UK, city to open 'new dialogue'

Workers say arena would kill business

By Mat Herron
Staff Writer

General consensus among Civic Center shops: No new arena.

Sharp drops in revenue as well as possible employee layoffs are among the many reasons why store owners oppose construction of a 27,000-seat, on-campus venue for the men's basketball team.

"I really believe in this town there's not a market for two arenas 20,000 seats and above," said Michael Studland, owner of Artique, a store in the center's first floor. "The Lexington Center should re-examine its relationship with the University of Kentucky, and make it more advantageous for both parties."

Though Artique has been in business for 17 years, Studland said the absence of UK may eventually cause layoffs, and divert attention from corporations to Louisville and Cincinnati. In the past, corporations have relocated to Lexington because of economic possibilities — and Wildcat basketball. Illusions co-owner Ann Simons is more succinct.

"If we build a new arena, it will absolutely kill downtown," said Simons. "It will take at least a third of my business."

In the off-season, Kentucky Korner pulls in $300 a day, with an average of one customer per hour, said communications senior Lindsay Burke.

An employee of Kentucky Korner, Burke said gross income approaches $40,000 on game days. Thoroughblades games take in $2,000, but if basketball leaves, she said, hockey is hardly a substitute.

"It wouldn't be Rupp Arena if we didn't stay," one employee said.

Lexington Mayor Pam Miller and UK Athletics Director C.M. Newton announced Friday that both the university and the city are "opening a new dialogue" on the arena.

As it stands, the athletics department covers employee and press parking expenses, pays an annual charge of $300,000 to retire the bonds used to build Rupp, plus 15 percent rent, 5 percent higher than other groups who use the facility. In exchange, the men's basketball team is provided the city's largest arena for game days and eight practice days per season, said senior associate director of athletics Larry Ivy.

On a three-year scale, UK will have paid $9 million to retire the bonds in 2006. However, Ivy said, the department has already paid $10 million. Despite the disgruntled vibes coming from the athletic department, Miller said the team is still foremost in the minds of the city.

"We don't disagree that Rupp is showing its age," she said. "But we think there are ways to rejuvenate it that will benefit the university and the city."

Newton, Ivy and the rest of the athletics board, as well as UK President Charles Wethington will meet tomorrow to decide the specifics of the feasibility study.

CAMPUS SGA plans walk to look at Campus safety

Student Government Association will sponsor a "Safety Walk" at Complex Commons and Blazer Hall tonight at 7:30 p.m.

The walk gives students a chance to voice their concerns to UK police officers, Elisabeth Zinser, chancellor for the Lexington Campus and David Stockham, dean of students.

Police officers will offer safety tips to students.

In the past, the walk has resulted in better lighting for poorly lit areas on campus.

The walk will last approximately 45 minutes to an hour.

NATION EPA spending tops $1 million

WASHINGTON — The Environmental Protection Agency has spent more than $1 million since 1993 on training seminars at ritzy resorts or on subjects unrelated to environment such as "defensive driving" or speed-reading courses, according to congressional investigators.

Posh inns in West Virginia, a beach-front hotel in Puerto Rico and a mountain resort in Colorado were among venues chosen for classes and conferences, Republican investigators with the House Government Reform and Oversight Committee reported.

Training sessions included:

- ▼ Four-day seminars on improving managers' productivity, held at various resorts in West Virginia and Maryland. Cost: $20,000 per seminar.
- ▼ A $7,000, one-day session at a beach hotel in San Juan, Puerto Rico, to train EPA lawyers on preparing for administrative hearings.
- ▼ A two-day auditors' conference at a Breckenridge, Colo., lodge costing $4,400.

The EPA defended the seminars as training sessions necessary to boost worker performances, like those any company or agency sponsors.

Bus gunman wounds two, leaps out

BUTTE LA ROSE, La. — A passenger fired several shots on a Greyhound bus Sunday, wounding two people, then jumped off the bus and was killed when he hit a guard rail.

The wounded passengers were not seriously hurt, said St. Martin Parish Sheriff's Capt. Audrey Thibodeaux. "He wasn't shooting at anyone in particular, just shooting," she said.

Other passengers told investigators the man had been drinking alcohol on the bus from Houston to New Orleans, Thibodeaux said.

Jay Gladden, 30, of Columbus, Ga., said, "He reached in his pants, pulls out a .357 and starts brandishing his gun."

The bus driver began slowing down and opened the door, Gladden said, and the gunman "fires off six shots, hits one guy in the hand and shoulder, runs out of ammo and jumps off the bus and hit the cement guard rail."

The gunman was identified as Jose Roberto Moza, 46, of Pasco, Wash.

Jackson gets rude welcome

TAIPEI, Taiwan — Michael Jackson got a rude welcome from a couple of city councilmen angry over the pop star's alleged child molestation.

Jackson received a meritorious achievement award Saturday from the mayor of Kaohsiung, Taiwan's second-largest city, where Jackson was to perform yesterday night.

As the meeting was concluding, city councilors Huang Chao-hsing and Lin Ti-chuan burst into the room and angrily demanded to know what Jackson's qualifications were for receiving the award.

Huang kicked over a tea table in front of Jackson, prompting the surprised pop star to ask, "Is that guy all right?" the Kaohsiung-based Commons Daily newspaper reported.

Early time leads to flat Madness

By D. Jason Stapleton
Senior Staff Writer

Memorial Coliseum was the site of Friday's Big Blue Madness.

This is not to be confused with Midnight Madness, however.

Midnight Madness was a wildly successful event that filled the Coliseum to capacity year after year.

Big Blue Madness, on the other hand, found itself unequal to the standard set by its predecessor Friday night.

The major difference between the two events was the time.

Midnight Madness always took place just after midnight on the very first day the NCAA declared college hoops could begin regular practice.

Big Blue Madness ignored tradition and took place on a non-descript Friday evening.

The end result, to everyone's surprise, Memorial Coliseum was not filled when the 1996-97 UK Wildcats were formally introduced for the first time.

"I was surprised because the way everyone talked, you had to stand out in line forever to get a ticket," said Matt Mulcahey, a business freshman. "Then I get in and look up at the top rows and see that all the seats aren't even filled."

A general feeling of disappointment came over the fans who were in attendance, many of whom felt it was a waste of their time.

"I enjoyed it, but I was really disappointed for a lack of hype," said Kim Fister, a social work junior. "I think it would have been better if they had stuck with tradition and held it at midnight."

Fister also said if the event had been held at midnight, more people would have come.

Some fans were still at work when the event started.

On the positive side for Big Blue Madness, the slam dunk competition between the players ignited the fans that had attended Madness.

The highlight of that would have to be when freshman sensation Jamal Magliore dunked two balls at once. That shining moment still doesn't make up for the overall lackluster night, showing that tradition should not be messed with.

Speaker to encourage UK to vote

By Kathy Reding
Assistant News Editor

The 1996 presidential election is closing.

Even if the actual candidates are not able to fit UK on their schedules, campaign representatives are coming to campus to make their party's pitch to the student electorate.

Alan Wheat, deputy campaign manager for Clinton/Gore will speak for his candidates in 230 Student Center today at 1:30 p.m.

Black Student Union and Student Government Association are co-sponsoring Wheat's visit.

SGA president Alan Aja said he expected Wheat to talk about student involvement and this year's election.

Aja said he was approached by the Clinton/Gore campaign to see if SGA would sponsor the speaker.

"We are trying to educate students and get them out to vote," Aja said.

What is in charge of minority constituent outreach for the Clinton/Gore campaign. He is coming to UK as part of this position, said Jon Mer-sch of the Kentucky Democratic Party, to try to convince minority voters to vote democratic.

Wheat, a former Congressman from Missouri, was one of the first black congressmen to represent a non-minority district.

He served in Congress from 1983-1994.

"He supposedly relates well to a lot of minorities on a campus and student level," Aja said.

Elected to the U.S. House of Representatives in 1982, Wheat became the youngest person in congressional history to be appointed to the Rules Committee.

LOOKING ahead

Alan Wheat will speak at 1:30 p.m. in 230 Student Center today.

NPR's 'Morning Edition' host to visit campus Friday

By Scott Hays
Contributing Writer

Bob Edwards, the award-winning host of National Public Radio's "Morning Edition," will speak at UK Friday during the 20th anniversary celebration of the Martin School of Public Policy and Administration.

The Martin School, which is ranked 27th nationally by US News and World Report, will hold the celebration on Oct. 25 and 26. Edwards is scheduled to speak at 3 p.m. on Oct. 25 in the first-floor courtroom of the College of Law. Admission is free.

"It seems like the perfect way to celebrate our 20th anniversary," said Eugenia Toma, the director of the Martin School.

Edwards, a Louisville native, has worked for NPR since 1974. He worked as co-host of the evening newsmagazine "All Things Considered" before becoming the host of "Morning Edition."

