'Cats Meet Undeclared Commodores Saturday

Coch Paul Bryant of Kentucky has ample reasons for wanting to beat Vanderbilt's undefeated and unscathed Commodores when his Wildcats meet the Commodores before a sell-out Homecoming crowd Saturday afternoon on Stoll field. Not only does the Big Blue mentor hope to see his charges in the win column again, but he will be trying to outpace his former boss. Just before Navy days, "B" served as line coach to "Red" Saunders, still chief coach of the Commodores. There's the Southeastern conference title, too, for the Cats are still very much in the running. Add such items as "winning this one the Cats' first real home test, Kentucky back into the national football picture and looking sharp for the Cats' first real home test. Joe Atkinson, Kentucky guard coach, was Vandy captain in 1941, would like to beat his former coach, too.

Scores Favor Cats
Comparative scores make Kentucky one touchdown better than Vanderbilt, but games aren't won that way. The Wildcats topped Mississippi 20-6 while Vandy edged the Rebels 7-0. In registering three straight victories without their goal being crossed, the Commodores have also defeated T. P. 35-0 and Florida 20-0. Atkinson scouted them, reports a great passing attack and strong defense. Speed and power abound in the backfield, and they have improved with each game. Five seniors are in the starting lineup.

Kentucky's past record with Vanderbilt would make it waxy, if nothing else, as only once in 22 years have the Wildcats stopped the Nashville school. In 1923, the Cats won 21-15, and except for two ties the Commodores have won the other 19 games. Last year the score was 19-4.

Injuries Trouble 'Cats
One of coaches' biggest problem child, injuries is harassing the "Bear." "Bo-Bo" Parris, and "Dopey" Phelps, two of the better backs, are on the doubtful list with leg hurts. No less than four backs are questionable. Leonard Preston received burns from the lime line markers at Atlanta last week, and is not ready. Leo Yarrist fractured right arm but he healed as expected. Charlie Browning received a back injury against Georgia, and Gene Haas hurt his leg. Bill Chambers, fullback, and Johnny Melbus, scabbard, are also among 'Cats.

Phil Cutchin will start at left half, where he has been for the past talents of Ernie Allen. Denzie Rice will act at right half. Bill Ulinski at quarterback, and Kenward at fullback. Rice was injured in the Georgia game, but will be available. He and Kenward were among the best back in Atlanta last week, are expected to provide much of the scoring push against Vandy.

The visitors have been having troubles of their own in the injury department. "Choo-Choo" Robinson, starting full, was injured in

Antique Show At Phoenix
National Exhibitors Come To Kentucky

Lexington's first antique show of national scope will be held from 10-13 in the Phoenix hotel under the sponsorship of Pearl Records, national show director of antique shows. Exhibitors from many states as well as Kentucky are known to local collectors will bring their finest in antiques, historical relics and hobby items. More than twenty booths comprise the show which will be colorful and filled with authentic Americana.

Pearl Records, herself, is an artist who was graduated from the John Heron Art school in Indianapolis and later studied at the Art Institute of Chicago. She is a Columbus, Ohio. Study of detail of period furniture, utensils and ornaments led to a desire to collect in the antique field. Mrs. Records organized the annual antiques show at Columbus and decided to make this work her vocation. Since 1928 she has conducted antique shows in cities in Ohio, Indiana and Georgia.

This year she inaugurated the annual Louisville Antiques show which was highly successful. Junior hostesses on the opening night of the Lexington Antique show will be members of the Epsilon Omega chapter of Kappa Delta who will assist Mrs. Records in greeting those who attend.

Among the out of state exhibitors who are even now selecting lovely and rare antiques for the Lexington showing, is Genaro Russo, who first came to this country to bring some of the world's finest ceramics to the World's Fair in New York. His ceramics are made in the ancient style to reveal four shades of coloring on four depths of the ceramic shell. The finest ceramics were carved by his father, the late Pasquale Russo. Mr. Russo now has a shop in Chicago and is noted for his paintings and pottery.

