CAMPUSCENE

BY JOHN SPICER

With the summer doldrums past and the long stretches of fall and winter ahead, the campus this week began taking stock of the summer's record and laying plans for the future.

Among developments were these: Checked off the list of campus events were Violet Owen, now Mrs. Buddy Selars; Dot Beeler (soon to marry Jim McGraw); Betty Reese and Barbara Kroman (who just didn't come back); taking into themselves a husband were Jane Hoskins (E. B. Sparks); M. P. Barstette (Jack DuPuy); Shirley Wolfe (Gene Kirkpatrick); Mary Gore Rodes (Bob Taliaferro); and Sarah Ratcliff (Gordon Godbey).

Given the nod as potential successors to the retiring crops were little, blonde Margery Schwartz,

Tom Wolfeish Coeds Just Can't Be Found

MEANDERINGS BY MARTIN PACKMAN

College men love to say things that sound like statements for the press. One of the bright boys from one of the brighter colleges, Yale, said the other day that in spite of all her shortcomings, Miss American College was still an exceptional creature. Continued the collegian from New Haven: "At her best, she's a worthy mixture of Lann Turner, Dorothy Parker, and Thomas Wolfe."

Unfortunately, I don't know the girls my northern friend had in mind. I wish I did. Perhaps, after his acquaintance with Vaszar, Smith, and Wellesley, he felt justified in his assertion. Maybe he was just optimistic. Possibly he was crank. Probably not. Whatever his credentials, I doubt his judgment.

If the typical American coed is a mixture of the above-named ingredients, then I'm afraid that there are no typical girls on our campus. After three years of looking, I'm convinced that such a mythical super-girl is rare. If not altogether extinct. Lamentable, isn't it? Lana Turnerish freshman and Dorothy Parkerish juniors I have met, but female disciples of Thomas Wolfe—none. Indeed, I seriously wonder whether the average college girl could identify Wolfe, much less be like him. Note: Indignant admirers of T. Wolfe address all letters of dissent to Box 1555, University Station.

Dismally I admit that the Yale man was wrong. At least, his re-

Negro Deserves Same Opportunity For Education As White Students

VICE OF THE PEOPLE BY FRED HILL

When I was a little boy, or almost a little boy (it has been a long time ago), I attended the Virginia Military Institute. They called the Virginia Military Institute then, as they do now, the "West Point of the South." The emphasis was on the South.

One of the chief topics of informal debate there was "who won the Civil War." And of course every red-blooded Southerner took the side of the South, for the Virginia Military Institute was allied up with Lee and Stonewall Jackson, whose nicknames Stonewall they had long since ceased to put in quotation marks, and the Battle of New Market and all these things.

Somehow the Negro question always managed to ease itself into those bull-sessions. It wasn't a question, though, really—for all it consisted of was a certain period of allotted time during which the southern bloc vented its collective wrath at the negro element which forced itself into the same buses and eating establishments and schools as the whites.

At first, being very young as I said, I agreed with the majority. After all, I was from Kentucky—and though Kentucky really never was a secession state, I could always manage to bring in certain vague relations who fought on the side of Lee.

Yet toward the last of my stay there I'm afraid I began to become rather intolerant to my associates. I began to voice some doubt as to the righteousness of their viewpoint. As a matter of fact I became a little intolerant of myself on the subject—tried to convince myself I'd been reading too much dirty Northern propaganda.

And I'm still a little intolerant of myself on the subject. For though I've legged myself to death on the "all men are created free and equal business, I still somehow feel my emotions run free when it comes to sitting next to some colored people on buses and eating with them and certainly I could never wait on them.

That, I know, is just prejudice and I suppose I'll have to let it work itself out.

Last week, though, another angle in the colored question presented itself to me and to the campus—the question of Negroes attending the same school, the same universities, as whites.

And having thought it out, I think I could abandon a few of my prejudices and not to be bothered a bit by a Negro student working next to me and learning the same things I learn.

For it seems to me that there is a difference in sharing social privileges with a Negro and in sharing business or intellectual privileges with a Negro.

I would like to emphasize "intellectual privileges." It is the important phrase. For the mind and its growth should have at some time in every man's life a laboratory in which it may grow unhindered by prejudice or tradition or everyday lazy thinking. And this—a University—should be that laboratory.

mean it that way) glad that this is a democracy.