UK officials thought he would make an ideal speaker for the celebration.

"Since many of the students are interested in politics, they thought he would be a good speaker, mainly because he interviews so many politicians," said Joyce West, UK spokeswoman.

Edwards was the recipient of the Edward R. Murrow Award from the Corporation for Public Broadcasting for "outstanding contributions to public radio" in 1984.

In 1990 he won the Gabriel Award from the National Catholic Association of Broadcasters for a five-part series about the Fetal Alcohol Syndrome entitled "Born Drunk." Edwards received his bachelor's degree from the University of Louisville. He was hired by NPR after serving in the U.S. Army and working in Washington, D.C., where he was an evening and weekend anchorman for WTOP-AM.

In addition to broadcasting, Edwards published a book in 1993 entitled Fridays with Red. Edwards currently serves as a national vice president of the American Federation of Television and Radio Artists.

Cats blast WMU 6-0 in Cage finale

By Jill Erwin
 Staff Writer

The UK men's soccer team sent the Cage out in style, dominating Western Michigan yesterday to the tune of 6-0 in the final game ever at the Field.

It was the most goals UK has scored since 1991. The second half included five goals and five assists, setting a record in both categories for a half.

"It feels good to come out and bury a team like we did today," Toby McComas said.

"We've been threatening to do it all year, and we finally came out, stopped talking about it and did it."

UK had 22 shots to Western's three, and had twice as many corner kicks as the opposition, continuing a trend that has continued the whole season. UK has 96 for the season to its opponent's 41.

The Cats dominated from the beginning, with UK's quicker players often intercepting WMU passes. McComas opened up the scoring with a free kick at the 35:16 mark.

As UK lined up, McComas turned down Sean Mondelli's offer to take the shot.

"I told him, 'No, I think I'm going to take it. I felt pretty good about going up there and hitting it,'" he said. "I don't think too many people moved."

The team nursed a fragile 1-0 lead at halftime, eager to prove something. Less than 10 minutes into the second half, Mondelli scored off an assist from Sean Endicott.

Six minutes later, Mondelli fed McComas on a no-look, behind-the-back pass. McComas dribbled and passed to the front of the goal, where Endicott tapped the ball in with his left foot.

Also scoring for UK were Chris Villamil, Graham Wilk and Jay Armstrong. Wilk's and Armstrong's goals came off of headers less than seven minutes apart.

"Scott (Serchen) crossed it over, and I was all alone by the post," Wilk said. "I crunched down and put in the back end."

Sunday's game also helped Endicott and McComas move up the record lists. Endicott claimed second place all-time assists and is one assist away from tying the single season mark. He has played in only 35 games for UK, while the others have played at least three seasons.

McComas is now three points out of second place all-time, and moving up in the ranks in shot, goals and assists.

"We didn't give up today, we just kept putting it on them," Endicott said. "A win like this really helps your confidence going into a big game Thursday (against Indiana)."

Sunday's game is the kind that UK Coach Ian Collins said he loves to see.

"Our intelligence out there was outstanding," Collins said. "Today we put it all together. It was by far the best 90 minutes we've played."

UK played without junior defender Brian Baltzell. He had started in the first 13 games of the season, earning six assists, but injured his leg last week against Miami (Ohio). His calf is swollen and he will be evaluated on a day to day basis.

Stepping into the starting lineup was Mondelli. Mondelli is recovering from an injury himself, after suffering from a torn quadriceps. He showed no ill effects yesterday, often burning past the larger WMU players.

UK win streak ends in loss to Dawgs

By Dave Gorman
 Staff Writer

Goodbye to the Cage; hello to the new soccer stadium.

That is what the women's soccer team had to be thinking on Friday after losing in overtime 2-1 to Georgia.

The Cats lost the battle for the No. 2 spot in the Southeastern Conference Eastern Division in their final game at the Cage as the Dawgs (9-4, 4-1 SEC) snapped UK's regular-season 10-game winning streak at home.

"The first 45 minutes went well, but there were plenty of times we didn't finish," Lipka said. "We did not play well as a team, there were 11 individuals out there."

UK all-time leading scorer Kim LaBelle added to her record on an assist from Jennifer McMaster 10:31 into the first half.

Things were going the Cats' way as they outshot their opponent 11-4 in the first half. But when Nikkie Ornelaz assisted Nicole Winfield on a goal with 1:59 left in the first half, Georgia tied the game 1-1.

The Cats continued their offensive attack, outshooting UGA 9-4 in the second half, but couldn't find the net.

In overtime, UK failed to sustain its offensive pressure. And with 6:27 left in the first period of overtime, Georgia's Mandy Aiken assisted Ornelaz on her second goal of the game. It gave the Dawgs the lead and the win.

The game ended with no goals scored in the second period of overtime and UK came up short in a tough one against Georgia.

Despite the loss, UK goalie Carrie Kuhnell sparkled between the posts.

Carrie really stepped in when we needed her," Lipka said.

The Cats can't afford to dwell on this loss as they play against No. 21 Vanderbilt and No.11 Wisconsin in two of their last four games.

UK, which fell to 9-3-2 overall and 3-2 in the SEC, will hope to regain its winning edge in the new soccer facility.

But for now, they can only say goodbye to their "Old Kentucky Home," the Cage.

'Death Valley' lives up to its billing as UK falls

LSU unloads on Wildcats; loss ensures another losing campaign

By Rob Herbst

Assistant Sports Editor

BATON ROUGE, La. — Ladies and gentlemen, it's official. The UK football team will not be going to a bowl game this year. What made it official was a 41-14 drubbing at the hands of LSU Saturday night at Tiger Stadium. The loss was UK's sixth of the season, thus preventing them from having a winning season. There may have been a dozen or so believers who thought that UK (1-6 overall, 0-4 in the Southeastern Conference) could somehow muster enough to win five straight games, including the one in "Death Valley." Those hopes may have been dashed as early as the first possession of the game. The Tigers (5-1, 3-1) started the game by marching on a proficient, eight-play, 84-yard scoring drive which took all of about three-and-a-half minutes. Kevin Faulk's 23-yard scamper to the end zone capped the drive. Faulk would finish with 138 yards on 21 carries against the Cats. Well, even after the first drive, there may have been a few UK believers. But after a UK punt, LSU decided to perform an equally efficient drive as their first to take a two touchdown lead on the Cats. "You receive the kickoff, score, and then go up 14-0, that could have an impact on your opponent when you're favored by a lot of points," said LSU Coach Gerry DiNardo, who apparently had little sympathy for a UK team that would be hosting a bowl party in Lexington, and not in some sun-

UK did have opportunities to put more points on the board. Early in the third quarter and already down 27-0, the Cats started possession on their own 10-yard line. Not good for a team that had a total of 83 first-half yards. But thanks to a fourth-down personal foul on the Tigers and a 52-yard pass to Chad Spencer, UK found itself with first-and-goal on the LSU two-yard line. Four Derick Logan rushing attempts later, LSU had the ball on their own one-yard line, and the Cats found themselves still with a big goose egg on the scoreboard. "The fourth down at the goal line, it looked like we got it, but I guess not," UK Coach Bill Curry said. "The official was a lot closer than me." The loss for the Cats was their fourth loss in a row. In those four losses, UK has been outscored 169-35. Every loss gets tougher for the Cats but there is still no giving up. "It gets harder every week, knowing that you haven't won a game in three or four weeks," defensive tackle Chris Ward said. "We've got to keep playing. I know I keep saying that but we can't quit. No matter what happens, we're going to suck it up and keep on keeping on." While the Cats keep playing on the words to "Home for the Holidays."

DiNardo

Ward

It's not like the team doesn't believe that it can run with the good teams in the SEC. "We feel like we can win these games," Billy Jack Haskins said. "If we could get into the fourth quarter with the score close, I know we can pull some of these games out." But going into the fourth quarter of Saturday's game, Haskins and his teammates weren't that close. Unless he considers 34-7 to be close. Note: UK now prepares for a Homecoming battle with Georgia on Saturday at 7 p.m. The Cats lost to UGA last year in a colossal defensive struggle, 3-12.