Kentucky will be represented by five exhibitors from Lexington, two from Louisville and one from Harrodsburg. Their booths will undoubtedly be filled with the kind of antiques that Kentuckians prefer.

Declaring that his own "burden is light and yoke easy," Dr. Jones explained that the Christian way is not the hard way but, rather, the easy way because it is, in fact, a revolt against the God reference. "Evil is an attempt to live against the nature of reality. . . a failure of nerve, crutches for the lame duck," he said in offering proof of his statements.

Penney Weight, Zeta Tau Alpha: "There should be a cheering squad formed to be centrally seated in the stands. Cheer leaders should be scattered through the stands in small alleys as well as on the ground level. Also there should be more men cheer leaders to get better cheering results from the girls."

Byron Reed, Independent: "We definitely should have more pep rallies. Students should announce the yell twice and not clutter up each other's calls by shouting at the same time. Yells should also be printed and distributed."

Betty Cannon, Alpha Gamma Delta: There should be more organized pep rallies.

Joecil Blough, commuter from Botanical Gardens: "Yep a lot of students may think that spirit is confined strictly to a cheering section, but as well as all. I was on my way home last Sunday morning around 8 and heard a band and a couple of feeble yells. Naturally I was disappointed."

The banquet, which will be held in the Red room of the Lafayette hotel, will be the first reunion meeting of the Order of ODK since the war, as many of the old members did not return to the University until this quarter.

Ed Barnes, who is in charge of arrangements for the banquet, said that the pep rally will be held in the Bluegrass room of the Union, but could not name them at present.

Band Will Play
The University marching band will furnish precessional and recreational music and the national anthem with Bart N. Peak, University YMCA executive secretary, giving the invocation and benediction. A military color guard is planned to escort the assemblage to the program site. Miss Helen King, executive secretary of the Alumni association, will be unable to take part in the program because of her hospitalization.

H. D. Palmer of Frankfort, a member of the alumni executive committee and the University board of trustees, is chairman of the unveiling program committee. Robinson, alumni representative and Dr. Alexander Capruso, music department head, and Lt. Col. John Carter, military department adjutant, as representatives of the University.

Dedication of a Gold Star Roster in the memory of 239 University men who lost their lives during World War II and the reappearance of lawn displays by UK fraternities and societies will highlight the first post-war homecoming to be held on the University campus next Saturday.

Donovan is to accept in the name of the University and veterans of UK are to be represented at the ceremony by Howard Bowles, Hazard senior and president of the student veterans club.

1,150 Enroll In Home Study Courses

The University has approximately 1,150 non-resident students enrolled in home study courses for the current fall quarter. University Extension Director Louis E. Clifton reported today.

In comparison with the normal pre-war extension enrollment of about 600, the present figure seems large, Prof. Clifton said. "But there has been an increase in enrollment in this division of the University during the war years despite a marked drop in all the regular colleges."

"During the past three months, which is the first quarter of the year, there has been an increase of 238 students. Thirty of these are high school caliber while the rest are college-grade students," he said.

"The division of University Extension operates with an instructional staff of 61. Correspondence courses are offered in both high school and college level. Assignments are made by the instructor of the course the student is enrolled in and are mailed to the student. Each course is based upon some scientific textbook, which the student must secure, and occasionally upon some reference book with which the student prepares his work."

A total of 178 courses, ranging from Business English to labor problems and such technical subjects as dentology, corporation finance and Shakespeare, are offered in 22 different departments for college grade students.

Other events arranged for the first post-war homecoming celebration are the Wildcatters-Vanderbilt football tilt at 2 p.m. Saturday; the annual homecoming tea at open house presented by President and Mrs. H. L. Donovan at Maxwell for college grade students.

Wright or Wrong

By Orman Wright
There's a character running around in contemporary fiction named Asa Hearst. If you haven't made Asa's acquaintance, it's time you did.
Asa Hearst is a finely drawn, brainchild of one Max Schulman. Schulman is a University of Minnesota graduate and one of the cleverest satirists our country has ever produced.