But let my Southern blood run warm again. Even though it be the long way around and even though it would be only to satisfy our prejudice, wouldn't it be easier and safer for a negro student to accept the state's "expenses paid" offer and go somewhere to school where he would be accepted? Wouldn't that be the best and surest solution?

A Chance For A Sly Trick

The usual convocation hour rush in the Union grill probably will fall off considerably tomorrow, because the lures of the coke-and-sandwich shop will have to compete against two all-star attractions at Memorial Hall.

1) The first address to the regular University student body by the new president, Dr. Herman L. Donovan; and

2) The opportunity for students to pull a sly trick which may help get them a field house. But a full house won't be enough.

Consider this, for instance: The enrollment of the University is approximately 3,500; the capacity of Memorial Hall is 1,100. Now if, say,

1,500 persons should show up for the convocation, and if the hall should be packed and students turned away, what better argument could be given for the need for a larger hall to hold the audiences at convocations, and what better solution could be suggested than a combination athletic building and convention hall such as requested by the President to the Board of Trustees recently.

For this reason, THE KERNEL will send over its staff photographer and you can be assured that the attention of the state officials concerned with the request for a field house will be called to the overflow.

College: Glamorous And Irritating And, If You Watch Your Step, Fun

THE PEARCING GLANCE BY JOHN ED PEARCE

September is a thrilling month. Besides being the month of my birth, the first leg of fall, and the opening of the football season, it is also notable because it ushers in that most glamorous, exciting, worthwhile and irritating of all vocations, avocations and recreations, going to college.

Lots of people go to college, and that is good, since it makes for a better world, greater democracy, football teams, and fraternity graft. But about one third of all these who go to college are freshmen, and that is bad.

It is bad because freshmen are bad. Freshmen boys are usually either of the homesick-for-the-farm type, or of the here-I-am-boys-where-are-all-the-women variety. The first type spend all their time being timid and lost, believing what Greeks tell them. They are pretty dull. The latter group have a tendency to look frequently upon the wine when it is red, and to exhibit themselves in a most unbecomingly manner when in their cups. They are quite nauseous.

Freshman women are bad, too. They are impressed by activity men, and have a ludicrous sophistication picked up from reading "Madame Chicelle." They squeal, say "cute" all the time, and wear clothes that are too typical. They court a lot, and quail hunters usually bring out the artillery for their entrance.

It is to these delegates that this column is aimed, and let me tell you, freshmen, it is well worth listening to. Teeming with good advice.

Despite English professors and chemistry courses, college is a happy thing. Happy, that is, if you are smart. And smartness includes knowing when to rebel, when to accept. And, verily, I say unto you, accept some of the rules, heed those though they be. Nothing is worse than freshman military when you are a senior; nothing so saddens the heart as the knowledge that you have to work off some onerous foreign language when you want to take political science. The best thing to do is to brush off these things at first. The time is now.

Too much time given to activities is more than foolish, it is sinful. If it is true that all of college is not in books, it is doubly true that most of it is. Be not a grill goon. Beyond acquiring secretary's spread, it will give you a one-sided impression of college, and leave you stunted, a mental pigmy. Be not too sure. Avoid saying "always" never and "every".

Keep yourself mentally awake, and these will be the golden years. Four years filled with the mellow glow of autumn afternoons, of happy football crowds, of snow's whiteness and the warning sign of sorority open-house on Friday afternoons. Four years of rush weeks, Union dances, moonlight and parked cars, from which issue the silvery tinkle of soft-feminine protest. Four years of heering through hazy nights, of pounding on the table, shouting down the wisdom of the ages, of pointing out the fallacies of the masters. Eight semesters of love and friendship, hate and anger, and the terrible decision that comes from conflicting knowledge.

Four years of good teachers and bad, of kindly advice, of meeting and parting, of life as it should be lived, and it is can never be lived once you have departed the gates. Keep your nose clean and the next forty-eight months are all velvet.