Rout helps LSU erase memories of '95 'fluke'

By Rob Herbst

Assistant Sports Editor

BATON ROUGE, La. — When UK walked into the roars of "Hold That Tiger," in Tiger Stadium, the Cats were in trouble. Revenge is more than a seven-letter word, and the No. 17 Tigers wanted to exact some on the Cats. Last year in front of a Homecoming crowd at Commonwealth Stadium, UK defeated LSU 24-16. The Tigers remembered it by pummeling the Cats 41-14. "I think it was a big game for us because they embarrassed us," LSU defensive tackle Chuck Wiley said. "They said that it was their best game ever last year." While Wiley was embarrassed by last year's matchup, he doesn't think that the embarrassment should ever have happened. "Last year was a fluke. It was a fluke up there," Wiley said. "We just didn't play well, but this year we took care of business." One problem LSU had with UK was fashion. In Lexington, LSU coach Gerry DiNardo decided to change the colors of their pants. DiNardo went from the traditional gold to purple. LSU faithfuls were not pleased and the purple pants were put in the garbage. But fashion proves to be irrelevant when the Cats come to town. "We had to get back at them," Wiley said. "Whatever we were wearing, it's just clothing. It's just cotton. (Clothing manufacturer) Russell (Athletics) made them both." Before Saturday night at "Death Valley," the Cats had success over the Bayou Bengals. "They've had our number and in fact I think we're the only team that they've beaten more than they lost to recently," LSU tight end David LaFleur said. "Before tonight, I only beat 'em once. Last year was a letdown, but this helps." To make matters worse for the Cats, LSU was not in a good mood despite hosting UK. Last weekend, LSU visited No. 1 Florida with an unblemished record and a No. 12 ranking. "They left Gainesville, Fla. with a 56-13 trashing and a No. 17 ranking." So LSU decided that the Cats would pay for the Tigers' embarrassment in Florida. "It especially feels good after the last week," Wiley said. "We saw the stuff in the papers after last week where our defensive rush was called 'sorority rush.' Stuff like that makes me mad."

Cool Cats exorcise Blue Demons

By Ryan Kramer

Contributing Writer

The Cool Cats swept DePaul this weekend to improve their record to a perfect 4-0 for the season. Friday night's game was a 9-5 offensive blowout — five Cool Cat goals in the first period created a mountain that DePaul couldn't climb. Saturday's game was much closer. DePaul went into the first intermission with a 1-0 lead coming off a two-man advantage goal from Paul Newberg. The Cool Cats came out hard in the second period, scoring three unanswered goals. The first of these came off the stick of team president Dave Rioux, with an assist from Ryan Gardner. This short-handed goal excited a crowd that had grown quiet after the first period of low offense. Ryan Hembree put the puck in the net for the Cool Cats' second goal with Bryan Morgenthaler getting the assist. A power play goal from Gardner gave the Cool Cats a 2-1 advantage at the end of the second period. The third period would tell the story of which team wanted the win more. DePaul's Newberg scored his second goal of the game to pull his team within one. Freshman Corey Callahan netted a power play goal from Dave Phillips to push the lead back to 4-2.

Scandals abound in new releases last weekend

Sleepers
Warner Brothers
★★★1/2
By Dan O'Neill
Assistant Arts Editor

High anticipation and expectations can be a killer to some movies. Although it didn't quite kill the much anticipated Sleepers, this well-made, talented piece couldn't help but leave you disappointed. Writer/Director/Producer Barry Levinson (Rain Man, Bugs) has given us a film filled with moments of brilliance but plagued by a slow moving second half which overshadows the first.

Based on a controversial best-selling novel, Sleepers chronicles the lives of four boys growing up in the tough New York neighborhood, Hell's Kitchen. When a childish prank on a hot dog vendor goes terribly wrong, the boys are sent to reform school. There, the mental and sexual abuse they endure from prison guards drove them to bottle up their emotions and go their separate ways.

Years later, the men are brought back together through extreme circumstances. When the memories from the past come flooding back, the men decide to seek revenge on the men who made their lives hell.

The childhood scenes proved to be most memorable with outstanding performances by Joe Perrino, Jonathan Tucker, Brad Renfro and Geoff Wigdor. Unlike their adult counterparts, the kids really tapped into the horrific emotions their characters experienced.

When the film switched to the adult lives, Levinson's script had trouble clarifying which of the adult characters replaced their corresponding children characters.

Confusion aside, the acting was something to marvel at from top to bottom. With no one dominant lead, Kevin Bacon and Brad Pitt stuck out as particularly good. Robert De Niro as a hard-nosed priest and Dustin Hoffman playing an inept lawyer showed why they are considered two of the best actors today.

And finally, Minnie Driver, in one of the few female roles, played a character who's role was never explored or developed with any depth. It's never quite made clear what her specific relationship is with each of the four men.

The film's biggest problem was the two and a half hour running time. It was as if the filmmakers wouldn't allow any of the great adult actors to be on-screen for less than an hour and a half. The additional length could have been advantageous, but too much time was spent setting up the revenge plot rather than developing the adult relationships.

The only other criticism involved an inappropriate last image that ended an otherwise powerful film in a weak manner. The joyous, almost victorious, final shot disagreed with the somber voice-over narration.

Sleepers is worth seeing for the sharp acting and flashes of genius on the part of Levinson. If you go, just make sure you have some energy.

A Perfect Candidate Seventh Art Release

★★★1/2
By Suzanne Raffeld
Staff Critic

You know the saying, "Truth is stranger than fiction"? Well, this excellent documentary certainly proves that point — and then some. A Perfect Candidate is a story of the 1994 Virginia Senate race between Lt. Col. Oliver North and Senator Charles Robb.

This film provides one of the most pointed and accurate portrayals of the declining political process. North, as you should remember, was convicted of lying to Congress about selling arms for hostages in the Iran-Contra scandal. But the people of Virginia love North, which is evident in the rock-star grandeur of the Virginia Republican convention.

At the convention, pictures of supposed demon liberals such as Jesse Jackson and Jane Fonda are flashed on the screen, followed by the huge quote "Whose side are you on?"

They are undoubtedly on North's side, and they rally in a frenzied manner, seemingly oblivious to the charges that condemned North seven years ago.

And eventually, North strategist Mark Goodin spins North's conviction into a good thing. A former hostage tapes a TV add for North, elevating North to hero status by claiming that he would not be alive today if North had not lied.

And Chuck Robb isn't much better. As one Virginia voter put it, "It's like choosing between the measles and the mumps. I mean, it's like, what disease do you choose?"

Robb was also tainted by scandal a couple of years ago when former beauty queen Tai Collins said he began an affair with her when she was 19, and that Robb might have been a cocaine user.

Robb comes off as a blumling idiot when asked a straightforward question by veteran Washington Post correspondent Don Baker. Robb gives such a confused answer that Baker asks another reporter for a translation in front of Robb.

Directors R.J. Cutler (The War Room) and David Van Taylor (TV Nation) have made a truly great documentary by providing an unbiased account of how American political campaigns are run.

Each candidate possesses a large amount of ineptitude and insincerity. One could actually picture Robb, North, Goodin and Baker starring in their own fictionalized accounts of a political campaign.

But beyond that, it is a damning and cynical portrait of the slimy caricatures that politicians have turned into, and the people who rally around them.

If you like scenery, you'll like new play

By Suzanne Raffeld
Staff Writer

Flyin' West is the latest Actors' Guild production. It is set in 1898 in Nicodemus, Kan., and recalls the period following the Civil War when many African-Americans ventured westward to own a piece of land and to begin their way of life. The play focuses on the lives of four women who left their homes and moved west in search of a fresh start.

Directed by Smitty Award-winning actor Walter May, Flyin' West has many good points, but leaves something to be desired. Let's concentrate on the positive first, shall we? The set is fabulous. Designer Vic Chaney has created a realistic and aesthetically pleasing stage, replete with charming touches. The costumes and lighting were also well done.

The opening scene where Sophie Washington (Cathy Knowles) walks in from the cold allows the audience to feel the freezing weather, even in the warm auditorium.

Flyin' West was written by the award-winning African-American playwright Pearl Cleage. In the Actors' Guild newsletter, Cleage said, "On the surface, it's about homesteaders in the American West, pioneers. But it's also a way to talk about contemporary issues — like race, gender, class, feminist issues."

The dialogue, for the most part, is funny and touching. But some of the scenes in the play came across as trite and contrived, and the acting ability of some performers didn't help. The climax of the play seemed to fall victim to melodrama, which might have flowed within the context of the setting, but came across as overwrought in the end.

Also, the majority of the actors seemed to be plowing through their lines. I never got the feeling that these people were who they were pretending to be.

However, a real stand-out of the cast was Cathy Knowles, who played the spunky leader of the family. She was a joy to watch, giving strength and likability to her character.

An admirable characteristic Flyin' West is its portrayal of an overlooked perspective — Black women in the West and their contribution to the pioneer scene. As Cleage put it succinctly, "There's a million stories about what went on in this country. It's not about replacing one vision with another, it's about extending our visions."

All performances of Flyin' West will be held in the Actors' Guild's theater at 139 West Short Street. Performance dates and times are 8 p.m. Oct. 24-26, 31, Nov. 1, 7, 9 and 2 p.m. Oct. 27, Nov. 3 and 10.