National Association of Manufacturers on down.
Although Schulman's satire is not always subtle, it is unflinchingly brilliant. Dullness cannot be numbered among his faults as a writer. Schulman spares no effort to draw the last drop of humor from a situation, even though his main business is satire.

Well, Son, You're On Your Way

"Well, son, in 10 minutes your train is due, and you're on your way to college. But before you go, son, there are some things I want to tell you. Naturally you want to come back to Boodeville after you graduate and take a job as assistant to your father, who is Boodeville's leading butcher. Well, the only way you can do that is to be a success at college. Any you can be a cess at college if you do as I say."
"I don't care what you major in or what kind of grades you make. But you must get into a lot of activities and become an outstanding man on the campus. That way people will get to know you, and you will get to know people."
"I'm not bragging, son, but my picture was in the yearbook 14 times, my senior year, and my name was in it 37 times. I was president of three major campus organizations, and I belonged to dozens of others."
"Please get to know me, and the president of the college would never make a move before he consulted me. I tell you, son, I would never have got the chance to start in the butcher shop here in Boodeville and to work up and become owner of the shop if my name hadn't been in the papers so many times. The manager at the butcher shop recognized my true value and made me a splendid offer the day I graduated."
"But, dad, how can I become a Big Man On Campus?"
"Isn't so hard, son. The first thing you want to do when you get to school is make your name known to the students. I found a simple way of doing that. I signed up for lecture courses, where there would be a hundred or so students in each class. Then every other day I came to class late. Of course, by the time I got there the instructor had already called the roll, so I had to pronounce my name loudly as soon as I came in the door so he would mark me present. And soon the whole class got to know my name."
"After they know your name, the next thing is to make them recognize you when they meet you on the campus. The best way I found of doing that was to wear the same light colored coat every day. Of course, after three or four months, it became a little dirty, but everyone began to connect that coat with my name, and soon the whole campus knew who I was."
"Did you, but you haven't told me how I can get into office?"
"Now, that's easy, son. All you have to do is attend meetings of different organizations and when the floor is open for discussion on some motion get up and speak. Disagree with what the president and the other officers are trying to do. That way the members recognize you as an intelligent person. Soon you are asked to become a member, and then all you have to do is to keep on disagreeing, and soon they will elect you president."
"Because you are president of one organization, the other campus organizations will realize your tremendous powers as an administrator, and you will be elected president of so many organizations that you will have to start turning offices down."
"Should I join a fraternity, dad?"
"Yes, being in a fraternity will help you. But they are easy to join. Every fraternity on the campus will rush you the day you arrive at school because you are the son of Boodeville's leading butcher."
"Here's my train, dad. I'll try to do what you have told me."
"Do what I tell you, son, and someday you may take my place as Boodeville's leading butcher." -T. G.

Letters To The Editor

DENMAN WRITES AGAIN
(Editor's note: For the uninitiated, we explain that Adele Denman was a columnist, gossip, that for three years on the Kernel. She was graduated in August and now is taking advanced work at Columbia University, New York. As you will see, other universities have their strike troubles too.)
I hear you have a strike down there. How terrible—how inconvenient, how terrifying. Well enough of that. IF YOU THINK YOU'VE GOT TROUBLES, YOU CAN JUST GO BABLE IN YOUR BRAW, AND LISTEN.
You know of course I am on the ninth floor. There I am—350 steps from mother earth—and guess what? The elevator operators have gone on strike! As this place is tax exempt (strange bit of information—I thought only heaven could get away with such privileges) they can't have any strike breakers.
Oh, this is a snap, I muttered confidentially, and flexed my mighty muscles which rippled under my clothes like the flags of the United Nations, and began the ascent. Simple! When I climbed the first three flights to my first class there was a smile on my fine young American lips, and a song in my heart. I lit a cigarette, and started up the other four flights—undisturbed, I crawled with great dignity into my class only to hear a lecture on the letters, to Rosa, I dream about her book. "Between Earth and High Heaven." I wondered if I hadn't read the book before.
When I went back to the dorm for lunch—I was not afraid! This time I climbed four flights before I lit a cigarette.
And so it has been—today I have totaled 18 flights up and down in the dorm. 10 flights for one class up and down, and 14 up and down for another.
But sob not yet for my plight, gentle reader. The men who run the dormitory heating plant are in the same union—guess what? No heat! Now, to be outside, the maids are afflicted with the same motley crew. Guess what? Dirty rooms. If I warn you with the greatest caution not to show this letter, as you do all my All I can say is thank God for the

