

RA644-M-3--LET'S GET TO WORK.

Resettlement projects throughout the country are giving work to nearly 70,000 men, many from relief rolls. This gang wants to get started on the day's construction work at Greenbelt. These men who are watching the model community grow under their own hands are its strongest supporters and it is hoped that many of them will be able to live in the homes they helped build. The Resettlement Administration wants good work and friendly labor relations on every job. The welfare of the men on the job is carefully guarded by precise safety regulations, first aid stations, and inspections of water supply and sanitary conditions. At present more than 3,000 men are at work on Greenbelt. (Resettlement Administration Photo)
