

RESETTLEMENT ADMINISTRATION
INTRODUCES THE GREENBELT COMMUNITY

WHAT IS A GREENBELT COMMUNITY?

- It is a rural-industrial community, surrounded by a protective greenbelt of park and farm land.
- A chain of these communities should encircle every well-planned city. Their greenbelts, linked together, would form a broad girdle of open space, protecting the city forever against overcrowding and haphazard suburban development.
- Resettlement Administration is building greenbelt communities near Washington, Milwaukee, Cincinnati, and New York. They will be national examples, showing how large suburban areas can be expertly planned to guarantee a maximum of economy, convenience, safety, and healthful environment.
- They will demonstrate how America can provide decent homes, combining the advantages of urban and rural life, for families now living in run-down, insanitary dwellings.
