FOREWORD

Kentuckians are justifiably proud of their history and traditions. Teachers who have the responsibility of acquainting young people with the reasons for this pride need to be familiar with fiction as well as history, poetry as well as sociology, with films and pamphlets as well as with books which interpret and analyze Kentucky's heritage.

KENTUCKY IN BOOKS, PAMPHLETS AND FILMS is being distributed by the State Department in the belief that its use will not only foster pride in local traditions but that a thorough understanding of the origins of our state will help the student to understand the problems of our nation and our world.

This bulletin is a revision of the Kentucky Materials List which appeared in LIBRARY SERVICE FOR KENTUCKY SCHOOLS, the June 1949 Bulletin of the State Department of Education. From the beginning, the project has been the joint responsibility of the State Supervisor of School Libraries and the Kentucky Association of School Librarians. It was initiated by Miss Louise Galloway in the spring of 1954; the final editing has been done by Mrs. Irene Gullette who came to the Department following Miss Galloway's resignation in September 1954. It is hoped that provision can be made for regular revisions of this important list. Comments and suggestions for its improvement are invited.

INTRODUCTION

Since KENTUCKY IN BOOKS, PAMPHLETS AND FILMS is a selective list, a brief statement of policies to explain omissions and inclusions seems in order. Emphasis has been on books useful in schools, and books in which the major portion is about Kentucky. This prevailing emphasis has ruled out some short story collections which include one or two stories of Kentucky. It has ruled out some novels whose authors were born or lived in Kentucky, and has been a reason for including books by some adopted Kentuckians and even some who are not Kentuckians at all. Famous people who lived only briefly in Kentucky are not included. For example, Zachary Taylor spent some of his childhood in Kentucky, but most of his life had little to do with the state. On the other hand, Lincoln's childhood days in Kentucky were only the beginning of a long association with Kentucky through his wife's home and family. Authors of several books are represented in most cases by those most useful in Kentucky schools rather than those which critics might acclaim as their most important work.

Another important policy decision, the subject of much consultation among committee members, was the extent to which "sophisticated" novels should be included. Several members believed strongly that the list should include novels which were modern in their frank presentation of problems, even though it was recognized that such titles might be subject to parental objections in some communities. Where committee members thought any such question might arise, the suggestion that the librarian read before buying is included. It is hoped that the librarian will examine books before purchase whenever possible in any case, but this list has been prepared with the needs of the rather isolated school in mind. City school librarians not only have more opportunities to examine books before purchase, but they are more closely associated with other librarians with whom they can discuss book selection.

While the intensive study of Kentucky is now carried on in the tenth grade of most schools, stories about Kentucky are popular as teaching material throughout elementary and high school. The committee has accordingly listed materials which met its standards without reference to apportionment of space by grade level.

The number of desirable books now out of print has been, in this edition as in the original one, a source of disappointment to the committee. It is hoped that some titles such as GREAT

MEADOW by Elizabeth Madox Roberts, can be brought back into print before another edition of this list is prepared.

This bulletin is the culmination of two years' work of a committee of librarians who have evaluated and selected materials in the light of their own experience with students and teachers. The committee has been ably assisted by four graduate students in Library Science at the University of Kentucky, who, during the summer of 1955, checked all possible sources for new books and personally examined titles about which the committee had made tentative decisions. Responsibility for final decisions rests with the chairman, Miss Laura K. Martin, Associate Professor of Library Science, University of Kentucky, and Mrs. Irene Gullette, Supervisor of School Libraries.

Grateful acknowledgment is extended to all who participated in the preparation of this publication, particularly to the Kentucky Association of School Librarians' Committee:

Mrs. Ruth Bentley, Librarian, Bush High School, Lida

Mrs. Lucy Dillion, Librarian, London High School

Mrs. Haden Flood, Librarian, Mayfield High School

Miss Esther Mason, Librarian, Southern High School,
Louisville

Mrs. Zada Parsley, Librarian, Bracken County High School,
Brooksville

Mrs. Harry Wood Paxton, Librarian, Shelbyville High School.

Miss Margaret Roser, Librarian, University High School,
Lexington

Miss Thelma Sloan, Librarian, duPont Manual High School,
Louisville

Genuine appreciation for their valuable assistance is expressed to these University of Kentucky graduate students:

Miss Louise Bedford, Librarian, Camargo High School, Mt.
Sterling

Miss Martha Blaine, Librarian, Grant County High School,
Dry Ridge

Mrs. Caroline Russel, Cincinnati, Ohio

Mrs. Grace Thomasson, Librarian, Middlesboro High School

We are much indebted to Mrs. Ruby Hart, Director of Audio-Visual Services University of Kentucky, for her revision of the section on Audio-Visual Materials; to Miss Emily Huston Dawson, Research Librarian, Legislative Research Commission, for her assistance in preparation of the section on Non-Book Printed Materials; and, to Mrs. Ellis Mae Catlett, Secretary to the Supervisor, for her assistance in the final preparation of the manuscript.

OUT OF PRINT BOOKS

NOTE: The list of out of print books has been checked with the 1955 Books in Print, and with later catalogs of individual publishers as well as with library holdings wherever there has been doubt about the status of a title. Annotations and bibliographic data have been omitted in this edition, because it was the judgment of the committee that this is a finding list, not a buying list. Its principal use will be to help librarians identify as rare, items in their own collections and to publicize in their communities as solicitation for gifts from old settlers who might not realize that a book in the family attic or neglected bookcase could have great value to their community's young people.
