The Senate approved the minutes of April 13 recessed to April 20; April 28; and May 7, 1970 as circulated to the faculty.

On behalf of the College of Engineering Professor Staley Adams read a resolution on the death of Professor Laurence C. Pendley with the recommendation that the resolution be spread upon the minutes of the Senate and copies be sent to his family.

On June 8, 1970, in his fifty-second year of life and his twenty-second year of service to the University, Laurence C. (Larry) Pendley, Associate Professor of Civil Engineering, died of an apparent heart attack.

Professor Pendley was a native of Morgantown, Butler County, Kentucky. He received the Bachelor of Science degree in Civil Engineering from the University in 1943 and shortly thereafter entered naval service as an Ensign. During the remainder of World War II he served on the U.S.S. LST 506 and was discharged in 1946 with the rank of Lieutenant. Prior to his overseas duty with the Navy, he first married Frances Read, a High School classmate, who was, at that time, also in service as an Army nurse.

Returning to the University in September, 1946, Professor Pendley spent one year as an instructor before enrolling in the Graduate School at Purdue. He received his Master's degree in 1949 and returned to the University of Kentucky as an Assistant Professor of Civil Engineering. He was promoted to Associate Professor in 1958.

*Absence explained

During his twenty-one years with the Civil Engineering Department, Professor Pendley taught courses and conducted research in the general field of Highway Engineering and in the special areas of soils and materials. He maintained currency in his profession through advanced study at Purdue, M.I.T., and the Universities of Minnesota and New Mexico. He was an active member of The American Society of Civil Engineers, the American Society for Engineering Education, the Kentucky Society of Professional Engineers, Sigma X, Triangle and Tau Beta Pi. His interest in young people and in engineering education led him to serve as local coordinator for JETS, a pre-engineering club for high-schoolers, and director of the Civil Engineering Technology curriculum of the Lexington Technical Institute.

Larry Pendley was a family man in the finest sense of that term. He and his wife raised a son and four daughters, sparing no sacrifice for their health, education and adjustment to life. His love of family and religious commitment (he was a deacon in a Baptist Church) carried over into the classroom. He will be remembered by hundreds of former students for his easy-going approach to teaching, his unflagging humor and his deep understanding of their problems.

A resolution such as this is a feeble thing. The material accomplishments and acquisitions of a man's life become relatively immaterial upon his death. A mere listing of them is a sterile tribute to his memory. It is to be hoped then, that Larry Pendley, along with our other departed colleagues, will be remembered not so much for what he did or did not do, but for what he was.

May the Faculty of the University of Kentucky accept this resolution in respect for a life well-lived, in sympathy for his wife, family and friends and in hope that Larry has found that better life in which he so firmly believed.

On behalf of the College of Education Dr. Harold R. Binkley read a resolution on the death of Professor Floyd Cox with the recommendation that it be made a part of the minutes of the Senate and that copies be sent to his family.

Floyd Cox
(1909-1970)

Floyd Cox was born and grew up in Scott County in central Kentucky. He was a member of a rural family typical of the era, a fact he often referred to with pride. Floyd's open, straight-forward outlook on life was undoubtedly influenced by this background. His early years were enriched by close association with his three brothers.

He attended the University of Kentucky, graduated from the College of Agriculture in 1934, and received a Master's Degree in Education in 1942.

After teaching vocational agriculture in Cumberland and Franklin counties, he joined the staff in Agricultural Education at the University of Kentucky, in 1947. His initial responsibility at the University was the preparation of instructional materials for over 750 vocational teachers of farm Veterans of World War II. He developed and retained a burning zeal to make these teaching materials up-to-date in terms of improved practices in all aspects of farming.

In recent years, Floyd had the state-leadership role for developing instructional materials in agricultural mechanics and for the young-farmer program in Kentucky. During the past ten years, he worked with school superintendents, architects, and teachers of agriculture in developing over 100 modern facilities for departments of vocational agriculture and in equipping them for modern programs.

Floyd was recognized on the state, regional, and national levels for his leadership in young-farmer work and in agricultural mechanics. He served on regional and national committees in both areas. His death leaves a definite leadership void in the state, region, and nation. His most recent contributions include serving as secretary of the executive committee of the American Association of Agricultural Engineering and Vocational Agriculture and planning the technical agriculture phase of the Kentucky Annual Conference of Teachers of Agriculture.