Zipper, Dozen light up the dance hall

By Robert Duffy
Arts Editor

My CD collection is littered with albums by Sonic Youth, Beck, Tool, Nirvana and Nine Inch Nails. I'll be the first to admit that I am a product of popular culture, and I bask in its aura.

So it would come as no surprise that if you searched through the messy, unorganized piles of discs, you would not find any great jazz masters. It's not that I dislike their music, it's just that I've never given it the proper time and attention it deserves.

There is one exception to my self-proclaimed closed-mindedness, however: The Squirrel Nut Zippers. These guys and gal really know how to heat a place up! With their hopping versions of hot jazz, these (fairly) newcomers have been igniting every place they go with their crisp sound.

The band performed Saturday night at Bogart's in Cincinnati, and they got that dance hall swinging.

They played a lot of their new material, as well as some songs from their first album, The Inevitable.

The best performance of the night was "Hell" from the band's latest album, Hot. Maxwell put all his heart into this fast-paced song, adding an interesting wail that would've made Jim Morrison proud. This song really brought the house down.

The band also previewed some new material. The music sounds great, and if this is any indication of things to come, then rest assured the next Zipper album will outshine the amazing Hot.

The greatest thing about seeing the Zipper live is seeing the band have so much fun playing their music.

Then, after an extended period of down time, The Dirty Dozen finally made it to the stage. The band, touring in support of its new album, Ears to the Wall, showed how they have learned to master their instruments.

PHOTOS BY JAMES CRISP Kernel staff

A feeling of professionalism was emitted from the New Orleans band, and the crowd was once again on their feet.

One of the great things that the Dirty Dozen did, which I wish more bands would do, was they spoke to the audience. I always hate it when a band thinks they're too wonderful to speak to the people who made them.

All in all, it was a wonderful night to return to the days of the speak-easies, forget your modern day troubles and remember the glory of the past. Our grandparents did do some things right.

UK's 'The Secret Garden' an incredible success

Actors, director give their heart

By Tiffany Bryant
Contributing Critic

The crowd began to settle into its seats. The orchestra took their places behind their instruments. The curtain began to rise. The production took off immediately. The Secret Garden was no longer a secret.

The music automatically drew in the audience. The sound was relaxing yet at the same time intriguing. Throughout the entire show the orchestra, under the instruction of Everett McCorvey, added and brought life out of the entire play. The lyrics of the songs and script, written by Marsha Norman, told the story, while the musical ensemble set the mood.

The opening scene seemed to be a bit confusing at first because there is no introduction. The show begins with Mary surrounded by her family and friends, only to see them suddenly disappear. Those who may have not been aware of the original story were left in the dark. The story later explains itself, as the characters lullaby their way out of this rough start.

Around this time, it became obvious that young Sese had captured the hearts of the audience. Her talent was obvious to anyone who witnessed only a few scenes of the play. Her co-performers were also captivating. Jennifer Fair, singing as Lily, has a voice which could give you chills. Silence hit the crowd as all eyes and ears turned toward her. Her expressions and her tones were enough to tell the entire story alone. Fair received assistance from Johnathan Watson, who plays Archibald, in keeping the audience's attention. He has a very strong and powerful voice which unfortunately seemed to drown out the other voices in duos.

Mary later hears of the secret garden from the garden's caretaker himself. Matthew Ray Wheeler, cast as Ben, plays a very humorous role. He is one of the few characters who seems to have a personality at all. Wheeler does a wonderful job, offering comic relief to this script when it becomes a bit too tense.

Other happy-go-lucky characters are Martha and Dickon, played by Kelly Temple and Justin Smith. These two characters bring laughter and happiness to the entire room. Although Dickon may cause a different type of laughter than is expected, Temple shows the crowd that she can both act and sing.

Finally, Mary finds the key to the garden, which leads to one of my favorite musical pieces of the production. "Show Me the Key" has lyrics which are ordinary, but the instrumental version resembles the sound of the "Gone With the Wind" music leading Rhett and Scarlet up the red velvet staircase. This is another chance for Sese to impress the crowd with her own voice. It was a hard task to complete, considering how difficult it was for the audience to hear her little singing voice.

At times I felt scenes were overpowering and overacted. For example, scenes with Archibald were supposed to be intense and uproarious, but Watson acted this way in every scene. I was very impressed, however, with the final piece.

Anyone who left early probably was not as awestruck as I, for I felt the second act was what made the entire play a masterpiece.

For anyone who felt that feeling of completeness at the end of "The Christmas Carol" when little Timmy begins to walk, you will feel the same way at the end of this production.

At the end of the play, Archibald was talking about those people he will remember. Mary asked, "Will I be one of them?" I think that all who attended this performance will remember her, and the other talented cast in this outstanding production. I know the cast will remember its opening night.

They received a standing ovation.

ViewPOINT

Racist columnist needed answer, rest is history

Last fall, I read my first Kentucky Kernel. In it was an editorial written by a guy named Jack Gatlin. He was writing about how affirmative action is discriminatory and oppressive toward white men. This marvelous piece of writing featured a nice variety of covert and blatant racism, with statements like "Black people need to learn to take responsibility for their own failures," and other things that would tend to disturb anyone with an I.Q. over 50. Since my I.Q. is at least 51, I too became disturbed. I proceeded to march toward the Patterson Office Tower, wondering how such trash had ever made its way to the printed page.

On the same day as mine so he could (unsuccessfully) rebut every statement I made on that particular day.

Nearly every day of the year he would be sure to publish a letter by some greasy-headed conservative who was diametrically opposed to every belief I've ever had.

Then there were the illogical titles he would write for my columns, like "All Republicans are Racist, Guilty by Association."

Boyce Watkins
Kernel Columnist

I assume the silly titles were chosen to hurt my public image, but actually I never concerned me very much.

I became concerned that Mr. Felice had begun to use the power of the editorial page to further his own interests.

My suspicions were confirmed during the Republican primary, when pro-Pat Buchanan letters and columns appeared at least four times per week.

Soon thereafter, I became the man that everyone loved to hate. While I've paid little and light-hearted attention to the activities or opinions of campus conservatives, they seem to get excited about every move I make.

One conservative even threatened to physically harm my ex-girlfriend simply because her opinions agreed with mine.

Last week, this very same lunatic proceeded to write an entire editorial in tribute to my opinions and how much he disliked them.

Personally, I would never give another man the satisfaction of knowing that I think about him that much.

People should know that I don't hate the Republican party much more than I hate the Democratic party.

Last year, I found myself in a spat with John Y. Brown III, son of a former Kentucky governor whom, during his visit to UK, said that the Democratic party has lost a lot of white male votes because it wastes its time catering to the winners in the party.

I am a registered Democrat, but only by default. I am not, but also to voice a point of view I felt was being overlooked.

One thing led to another and before long I was writing on a regular basis.

Little did I know that Mr. Felice would gain a fanatical, almost erotic obsession with everything I did for the next year.

He seemed to carefully time his own articles to be written the

Over the horizon, I saw a man in a dark blue suit. I knew he was an administrator because they all dress alike.

But this administrator was special. He had a few extra colors in his tie, and a little arrogance in his strut.

I soon realized that the figure in blue was none other than the president of the university, Charles Wethington.

"Wow!" I thought. "This is my big chance."

I sprinted toward him, like a three-year-old running toward the Barney dinosaur.

I showed him the article that the monkey named Gatlin had written, and asked him why students are allowed to make such hateful, racist remarks in a university publication.

He looked at me with a crooked grin and told me that if I didn't agree with what was said then I should write a rebuttal.

"Hey," I thought. "He might be on to something."

So, I walked across the courtyard to where the Kentucky Kernel was located.

It was there that I met a little man named Matt Felice.

I told Matt that I wanted to write for this paper, in part to respond to the biggest statements being made by ignorant students, but also to voice a point of view I felt was being overlooked.

One thing led to another and before long I was writing on a regular basis.

Little did I know that Mr. Felice would gain a fanatical, almost erotic obsession with everything I did for the next year.

He seemed to carefully time his own articles to be written the

Leadership?

Last week it was brought to light that members of UK Lambda had filed a complaint with the Dean of Students Office regarding an alleged assault on one of its members and alleged disruption of one of its meetings.

The Dean of Students Office stated it is looking into the allegations and interviewing those involved in the incident. We think they should have announced some type of conclusion by now about what actually happened. At the very least, they need to give the University community some type of statement on where the administrators of this institution, stand on this incident.

Students want to know what their administration is doing about charges as serious as these. In order for students to have confidence in the administration's disciplinary process, we need to know that the University is acting in a swift and impartial manner.

The University has been silent thus far on this issue, which worries us.

Students should be able to have meetings without persecution, as Lambda members have stated. Students should also attend a variety of events to expose themselves to different aspects of the University community, as Delta Sigma Phi has stated.

This isn't the first time the administration has not acted swiftly in responding to campus problems.

