

Merger expert will address UK-U of L plans

By DARRELL CLEM
Senior Staff Writer

An expert on university mergers will be on campus today to address the concerns many faculty members have about the proposed UK-University of Louisville merger.

John D. Millett, an independent consultant who has studied mergers at several universities, will speak at a meeting sponsored by the UK chapter of the American Association of University Professors. The meeting, which will be open to the public, will be held at 3 p.m. today on the 18th floor of Patterson Office Tower.

Jean G. Pival, president of the UK chapter of AAUP, said the meeting is an attempt to get additional information before the group makes a recommendation to the Board of Trustees in April.

"What we've asked (Millett) to talk on is the whole idea of merger and what has been the success of these things in other places — whether it's going to help the University of Kentucky, the University of Louisville and the state of Kentucky," she said.

While the Board of Trustees committee on merger has taken the position that a UK-U of L merger should leave intact the identity of UK, protect against the dismantling of programs and retain the current governing structure, Pival said AAUP members want more specific recommendations.

"AAUP is concerned that, if we don't look at specifics before the decision is made to merge, then all these details will be worked out after the merger, and we'll be in the same situation (the UK dental school is in now)," she said.

College of Dentistry faculty members have said they are disillusioned with the merger of the UK and U of L dental schools, and have asked the University Senate to assess the merger.

Although the Trustee committee on merger states that no dismantling should occur, "we don't know what that covers," Pival said. Also of concern is what impact a UK-U of L central administration or a single board of trustees would have upon current governing structures.

AAUP members want assurance that the University Senate will remain intact and that faculty and student representation on the Board of Trustees will continue. "We don't want to lose our form of Senate governance," Pival said.

AAUP members say they hope

Millett will provide some insight on the merger.

Charles Elton, vice president of the UK chapter of AAUP, said Millett is "among the top two or three experts in the country on merger."

"One of the things that I think is probably true is that faculty and some administrators don't know enough to know whether or not it (merger) is a good idea," Elton said. "People ought not to be for or against the merger until they know about it."

Wildcats roll over Vols, 92-67

McKinley, Bearup play last in Rupp

By FRAN STEWART
Senior Staff Writer

Last night's final home game in Rupp Arena gave Wildcat fans just what they wanted — a key 92-67 win over Tennessee. And it couldn't have been sweeter for Kentucky.

"All the talk is about the jinx at Stokely (Athletics Center)," UK's Kenny Walker said. "Nobody ever says anything about them not winning up here." Tennessee is 2-6 at Rupp.

After UK's 81-65 loss in Knoxville, UT guard Michael Brooks said the Vols just wanted it more than the Wildcats. UK senior Bret Bearup responded to that remark last night.

"That's not the kind of thing you say if you have to play a team later in the season," said Bearup, who tossed in 13 points during his last home game as a Wildcat. Senior Troy McKinley, also in his last home appearance, scored six points.

The game was a key to keeping Kentucky's hopes alive for a tie in the Southeastern Conference race. To tie for first, UK must beat LSU in Baton Rouge Saturday, and pray that Tennessee defeats Georgia Saturday night in Knoxville.

Kentucky improved its record to 11-6 in the SEC and 16-10 overall. The Volunteers dropped to 7-10 in the conference and 16-13 overall.

"This team has really bounced back after their earlier loss to us," Tennessee coach Don DeVoe said. "They established early what they wanted to do — getting the ball into the lane. They set the tempo of the game."

Ed Davender goes up and over a Tennessee defender for two of his 15 points in last night's 92-67 victory at Rupp Arena.

And will Kentucky get an NCAA bid?

"Kentucky will be in the NCAA," DeVoe said. "The win tonight assured them of that."

Walker's 33 points and 18 rebounds were both game-high figures. Roger Harden, with a total of 10 points, had a game-high 12 assists.

Walker and Bearup combined for 29 points in the first half, as Kentucky led by as many as 18 points at one time. Ed Davender's 33-foot jumper at the buzzer sent the Wildcats to the locker room with a comfortable 49-36 advantage.

The second half started more slowly for the Wildcats, however. But the end result was the same: domination.

walker scored often; Davender did likewise, ending up with 15 of the night. And Cedric Jenkins and Leroy Byrd came off the bench to score the last four points of the game for Kentucky. As a team, the Wildcats shot 55.2 percent to Tennessee's 49.1.

