to Davis and a slash off tackle by Davis placed the ball on the Engineer's 9-yard stripe. Aided by some fine blocking, Davis picked a hole and carried over again.

The final score was the result of another pass, Ayres to Davis, with Bob galloping the last 25 yards far in front of the Tornado secondary. Each of these touchdown plays was run off with precision and finesse. The line opened up the holes and the backs ran interference for the ball-carrier the way it should be done.

Bob Davis ran his point total up to 60 for the four games he has participated in thus far and gave the same smooth performance that he always gives, when carrying the pigskin.

Able Ayres, who had the tough task of replacing Johnson, turned in a fine exhibition. He displayed such ability as a runner that he should see plenty of action in the remaining games and can be counted as another Kentucky threat to add to the Johnson-Davis duet.

Elmore Simpson demonstrated the correct method of blocking for the ball-carrier by mowing down the opposing secondary on several occasions with pile-driver effectiveness.

The Southeastern conference football horizon is becoming a little more visible, now that the teams in the loop are playing each other. From the results of the games played thus far, it is apparent that a new group is rising to head the conference lists. Teams which, in former years, were used as stepping stones for the top rank clubs, are now turning the tables on these same outfits.

Look at Mississippi State and Mississippi, for instance. The State team humbled Alabama, Saturday, 20 to 7. Since the advent of Major Ralph Sasse as head coach, this Mississippi State team seems destined to go places. "Ole Miss", too, is having a gridiron revival and is

...but, after all is said and done, it's the cigarette itself that counts

...the question is, does it suit you?

Now, when it comes to a cigarette that will suit you... you want to think whether it's mild, you want to think about the taste

That Chesterfields are milder and taste better is no accident . . .

The farmer who grows the tobacco, the warehouseman who sells it at auction to the highest bidder, every man who knows about leaf tobacco will tell you that it takes mild, ripe tobaccos to make a good cigarette.

In making Chesterfields we use mild ripe home-grown and Turkish tobaccos.

Outstanding .. for mildness .. for better taste