We hoped they would have learned from their past mistakes.

The Chancellor's office is so intent on selling the inclusive learning community, but by failing to respond to these charges it appears to us the learning plan is simply a sugar-coated production of UK public relations.

Everyone seems to be talking about this incident except for administrators at the University where the incident took place.

No, we don't want them to make a rash decision if they don't know all the facts, but some type of announcement from administrators would be beneficial to the University community who want to know what is going on.

We want to know the administration is looking out for the campus community and, when needed, providing leadership.

We don't think we are asking for too much.

Bible-thumpers: quit hiding in Bible

Here we go again... Mr. White, I am appalled and disgusted by your comments. Yet another Bible-thumper hiding behind the Bible or hitting others over the head with their "righteousness."

I hate to say this so blatantly Mr. White but you are WRONG. You may have a right to your opinions (misguided as they are) but your gay-bashing hate rhetoric is poorly disguised as "truth." There is absolutely NO "truth" in condemning others because they may be different from you, in some way, shape or form. You can quote your Bible as much as you want to but that does not make what you say or believe any more legitimate. This is not a condemnation of Christianity, but of the fundamentalist hateful attitudes that predominate in certain sects. You can pray for me all you want. I will pray for you that you will see the true light of tolerance, love, and peace, instead of misleading words in the Bible and believing it is "truth" and then commencing to use it as a weapon against others.

I love UK basketball. I agree that our basketball coach, team and fans deserve the best, since we are the best. Melanie Cruz, the executive director of the SGA at UK, is correct in believing that UK is focused on basketball, and that Lexington will rally behind basketball. If taking UK basketball out of downtown will cause Lexington businesses to lose an estimated $2 million then it would seem that UK does not rally behind Lexington.

If Melanie Cruz could not find a parking space to a UK basketball game held at Rupp Arena, I can empathize with her. I often have problems finding a parking spot on campus. Imagine how hard finding a space would be if basketball games were held on campus. President Charles Wethington, please take Lexington's support of UK basketball out from underneath our city. Suggestion: Raise funds for a student parking garage. There are plenty of UK students that would like to be able to get to classes on non-basketball game days.

UK Lambda fights popular misconceptions of gay community

As the saying goes, "ignorance is bliss." Fighting the lack of or the wrong information is one of the greatest battles in life, especially for the gay community.

The incident that occurred during our Oct. 3 UK Lambda meeting is a real world example of this. Some people don't know what we are, why we consider it to be hazing, why we are concerned about it, why we went public and what we hope to see come of this.

UK Lambda is the lesbian, bisexual and gay student organization on campus. We are a social gathering for lesbian/gay students, faculty, staff and anyone else who wants to learn. UK Lambda allows people to be themselves in a friendly, non-aggressive place where they don't have to fear being harassed.

We feel that the incident that occurred was hazing for four reasons. First, the members of the fraternity showed us a sheet of instructions telling them to "go to room 231 at 7:30 p.m., take notes for 10 minutes, then leave." The note made no mention of what our group is.

Second, when asked why they were there, they restated their directions. They made no mention of a class assignment.

Third, when told what the group and what our topic was (a discussion on AIDS/HIV), and when given the choice to enter and stay for the entire meeting, they chose to not enter. They proved that they were not there to learn.

Fourth, when asked what fraternity sent them, they specifically told us that they could not tell who sent them.

As president, I represent UK Lambda wherever I go. Members of fraternities represent their fraternity wherever they go.

When a member of a fraternity utters a derogatory remark and physically assaults another student, they are acting in a way that reflects poorly on their fraternity.

Thomas Harper, in his letter to the editor, was mistaken when he said that "Delta Sigma Phi has found no wrongdoing by any of its members."

UK Lambda was concerned because we are a safe place where people can come and not be harassed. When we were given no reason why the fraternity members were there, and when they didn't want to stay for the entire meeting, our concern was that they would enter and harass our members.

There are few student organizations that would allow people to enter its meeting for only 10 minutes who don't offer a reason for being there. No organization would allow its meeting to be disrupted that way.

We are concerned for our members' physical and emotional well-being. Everyone who attended our meeting was nervous and scared about what was happening. Some people at our meetings are just coming out and can't handle a situation like this incident. One person who attended the meeting has yet to return.

We went public with the story in order to raise awareness of what happened and to show that homophobia is still active on campus. By not reporting it, we would be condoning and allowing it to happen again. Is it better to stay quiet or to speak up? We chose the latter.

There is a belief that when gays stand up for themselves they are overstepping their boundaries. This is a myth as we are standing up for rights that everyone else has. Others can keep their right to hate as long as we can have the right to love, and the rights to freedom of speech and peaceful assembly.

We hope to see the person who uttered the derogatory remark and assaulted one of our members punished to the fullest extent of the law. Sexual orientation is protected on campus, and his actions broke the law.

If it is the conclusion of the dean of students that it was hazing, we would like to see the fraternity punished accordingly. Punishment for homophobic behavior, though, only goes so far. UK Lambda is here to educate and teach, and we would like to hold a workshop on homophobia and ways to combat it.

I agree with Thomas Harper when he "encourages all members to become active in their campus community by participating in organizations other than their own."

Welcome everyone to attend our Community Expo and meet organizations from the community this Thursday in room 206 of the Student Center from 7:30 p.m. to 9 p.m. Harper said it best: "Members are encouraged to take advantage of the vast resources available on this campus."

Angel Flyers offer patients hope

By Molly Mize
Staff Writer

"Hope is half the battle" is what Kathy Missel, pilot and head of Angel Flight, describes as her organization's motto.

In 1983 Missel's father, hospital broker Jim Shafer, was tired of seeing terminally ill patients not receive the blood they needed to live merely.

Blood was transported by car from a hospital so far away, that by the time it reached the patient it was not usable.

Shafer had his pilot's license, so he started transporting the blood by plane.

Since Shafer's death, his daughter has taken over. Eventually nurses began to ask why he could not transport patients. When he realized this could be done, Angel Flight was born.

This non-profit group flies terminally ill patients, who cannot afford the airfare, free of charge to hospitals around the nation to receive the care they need. Volunteers donate time, the use of their planes and fuel.

Angel Flight began in 1984 with 15 pilots.

Today, there are almost 400 volunteers in seven states, including 368 pilots.

Angel Flight flew 271 missions in 1995. They now average one mission a day.

Missel said 63 percent of passengers are children and 37 percent are adults.

Three planes and six pilots are available in Kentucky.

Jon Zachem, a Lexington resident who has flown for the Air Force and Trans World Airlines, describes his volunteer work as "a good feeling to have an unusual skill and be able to use it to help people.

"When I flew for TWA, every day I saw that my job was done. And this is the same way. You know exactly who you have helped."

When I flew for TWA, every day I saw that my job was done. And this is the same way. You know exactly who you have helped."

Jon Zachem
Angel Flyer

He first flew for Angel Flight three months ago when he was invited by a friend of his, Early Johnson, to accompany him as he flew a 10-year-old boy returning home from open-heart surgery in Indianapolis.

Zachem's first flight by himself for Angel Flight was transporting a 3-year-old Lebanon Junction, Ky. girl and her family from Louisville to Raleigh, N.C., for brain tumor treatment.

"The families are always worn out, as you would be when you've got a sick child. But they are so grateful for anything that you do to help," Zachem said.

Missel said a Lexington man was recently injured in a bike wreck in Albuquerque, NM. Angel Flight flew him back to Lexington for treatment of serious head injuries.

The most rewarding part about flying a patient, she said, is "knowing that you have made a difference in someone's life."

Patients have situations ranging from cancer to catastrophic illnesses.

They are usually referred to Angel Flight through doctors, social workers and other medical workers who contact the central office in Atlanta.

From there, pilots are found to transport the patients and their families, or in some cases, medical supplies and personnel.

Dole questions Clinton's ethics at Kentucky stop

Associated Press

SOMERSET — Bob Dole claimed credit Saturday for putting Democrats on the defensive over their acceptance of foreign political contributions, saying "The stone wall is beginning to crumble."

The Republican challenger pressed his efforts to link President Clinton to contributions from Asian business interests during a town-square campaign rally and in his weekly radio address.

"The ethical vacuum at the heart of this administration has been filled with foreign money," Dole told his radio audience.

Dole was trying to energize Republicans with campaign stops Saturday in this south-central Kentucky community and in northern Virginia, both GOP-dominated areas of states where recent polls have put Clinton ahead.

The travel came as Dole aides said internal polls found the GOP nominee beginning to narrow the gap and even move ahead in some usually Republican states where he had been behind. But separate Newsweek and CNN-USA Today-Gallup surveys released Saturday put the national polling gap at a broad 23 points.

Speaking from courthouse steps in the heart of Kentucky's tobacco country, Dole told cheering supporters: "I think my head is screwed on right. I think I've got a lot of common sense."