WBKY Permit Allows Completion Of UK Radio Tower

Federal Communications Commission permission has been granted the University's frequency modulation station, WBKY, to construct a new FM transmitter of 1,000 watts operating power.

Actually, he explained, the permit authorizes the completion of a 140-foot steel tower, construction of a four element turnstile-type antenna and eventual operation of a 1,000 watt transmitter on a new frequency of 91.3 megacycles.

Since March, 1945, WBKY has been operating on an assigned frequency of 42.9 megacycles with a power of 500 watts in the FM band from studios in McVey hall on the University campus. Application for an operating power increase and a new assignment in the newly-designed FM band, ranging from 88 to 92 megacycles for educational and non-commercial stations, was made in August this year.

The permit authorizes start of construction on November 10 and lists May 10, 1947 as the deadline for completion. Equipment and program tests probably will be held up for some time due to parts shortages, Sulzer stated. When broadcasting in the new band is begun, there will necessarily be a dual operation of the two transmitters for a while until the changeover can be completed, he explained, but WBKY will eventually vacate the present FM band which is being cleared by the FCC.

wandered over and there at that unearby hour was the U. K. band and a hundred or so students welcoming the football boys back from the deep South. Right there is one evidence that spirit isn't what it should be—out of 6,500 students, why weren't there more present? Cheer leaders can't personally roll each student out of the sack, at least not at the place I stay, so the motivating drive (snaps though isn't a paye, major) must come from the student himself. Sure, a lot of us are older and don't go so much for the old rah-rah stuff, but it is a lot of fun to see your hair down, and after all was said and done at the station Sunday I enjoyed it immensely. Little things like that should impress the team a little with the subtle fact that the student body is behind it and gives a damn—whether or not it wins or loses—the collegiate idea of 'Yes dear, I'll love you when you're old and grey. But to wrap the discourse up, there's no doubt that spirit is much better than in 1940-41, the old days. . . . but we're still a long way from home as far as having zip and ginger at its peak. Can tell you more about the whole she-bang after Friday night's rally and parade.

Baron's Boys Start Work; 'Tis The Real Thing Now

Basketball practice — the real practice now in session. — is underway in Al-tuni gym. The cage candidates have been arching practice shots and scrimmaging for two weeks or more, but Wednesday afternoon Coach Adolph Rupp donned his working clothes and declared "court ican, and Jim Jordan, standout at North Carolina while a Navy student. Ken Rollins, 1942-1943 regular, was there, and Cliff Barker of the 1940-41 squad. Some 75 candidates are expected, and the Baron will welcome any lads to tryouts. "Wah-Wah" Jones, regular last season, will report as soon as the football season is completed.

Developments on the proposed RKO short of Wildcat practice are at a standstill, since Coach Rupp has heard nothing from the movie people since the last wire requesting information about space and lighting in Alumni gym. He believes they have been kept longer than expected on a trout-fishing feature before coming here. — B. M.

