Acceptance of the bid of the Reliance Engineering Company of Chicago, N. C., for construction of a building for heating and ventilation for the biological sciences building now under construction was affirmed at a meeting of the executive committee of the University Board of Trustees Tuesday afternoon.

The bid, which was the lowest submitted, was $22,888. Due to the large number of members of the board that were absent the meeting, originally scheduled for the entire Board of Trustees, was turned into an executive committee meeting, with other members of the board in attendance.

Plans for a combination side walk and roadway from Memorial hall to Limestone street were approved and the question of improving the campus was referred to Dr. Frank L. McVey for consideration.

Three names, selected by a vote of the graduates, were named at a meeting for money to be appointed as a member of the board. They are George Wilson and E. S. Dabney, both of Lexington, and Marshall Barnes of Berea, O.

CENTENARY TEXANS ARRIVE WEDNESDAY

Rupps Gun For Sugar Bowl Bout With Pittsburgh, December 29

Claw them Panthers! The battle cry of Coach Rupp's Panther Wildcats will echo from the Alumni arena during the "Yuletide" holiday.

Work and more work. This is the vacation is store for the defending Southern conference change, as they strive for Sugar Bowl triumph over Pittsburgh's mighty crew.

In the short existence of the New Orleans athletic spectacle, no Southern hoop five has ever managed to take the scalp of a Yankee invader. But the Cats, despite the pessimism of Tudor Adolph, believe that the day of triumph is rapidly approaching.

The Ruppen believe with what they hope and believe will be two tuneup fops, before taking on the Cincinnati Quinets.

A clash with the University of Cincinnati Wildcats will take place in the Cats' last Saturday night, The Rhinelanders, coached by Rip Van Winkle of Kentucky Wesleyan fame, are expected to give the Kentuckians a stiff tilt, as they have already vanquished several times.

Centenary College's Gentlemen, who held the Champ in check the first of a cent last fall, again journey to the Bluegrasses, December 22, to attempt to add to their list of trophies.

While these tilts are expected to add to the felicity of Central Kentucky hardwood fans, the Cats will be satisfied with nothing but a well-chewed Panther pelt for a completely blissful Christmas.

Every Wildcat, from the last sub to the South's basketball prestige will have risen several notches after that eventful night, December 29.

McLaughlin Funeral Services Conducted
Funeral services for Matt J. McLaughlin, assistant professor of journalism, were held Wednesday morning at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Requiem high mass was celebrated by the Rev. Joseph Kitchin, pastor of the church. Burial was in the family lot in the Lexington cemetery.

The Seasons Greetings To Students and Faculty Of The University of Kentucky

The staff of THE KENTUCKY KERNEL has asked me to extend greetings to the student body and the faculty of the University of Kentucky in connection with the holiday season, and I am glad to do so.

The closing week of the holidays has been one of unusual weather, making it difficult to get to classes and move across the campus from place to place. I appreciate the patience and cheerfulness with which students made the best of conditions and have attended their classes as far as possible.

This shows something of the pioneer spirit. I wish for all the students and staff of the University and their families wherever they may be, a pleasant and happy Christmas and that this Christmas may be the joining of kindred spirits and the exchange of good will and affection, so that families may be united and greatly pleased over their reunion.

The spirit of Christmas is not made by gifts and the exchange of expensive articles, but rather by good will and affection, and it is in this spirit that I wish all a very happy time and a return to the University in good health and spirits.

Porter Grant Quits 'Cat Coaching Post

Young Flank Mentor Goes To Auburn To Assume Higher Position

Porter Grant, assistant varsity football, has resigned his position with Kentucky to take up new duties at the family welfare group of the athletic department announced Tuesday.

In 1934, Grant joined the Wild cats at the invitation of Coach Wynne under whom he played for three years at Auburn, where he was contact man.

Recognized as one of the best ends produced in the Southeastern conference, Grant has been sought by his school for more than a year. The pressure reached a maximum Tuesday and Grant wired his acceptance.

At Alabama, Poly, the popular young mentor will serve as assistant varsity football coach, busi-ness manager and contact man of the department and secretary of the Alumni association. He will work under Coach Bryant, former successor, also an employer of the Notre Dame system.

Grant left for Alabama Wednesday afternoon. He will spend the holidays in his home at Dolan, returns to Lexington at the end of the month for a visit and then start his new assignment January 1.

No rumors for a successor have emanated from the University's athletic office to date.

Grant, a Sigma Nu, graduated from Auburn in 1933, a major in architecture.

Time for changing quarters from the old law building to the new has arrived for the students of the Law College. Starting Wednesday, December 15, trucks began to move out the old books and all of the fixtures from the basement.