Dole

"And we're going to win. I forgot to tell you that," he said.

He continued his criticism of the Democrats over political contributions from foreign business interests. Citing news accounts of the questionable contributions, Dole drew laughter and cheers when he said: "We've finally got foreign aid coming to America."

"It's all going to the Democratic National Committee. India, Indonesia. Who knows what nation will be next to line up to give foreign aid to this administration," Dole said, adding:

"They're going to need it to pay moving expenses come November 5."

In both his Kentucky speech and at a later rally in Norfolk, Va., Dole also made indirect reference to Clinton's efforts to avoid military service during the Vietnam War.

Dole told the Norfolk rally Clinton had been AWOL (absent without leave) on the war on drugs. "He's been AWOL before," Dole said to laughter.

UK Academic Team finishes second

Staff Report

The UK Academic Team competed at the 1996 Murray State University Academic Tournament this weekend, finishing in second place in the four-year division behind the University of Louisville. UK swept through its round robin pool, beating Murray State, 56-36, Pikeville College, 65-12, and Campbellsville University, 49-30.

In the championship match, UK faced Louisville, which also went undefeated through its round robin pool. U of L jumped to an early lead and won the match, 54-28. The team members were political science freshman Dustin Anderson, mechanical engineering senior James Brown, undeclared freshman Amy Crawford, electrical engineering senior Rachel Farmer, and history and classics junior Christopher Fuhrmann.

UK Homecoming nothing like Bama

Standing beneath an old oak tree surrounded by thousands upon thousands of people, I felt more school spirit than I have ever felt in three and a half years of college life.

The problem is I wasn't at my school. A few weeks ago some friends and I went to the UK-Alabama football game. It just happened to be Alabama's homecoming.

Homecoming is supposed to be a celebration of the university. I think Alabama must have invented Homecoming.

The night before the game the town of Tuscaloosa descended on the tree shrouded campus of the University of Alabama. Fans gathered around the steps of the four-column library where the brass of the trumpets and drums gleamed in the lights that shone on the football team and Homecoming dignitaries.

Fight songs filled the air and although I don't go to Alabama, at that moment, I wished I did. The Alumni were recognized with the Alma Mater and a hush fell over the crowd, as if the National Anthem was playing. Do we even have an Alma Mater?

Nothing at UK could get that many people together on a Friday night. Even at a basketball pep rally last spring only half of Memorial Coliseum was filled.

After the hour-long Bama fest, in which head coach Gene Stallings spoke and the homecoming queen was announced, there was a spectacular fireworks display above a square-wooden tower.

The tower was a fiery light in the middle of the quad after the show and thousands of students, parents, alumni and children watched the orange flames shoot into the air. This is homecoming.

But it didn't end there. Game day the same quad that held the pep rally was covered with tents and tailgaters. Fans gathered at the bell tower where the band practiced. Then came the procession - The Elephant Stomp to the stadium with Big Al the elephant mascot leading the way.

At UK people tailgate in the parking lot, not on a nice grassy field. And I don't think the Wildcat leads the fans or the band into the game.

The walk to the stadium was bordered by sorority houses with tissue paper and chicken wire facades that proudly proclaimed this year's Homecoming slogan. Alabama homecoming: "The South's finest tradition." The entire front of the houses were covered with float-like scenes.

On the Quad Friday there were games much like Watermelon Bust or Barnyard Olympics, but they were for the whole university.

It is not as if we don't have events like the University of Alabama does. SGA tried to have a bonfire before the U of L and UK game at the beginning of the year, but only about 50 people showed up.

It is the atmosphere that surrounds something like Alabama's Homecoming that has more effect than the events. The Student Activities Board could plan the exact same schedule as Alabama, but I highly doubt that participation would be the same.

After the game the town felt like Lexington after the semi-final basketball game. There was an overwhelming feeling of togetherness. People in cars drove by, honking their horns and cheering out the windows. You would have thought they had just beaten No.

1 Florida not Kentucky.

It may help to have a winning football team to build spirit, but I don't think it has to.

We can't get students to even attend the games, much less a pep rally or bonfire the night before. Obviously this campus is apathetic about sports. To change this you have to start with attitudes. People need to feel like part of a community.

The only way to create some sense of community at UK is for everyone to work together. The all-University tent party on Saturday is a good start, but events sponsored by individual groups can only attract so many people. A bonfire the night before homecoming sponsored by SAB, Student Government Association, Inter-Greek Programming Assembly, Residence Hall Association and the Alumni Association would bring the campus together.

There is no reason why groups can't work together to create a tradition at UK. The community could even get involved and businesses could sponsor the event.

Although we don't have a picturesque quad, Seaton Field or E.S. Goodbarn field would do. Want another way to get people there? Announce the Homecoming King and Queen at the Bonfire.

The big buzz word this year is "Inclusive." Although this is mainly used in policies and such, it should be an overall attitude, and what better way to make everyone feel included but to have an event for the whole campus.

If we start now, when we return to UK for Homecoming we can truly be proud of our alma mater.

ROYALTY Voting for the 1996 Homecoming King and Queen will take place on Wednesday and Thursday.

Groups vie for court

Students to select '96 King and Queen

By Chris Campbell
Staff Writer

With 200 UK organizations lobbying for their candidate to win, the homecoming court this year should be a hip-hoppin' party.

At least, that is what the staff putting the event on is hoping, since it named the event, "A Blast from the Past: UK Homecoming at the Hop."

The 1950s theme is the first of its kind, according to first-time coordinator, Sonia McBride.

"We've never had a theme from the past like this before," she said. "We wanted to change things around and make it a lot more fun for students."

After all 200 organizations choose their candidates for the contest, each one has to write an essay on the topic for the competition, how UK has benefitted the student and how the student is giving back to UK.

The essays will be judged by a board of UK faculty and staff, as well as alumni and others. For co-coordinator Robin Witt, getting the judges together and going through the process is the hardest part.

"This is a very long and tedious process, for it is hard to differentiate between writing styles," Witt said.

The field is narrowed down and personal interviews are held. When judging the interviews, Witt believes the judges are looking for "a very strong personality" and the "overall perception of the person."

One aspect Witt commented on was the eager involvement of the Greek community in the royalty court. She believes Greeks are more involved with campus activities. Therefore the Greek presence is more noticed and acknowledged.

Along with the interviews, the academic perspective is extremely important in determining those who advance. Extra-curricular activities are also among the top qualities needed by a candidate.

"It should be a good balance between the two," Witt said.

The student body will vote on the semi-finalists Wednesday and Thursday at seven poll locations around campus. From that group, the eight finalists are determined.

Working on getting the court organized has been a good experience, said McBride, but a long one.

The committee found themselves a week behind in the schedule, but have managed to find it non-distracting.

"We are fine," McBride said. "We are a little behind, but it has not shown to bother us one bit. I am feeling very stressed and 'pressured' a lot," she added.

"I am trying to catch up on my homework; it has been a lot of fun and a great experience, but I will be glad when this is over."

For the first time in UK history, the finalists will be announced at Wildcat Roar, the annual Homecoming pep rally.

"We are really excited about doing it this year," McBride said. "This should definitely get more people into the spirit of things."

The winners of the court will be at the UK vs. Georgia football game on Saturday.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT SAB hopes all 250 registered student groups will participate in this year's food drive, which will benefit God's Pantry.

SAB food drive will benefit local charity

Groups work to 'give back' to needy families

By Mat Herron
Staff Writer

"Enough to feed an army." That's how much food was raised by UK Greek and student organizations last year, according to Al Burks, homecoming committee adviser.

This year, Burks said, the committee is soliciting the participation of all 250 registered student groups and fraternities and sororities to bring in canned goods for a local charity.

"This is something the committee wanted to get together to give back to the needy and poor, something that the fraternities and sororities could do together," Burks said.

"There are a lot of families who struggle, and a lot of social services and other programs that need assistance."

All canned food items are due in the Student Activities Board office by Friday, Oct. 25.

Food drive coordinator Holly Harris said, "I hope they'll get competitive and bring in a lot of cans.

"It's important that we do something that's not just for ourselves."

This drive is not the first time Harris has helped alleviate the plight of the poor.

When she served on the freshman representative council, Harris volunteered to work in the soup kitchen at the Salvation Army.

"You look at these children who have no teeth and think, 'My God, how do they chew?'" she said.

This year, she said the organization that collects the most cans will be recognized in front of fans at the homecoming football game.

The contest between the Cats and the Georgia Bulldogs is expected to draw about 50,000 people.

"My hope is that every member brings in at least one can," Harris said. "UK students are very community-oriented; people will be really supportive."

All cans donated will go to benefit God's Pantry, a local charity.

Mary Jo Votruba, director of God's Pantry, said community food drives are critical to the center's emergency food box program.