"Two" Many Trippi Touchdown Trips; 'Cats Win Streak Stopped By 'Dogs, 28-13

By Baxter Melton
Kernel Sports Editor
Another Yankee—and they don't prefix it with you-know-what—has become an adopted son of Georgia's football fans, as he leads the Bulldogs toward Southeastern conference and possible national honors. Charlie Trippi, Pennsylvania Sicilian, has attained at least an equal rating with Frankie Sinkwich, the Ohio native who manned the Georgians to a Rose Bowl victory four years ago. Trippi's latest contribution came against Kentucky's Wildcats, when he literally ran and passed the Bulldogs to a 28-13 win over the Big Blue in Athens' Sanford stadium Friday night. With 25,000 onlookers braving the intermittent showers, the Georgia captain ran two touchdowns across, tossed the "winners" downfield in another drive. Quarterback Johnny Rauch, another local luminary, grabbed a 'Cat fumble and scampered gainward for the other marker.

First Kentucky Loss
Kentucky's defeat was its first in four games, and answered the question of "How strong will the Wildcats be without Eral Allen?" The "Mighty Mite" may not have made the difference, but most observers believe there would not have been a two-touchdown gap. Trippi was to Georgia what Allen was to Kentucky before his ineptibility. Phil Cutchin, starting in Allen's left-half slot, did an iron-man stint. His kicking prevented a possible larger score, his passing gained considerable yardage and he scored the first touchdown. Jim Kennard and Dennis Rice showed well during their stays in the game. "Wah-Wah" Jones and Dick Hensley at ends were the mainstays of the 'Cat line, several times throwing Trippi for losses. Leonard Preston again played commendably at guard. For Georgia, other than tripping Trippi, "Rabbit" Smith, Rauch and Denaiden were the best ground-gainers.

'Cats Rugged Throughout
Even partisans agreed that the Bulldogs got most of the breaks, were unanimous in praising Kentucky's determined play throughout the game. The losers were outscored, but not outgated. The 'Cats scored first, after only two minutes and 40 seconds of the first quarter, but Georgia's experienced squad, plus Trippi, was not to be denied. The winners deserved their success, but the score was not indicative. Kentucky's play could be termed the "Almost, but not quite." Several 'Cat drives were halted by fumbles of the wet ball or inches lacking for first downs. Once Cutchin failed to heave, the slippery pispkin fell through his fingers. Many a play from center were juggled by Kentucky, most of them a direct result of the rain that fell prior to game-time.

Ironically, 'twas Coach Wally Butts of the winners who had been pessimistic over the weatherman's prediction of a wet field. All day long the Bulldog generalissimo bemoaned his team's chances, since Georgia's offense lies in its passing attack. Local bettor also became wary, would not wager so freely when the rains came.

Kentucky Scores First
The Wildcats scored before Georgia ever got the ball, taking the kickoff and halving seven plays later. Cutchin returned to his 33 from the 15, then Kennard bucked to the 40. Passes from Cutchin to Hensley and Farris reached the four, from which point Cutchin plunged over. The Wildcat left-half also converted.

A Kentucky penalty set up the 'Dogs first six-pointed. Trippi took two tries from the half-yard line before scoring, and George Jernigan kicked the first of his four successful attempts. The other first-half Georgia touchdown came when Hensley grabbed the ball from Cutchin's slipper grasp, sped toward the end zone.

Georgia counted another in the third quarter on Rausch's plunge from the half-yard line, its last one on Trippi's 69-yard sprint after receiving Rausch's pass. Two Kentucky tacklers on either side of the Bulldog star were outran by the fleet halfback, giving an indication of his speed. The 'Cats scored just before this trek when Carl Genito threw a 35-yard pass to Dick Hensley.

SPE's, SAE's, And SX's Lead Intramural Football

Intramural football has moved into the second week, tennis and golf singles and doubles are in the second round. All three sports have been drawing large crowds with interest increasing and competition in touch football keen.

In the first division, the Sig Eps and Phi Sig's appear to be stronger; the SAE's are well out in front in division II and the Sigma Chi lead division III followed closely by the Pi Kaps. After a week of action, the grandstand coaches are picking the Sigma Chi and the SAE's as the two best teams in the competition with a slight edge going to the SAE's.