"It was the kind of game you like to see this time of year," said coach Joe B. Hall. "It was the first what you could call a blowout this year, and it came against a traditional rival. That certainly made us feel good."

Former game room tentatively chosen for cultural center

Location for black center awaiting full approval from SAB next month

By DARRELL CLEM
Senior Staff Writer

A tentative location for a proposed black cultural center was announced yesterday by members of the Student Activities Board executive committee.

Pending a vote by the full board on April 2, the cultural center will be located in the Student Center game room, located between the Student Government Association offices and several vending machines on the first floor of the Student Center.

SAB President Louis Straub said the game room area, which is currently furnished with card tables and chairs, would have to be renovated and financed with no costs to the Student Center. Once the center has been established, a "professional staff member" will monitor activities from what is currently a storage room adjacent to the game room.

The board had initially planned to establish the cultural center in the women's lounge area on the third floor of the Student Center. But Straub said the first floor location will be much more accessible and "in the mainstream."

"By having the cultural center so far away from other students, the original space would not have served their (black students) need," Straub said.

Straub and Scott Mustian, SAB vice president, have been negotiating since late last year with members of the black cultural center steering committee to find a location. The two groups met yesterday to discuss governing procedures for the center, which would help recruit and retain black students at UK, according to Chester Grundy, director of minority affairs.

Straub and Mustian initially were reluctant to support the center, fearing that students would view it as an act of segregation, but have become more receptive to the idea as the center's function has become more clearly defined.

The programs held in the center must be open to all students and "try to interest the white students in the programs for the black students in some way," Straub said.

Grundy said he was pleased with the negotiations. "I think we are in tune," he said.

The center's progress would be monitored by SAB, and as a last resort, SAB reserves the right to revoke the space.

The groups also discussed the possibility of forming an advisory committee for the center. "In terms of this project, I would definitely be seeking people who have a commitment to the center," Grundy said. "It's going to need some sort of structure that will help me get a feel for what black students want . . . so, yes, we'd have to have some sort of an advisory committee."

Straub and Mustian said they like the idea of a cultural center, but Mustian stressed that "we're not the deciding factors."

"We're all working for a common goal that should be beneficial" to black students, Straub said.

Talented high school seniors will hit campus on Merit Day

By FRAN STEWART
Senior Staff Writer

Tomorrow, UK staff members will be doing their best to entertain a batch of talented recruits. But many of them probably have never played basketball.

During the third annual Merit Day, the University will show its interest in high school seniors who have proven superior academic ability.

"UK has tried to make a push toward academic excellence," said Ann Fister, who, along with Barbara Mabry, co-chairs the Merit Day Committee. "I do think people in the state know we're serious about improving academic excellence at the University."

The University invited students with composite scores of 27 or better on the American College Test who have expressed an interest in attending UK to spend the day on campus. All Kentucky National Merit Semi-Finalists also were invited, bringing the total to 770 students.

About 500 were invited last year. Fister attributed this increase to the fact that "there are more students applying with a 27 or better, which is encouraging."

Merit Day is designed "to let these students know that we do think they're special," she said.

At Merit Day, students and their parents can participate in three of eight campus life sessions that include topics from housing to student activities to international programs. Students also will be able to advance register and have their student IDs and meal card pictures made.

"Students do appreciate the recognition of being invited to campus and being able to register," Fister said.

This year's Merit Day differs from the previous two. The past two were held during weekdays, but this year's session was scheduled for Saturday to allow more parents to attend and to keep students from missing school.

"We feel that with the new educational push in the state of Kentucky, fewer and fewer high school principals are wanting to grant students excused to visit campus," Fister said. "We feel like we'll get more support from high schools" by moving Merit Day to Saturday.

The day's format also will be different, Fister said. "It's more similar to the summer advising conferences this year. We've found that more students are saying to us that Merit Day was nice, but we weren't providing as much information as during the summer advising conferences."

After registration at 8:30 a.m., Art Gallaher, chancellor for the Lexington campus, and Donald Sands, vice chancellor for academic affairs, will welcome students and review the program. Nancy Dye, associate dean of Arts and Sciences, will offer an overview of the freshman year.

According to Fister, about 50 faculty members and administrators have volunteered their time for the program.

"It's a pretty big effort on their part," she said. "We all think it's worthwhile enough to do this."