More than 60 percent of all incoming foodstuffs come from these drives, with the other 40 percent supplied by donated monies.

"(They are) critical," Votruba said. "We would not have what we need to meet the needs of the poor in the community were it not for the community food drives."

God's Pantry provides a week's worth of groceries to 850 families in the Lexington area.

These families, Votruba said, are referred to the center by "churches and social service agencies."

One social fraternity, Lambda Chi Alpha, is conducting its own food drive at the end of this month, hoping to raise 10,000 pounds of food on its own.

LOOKING ahead

All items being donated to the All-university Food Drive are due in the SAB Office, room 203 Student Center by 5 p.m. Friday.

BUTTIN' HEADS The UK football team is hoping for a Homecoming victory in Saturday's game against Georgia.

UK players hoping for victory over Ga.

By Rob Herbst
Assistant Sports Editor

As students and alumni gather this weekend for Homecoming festivities, one group will have few precious minutes for enjoying the weekend.

The UK football team will be the focus of the weekend as it takes on Georgia Saturday in front of rabid alumni and students (hopefully).

While the Cats have not exactly had the best of seasons, UK football players especially want to bring home a "W" for the fans this weekend.

"It's our house and we like to celebrate in our house," said UK senior defensive tackle Chris Ward. "It's like our anniversary at Commonwealth Stadium and it would be great to have a victory."

Another group that the Cats want to win for are the former UK football players. Former UK players are not ones to anger.

"You get your old veteran players coming back in so you wanna win those games for them," said UK junior cornerback Littleton Ward. "Then they could have something to talk about."

If fans are looking for an unexpected Cat victory, this may be the weekend to pay attention.

In 50 Homecoming games since 1946, UK has posted a 38-12 record. The Cats have won 11 of their last 13 Homecoming games, including last year's 24-16 victory over Louisiana State.

But it must be noted that some of the recent Homecoming wins have come against such powers as Rutgers, Southern Mississippi, and Kent.

The last time UK played Georgia on Homecoming was back in 1972, when the Cats were defeated 13-7.

One thing that does help with UK's success in Homecoming games is the atmosphere. Chris Ward notices that there is some added excitement in Commonwealth come Homecoming.

"There's a little bit more blue and there's some more fans," Chris Ward said. "There's a lot of people there with their families, so it's a game for everybody."

With families and friends in the stands, Homecoming resembles a big party. But just like other parties, this Homecoming will have someone who will try to crash the party.

Georgia would like nothing better than to take a victory back to Athens, Ga., and UK knows it.

"I'm sure they'll see themselves as the spoiler," Littleton Ward said. "When you see yourself as that, you take yourself to another level."

Earlier this season, the Cats attempted to crash a Homecoming party against Alabama in Tuscaloosa, Ala.

UK was trounced 35-7, but Littleton Ward still enjoyed himself, especially when UK took a 7-7 tie to the third quarter.

"It was fun, it was real fun," Ward said. "It was great in the first half when that crowd was so quiet."

Hopefully UK will make better hosts than guests.

Paint the Town Blue

By James Ritchie
Homecoming '96 Editor

You've heard it from parents, teachers and coaches winning isn't everything.

Does anyone ever really believe it?

UK basketball fans don't tend with the 1996 NCAA National Championship banner hanging in Rupp Arena, they don't need to.

The legions of UK football fans who want to get rid of football coach Bill Curry when the season is over don't either.

But lots of others do, and not just here at UK. If the numerous Homecoming events on campus this week aren't proof enough, he sure to go downtown and check out the stores participating in Student Activities Board's "Paint the Town Blue" contest.

Downtown stores have decorated their windows in blue and white to support the football team in their Homecoming game against Georgia Saturday. Many have employed a 1950s motif to go along with this year's Homecoming theme, "A Blast From the Past."

UK Homecoming at the Hop.

Chuck Martin, owner of Casey's Country Market, said he and his wife decorate the window of their grocery store frequently. Before they started decorating for the contest, their window was full of Halloween orange, said Martin, a lifetime Kentucky resident.

He said the contest is an opportunity to do our window and be a part of the community.

During last season's Final Four basketball championship, blue and white basketballs, a scoreboard and various Wildcat paraphernalia graced window of the year-and-a-half-old business.

Before each game, they display their predicted score. Immediately following each game, they display the actual score.

A stuffed dog named (what else?) Casey makes an appearance in all of the displays, which typically involve grocery items in some way.

For the Final Four, he wore Wildcat apparel, and Martin said he probably will for Homecoming too.

Tom Kahn, manager of Fayette Cigar Store, said he also decorates his store's window often. He said his ideas usually start out small and end up slightly out of hand.

Since he works so much, Kahn said he does not get to follow UK sports as much as he would like. Still, he likes to be a positive member of the community.

"It's always nice to show as much support as you can," Kahn said.

Homecoming Banner Committee chair Nicole Zahra said the contest, which is in its first year, was an idea designed by the SAB.

Homecoming committee to expand local interest in Homecoming.

"We wanted to get the community involved this year," Zahra said. She said the decorations will also be a nice welcome for alumni who are staying at downtown hotels.

With so much negative publicity surrounding the football team this year due to its losing record, the contest is "a good way to get a good atmosphere going," Homecoming chair Holly Harris said.

Students have a chance to vote for their favorite storefront. The judging process involves the Homecoming Banner Committee selecting and taking pictures of the best three or four storefronts. Students can view the photos and vote for their favorite when they vote for Homecoming King and Queen on Wednesday and Thursday. The winning business will be announced during the Homecoming game on Saturday.

Most businesses said they do not care about the competition aspect of the contest.

Mike Keller, owner of Keller's Florist, said his store's display is not intended to be "contest material."

"We just thought it would be a good way to show the connection between the downtown merchants and the University," Keller said.

Cecil Hayden, an employee of Colette's Restaurant, said his window display will not be too fancy.

The display will be "something simple to show our support," Hayden said. "We're just taking this opportunity to get involved with the community."

He said as a fairly new business, Colette's is trying to involve itself in the Lexington community in every way it can.

In its two years of existence, the business has taken part in a number of community activities, Hayden said, but this is the first time it has been able to directly show support for UK.

"Paint the Town Blue" window displays will be up all week.

Pep rally holds packed agenda

By Ann Boden
Staff Writer

Wildcat Roar, UK's annual Homecoming pep rally, will include performances by the band, the pom squad, the cheerleaders, the mascot and the Wildcat Danzers this year.

It is open not only to students and alumni, but to the public as well.

The agenda includes introducing the Kentucky community college princesses and the final 16 Homecoming candidates.

Jennifer Allen, chairwoman of Wildcat Roar, said she hopes the final eight candidates, who will be marching on the field, will be announced at the end. They are usually announced at the bonfire, which is not being held this year, Allen said.

Also, Coach Curry and the captains of the football team, quarterback Billy Jack Haskins and free safety Van Hiles, will be at the pep rally. Curry will speak about the upcoming game, Allen said.

In addition to all of this, there will be cheers from several groups in the annual "Yell like Hell" cheer competition.

"Yell like Hell" is held during Wildcat Roar with both Greek and independent divisions, Allen said.

During this competition, each group or organization is given 15 seconds to perform a cheer that is creative, enthusiastic and has good "excitement value," Allen said. It also has to be associated with the homecoming theme: "A Blast from the Past: UK Homecoming at the Hop."

Last year's overall winner was Chi Omega social sorority. The first-place sorority was Alpha Delta Pi, and the first-place fraternity was Delta Tau Delta. In the independent division, the Student Athletic Council took home the trophy.

In the past, Delta Delta Delta social sorority has also done well in this competition, Allen said. Mary Claire Alexander, president of Tri-Delta, said Wildcat Roar is her favorite Homecoming competition.

For her sorority, the event is mandatory. They have between four and six practices before the event to perfect their cheer, Alexander said.

The event counts toward the Homecoming Championship, according to the Student Activities Board. Each participant gets 15 points for entering. The overall winner gets 20 points, each first-place participant gets 15 points, second place gets ten points, and third place gets five points.

The judges for the event are Nancy Cox from WLEX Channel 18, who is a former Ms. Kentucky; and Bobbi Todd, a former UK national championship cheerleader.

The emcee for the event is Beth Bradley from FM 104, "The Cat," Allen said.

Other awards to be given during the event are for the banner competition and the tug-of-war.

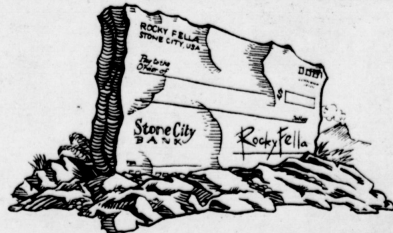

Wildcat Roar will be held on Thursday at 7:30 p.m.