McBrayer's Kittens Bury Tit-the Hill Billies, 58-28, In Dazzling Exhibition

BALETT BY GRIDMEN DELIGHTS BLEACHERS

Red Hagan And Tub Thompson Pace Kentucky Scorers

Kentucky's conference champs tore the lid off the 1937-38 basketball season Wednesday night by slaughtering Berea's Hill Billies, 69-35, in a game that saw the Wildcats work sloppily in spots and slobber in others. The opening attraction of the doubleheader featured the Kittens in a 58-28 show that completely outclassed the little Mountaineers.

Sandwiched between halves of the varsity game was a dancing exhibition put on by seven football players for the benefit of the University's swimming team. The muscle-bound footballers did much toward delighting the 1,500 fans who turned out for the evening's entertainment.

Berea played ball with the Ruppmen for the first five minutes and gave indication of being just as tough for the locals. The Blues were ahead 6-3, when Red Hagan jogged into the game replacing Jim Goodman, one of the three sophomores who started the skirmish. Once Smokey grabbed the ball, the score started rolling Kentuckyward. And when Hagan started hitting, Tubby Thompson began performing, likewise.

During the final ten minutes of the game the Cats rammed 31 points down the basket's throat. One shot after another fell when the Rups worked brilliantly. Berea was not and merely finished the first round in a frantic race. At the half time the score read, 37-13.

Paul McBrayer, frosh coach, mentioned the Wildcats during the game because Adolph Rupp was confined to his home with illness. Mac kept a steady flow of substitutes romping into the game but they could not keep the scoreboard quiet.

Marion Clugish, about as tall as a pole vault, got into the battle and made the game a bit more interesting. The room will be decorated with Christmas trees and a gayly-trimmed tree will be at one end of the room.

The girls on the committee for the party include Bobbie Mays, Taylor Ross Rollins, Mildred Jones, Betty Alexander, Josephine Griddle, Alberta Adams, Jean Becker, Vera Gillespie, Boyd Alexander, Beatrice Monk, and Kitty Wooten.

In burying the visitors, McBrayer used 14 men, all of whom flashed into action from the start. Most of sophs, Goodman, Denham and Rouse along with the veterans Thompson and Capt. Rice Walker, who tried his hand at guard for the first college game in his career.

Against the Wildcat subs, Berea came to life and tallied 23 points in the second reel. Most of these were chalked up by Deaton and Ratliff, two small burly boys, who specialized in one hand push shots. But the Blue lead was never threatened.

Ralph Jackowski, the meteoric rookie, made his local bow and gave signs of becoming one of Rupp's defensive strong arms. Jack also has a good eye and can develop into a top-notch player.

Holidays Begin Saturday At Noon

Christmas holidays begin officially at noon Saturday, December 18, and end at 8 a. m., Monday, January 2. It was announced yesterday by the registrar's office. For each class, contrary to the suggestion of statistics which show 65 per cent of women students scrapping the campus for a college degree, a majority of co-eds want to acquire the ability to be self-supporting.

Many schools, originally operated for men exclusively, have been forced to grow their doors to accommodate the great influx of women students. The Universities of Virginia and Mississippi were cited as examples.

A Thought About Christmas

Beginning Saturday, the major part of the student body will begin its Yuletide exodus to all points on the compass.

The Christmas vacation invites a two-fold service. First, it offers a student the opportunity to renew and to strengthen his friendships back home and to associate intimately with his family.

During the holidays, it would be advisable to fulfill both these obligations, for they will have an effective bearing on the future.

Perhaps my stay this year at the University, perhaps many honors have crowned our person.

Yet, when we reach home, one swift thought will demolish most of that new-founded self-reliance.

As next month draws to a close, the last quizzes of the semester will pour down upon us.

And while we watch the tongues of flame at the Christmas fireside, let's listen to the blessings they speak.

Through the columns of this paper, the entire editorial and advertising staff of THE KERNEL extends its sincerest season's greetings to the University and student body.

A Tribute To A Friend

The following tribute to the late Professor Enoch Grehan was received yesterday by THE KERNEL from Professor Edward Saxton, one of the many who knew and loved Kentucky's genial journalist.

ENOCH GREHAN: Enoch Grehan dead? No. It cannot be. His soul's at rest. His mind at liberty. With purified imagination

Scrap Irony

It's really pretty silly; this business of setting a new press record each year. For instance we're writing this column on Wednesday for publication on Friday.

We were in a downtown men's shop the other day trying to buy a shirt. We thought we'd like a shirt; the one we have is becoming a bit worn.