Both teams have capable coaches leading them, and should finish the round-robin play undefeated. Dick Beal is the SX mentor while the SAE's have co-coaches Tommy Bell and Ben Kesslering. Fans will not get a chance to see the two teams pitted against each other until the elimination tournament; by then the game should be worth an admission to see.

Tennis and golf play was completed in the first round on schedule, and second round play is moving along satisfactorily. It is still too early to predict winners in these tournaments, but several candidates look good.

W. W. Coomer, senior intramural manager, still needs three boys to officiate the football games. The jobs pay good money and offer experience. Anyone interested should see Cooper in the intramural office immediately.

Interest has been increased in the football competition by the introduction of a rule to bring the ball out to the two-yard line after touchdowns and give the offensive team a chance to score an extra point.

Lead by Hartford "Rusty" Granitz and Captain John Richter, the University of Kentucky B-Cats chalked up their second win of the season over the Fort Knox Tankers Wednesday night, when they rolled over the visitors, 27-0, on Stoll Field before approximately 5,000 spectators.

Wednesday night's game represented the second shutout the Wildcats have handed the offit Knox lads, the other 41-0 three weeks ago.

Granitz Scores Twice

The baby Cats started slow, but picked up speed as the game progressed, and by the middle point of the second period Granitz had plunged through the center of the line for a touchdown. Less than five minutes later he was around right end for another marker. Coach McCubbin substituted Griffin after each tally and the boy made the kicks good to give Kentucky a half time lead of 14-0.

Granitz kicked off for the B-Cats to start the second half, and just after things got rolling good Orensboro's much-praised Lee Truman put on the best exhibition of running for the night. On a reverse from Saylor the former outstanding high school back took the ball and steaked around left end for a neat 70 yards and the Cats third marker.

"Sad Sack" Sees Action

At this point, Coach McCubbin gave in to the cries of the 2,000 students behind him and sent in Frank "Sad Sack" Sadler, the student manager, to try for the extra point. But his poor "Sad Sack" let the cheering crowd down when his attempt was wide, but who cared a lot for the Wildcats were on top 20-0.

Kilroy Was There

Soon after that a Wildcat substitution came trotting onto the field, and the loud speaker blasted out "Kilroy for Saylor." Could it be true — was Kilroy here? Sure enough, according to the program it was freshman Joseph Kilroy.

That was enough but it wasn't the end, for the Cats were to score again. Their final marker coming in the last stanza was accounted for by "Katy" Mullins. Mullins turned in some nice play and finally dug through the line to score from the six. Griffin rushed into the game and made it three out of three. The score remained 27-0 with most of the remaining time being spent in the middle of the field.

MUSING with Melton

By Baxter Melton, Kernel Sports Editor

Among the homecoming fans in Stoll field Saturday afternoon will be one who coached Kentucky gridirers 42 years ago, started as a back for four years prior to that and who has seen a half century of UK football.

His story carries a behind-the-scenes angle, too, for J. W. Guynn, now a construction engineer with the Federal Works Agency, served on the finance committee which raised funds for Stoll field's renovation two decades ago, its predecessor with wooden stands in 1907, and Alumni gym in 1926. He tutored the University footballers from 1906 through 1908, in the days of five-point touchdowns and the all-important Centre game.

Col. Brewer Co-Captain

The 1901 team of which he was co-captain trounced Transylvania, also topped Indiana 18-6. The other co-captain, incidentally, was tackle "Beef" Brewer, probably better known as Col. B. E. Brewer, former PMS&T of the ROTC detachment here. That 1901 eleven lost only one game, Cincinnati winning by one touchdown.

Quite a raconteur, Mr. Guynn starts reminiscing with the mention of Transylvania, for Kentucky's tils with the cross-town school always ended in fights. Whichever won, a group winning supporters would march over to the losers' campus to razz the losers. Not only would the hosts rock them "all the way back downtown, but start a free-for-all down there. That was why the Transylvania game was finally left off the schedule.