Colleagues for Academic Excellence will be supplying a large percentage of the labor force, said Andrew Oppman, chairman of the student group. "We're doing every-

Teleconference set on jogging March 9

By JOHN MCGARY
Reporter

Runners and joggers can learn more about their sport through the magic of television.

"Running Your Best 10K: Training and Strategies" will be a live, national "interactive" videoconference held March 9 from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at UK's Health Sciences Learning Center.

In this case, interactive means those attending the local events will be able to ask questions directly of the participants in Boston. The conference will be carried by satellite from Boston to 50 places across the United States.

The local program will feature Mark Noren, who holds the world record in the 10,000-meter road race. Noren was named 1984's national runner of the year.

A videotape of Noren running will be shown. Other noted athletes include Jay Kearney, UK professor of health, physical education and recreation, who was a member of the 1980 Olympic flatwater canoeing team, and his wife, Leslie Klein, who was a member of the 1980 Olympic women's kayaking team, and the 1984 Olympic women's K-4 (four-member) flatwater kayaking team that took fourth place and the K-2 (two-member) team that took fifth place.

The national portion of the conference begins at 11:30 a.m. from the University of Massachusetts-Boston. Noted speakers include Greg Meyers, 1983 Boston Marathon champion; Sue King, one of the top women's marathon and distance runners; and various professionals including a podiatrist and an orthopedic surgeon.

Although the information and tips given in the conference will help any runner, beginning runners may benefit most of all, said Andrew Weiner

of the health, physical education and recreation department, who coordinated most of the sponsoring and other details. "We don't want people to be overwhelmed by the terminology involved; most of the information given is very simple," Weiner said. Some of the facets of running that will be covered include the correct mechanics for running, how to avoid injury, how to condition with an injury, and the psychological aspects of running.

The local part of the conference is sponsored by the department of health, physical education and recreation, the Bluegrass Runners Club, John's Bluegrass Running Shop, the Lexington Athletic Club and the Pressure Cooker restaurant.

The registration fee of $30 includes a continental breakfast, buffet lunch and a coupon for a free body fat composition test at Seaton Center.

UK's Blanche Dubois recommends being kind to strangers

So call me Blanche Dubois. Like "Streetcar's" delirious female tragedy, I have indeed in the past "depended upon the kindness of strangers."

Now I figure it's time for a little payback. So, during the weekend of the Final Four, I am going to let a complete stranger from another school take over my dorm room — free of charge.

The only thing I know about this person is that she will be female, and a basketball fan. And too broke to pay the outrageously inflated prices at Lexington hotels, motels and special Final Four "Lean-to Communities."

I am able to help this stranger watch her team lose to the Wildcats in the Final Four (so I'm an optimistic Blanche Dubois) with the help of the office of the associate dean of students — residence halls.

Dean Rosemary Pond and her office are organizing this room-share. According to Jim Smith, south campus coordinator, only 70 other students have responded to the call for dorm-room space. (This figure represents only 25 percent of all students approached.)

Contributing COLUMNIST

I guess this low rate of response shouldn't surprise me.

Leaving a stereo, high-tech typewriter and wardrobe unattended with a complete stranger might make some people nervous.

But I'm thinking about that gas station attendant who towed me and my blown Volkswagen engine out of the wilds of Massachusetts, and believed me when I said I'd bring the cash for the tow back to him the next day.

And I'm thinking that it might be nice to meet someone from another school, and maybe exchange views and ideas like students are supposed to.

Who knows?

That poli-sci major from Georgetown might be secretary of state in the year 2000.

Or that theology major from Southern Methodist the next Billy Graham.

I would get a kick out of hearing a St. John's philosophy major relate Patrick Ewing's offense to existentialism.

Or perhaps aiding a student in completing what might soon be called "a recent study by a Duke University researcher: 'Basketball, Pressure and Society: The NCAA Finals and the Residual Effect On Player Assimilation.'"

Also, I like the city of Lexington, and would hope I could help make a basketball fan's stay here more than just the inside of Rupp and the inside of McDonald's, with any information I might be able to give this mystery fan.

I am going to let a complete stranger from another school take over my dorm room.

Despite the city's moans and groans of anticipated traffic, crime and mayhem during Final Four week, I am glad that Lexington will be hosting the tournament this year.

I am also glad that the dean of students office is organizing this admirable program, so that I may be kind to strangers as they have been kind to me.