There are cases on record of men who went about buying up polka-dot ties and burning them by the thousand. In some states the giving of a polka-dot tie for Christmas is considered grounds for justifiable homicide!

As we have already mentioned, Mr. Bunbury killed her with an axe and later stuffed her in a clothes hamper.

Eustace wrote back that he would like an electric razor, he had always wanted an electric razor, and the judge sent him one.

Miss Mimi Wiedeman, she of the raccoon coat and mittens, suggests that something be done about ventilation in some of the buildings.

While Lexington was on ice a few days ago, we heard this little story about a man who walked fourteen blocks home without falling and then went to sleep in a chair.

He now can see And eloquently describe The celestial pageantry And Christmas tree In heaven.

O happy thought! His sharp transition Is with wonder wrought, As he with other worthies meet And kneel together At their Master's feet To express their adoration, Not with type or pen, But in song, the song of peace And good-will to men.

SIDESHOW

The last suggestion Prof. Enoch Grehan made concerning this column was that something about Christmas be written in it.

No MORE heart-tugging reminder of the swiftness of the passage of youth exists than the emotional depreciation of Christmas.

And so the years wheel on. Now and then some transient vestige of that lost effulgent glory brushes by and for a second I am small once more.

The airplane was wrecked by misminoring. I still have the books. It was Christmas Eve, some three or four years ago. A cold, spitting rain was pelting down on the bundles.

It was Christmas Eve, some three or four years ago. A cold, spitting rain was pelting down on the bundles. I stood downtown waiting for a bus.

Double F. Davis is making quite a play for Margaret Grehan, who happens to be the flower of "Finker" Dean's heart.

The following is a very old whim, but it hasn't been tried here for a long time. It is a list of songs, old and new, which have a very definite meaning to the person involved.

Center Bricks: Bell, Star, Tree

WEEK-END SPECIALS: Brick: Vanilla, with green pineapple cubes. Holiday Pudding: Vanilla, with red pineapple cubes.

There's A Dixie Dealer Near You. Center Bricks: Bell, Star, Tree

"Little Brown Jug"—Phil Delta Theta. "An Old Flame Never Dies"—Marian Goodhouse for Harold Bush. "Lost in a Fog"—Alice Bailey.

"Sally Let Your Bangs Hang Down"—And so the most dignified members of the faculty took heed of the program and submitted their hearts content at the Christmas dinner given at Post Hall Tuesday evening.

To the accompaniment of grunts, groans, thuds of leather on bare flesh, dumping of bodies on cany, and cheers and yells of a tightly-packed, blood-thirsty crowd.

"You're My Dish"—Sid Buckley for Jean Barker. "The Big Apple"—Frank F. Davis. "Let's Call the Whole Thing Off"—Don Irvine.

went through a series of flip-flops with the professional spectators. Both men found the confines of the ring too small and most of the tugging was outside the roped inclosure. Hinkbein finally wrestled the winners trophy with a time advantage of two seconds.

Durbin Beats Beatty
The enthusiasts had scarcely re-adjusted themselves to their seats when they were again yanked to their feet by the opening punch-fest which sent 125 pound defending champion Durbin against Delta Chi Beatty. Beatty showed grim determination to slug it out with Durbin, who brought a trickle of blood from Beatty's nose early in the first round with a flurry of rights. Both men collided in the center of the ring and slugged toe to toe until sheer exhaustion sent them staggering away. A desperate last round rally netted Durbin a close decision.

Then ATO Posey and SAE Dave Bogan kept the punches flying in the light-weight finale won on decision by Posey. Both men waged strictly offensive warfare, with Posey's smacking left jab connecting enough times to gather the decision.

Shanklin Has Close
The first real upset was turned in by Kellond, Phi Kappa Tau fighter, with a decision over ATO Warf in the 145 pound class. Warf showed the effects of not fighting and his timing was bad and most of his kicks over-shot their mark.

Another defending champion, Henry Wallace, Kappa Alpha 135 pounder, emerged the victor over Pole, Pi Kappa Alpha. Early in the third round Wallace tagged Pole with a long over hand right. This blow sent Pole to his knees for a count of three and brought a gush of crimson to his face but with an effort he regained his feet and carried the fight to Wallace for a remainder of the scuffle. Then came a hay-making party sponsored jointly by Independent Gough and Shanklin, Alpha Gamma Rho. Both participants threw the leather with great abandon and when either connected with one of the wild licks it was with bone-crushing vehemency. Shanklin was finally awarded the bout after three giddy rounds but the decision was alternately booed and cheered by the spectators.