Floyd was at his best in working with young teachers and in developing young-farmer and agricultural mechanics programs. He believed that general education and vocational education are phases of a single education process--in directing forces toward the full realization of the potentials of each person.

The untimely end of Floyd's life is indeed a great loss to his wife, Katherine; three sons, Donald, David, and Douglass; general education and vocational education.

In view of his many contributions and accomplishments, and what seemed to be his future, his colleagues express their keen sense of loss at the passing of Floyd Cox. They will miss him--his contributions, his ready smile, his comradeship.

On behalf of the College of Education Dr. James Barclay read a resolution on the death of Dr. Carl Tatum.

Carl Tatum was an educator who taught by the example of the quality of his life. That life began August 5, 1915 in Ora, Mississippi. It ended July 9, 1970 while serving as a visiting professor at the University of Florida. As a boy he developed a love for athletics that was an outstanding characteristic of his life. As he reached maturity he acquired a great passion for the psychological understanding of human relationships, and the way in which healthy relationships can be fostered in the young. As a young man he went to California with a sense of adventure. There he managed to put himself through college at San Diego State College, receiving the A.B. with a major in English in 1940. He moved to Shreveport, Louisiana, where he served both as an elementary and secondary school teacher, and where from 1949 to 1962 he was principal of an elementary school. During that period he completed an M.Ed. at Louisiana State University, and an Ed.D. in 1956, at the University of Maryland's Institute for Child Study. He was a member of several professional associations, including the American Humanistic Psychology, the organization with which he identified most strongly.

After spending several summers as a visiting professor at the University of Kentucky, he was invited to join the faculty here in 1962, serving for a time as Acting Chairman of the Division of Educational Foundations.

Carl's talents as an administrator were marked primarily by the quiet insistence with which he furthered the interests of his subordinates. His teaching in the psychology of human development, had a profound effect on many students, undergraduate and graduate, at the campus in Lexington, and at University extensions in several parts of the state.

All who knew Carl Tatum will remember the warmth of his personality, and his rugged individuality. His life stood for something, that "something" being an impetus to, and example for, better relations among people. He was justifiably proud of the extent to which he was able to share his vision with others; proud of his family who survive him--his wife Elsie, with whom he achieved an enviable degree of cooperative effort, and his daughter Susan, who acquired so many of his outstanding qualities; and proud of the University he came to serve during the fullest years of his career as an educator.

His perception of situations was often strikingly unique, and thereby opened to others a dimension that made the situation more enjoyable or, at least, more tolerable. He will be missed by those whose lives he touched; and the example of his life will be remembered, to the betterment of people everywhere.

On behalf of the College of Education and University Extension Dr. Cornelius R. Hager read the resolution on the death of Dr. Denver Sloan with the recommendation that the resolution be transmitted to his wife and daughter.

Dr. Denver Sloan was born April 13, 1913. Life expired on July 21, 1970. He was a native of Pike County and graduated from Cumberland High School in 1934. His survivors are his wife, Paulina, and one daughter, Frances Ann.

Denver held three degrees from the University of Kentucky: A.B., 1947, majors--mathematics and biology; M.S., 1948, majors--anatomy and physiology; Ed.D., 1956, major--educational administration. The major part of his life was devoted to educational activity. He taught for several years in the public school system of Pike County and served as a high school principal for seven years. Educational pursuit was interrupted while he served in the United States Coast Guard during World War II as a member of the Medical Corps.

In 1954, he was appointed assistant professor of education at Morehead State College and served as director of public relations with this institution for two years. In 1956, he joined the administrative teaching staff of the University of Kentucky. His first assignment was full time teaching. In 1957, he became director of the high school speech program and director of the Correspondence Study Program. Because of his close affiliation with the High School Speech League, he was executive secretary of the Kentucky Speech Association. Other activities include chairman of the Membership and Promotional Committee of the Adult Education Association in Kentucky and member of the Sub-Committee on Nuclear Science Education and Research, K-12. He was instrumental in the development of the organization of the Kentucky Association of Extension and Correspondence Study and was the initial chairman.