So at the Hotel KU (get it? Kaikie Urch — KU) the basketball fan will receive a package consisting of a 20-by-7 space (street value $165) complete with elevated single bed, stereo system, minifridge stocked with Tab and yogurt, a pile of old Kentucky Kernels, Kacie's Key to Karsousing Kentucky, an invitation to borrow anything she might need and an exhortation to take good phone messages.

And Blanche Dubois will have paid part of her debt to society.

Staff Writer Kacie Urch is an undecided freshman.

'Oz' as allegory

History professor says classic children's film carries political undertones

By JOHN JURY
Staff Writer

Remember when you were a child and watched "The Wizard of Oz"? Simply for entertainment? Now try watching it for a history lesson, with some political allegory thrown in for good measure.

Tonight at 8 on Channel 27 "The Wizard of Oz" will be shown for what seems like the 5,000th time. But as a UK history professor tells it, the 1939 film has deep political meanings dating back to the turn of the century.

Robert Ireland said the book, written by L. Frank Baum in 1900, revolves around the presidential election of 1900 between President William McKinley and William Jennings Bryan.

"The book was written primarily as a children's story to entertain children," Ireland said. But "it had the presidential election of 1900 in mind as an allegory."

Baum was a New York-born journalist who spent the 1890s and 1890s in the Midwest witnessing the plight of the plains farmer and the laborer.

Ireland read about the film's double meaning in a 1964 American Quarterly article by Henry Littlefield.

Bryan, a Democrat, ran in 1896 on the Democratic ticket against McKinley and lost. His party supporters, mainly agrarian Democrats, which included Baum, were very hostile to railroad and banking interests.

In the first half of the movie, the twister strikes Kansas and sweeps the house to the mythical land of Oz. "This is what the author of the book means the election will achieve — a sort of revolution in the country," Ireland said.

The house lands on the Wicked Witch of the East and kills her, which represents, Ireland said, the death of the Eastern establishment of their house into Oz, they encounter the Munchkins, who represent the common people of the nation, Ireland said. The name "Toto" comes from totalitarian, or prohibitionists.

They first meet the Scarecrow, who symbolized the American farmer. In those days, farmers were too often thought of as brainless, Ireland said. While the Scarecrow needed a brain, "he was pretty resourceful" without it. And that was characteristic of the farmer. "If a farmer wants to, he can solve his own problems," he said.

The two skip and dance to discover the Tinman, or the American working man. In the movie, the Tinman is rusted. Ireland said the workers received a raw deal during the industrial revolution at the end of the 1800s. The Tinman was in search of a heart to lead a better life, he said.

Together, the trio encounter the Cowardly Lion, who represented Bryan, Ireland said. Because Bryan was a great orator, the Lion could roar thunderously, but "the louder he roared, the less people listened to him," he said. Bryan hoped to be more courageous, as did the Lion.

Their next stop is the Emerald City or Washington, D.C. to see the Wizard or President McKinley, Ireland said. The Wizard tells the four to go out and kill the Wicked Witch of the West, who symbolized either the Western establishment or the influence of nature on the Great Plains, he said.

During the early 1890s, a drought plagued the Midwest, but toward the end of the decade, rains came plentifully to the plains. So the killing of the Wicked Witch by a bucket of water doubt the suffering of the farmers, Ireland said.

The group came back to the Wizard and exposed him as a fake, exactly how McKinley was perceived as a president, he said.

When Dorothy awakens, she is back in Kansas. And Ireland said the story teaches a valuable lesson: "We should not try to escape our problems through fantasy. We should fight the good fight."

Needless to say, Bryan lost the election to McKinley that year, worse than he did in 1896.

Few people associate the book with its historical significance, Ireland said. But he insists the story is a good teaching vehicle. And it is interesting to know the truth behind it, he said.

"It's a great movie, aside from its allegorical significance," Ireland said. "Most people would react like my children used to when I'd start telling them about this as they were watching the movie. I heard my son say, 'Shut up, Dad. I want to enjoy the movie.'"

Sherrill Milnes concert heads list of events

Sherrill Milnes, "one of the most electrifying and popular artists, and undoubtedly the most famous operatic baritone before the public today" will perform at 8 tonight in the Center for the Arts.

According to a center press release, he is the leading baritone of the Metropolitan Opera and the most recorded American opera star ever. He has recorded for every major record company, with more than 60 recordings in all areas of the vocal repertory — opera, symphony, lieder and oratorio.