It remained for the Winchester brothers, 175 pound Ralph and heavyweight Frank, both Independents, to furnish the only win via the knock-out route. Ralph polished off-off Alpha Gamma Rho Stokes (Continued on Page Four)

Wrestling had moved along very modestly with only a fair round of exhibitionism being drawn from the fans when the bell utedered in the light-heavyweight strain between Deke SAE and Independent Genry. This bout soon had the spectators on their feet as both men bounced each other all over the ring. The bout finally terminated with Geary on top after two minutes and 45 seconds of furious grappling. TO Faculty and Students A Sincere Wish For A Very Merry Christmas And A Happy New Year

Lafayette Studio

Our Christmas package to you is packed to overflowing with good wishes for a holiday of good cheer and happiness.

HOTEL LAFAYETTE

This poor old grad, in his freshman daze, adopted studious thoughts and ways. He crammed his Turret Top with facts. But never learned how one should act.

It's simple arithmetic that the more cars General Motors sells the greater this organization grows. And the solid fact back of that growth is this: General Motors cars must continually offer more in terms of extra value to win those sales. It is only because General Motors is great that it can maintain the research and improvement program responsible for such modern betterments as the Turret Top, the Unisteel Body, No Draft Ventilation, Knee-Action and advanced Hydraulic Brakes.

ONCE in a while you run into a fellow who you just can't help but like. He has a way of talking and a funny outlook on things but he always impresses you as a guy you can count on and whose judgment is as sound as gold. You chat with him a few minutes, laugh at his descriptions or sympathize with his troubles. But you always anticipate anxiously your next conversation with him. He is as genuine the first time you meet him as he is the fiftieth time. When you leave his presence, the world seems a little more kindly and cheerful.

Such a fellow is Porter Grant who pulled up his Kentucky stakes Tuesday afternoon and went back home to Auburn.

Porter occupied one of those many unglorified roles here. He was Coach Wynne's right hand man. He wore a baseball cap on the practice field. He led the footballers through limbering exercises. Though out of action as much as a man as he possessed as much agility and trimness as the most conditioned athlete. And during scrimmages he followed the play and pointed out with faultless simplicity just what his boys did wrong. In his unpolished but he made fair ends of boys who had played very little football, he harvested high school talent for the approval of the department, and won himself unconsciously so many friends that his leaving Lexington is little short of an outrage.

Blessed with a keen, analyzing mind, Coach Wynne delegated them to scout many of Kentucky's opponents. That Wildcats failed to win most of their games is no reflection on Grant's spying ability. Ask any player and they will tell you that they had worked against every enemy offense and defense before the games. Grant could not stop touchdowns though he knew how to if the Wildcats carried out instructions to the letter.

He came to Kentucky? Because Coach Wynne, who tutored him during the seasons of 1930-31-32, believed that Porter Grant was the best end he had ever seen. When Grant graduated from Auburn, he worked as varsity end coach there until he heeded the pleas of his former coach 'way up in the Blue Grass.

Porter John hancocked a Kentucky contract in January, 1934. He was to serve as assistant varsity coach and worry about the ends. Every man he has been directly assisting with swears by Grant as a gridiron god. And despite grief today over his departure are the ends who will be Grantless next season. And the same can be said for the rest of the team and coaches.

Disagreeable as his leaving is, all you can do is congratulate the guy for he is going into a much higher position at his alma mater. At Auburn they have molded the athletic department and the alumni association into one body. And they think enough of Grant to request that he be in command of the whole project. Out on the Plains he will serve as assistant varsity football coach, business manager of the athletic department and secretary of the alumni association.

Though he disliked leaving Kentucky, the Auburn position offered him security. Here at Kentucky he worked on a one year contract. The future was unpredictable. Now at his alma mater he has a guarantee of solidity.

When the Wildcats lost a ball game no one felt worse over the shortcoming than Porter. He was a tragic figure, hat slanted on the back of his head, cigarette in his fist, but never uttered a cross word. When the whipped Cats were tugging off their pads, he stalked among the perspiring players and said something encouraging. I have seen his battered ends, after listening to his words, break into tears. They hated to lose because they wanted to play on a team that Grant helped coach... and, in losing, dejected their teacher.

In Nashville, Birmingham, and Galensville, where the lobbyists know Porter only as an incomparable football player, seems to be little to fret about for the next three years. Most of the assemblage came out to observe the ballet dance put on by a septette of gridmen. The pigskin gent's practiced their routine five times before appearing in public. Garbed in swirling baby blue skirts and cotton sleeveless gym shirts, complete with bosoms, the football Apollos flitted about with stuttering grace while the audience howled in glee. They performed everything dainty even to the extent of showing their U. K. A. A. bloomers to the bleachers.

Miss Pigg valiantly trumped out piano rhythms to the barefoot boys with rogue on.