Points foster competition

By Fausto Menard
Staff Writer

UK's Homecoming festivities kick off well before the UK-University of Georgia football game.

In the spirit of friendly competition and school pride, registered student organizations will be able to vie for the Homecoming Champion Award by earning points for participating in various Homecoming activities during the week.

Created by the Student Activities Board, activities will include a tug-of-war contest, king and queen nomination, and parade entry, as well as other non-traditional contests.

One unique event will be a banner competition in which competitors design and create a colorful banner that represents the spirit and pride of both the organization and the University.

Another event, the Wildcat Roar, is a giant pep rally held Thursday at Memorial Coliseum.

Hosted by Beth Bradley, the rally will include appearances by UK football coach Bill Curry, the captains of the football team, the UK band, the pom squad and the UK Danzers.

At the rally, each of the competitors will perform a 15-second cheer.

It benefits the entire community, not just the University, but it reflects the efforts of the University.

Claire Alexander
Delta Delta Delta social sorority
president

The organization chosen the overall winner by the judges will earn 20 additional points for that competition.

The competition with perhaps the most lasting results is the food drive.

During the entire week of Homecoming, organizations will collect food that will be donated to God's Pantry.

The group collecting the most food will earn 15 additional points.

"It's the most fulfilling," said Mary Claire Alexander, president of Delta Delta Delta social sorority.

"It benefits the entire community, not just the University, but it reflects the efforts of the University." At the end of Homecoming Week, the organization with the most points will take home the championship trophy and hold it for one year, then turn it over to the 1997 champion.

As another bonus, this year's winners will be declared the 1996 Homecoming champions during the UK-Georgia game.

"It encourages students to get involved," said Homecoming Chair Holly Harris, of the incentive to be recognized in front of 50,000 fans.

Harris said SAB created the point system last year in an effort to increase participation and student involvement in Homecoming activities. More than 100 organizations participated last year and SAB expects the number to be even higher this year.

Those students not participating in individual events can still take part in the festivities.

Harris said tomorrow is Spirit Day; everyone is encouraged to dress from head to toe in Wildcat blue.

Homecoming Championship Award

Registered student organizations will receive points for participation in Homecoming events and for placing in each competition. The organization with the most points at the end of the week will be declared the 1996 Homecoming Champions. Points can be earned as follows:

- King Nomination
5 points
- Queen Nomination

Groups step up Homecoming

By LaShanna Carter
Staff Writer

This year's step show extravaganza is expected to be better than the previous years'.

UK's NUBIAN Council, an organization that governs the eight nationally known black Greek fraternities and sororities on campus, is sponsoring this year's Homecoming Step Extravaganza. The letters of NUBIAN Council stand for Naturally United by Intelligence and Necessity.

The council was founded three years ago because it was time for a governing body over the fraternities and sororities.

Willie Jones, president of the council and treasurer of Phi Beta Sigma said the goal of the council is "to increase membership and awareness on campus."

Jones believes that it is important for black students to become involved with at least one organization while at UK. "Go and check each organization out because we all need to be involved somehow."

There will be six fraternities and sororities stepping this year. The sororities are Sigma Gamma Rho, Delta Sigma Theta and Zeta Phi Beta. The fraternities are Kappa Alpha Psi, Alpha Phi Alpha and Phi Beta Sigma.

The tickets for the step show are currently on sale for $10. Jones has great expectations of this year's step show. Last year's step show was known as the best step show in Kentucky. The step show received an excellent turnout and it left a good impression on the audience.

The step show will be held in Memorial Hall on Saturday. It will begin at 2:30 p.m. and last until 6 p.m. There will also be a party at the Hyatt Regency Patterson Ballroom from 10 p.m. — 2 p.m. The ticket prices for the party $8 per person or $6 with a ticket stub from the step show.

The step show is open to the public and everyone is invited. This year no video cameras will be permitted because it is copyrighted. You can sign up for copies at the door.

The sororities and fraternities are all active in a variety of community service activities that promote sisterhood/brotherhood, unity and awareness. The council is also becoming more involved with the white sororities and fraternities.

Some of the upcoming events happening with the NUBIAN Council and Greek organizations include:

Step Extravaganza

▼Admission is open to the public.

▼Tickets are $10.

▼Show starts at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in Memorial Hall.

Zeta Phi Beta and Sigma Chi are sponsoring a Greek mixer Oct. 22 called "We're all in the Mix" at the Sigma Chi House. Bring two canned goods and all proceeds go to God's Pantry.

Zeta Phi Beta are having a Halloween Party Oct. 28 for the Charles Young Center.

Phi Beta Sigma and Lambda Chi Alpha are having a jam Nov. 14 and coke party (non-alcoholic). The purpose of the party is to support the alcohol awareness program.

Nubian Council and Black Student Annual Feed the Homeless Drive will take place on Nov. 25.

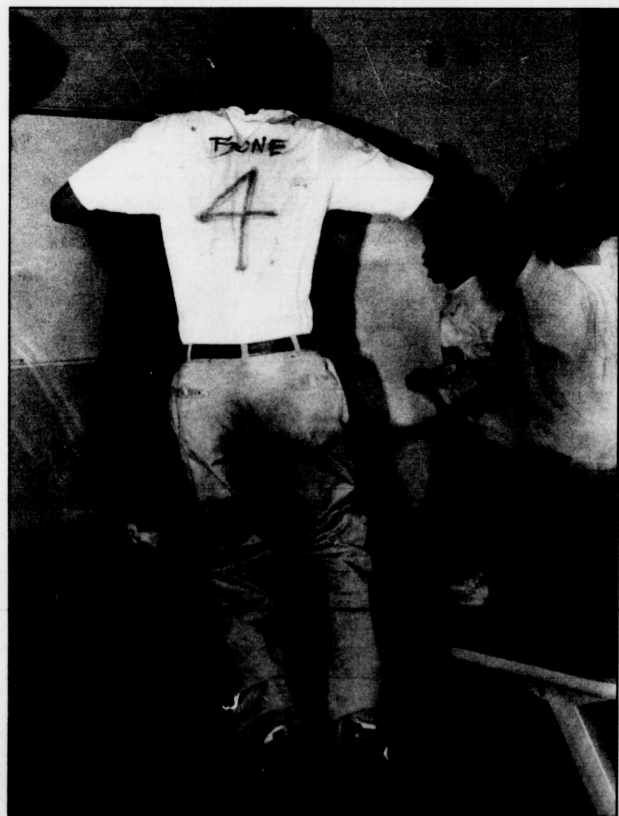

Alpha Phi Alpha and Zeta Phi Beta are sponsoring a party Kwanzaa, Dec. 7.

Blue and White Christmas and the proceeds go to the sickle-cell anemia foundation Dec. 14.

Annual parade showcases 50s

By Jennifer E. Smith
Staff Writer

The streets will be filled with colorful floats, an array of costumes and an air of excitement on Friday in preparation for the approaching football game.

The annual Homecoming parade is the perfect time to show school spirit and support the UK football team.

This year's Homecoming parade theme is "At the Hop," centering on the 1950s.

The parade will follow a different route than it has in previous years.

"It's the same exact route, only backwards," said Sarah Greer, parade chairwoman for the SAB.

This Friday, the annual UK Homecoming Parade will start at Memorial Coliseum and go down Euclid Avenue, to Rose Street, down Huguleet to University Drive, and finally to Commonwealth Stadium.

The parade begins at 6:30 p.m., but all participants should check in before 6 p.m.

UK dignitaries, the grand marshall, the UK band and cheerleaders, the UK Pom Squad and the Wildcat Danzers will appear in the parade.

Dignitaries attending include President Charles Wethington and Chancellor Elizabeth Zinser.

The lineup begins with the ROTC, followed by the UK marching band, then cars carrying UK officials. After the cars come the original floats.

"We have about 50 units right now, including both cars and floats," Greer said.

There will be three categories of winners in the float division: an overall winner, a Greek winner and an independent winner. Sororities and fraternities will be paired to make up teams in the Greek category.

Three awards will be given in each category.

Awards will be given for the most creative and most flashy float or car. Winners earn points which go toward the Homecoming Championship.

Last year's first place Greek winners were Alpha Xi Delta social sorority, Delta Gamma social sorority and Phi Gamma Delta social fraternity team.

Sigma Kappa social sorority, Phi Kappa Phi social fraternity and FarmHouse social fraternity placed second, and Pi Beta Phi social sorority and Delta Tau Delta social fraternity came in third.

In the independent category, the first-place winner was the Student Development Council. The Student Activities Board came in second, and the Residence Hall Association placed third.

Greer said there are several reasons for students to attend the parade.

"It's one of the greatest traditions on campus, and it's a great way to get involved. It is really entertaining too. You get guys dressed up as girls ... it's just a lot of fun."