Dr. Sloan was a life member of the National Education Association and an active member of the Kentucky Education Association. He was a member of Phi Delta Kappa, an honorary fraternity for men in education, and was awarded a service pin by this fraternity in 1961. He was an active member of the National Science Teachers Association.

This individual was active as a student in high school debate. He maintained this interest throughout his professional career and was one of the organizers of the Advisory Council to the High School Speech League which has functioned on an annual basis since 1957. He served many years as a member of the National Executive Committee on Discussion and Debate.

Nationally, Dr. Sloan served with distinction as chairman of the Independent Study Division of the National University Extension Association and as a member of the board of this organization.

At the time of his passing, he held a joint appointment at the University of Kentucky as Director of Independent Study with University Extension and as a full professor (Extension Series) in the College of Education. Denver Sloan always exhibited, in his daily behavior, the characteristics of a true gentleman. His many contributions to this University and to the people of the Commonwealth of Kentucky and his greatness of character is only overshadowed by his modesty. Those of us who knew Denver as a friend and colleague will long remember his untiring efforts in extending the service arm of this institution. He exemplified, in every way, a strong professional attitude and desire.

The University Senators stood for a moment of silence in tribute and respect to Professors Laurence Pendley, Floyd Cox, Carl Tatum, and Denver Sloan and in acceptance of the resolutions.

On behalf of the Senate Council, Dr. Stephen Diachun, Council Secretary, presented a recommendation that the title of the degree in Social Work be changed from the Bachelor of Arts with a major in Social Work, College of Arts and Sciences, to the Bachelor of Arts in Social Work, College of Social Professions. This recommendation had been circulated to the faculty under date of September 2, 1970. In discussion from the floor a Senator raised the question of whether it should be Bachelor of Science rather than a Bachelor of Arts. The Senate then approved the change of the degree in Social Work to place it in the College of Social Professions, to be the professional degree of Bachelor of Arts in Social Work.

On behalf of the Senate Council and with its recommendation Dr. Diachun recommended to the Senate that the report of the Senate Council's ad hoc Committee on X Grades be adopted as circulated to the faculty under date of September 1, 1970 for transmittal to the Rules Committee for any necessary codification.

Following discussion on the floor the Senate approved the report and recommendations on X Grades for transmittal to the Rules Committee for any necessary codification.

1. the Registrar cease recording the symbol "X" on grade records;
2. the Registrar shall remove all students from class rolls upon notification from the instructor that the students have not attended class prior to the last date of each term to drop a course without a grade. The Registrar will promptly supply the instructor with the official class rolls as of that date, and it shall be the responsibility of the instructor to report promptly to the Registrar the names of those students who have not attended.
3. the Registrar notify the student and his academic dean of such action;
4. the Senate Council make an effort to see that
  - (a) each instructor is informed of the rules concerning grades, and
  - (b) proper approval is given for cases that are exceptions to the rules.

The Dean of Admissions and Registrar then presented a recommended time schedule for first-time implementation of these four recommendations, namely:

1. that all drop-add forms be submitted to the Registrar's Office by all colleges by 5:00 p.m., Wednesday, September 16;
2. that the Registrar's Office provide updated class rolls to the faculty by 5:00 p.m., Monday, September 21;
3. that all class rolls be returned to the Registrar by 5:00 p.m., Friday, September 25; and
4. that the Registrar's Office notify all deans and affected students of action taken by Friday, October 2.

On recommendation of the Rules Committee and with the endorsement of the Senate Council Dr. Diachun presented a recommendation that the proposal circulated to the faculty under date of September 2, 1970 to incorporate the official descriptions of the officers of the Senate, including the addition of one officer, that of Sergeant at Arms, into the Rules of the University Senate, be approved with the correction of the word Senate to faculty in arabic 3. A. Secretary under the description of the functions of these officers. Question was raised of the wording of the official description of the Secretary as ex officio secretary; that it should read that he will serve as ex officio member of the Senate and be its secretary. The Chairman of the Senate stated that the Rules Committee would be asked to consider an editorial change in order to correct the misleading phraseology. The Senate then approved the four officers of the Senate with their respective functions for inclusion in the Rules of the University Senate.