I happened to run into a textbook the other day, one of those rare good ones which the philanthropic downtown organizations have not yet eliminated, which just about summed up the thought of college. Permit me to quote:

"And now here is college. All the values of your life are heightened and sharpened. If you are lucky you begin to see what it is all about, this business of living—how the present grew out of the past, and how the future is growing out of the present. College means many things to many minds, but to all it can mean this: a blessed space of time when the main concern of getting on can be postponed and a man or woman has a chance to get acquainted with himself in the universe. Just outside the college gates is a world which seems slightly unreal and more than a little queer. Beneath the benediction of campus elms is the one true reality, which is of the mind. Bit by bit we fit together the pieces which make an ideal world, not too much concerned if they do not altogether conform to any familiar pattern. We are building a long-run world and we have only four years to do it in! How must we exert ourselves to gather up every scrap of goodness, every shred of sweetness, and fashion them into the dream which we would live by. How must we grasp at every true value and make it ours for all time. How must we lay up in a world of affirmations of wise men to guide us in a world of doubt and denial. This is our little golden moment of privilege when the world says, 'Here, we'll leave you alone until you get your bearings. Here is leisure to grow in. In God's name, make the most of it!'"

Dear Diary,
Yesterday I began classes and I was a busy until 10 o'clock. When I slipped soda until our next class.

I was late for an appointment with the girls in the cafeteria but they were busy talking to some friends they met there, so it didn't matter.

Tonight there is a dance in the Blue Grass Union building. This is the only place I really know that seems important.

Hambleton Designs

John Oscar Hambleton, Henderson, former University student and art instructor, who has for a number of years designed costumes and settings for New York productions, now is in Hollywood designing costumes and gowns for Hollywood film stars. Among his first designs have been those for gowns to be worn by Joan Crawford in her next picture.

While Mr. Hambleton was a student at the University, and later as a part-time instructor in costume design, he was active in amateur theater work on the campus, participating in Stroller productions and in the Romans, by which name the campus little theater was known at that time. He was a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon.

Mr. Hambleton has had stage experience with a number of the greats, and appeared in one production in the Romans, by which name the maternal grandfather was a half-brother of the well known actor James K. Hackett.

Much of his designing in New York was for the late Sam Harris, Broadway producer. He is a graduate of the Henderson Barrett Manual Training school.

Last fall Mr. Hambleton was invited by the Sixty circle to judge the homecoming decorations at different fraternity houses. He was in Kentucky for a brief visit at the time.

Wildcat Varsity Prepares For VPI By Scorching Kittens, Reserves, 46-0

Regulars Count Seven Tallies As Backs Star

Ab Kirwan sent the Wildcats through a 60-minute practice session Saturday which revealed little but aroused much curiosity as to the potency of the 1941 Kentucky football team. Although the contest was played in mid-summer weather, the varsity was even hotter as they racked up seven touchdowns against the freshmen and the reserves to win 46-0.

The varsity scored three times through the air, passes to Charley Kuhn, Ernal Allen, and Carl Altman accounting for the markers. Noah Mullins, however, was the outstanding offensive star, scoring touchdowns on runs of 65 yards and 40 yards. Allen contributed the opening counter on a 39-yard jaunt less than five minutes after the kick-off. Jones converted all of the extra points.

CATS SHOW POWER
The Wildcats showed definite signs of offensive power, ranging from the hard line-plunging full-back, Bill Kinzer, who also hit pay-dirt, to the shifty openfield running of Junior Jones. The Wildcats have a good pass combination in Allen to Jones which can be reversed with equal success.

The line performed better than the pessimistic attitude of the coaching staff has hinted. Wingmen Allen Parr and Bill Purwood give indications of developing into able flankers both offensively and defensively. Clark Wood and Clyde Johnson held freshmen and reserve efforts to penetrate the tackle positions at a standstill. "Big John" was particularly impressive in stopping line-thrusts.

BLOCKING IMPROVED
Blocking was both good and bad although it has improved over that of last year. The downfield blocking was perfect in some instances but other occasions showed that more polish is still required. The line showed tendencies to charge hard and fast and was in Coach Kirwan's own words, "aggressive". The freshmen backs were unable to puncture the strong varsity line, their strongest effort coming on a 12-yard stand by Jesse Tunstall, ace freshman back. Phil Cutchin of the reserves made several nice gains in addition to providing some good kicking.

The Wildcats are putting the finishing touches on their tactics this week, preparatory to their opening tilt with VPI at Louisville Saturday. The Gobblers opened their season last Saturday with a 22-2 victory over Catawba.

IN ENEMY CAMPS

Three of Kentucky's football opponents in the 1941 season, made impressive debuts last week. Kentucky opens against V.P.I. Saturday at Louisville.