Although most operatic stars begin a successful career in Europe, Milnes, the product of a Midwestern farm in Downers Grove, Ill., is strictly American.

Harold Schonberg of The New York Times wrote, "Sherrill Milnes is unmatched today as a vocalist in the Italian repertory."

Tickets are $14 for the general public and $8 for students and senior citizens, available at the Center for the Arts box office. For more information call 257-4929.

Dr. Charles Joseph, a music theory professor at Southern Methodist University, will present a lecture today at 2 p.m. in the Gallery of M.I. King Library North. He will be speaking on "Musical Architecture in Stravinsky's 'Piano Music.'" The lecture is free.

The Guitar Society of Lexington-Central Kentucky will present guitarist Oscar Ghiglia at 8 p.m. tomorrow in the Recital Hall of the Center for the Arts.

SHERRILL MILNES

Tickets are $5 for the public, and $4 for students and senior citizens, available at Fred Morse Music Co., the Center for the Arts box office or Willis Music.

The Cranbrook Academy sculpture department will present works titled "Motor City Break Down" tomorrow in the Randall Gallery and also the UK Center for the Contemporary Arts Gallery. There will be an opening reception in both galleries from 6 to 8 p.m.

Tuesday, March 5 the School of Music will present Jerry D. Pierce, president of the International Clarinet Society, who will speak at a Master Class in 17 Fine Arts Building from 3 to 5 p.m. He will present a recital at 8 p.m. Wednesday in Memorial Hall.

Thursday, March 7 Stan Garber and S.L. Starcher of the Selmer Company will present a mouthpiece workshop to music students at noon in 128 Fine Arts Building.

Uptown Rulers thrust into LMNOP tonight

There has to be something in the water in Bloomington, Ill. First, That Hope sprang upon us in a flash of epileptic light; now Bloomington offers us the Uptown Rulers, proof that white American boys can play reggae and ska, with all the rocket thrust of a nitrous-boosted street racer.

The Uptown Rulers will perform tonight at Cafe LMNOP.

Formed in 1980, the Uptown Rulers are bassist Joe Adducci, percussionist Ken Callahan, keyboard player Dennis Willan, guitarist/vocalist Michael Goodrich, and Chris Grigoroff, lead singer and harmonica player. Do they have a record out? Yes, not one but two. Their first, 12 inches, 12" was a 12-inch (yes) six-song, 20-minute EP containing four original songs by lead writers Goodrich and Grigoroff and reggae covers of Van Morrison's "Domino" and the theme from the movie "Exodus." Their present effort is a four-song 7-inch EP (with lyric sheet) titled Speak Up, on the band's Red Scar record label. The disc itself is red vinyl, and sears the ear as well as the eye.

Side one begins with "Somebody Else's Fun," a low-flying cruise misadventure of a song in which the singer addresses his girlfriend's other lover on the subject of a third guy she was running around with all the time she was supposed to be with the two of them. Grigoroff's straining, husky vocal rants and raves above Adducci's frantic bass, their two lines pacing up and down together as though trying to work off the frustration. The band's sound heaves like an angry chest as Grigoroff mulls over the situation, deciding that "This fine young woman must have taken a bell" and "We two must be naive folks" while Willan's edge, snickering organ mocks his agitation.

The Uptown Rulers will appear tonight at Cafe LMNOP. Cover will be $2.

Lady Kats say benching unfair Players were given chance to play at midgame, coach says

By JOHN JURY
Staff Writer

Controversy has surrounded the Lady Kat basketball program since coach Terry Hall benched three starters in Saturday's 56-55 loss to Mississippi State.

Hall cited the "lackadaisical" attitudes of forwards Leslie Nichols and Karen Mosley and guard Sandy Harding over the past few games for the decision to keep them out of action.

But Hall, in a telephone interview yesterday, said she gave the three players an opportunity to play in the middle of the game, but they refused.

However, two of the players said yesterday that Hall did not give them a chance to play.

"No, it's not true," Mosley said. "She did not ask me if I wanted to play."

Harding echoed that sentiment: "She didn't even ask us."

Nichols could not be reached for comment.

Mosley said she didn't understand Hall's actions and thought the only

"She (Coach Terry Hall) told me it was a mistake. It didn't work. It just blew up in her face."

