German-Polish Problem Cited

Dr. Harry Lee Franklin Discusses German-Polish Controversy and Its Background

By HARRY LEE FRANKLIN, Ph.D. (Former U. S. Consul at Berlin and Warsaw)

In the European post-war period no conflict has been so intensely bitter, until recently, as the German-Polish controversy. Up to this year, more than two hundred matters of dispute between Germany and Poland, including Danzig-Polish conflicts, have been brought before the League of Nations for settlement or advisory recommendations.

Everywhere in Germany during my 12 years' residence there and among all classes, intense hatred has been in general encountered, far surpassing dislike for the French. Nationalist newspapers systematically promoted this spirit of hate, and the provincial press, largely supplied with news by the Hugenberg newspaper concern, corresponded in many ways with the anti-Polish. Plays and films reflecting anti-Polish sentiment were not infrequent.

House of the so-called Polish Corridor separating East Prussia from the rest of Germany figured prominently in the German propaganda referred to. The Corridor problem will be discussed in a future article, but here it may be pointed out that when this strip of land was transferred to Poland in 1919 under the peace treaty, a majority of the population was still Polish (according to the German census of 1910).

In this campaign of hatred against Poland which reached its climax in the summer of 1932 when the Nazi Party more than doubled its voting power, the "Voelkischer Beobachter", central organ for the Nazi Party, which reached its circulation was until a few months ago notorious for its virulent attacks on Poland and its consideration of the German-Polish relations.

Consequently, Hitler's conclusion with Poland of a ten-year pact of non-aggression on January 26, 1934, was the occasion for a comment and speculation as to the motives which impelled him to take this step. It is generally held that attitude toward Poland the question naturally arises whether Hitler's step was a tactical move to construct the German military machine for a later offensive against the Corridor and Polish Upper Silesia transferred from Germany following the plebiscite of 1921.

Informed opinion inclines to the view that Hitler made his peace with Poland temporarily in order to have a free hand against Austria and, as suggested above, to complete the militarization of Germany, especially by the establishment of a powerful force and manufacture of essential heavy armaments requiring at least two years' time.

And the new non-aggression pact, it may be mentioned, does not go beyond the scope of Hitler's agreements of 1925 wherein Germany renounced force as a means of obtaining territorial acquisitions from Poland. But it does mean a voluntary engagement on the part of the Nazi government in which all may be worth, to respect the obligations of the Locarno agreements violated by the Polish which agreements the Nazis formerly branded treaty.

We've mentioned books and poetry in this column but unfortunately we forget that plays and the theater still exist. Do you realize that there are only four plays now making anything like a tour of the United States? The reason for such a decline is the "movies." But not long ago the "movies" were obliged to give their films bought for the day of a certain actress's show. The actress? Katherine Cornell is her name and it has been on the lips of every theater-goer in America. Absolutely caring only for the stage she refuses to go into the "movies."

Charles B. Dillingham, the well-known producer is putting on a new play this season called "New Faces." We find no stars in this new play, or rather musical revue, but you may rest assured that with such a supply of fresh young talent there will come future stars. Dillingham is one of the oldest of the old-timers, (Julia Marlowe starred in his first play in 1888) and we may expect him to produce a play worthy of our praise.

It might surprise you to know that the popular literary life runs hardly all toward works of religious or sentimental tone, with an underlying streak of interest in history and philosophy, in this so-called "jazzage." By far the most popular American book is "The Story of an Hour" by Kate Chopin, an account of the hypothetical reappearance of a husband to a woman who has just been widowed and what would befall him, written by the Rev. Charles Barrett of Washington.

The strong interest in religious themes is borne out by Lew Wallace's "Ben-Hur" and "The Story of the Bible." Gene Stratton Porter probably has written more best-sellers than any other writer.

From Santa Monica Junior college exam papers: A taxidermist is a kind of fish, a gorilla is a really bad storm; pooling—a practice indulged in by young men about town.

The Frolic Poet I know I am a poet. I feel it coming on. If someone doesn't do it first, I'll shoot myself at dawn.