OFFICERS OF THE SENATE:

1. Chairman - The President shall be chairman of the Senate and shall be the presiding officer except as he may delegate this function.
2. Secretary - The Dean of Admissions and Registrar shall serve as ex officio secretary.
3. Parliamentarian - A member of the voting University faculty, not necessarily a member of the Senate, appointed by the University Senate Council.
4. Sergeant at Arms - A member of the voting University faculty who is not a member of the Senate, appointed by the University Senate Council.

FUNCTIONS OF OFFICERS OF THE UNIVERSITY SENATE:

A. Secretary:

1. To distribute notices of regular Senate meetings at least 10 days prior to meetings with agenda and recommendations for Senate action to the members of the Senate, to all other members of the University faculty and to administrative offices that are concerned with academic affairs, and of special meetings as directed.
2. To keep minutes of Senate meetings and to circulate the minutes as in item 1.
3. To maintain a record of additions to or modifications of the Senate Rules between periodic revisions and distribute copies of the revised Rules to members of the faculty at least annually.
4. To prepare lists of faculty members eligible to vote for membership in the University Senate and in other elections from lists submitted by the chief administrative officers of the academic units represented in the Senate and certified by the Rules Committee.
5. To conduct elections as directed by the Senate.
6. To maintain an official roll of Senate members.
7. To maintain attendance records of Senate meetings and notify administrative heads of units when a representative has been absent without explanation from three meetings during any academic year and must be replaced as a Senator.
8. To maintain a file on the "Rules of the faculty and a description of its committee structure" (Gov. Regulations, VII, A.4) as submitted by the colleges.

B. Parliamentarian:

To advise the presiding officer on parliamentary procedures.

C. Sergeant at Arms:

To separate visitors from voting members of the Senate, control the presence of persons not authorized to attend Senate meetings and to carry out instructions of the Senate or its presiding officer during each meeting.

Dr. Plucknett introduced the Senate Council members who were present and called the names of all members of that body, namely: Staley F. Adams; Carl B. Cone; Stephen Diachun, Secretary; Wesley P. Garrigus; John N. Lienhard, a new member beginning this fall who is replacing Nicholas J. Pisacano who has recently been appointed Assistant Dean in the College of Allied Health Professions; Dr. Vernon Musselman who is replacing Dr. Thomas Ford who is on leave; Dr. Sheldon Rovin, vice chairman; Dr. Robert W. Rudd, an ex officio member by virtue of his being a non-voting member of the Board of Trustees; Dr. Paul Sears, also an ex officio member because he is a non-voting member of the Board of Trustees; Dr. Timothy H. Taylor; and Dr. William K. Plucknett, chairman.

Dr. Plucknett reported that Dr. Singletary had indicated he wished to address the Senate during the fall semester; that the Rules Committee and the Senate Council are working on a revision of the Senate Rules (some of which is organizational, much of which is editorial) and it is hoped that a complete revision will be ready for the Senate's consideration at its October meeting; that a report by the Tripartite Committee will be forthcoming at an early Senate meeting; that a report of the ad hoc Committee on Academic Priorities and Programs has been received in the Senate Council office and is of such import that the President and the Senate Council have been giving it a thorough study and it is expected that recommendations will be forthcoming this fall; that the report of the Advisory Committee on International Education, which was not covered last spring, will be coming to the Senate; that at least one meeting will be held to discuss some matters of the self-study report; that the document which was referred back to the Advisory Committee on Student Affairs and which recommended student involvement at the departmental and college levels will be coming to the Senate; plus other business which may come up. Dr. Plucknett also reported that the Senate Council had discussed and had established an ad hoc committee to study the academic responsibilities of the faculty.

At this point Dr. Wendell Berry presented a motion that the Senate send a resolution to the President asking that he attend the Senate and converse and associate with the Senators. The motion was seconded. Dr. Michael Adelstein then asked the presenter of the motion if he would yield to a rewording of the motion. Dr. Berry and the seconder agreed to withdraw for the following rewording of the motion by Dr. Adelstein, "The Senate extends a gracious, cordial, and friendly invitation to the President to attend its meetings and feel free on any occasion to speak to it; that, in particular, he address it in the near future on ways in which the Senate can help to strengthen and improve the University; and further, that a question and answer session follow his address, the Senate Council and President to determine whether or not it should be open to the Press. This motion was seconded.

At this point call for adjournment was made from the floor. By a hand count of 73 to 51 the Senate voted for adjournment.

The Senate adjourned at 4:20 p.m.
