- (4) A provision has been added calling for an annual report by the Committee.

Acting for Dean White, Dr. Koppius presented resolutions on the death of Dr. Charles Barkenbus, which had been adopted by the Faculty of the College of Arts and Sciences. The University Faculty approved a motion to accept the resolutions and have them spread upon the minutes of the Faculty.

Resolutions on the Death of Charles Barkenbus

Dr. Charles Barkenbus, Professor of Organic Chemistry in the University of Kentucky, died February 21, 1959. A native of Michigan, he graduated from Kalamazoo College in 1917. For a period of three years he was a teaching assistant at Yale University, where he was awarded the Ph.D. degree in organic chemistry in 1920.

In September, 1920, he joined the faculty of the University of Kentucky as an assistant professor. He was promoted to an associate professorship in 1924 and to a full professorship in 1930. Early in his career he spent several summers in industrial research laboratories.

Throughout his thirty-nine years of service for the University of Kentucky he was recognized as one of the outstanding teachers on the campus. His well organized, clearly presented lectures, together with the type of personality which provided both encouragement and challenge left enduring favorable impressions upon his students.

Despite a heavy teaching load, he found time to conduct research in the area of organic synthesis. From these activities approximately twenty-five research papers have been published in the leading chemical journals. In a period of rapid chemical developments, he remained constantly well informed about current progress.

Professor Barkenbus' time and energy were always given freely to campus organizations such as the Lexington Section of The American Chemical Society, the Society of the Sigma Xi and the Research Club. Throughout the years he has served all of these organizations as officer, counselor, and loyal participating member. Among numerous outstanding achievements in the Department of Chemistry may be mentioned his work as Chairman of the Departmental Library Committee. Under his guidance there has been built one of the best chemistry departmental libraries in the United States in a university of this size.

In Dr. Barkenbus' passing the students have lost a wise counselor, the staff an esteemed colleague and the University one of its best teachers. The committee recommends that this resolution be placed in the minutes of this body and transmitted to the faculty of the University and that a copy be sent to the family.
