FHA UNDERWRITER SAYS ZONING POOR

After an absence of 19 years from Spokane, Hart G. Foster, former resident, is here on business as a supervisor of underwriting for the federal housing administration. Mr. Foster said one thing that struck his notice first about Spokane is the lack of zoning.

He said the practice of building cheap houses and expensive houses side by side causes depreciation in value of both.

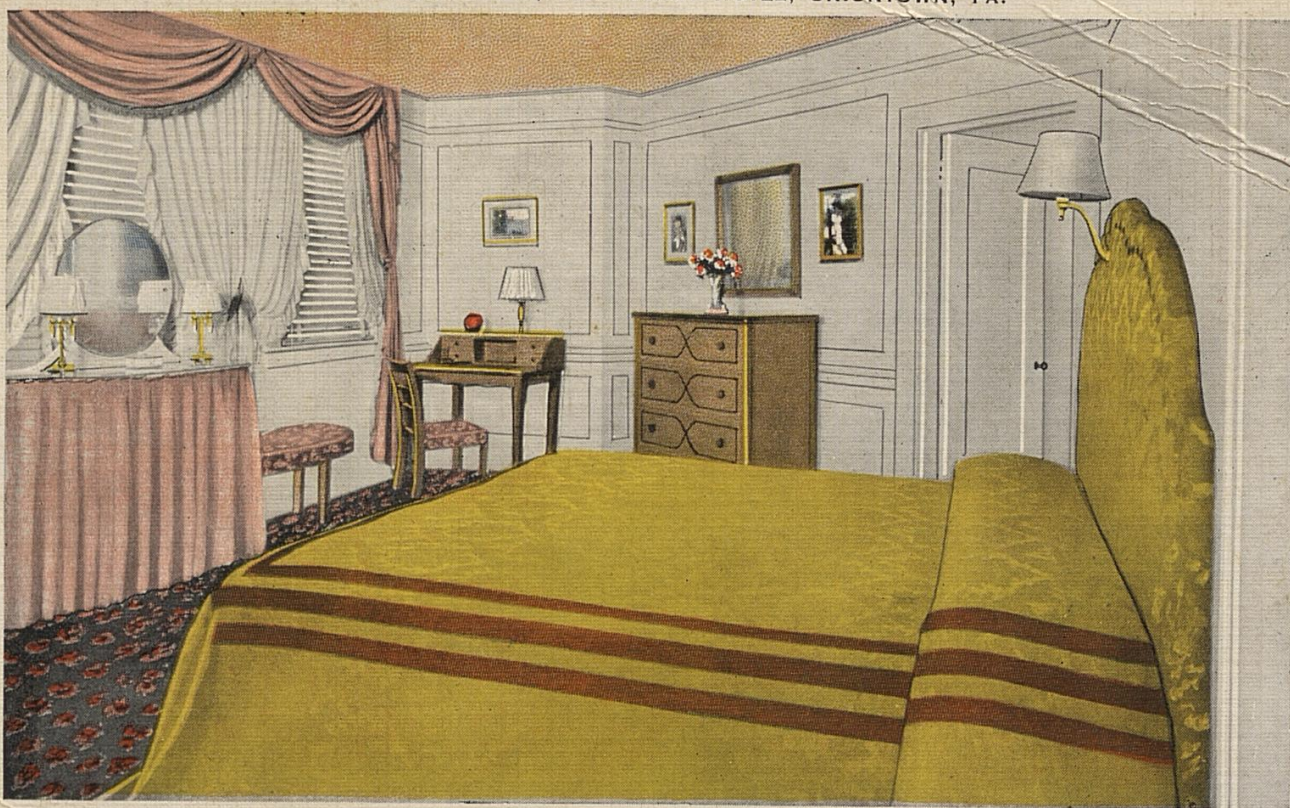

With him here is Roger Jamieson, former Spokane banker, now underwriting supervisor for FHA in this state, with headquarters in Seattle.