V. P. I. scored a 22-2 victory over Catawba, although a fine passing attack by the losers kept Coach Jimmy Kitts' boys busy throughout the contest.

Tech uncovered a pair of promising sophomore backs and showed a strong line. Although the line play was ragged at times, Kitts is planning to smooth out the rough spots this week and is confident of a victory over Kentucky next Saturday. In fact, the Tech team and their followers are expecting the tilt with the Wildcats to be only a breather in preparation for tougher foes later in the season.

Tennessee, traditional Thanksgiving Day foe for Kentucky, who's playing under John Barnhill as head coach since Neyland left, started slower than VPI teams of the past two years, but made a strong finish in the second half to down Furman 32-6. The Volunteer attack was again led by little Johnny Butler, who was the star broken-field runner of the last two Tennessee eleven.

In games played Friday night at Cincinnati, Xavier, UK's foe of October 18, had an easy time in rolling up a 62-5 win over the Georgetown college Tigers. Musketer substitutes played most of the game after the first quarter, at which time Xavier held a 26-0 lead.

Kentucky also has games scheduled with Washington and Lee, Vanderbilt, West Virginia, Alabama, Georgia Tech, and Southwestern. With the exception of Vanderbilt, these teams open their schedules in games this week.

Vanderbilt is much improved over last year. Commodore aggression, while Alabama is rated by the experts as one of the top teams in the Southeastern conference along with Tennessee.

Friday Set As Deadline For Touch Football Entries

Bowling League, Tennis Tourney To Be Organized

With Friday the deadline for entries in the intramural touch football leagues, C. W. Hackensmith, head, has issued a call for officials. In an attempt to keep down injuries three officials will be used in each game this year, acting as umpire, referee, and head linesman. A meeting of those who wish to officiate in the league this year will be held at 7:15 p.m. tomorrow in the Intramural office.

Those who have already been accepted as officials are: Jim Beasley, Justin McClintock, Bill Tucker, Lewis Schwartz, Ward Darnell, Joe Conforti, and Jimmy Parks.

Intramural managers are also needed and those wishing to try out are asked to get in touch with the intramural office. The duties of a manager are such as marking off playing fields, tabulating records, and acting as officials. Freshman and sophomore managers are awarded with keys, while the junior and senior managers get letters and sweaters.

The system of play in the football leagues will consist of a series of round-robin tournaments. A win will count two points, a tie will count one point, while a loss will count nothing. The teams compiling the highest number of points will compete in the playoffs at the end of the season.

The teams are limited to 15 men, and the team list must be final before the second game. An entry fee of $1.50 will be charged each team entering.

BOWLING LEAGUE PLANNED

An attempt to organize bowling, archery and badminton teams to compete with teams from other departments was announced by M. G. Karsner. The bowling and archery contests will be telegraphic meets, while the badminton teams will have to travel to meet their opponents. Archery competition will be carried on a national basis, with teams from all over the nation sending their results to their opponents. A national tournament will be held at the end of the year. Bowling matches will also be carried on by telegraph, but instead of playing teams from all over the nation an attempt has been made to form a southern league.

NET ENTRIES DUE

Also due Friday are the entries for the tennis doubles and singles tournament. Matches will start Sept. 30. Each organization may enter four persons in singles competition and two in doubles.

A novice tournament for those not particularly skilled but who would like to compete will also be held and will follow the same schedule as the regular tournament.

The last time Kentucky and V.P.I. set on the gridiron, the Gobblers nipped the Wildcats by the score of 7-0, marking Kentucky's first loss of the 1932 season after four straight wins.

Three of the freshmen backs that started against the varsity in Saturday's practice tilt were also starters in the annual East-West High School game last November. Paul Walker, Glasgow; Jesse Tunstall, Paducah; and Matt Lair, Paris were the All-Stars.

Panned Tennessee started the season Saturday by playing lightly regarded Furman, but Vanderbilt, the Vol's fellow Tennessean and annual rival, will shoot the works by opening against the Purdue Boiler-makers this weekend.

"The Play That Failed"

In football, not every play succeeds. Despite careful planning and practicing, the "touchdown" plays somehow fail to click every time.

With your social functions, as with football, it is wise to make the most careful plans. If your parties, dances, and teas are to succeed, take the precaution of having them at the PHOENIX HOTEL. Our large ball rooms will add greatly to the occasion.