He Wasn't Through

Following his collegiate career which ended—officially, that is—in 1904, Mr. Guynn accepted an engineering position with the city of Lexington. During the 1905 season he became a participant again, however. Entering Stoll field near the end of the first half one Saturday when UK was playing Cumberland college, he was recruited by his former teammates for duty. While the squad huddled around him, he hastily donned a sub's uniform, played the second half. "Yeah, Cumberland later griped but nothing came of it," he chuckles. "President Patterson said I'd have to register to play, though, and I did just before starting on the trip to Marshall and West Virginia. I refereed the game at Marshall, then came on home."

His tenure as coach produced 16 wins against nine losses and one tie. During that time his progress deflated Tennessee, 21-0, lost 5-0, and tied, 0-0, a better average than in recent years. Centre's Colonels were considered an even more important foe. "I lost every other game, yet beat Centre, it was considered a good season." Kentucky topped the Colonels twice in his three year reign.

In case you're wondering about his engineering job, he kept that even though Kentucky coach. "I had an agreement whereby I could leave the field each afternoon at two." The dual duties were maintained for three years before he decided to use a slide rule exclusively, but he has seen every home game since then. He remained with the city for 31 years before accepting his present position.

Another extraordinary feature in these days was the arbitrary time 62-0 win basket continued his scoring record, though, and the first team was used almost all the time. Back then Kentucky's athletic representatives were not members of any conference. Guynn, by the way, spent two weeks with the then in their "pocket-minute team" glory. Unlike now, when a player was taken out, he stayed out, for rules prevented him being sent back into the game.

Michigan Gets Its Workout

Michigan was pointing toward its game with Pennsylvania the following week, wanted a workout. The late Fielding Yost, "grand old man" of Michigan football, agreed to let Guynn reinstate players if he would consent to a long game. "We started about 2 o'clock, played 'til dark," Guynn says. Michigan's 62-0 win basket continued his scoring record, though, and the first team was used almost all the time. Back then Kentucky's athletic representatives were not members of any conference. Guynn, by the way, spent two weeks with the then in their "pocket-minute team" glory. Unlike now, when a player was taken out, he stayed out, for rules prevented him being sent back into the game.

sons and Illinois in 1909. Trouble with khaki was even evident in those days, for his star halfback, P. P. Bodes, received a West Point appointment early in the 1906 season, but managed to play all fall before reporting.

There are several differences between Guynn's period and now, but even then space was lacking for spectators. The crowds of 8,000 at Centre and Transylvania games were all the old wooden stands would hold. UK enrollment then was only about 500, too, in contrast to the 4,700 registered this quarter. His senior year in 1904 marked the advent of box seats in Stoll field.

Time Marches On!

Mention of the long-awarded field game educates a laugh from him, for he thought the physical education gym which burned last year was the last work in athletic modernity. Now he believes UK could sell 15,000 basketball tickets to its better games, if tickets were available.

A 1940 dinner party he gave in Louisville was attended by seven of the 1904 starting eleven. He and Mrs. Guynn reside at 278 Aylesford Place here, but he maintains an office in Louisville.

In addition to his football career, he also lettered in basketball, and track at UK.

Quite a guy, that Guynn.

The B-Cats with two wins and one tie to their credit will leave today for Oxford, Ohio, where they will tangle with Miami U's B-squad tonight. The Miami boys will return the visit next week when the two teams meet here on Oct. 26.

Vanderbilt Tops SEC Grid Teams

Vanderbilt, Kentucky's Homecoming foe, tops Southeastern conference standings with two wins and no losses. Other long-time loop "big boys"—Tennessee, Georgia, Louisiana State and Alabama—are also undefeated, but have only one win each.

"Red" Sanders, Vandy coach, was named as the "Southeastern coach of the week," in a nationwide sports writers' poll, following his eleven's triumph over Florida. Wally Butts, Georgia skipper, was runner-up for his team's success over Kentucky.

Kentucky's 1-1 result places the Cats in a three-way tie for sixth place with Tulane and Georgia Tech. Florida, loser of all its three games, is at the bottom of the heap.
