mitted to make the following extract from a letter from W. T. Withers, to his father, Wm. A. Withers, Esq., of Cynthiana. The letter is dated—

CAMP NEAR MONTEREY,

January 12, 1847.

Gen. Butler's division is left to guard the country from Saltillo to Brazos. Our fate is sealed. The campaign has been a fatal, though a bloodless one, to the 2d Kentucky foot. Many a gallant spirit has fallen a victim to the unwholesome clime, and many, many more have returned to their homes with constitutions impaired beyond the hope of recovery. Our regiment has been slandered, and our officers have been basely traduced, by men who dare not endorse their miserable fabrications with their names. Such has been the reward of men who have, in many instances, made numerous sacrifices, in order to sustain the honor of their country. Justice, however, must and will be done them hereafter. No volunteer regiment stands higher, in the estimation of those who are acquainted with the true state of things, than the 2d Kentucky; and I hesitate not to say, that there are no better officers or more polished gentlemen in the volunteer service, than Cols. Mc-Kee and Clay. Our men are finely drilled, and under as good, if not better discipline, than any volunteer, corps in the army.