Karen Mosley,
Lady Kat forward

reason they didn't play was for curfew violations. But she wasn't sure of the real reason. "We didn't know what it was," she said.

Hall said she used the tactic to spark motivation among the trio, who had been combining for almost 40 points per contest. "They weren't playing to their potential in the last few games."

After the game, Mosley said Hall admitted that not playing them was an error. "She told me it was a mistake," said the 6-3 junior. "It didn't work. It just blew up in her face."

Mosley said the other players on the team sympathized with the three. "They knew we didn't do anything," she said.

The loss to MSU in the Southeastern Conference postseason tournament ended the Lady Kats season at 16-12, as the team lost its last five games and seven of the last nine. At one point, the team was 12-3 and ranked as high as 12th in the nation.

Last year, the Lady Kats were 15-13. According to the final statistics, the leading scorer and rebounder this year was Nichols, averaging 18.4 points and 9.1 rebounds per outing. Mosley placed second in both categories with 12.9 points and 6.9 rebounds. Harding had a team-leading 170 assists with 6.3 per game, and was fourth in scoring at 6.4.

In the last four games they played in, Nichols averaged 18 points and 8.8 rebounds per game; Mosley, 13.5 points and 8.3 rebounds; and Harding, 5.0 assists, 5.6 points.

Hall, who is currently recruiting potential Lady Kats, said she didn't know if the incident will affect next year's team.

Harding said she is also unsure whether it will be forgotten or friction will remain. "It might blow over," Harding said. "It might not."

Mosley said that Hall's recruiting trip next week will be hampered because of the controversy. "They (the prospects) will definitely know," Mosley said. "When they talk to other SEC coaches, they will be informed."

For future prospects who are not familiar with the women's program, Hall said the recruits know that the coaches will want to motivate them to play well.

But perhaps at the expense of winning? "I want to win more than anybody else," she said.

Broncos beat Bat Cats in preseason contest

Staff reports

LAKELAND, Fla. — The Western Michigan Broncos beat the UK Bat Cats yesterday, 15-3.

Michigan had eight runs in the fourth inning to break open a 2-1 ballgame. The losing pitcher for Kentucky was John Kuester (0-1), who started and went two innings and allowed the first two Bronco runs.

Kevin Gothard, who had a single and a triple was the leading hitter for Kentucky. Jim Leyritz extended his hitting streak to six games with a single in the 9th inning. Randy Clark had two hits.

Mike Szadarski, who went for five innings, was the winning pitcher for Western Michigan. He and relief pitcher Mark Anderson scattered nine Kentucky hits.

Craig Fields had four of Western Michigan's 17 hits to lead the Broncos, 2-4 on the season.

Bat Cat head coach Keith Madison said, "It's still early in the season, and thus far we've played very inconsistently."

Kentucky, now 3-3 in the season, will open its Southeastern Conference schedule with a 6 p.m. double-header Saturday at the University of Florida.

"The UK women's gymnastics team is starting into what coach Leah Little calls the "third part of the season."

The Kentucky squad finished fifth last weekend in the Southeastern Conference tournament and Little is looking for her team to pull off a better score against Eastern Michigan tomorrow.

"The kids are a better team than they showed at the SECC's, but we are young," she said. "A midseason slump set in after the conference meet."

"Mentally they're going to be ready for this meet," she said. "They want to have a home meet and they are expecting a big crowd."

Tomorrow's meet starts at 4 p.m. at Memorial Coliseum.

Judge may resubmit Goetz case

NEW YORK — The case of subway gunman Bernhard Goetz could be resubmitted to a grand jury following revelations that he calmly plotted his line of fire and shot twice at one of four victims, officials said yesterday.

"We have been considering" resubmitting the case, said Mary de Bourbon, a spokeswoman for District Attorney Robert Morgenthau.

"This is not to say we will do it. You have to have a substantial basis to do it, a basis other than, you didn't like the first result," she said.

Meanwhile, Justice Stephen G. Crane of state Supreme Court, the trial court, said he would consider permitting Morgenthau to resubmit the case.

Senate group OKs nominations

WASHINGTON — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee yesterday unanimously approved the three men President Reagan has picked to begin bargaining on a nuclear weapons agreement with the Soviet Union next month.

By an 11-0 vote, the panel sent on to the full Senate the nominations of Max M. Kampelman, a conservative Democrat; former Texas Sen. John G. Tower, a conservative Republican; and career foreign service officer Maynard W. Giltman.