Communications

Dear Editor: Student sentiment throughout the fraternities on the campus is wholly in accord with the suggestion of President McVey in regard to the plan for financing the Student Union building and some definite opinion should be urged in order to find the opinion of students who are not members of fraternities. Subsequently a vote should be effected to get a plan on the assessment which is proposed to be added to the tuition to be charged on registration.

I realize that a series of articles which is appearing in the Kernel, written by various prominent persons connected with the University, is meant to create a favorable opinion on the movement to bring about the petition which is to be considered by the board of trustees. However, from what I can gather from the people who have expressed their ideas on the subject, the opinion which these articles are trying to effect is already in existence.

Certainly every student realizes the good effects of such a building, which being built would not only serve the students to a greater extent than the price paid in excess of present tuition. Students are prone to wonder whether certain luxuries such as a swimming pool, billiard room, bowling alley, and other recreational facilities would be provided by the Student Union building. If the plan which is advocated by President McVey—it is a feasible

SONNET
Love is not blind. I see with single eye
Your eyes and other women's grace
I know the importance of your face.
The eyes too wide apart, the brow too high
For beauty learned from earliest youth
am I
In loveless, and cannot so erase
More subtle is the sovereignty of love:
Your features, I must love until I die
I know the importance of your face.
The eyes too wide apart, the brow too high
For beauty learned from earliest youth
am I
I wonder only why they prize it so.

Diamond ball entries close at 6 p. m. April 6, and play starts at 4 p. m. April 11. The entry fee will be $1.50 per team. Varsity lettermen and freshman numeral men in baseball, or members of the varsity and freshman baseball squad after March 29, are also ineligible.

Each team will furnish its own bats and balls. The ball will be the 12-inch, No. C8C 12 ball with concealed stitching. Spike shoes will be prohibited in the diamond ball competition. Games will be composed of seven innings of play and will be played on a 45-foot diamond. The official rules may be secured at Smith-Watkins Hardware company on Main street.

Entries for tennis, golf, and horse-shoe teams also will close on the same day, and play will begin on the same day. Eligibility rules are to be applied in these sports as well as in the diamond ball tournaments. In tennis, each group will enter a team of six men in each of the singles and doubles tournaments. In golf, the games will be played on the Piondome golf course, tickets for which may be secured at Mr. Porter's office, at the gym annex, during certain periods of the day. In horse-shoe pitching, the contestant must be an undergraduate and not a previous winner in the singles. The same rules apply to this sport, as well as to tennis and golf with the exception of eligibility requirements.

NOTE: All entry fees must be paid to date for spring sports. Failure to do so means that teams will not be considered in the tournament.

FUNKHOUSER TO TALK AT DUNBAR HI SCHOOL

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, dean of the graduate school, will deliver an address at a meeting of the colored citizens at 7:45 p. m. Thursday, April 12, at Dunbar high school. Dietrich Funeral Service Is Today

Funeral services for Miss Aimee Logsdon Dietrich, graduate student at the University, who died Sunday morning at her home, 149 Bell Court, west, will be held at 10 a. m. today at the home. Prof. W. L. Roberts of the law faculty will read the service. Burial will be held in the Winchester cemetery.

Miss Dietrich was born in Hopkinsville, a daughter of C. H. Dietrich and Minnie Lander Dietrich, and was graduated from the University of Kentucky. She had nearly completed work on her master's degree when she was taken ill. She was a member of the Kappa Delta social sorority and of Kappa Delta Pi, honorary educational fraternity, and was deeply interested in the little-theatre movement.

She was a member of the First Church of Christ Scientist. Her survivors include her father, one sister, Mrs. J. P. Freeman, Lexington, and two brothers, Lieut. Niel K. Dietrich, San Diego, Cal., and Karl Dietrich, Philadelphia.

Funeral services will be E. M. Fergus, Frank Ford, P. L. L. Dantler, Dr. George K. Brady, Wallace Roy, and Reed Wilson.