Kampelman will be in overall charge of the talks — which begin March 12 in Geneva — while also handling "Star Wars" and other missile-defense issues.

IRA guerrillas shell police base

NEWRY, Northern Ireland — At least six police officers were killed yesterday when IRA guerrillas mortared the heavily fortified police base at Newry, police reported.

At least three shells that exploded inside the base on the border with the Irish Republic hit a canteen packed with officers on an evening tea break, said a police spokesman, who declined to be identified.

At least six other officers were seriously wounded in the attack, the spokesman said. Three or four officers received minor wounds.

A spokesman at police headquarters in Belfast reported "at least 17 casualties, some of them serious" in the attack.

The outlawed Irish Republican Army said in a statement telephoned to news organizations in Belfast, the capital, that its fighters carried out the attack.

Khadafy opponent shot

VIENNA, Austria — A former Libyan ambassador to Austria and an opponent of Col. Muammar Khadafy, was shot and seriously wounded yesterday in Vienna, police reported.

A police spokesman told The Associated Press that Ezzeddin Ghadami was rushed to a hospital. The nature of his injuries was not immediately known.

The attack occurred on a Vienna street, police said.

According to first reports from the scene, at least two shots were fired at Ghadami by an unknown assailant or assailants in a passing car.

Shultz is 'perfectly willing' to talk to Ortega

GUAYAQUIL, Ecuador (AP) — Secretary of State George P. Shultz said yesterday he is "perfectly willing" to meet with Daniel Ortega to determine whether the Nicaraguan president's new peace proposals enhance prospects for a negotiated settlement in Central America.

Shultz and Ortega will attend the inauguration today in Montevideo of the new president of Uruguay, Julio Sanguinetti.

Speaking to reporters on the way here for talks with Ecuadorian officials, Shultz said he was aware of press reports that Ortega wanted to meet with him, but added that no official communication had been received from Nicaragua.

"If Mr. Ortega wants to have a meeting in Montevideo, and we can arrange it, then we are perfectly willing to do it, which I'll listen carefully to what he says," Shultz said.

Ortega said Wednesday night he was asking 100 Cuban military advisers to leave Nicaragua and was ordering an "immediate moratorium" on the acquisition of new weapons systems.

In view of the "several thousand" Cuban military advisers in Nicaragua, withdrawal of them would be only a "token" gesture, Shultz said.

"But if the token is something that will lead to rather massive reductions, that's something else again," he added.

As for the weapons freeze, Shultz said there has been a "rather massive build-up of hardware" in Nicaragua "and it may well be that they've gotten what they needed. Anyway, if there is a cessation in the military buildup, then that's welcome."

Shultz was to spend three hours here before heading on to Uruguay. On Wednesday, State Department officials indicated Shultz had no interest in meeting with Ortega. His change of heart apparently was caused by Ortega's announcement, which the Nicaraguan described as a "unilateral initiative."

Study says Kentucky gets little business tax

By MARK R. CHELLGREN
Associated Press

FRANKFORT — Kentucky lawmakers were given several studies yesterday that showed business does not pay its fair share of taxes in this state, a revelation that prompted one representative to promise the situation will change in 1986.

Larry Lynch, a Transylvania University economist who has a consulting contract with the Legislature, said one study showed that when severance taxes were excluded, business paid 23.8 percent of total state revenues in one year. That percentage was the lowest among 13 surrounding and southern states.

Other studies show that Kentucky ranks from 43rd to 48th in the percentage of business contributions to total state taxes, Lynch said.

"No matter where you look, Kentucky has a high personal tax burden and a low business tax burden," Lynch told a meeting of the Interim Joint Committee on Appropriations and Revenue.

Rep. Joe Clarke, D-Danville, the chairman of the House panel, said the studies don't "jibe with complaints by business that the tax burden in Kentucky is unreasonable." "The corporate crying towel doesn't show the true picture," he said.

Clarke said business taxes present a problem.

If taxes are raised, business is "going to have to come to the party," he said. But there is not sufficient business in Kentucky to support the amount of new taxes he said will be needed.

One likely area of taxation that will be changed for business is the Accelerated Cost Recovery System, under which companies can depreciate their investment in equipment more quickly.

The 1984 Legislature delayed full implementation of ACRS until 1986, but Clarke said he doubts if that will ever take place.

Clarke now has a strong ally in that position. Sen. Mike Moloney, D-Lexington, who worked out the ACRS compromise with business in 1984, has changed his position and now opposes full implementation.

Rep. Pete Worthington, D-Ewing, said talk of raising taxes in Kentucky should be delayed until after the fight over the federal budget is settled.

But Clarke estimated that from $300 million to $400 million will have to be raised if education is to be improved and other services are to be maintained even discounting any cuts by the federal government.

Clarke is one of the few lawmakers who has supported new taxes for several years. Other lawmakers were overwhelmingly opposed to such a move in 1984 as evidenced by the defeat in the House of Gov. Martha Layne Collins' tax package without it even coming to a formal vote.

Clarke admits he doesn't know if that attitude has changed.

If taxes are raised, Clarke predicted an increase in 1986 tax or elimination of some currently exempted items, though he would prefer changes in the personal income tax to bring in the needed revenue.

In addition to the General Fund, which pays for most state services, Clarke said the Road Fund is also likely to need more income and predicted that the 1986 Legislature would enact a serious look at an increase in the gas tax.

thing from driving the shuttle bus, helping with parking and being tour guides.

"Colleagues have been involved since day one of the planning stages, giving our opinions of what students would like and what they wouldn't like."

The group helped plan the afternoon activities fair with the dean of students office. The activities fair allows about 25 campus organizations to recruit and give students information about their organizations.

"We tried to select and invite organizations that represent a broad group that we feel students should know about," such as the Student Government Association, Student Activities Board and student publications, Pister said.

Oppmann and CAE Vice Chairman Mary Mantouzes will be featured speakers during the program. He said 50 to 60 student volunteers will make the program work.

"We're really got a lot of heart and soul in this effort," Oppmann said.

"Merit Day is just one of many gestures the University is making to academically gifted students," he said. And the message is: "We want you. Our future depends on you."

Schroeder's seizures delay release date

LOUISVILLE (AP) — A $45,000 van dubbed the "Heart & Spirit of Jasper" awaits its first ride by William Schroeder, but the artificial heart patient remained hospitalized yesterday after a recurrence of mild seizures.

Schroeder's wife, Margaret, surmounted the blue and silver customized van on his behalf during a presentation ceremony at the Louisville Komfor Koach Inc. plant.

Meanwhile, Schroeder's only living peer, Murray Haydon, is now able to stand on his own and is making steady progress, a Humana Inc. spokesman said.

Doctors never have announced a firm date for Schroeder's release, but two tentative targets — his 53rd birthday on Feb. 14 and early this week — have been postponed.

Dr. William C. DeVries, who implanted the artificial hearts, decided Wednesday to delay Schroeder's discharge, as well as a ride in the van, after consulting with Schroeder's family.

"Doctor DeVries is being very conservative and very careful," said Robert Irvine, Humana's director of public relations. The delay is "to make sure we don't have a problem."

Schroeder experienced a mild seizure for a few minutes Tuesday night, similar to other spells of disorientation he has had since suffering strokes Dec. 13, Irvine said.

He missed a birthday discharge because he was suffering from an unexplained fever.

Haydon, meanwhile, is "able to stand on his own, something that he couldn't do prior to the artificial heart surgery," Irvine said. "He is answering questions and carrying on conversations with physicians, nurses and his family."

Considering Graduate School? Consider Mechanical Engineering at Georgia Tech...

Since 1885 the School of Mechanical Engineering has been committed to excellence in education and research. Today 200 students pursue advanced degrees, guided by over 40 faculty members actively engaged in research. Challenging and exciting programs leading to the Master of Science and the Doctor of Philosophy degrees are offered in a broad range of disciplines.

Students with an engineering or physical science background are encouraged to apply for admission. Financial aid is available through unrestricted grants as well as through assistantships in research or teaching. The Graduate Co-op Program also assists students, offering opportunities to alternate study with relevant work experience.

Programs leading to the master's and doctoral degrees encompass many areas of Mechanical Engineering, including the following:

- Acoustics
- CAD/CAM
- Combustion
- Controls
- Design
- Dynamics
- Energy
- Fluid Mechanics
- Heat Transfer
- Manufacturing
- Materials
- Mechanics
- Plasmas
- Robotics
- Thermodynamics
- Tribology
- Vibrations
