AMERICA MUST MODERNIZE

America has been a Rip Van Winkle, not her score or more years is over. She has been awakened from her long sleep by a philanthropic Englishman and is ready to continue her progress with open eyes and renewed energy.

David Low, famous British cartoonist, is the Englishman to whom America owes this newly acquired spirit. To him goes the credit for finding us in a rut and graciously helping us to see the way out.

It is unbelievable that we did not realize our trouble was in the out-moded symbol which stands for our United States—Uncle Sam. For years we have been struggling blindly along, says Mr. Low, represented by a lanky, chin-whiskered Yankee from down East, whom we have long ago outgrown.

It is readily seen, as our English friend points out, that the people of our country have become civilized and sophisticated, and that although the picture of Uncle Sam was appropriate when Thomas Nast, the great American cartoonist, first drew the gentleman, he is now out-moded.

That is the rut which we were in—handicapped by an out of date symbol. To aid us in coming once again into our own, Mr. Low suggests that a brisk business-like man with horn-rimmed glasses, sharp-toed shoes and sporting a tuxedo would better represent this growing, aggressive, young country.

An Englishman has taken the first step in modernizing our national symbol, but the American people are quick to learn. We will not be caught asleep again. There are other out of date symbols which we can be the first to change.

Did it ever occur to you that the Statue of Liberty is fifty-two years old. How different liberty of half a century ago must have been, and how stupid we have been to permit such an out of date woman to symbolize the liberty of today. We must at once inaugurate a campaign to have her replaced by a modern girl. Possibly the statue should now be that of an evening-gown butterfly with a cigarette held high in place of old Miss Liberty's torch, and a cocktail shaker could be substituted for the book she clutches in her left arm.

Styles change rapidly in America—symbols could also. The Statue of Liberty might be made to represent the prevailing mode of each season. This fall she would have made her appearance in jodphurs with a whip in her upturned hand, and a saddle over her left arm. Or this summer she would have best represented the country by wearing shorts and holding a tennis racket high above her head and several tennis balls in her left arm.

Uncle Sam and our famous statue are not the only things to be changed. For example, on our coins, buffaloes no longer represent our country. A fine prize-winning hog should take its place. The same is true of paper money. We might either put a pork-pie hat on George Washington on our dollar bills, or take him off entirely in favor of the year's leading movie queen or all-American football player.

Everyone knows that our national bird, the eagle, is becoming very scarce. Yet we still find him on our coins and various governmental property. Thus it appears that for many years we have been overlooking the fact that there are many more canaries or even buzzards in the United States. A popular election must now be held to determine if it will be canaries or buzzards on our coins in the future.

Our modernization program must begin at once. America must not be caught asleep again!

This Campus and That World

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

As life grows hazardous, superstitions grow, and as superstitions grow up religions are sometimes made. Things that are awe-inspiring and not understandable always result in a person or people groping for the answer to what might even be an unanswerable problem.

Friday, the 12th, just past gave rise to a column, and a column always give rise to another discussion, so there may be more about this one later. But for the present here are a few of the ideas I got out of listening to others tell of various superstitions they knew of, or things they had seen that could not be explained.

Many superstitions are a result of common sense, as are those several superstitions of the theatre—such as it is had luck to use a roll-top trunk—that is logical for it is impossible to stack roll-top trunks and that is bad, definitely, in the theatre. Then it is also bad luck to whistle in the dressing rooms—especially if the past something did fall on someone. Naturally, whether or not you believe in the adage, it can't hurt you to say out from under ladders.

Walking under a ladder is one of those things everyone can explain, or thinks he can. Maybe the belief did rise out of the fact that something might fall on you, because sometime in the past something did fall on someone. Naturally, whether or not you believe in the adage, it can't hurt you to say out from under ladders.

Black cats have always been considered with witches and things evil. That dire will be the results should one cross your path, is something different. It may be likely, however, that is the only basis for the belief. All I know is that I would rather a black cat cross behind me than before me, this despite the fact that nothing I can recall has ever happened to me following such a disastrous crossing.

You all know of countless others, so do I, but the more interesting side is the side of reason, or cause of this effect. Knowing that as life grows hazardous superstitions arise, helps a little. Just the very act of living is hazardous—that means that superstition is common over the face of the earth. Nothing is more common than a form of religion for all men. The habard of death or disease is the first cause of such beliefs. Other lesser causes contribute. But out of our own Bible have arisen countless superstitions such as the common belief that "it is an unlucky number. Also that Friday is an unlucky day."

Both find their basis for belief in the New Testament story of the Lord's Supper, following which Jesus took his own life and Christ was crucified. Thirteen had been at that supper table. The crucifixion took place on Friday. So closely these two happenstances allied that it is a natural thing that they should have been handed down to this day.

Here is a good story, told by a professor of excellent reputation. You cannot doubt his word, for he has not been proven that some people are more sensitive than others? For instance some persons can hear higher pitched sounds than another. Because you cannot hear it you cannot call the other a liar. It is simply outside of your limitation. So hear this story, wonder, but do not doubt!

This professor rarely went home to lunch on Monday, but some inner voice turned his footsteps home this day. He found the landlord dead by his own hands—a suicide. Sunday afternoon the landlord had started to tell the professor something, but he never had finished. But that evening following his death he re-appeared to the professor and hinted what he had started to tell him Sunday. Three months later the thing that was told to the professor came true—the landlord's wife committed suicide, as the landlord had predicted to the professor.

There is no explanation for this story. It is vouched for in every detail. There is no explanation for the miracles at Lourdes, concerning which Dr. Alevs Carrell writes in his popular book "Man, the Unknown." He has seen things happen there. He knows no answer. In the Pennsylvania mountains, I have been told, there is a mystic rite handed down from woman to man to woman to man, known as power-women. This is a secret ceremony that stops the flow of blood from the most severe wound, leaving no trace of blood. Intelligent persons have seen it happen. No one knows the answer. Others fear the possessors of this knowledge.

To this columnist has come the story of one of the sweetest love affairs on the campus and its culmination. It seems that about a week ago Del Eddie Beck proved to Kappa Dot Babbitt the seriousness of his love and vice versa. Needless to state she was pined by him that night. Well, Tuesday night, he came up to the Kappa house and called Del out on the front porch and told her he wanted his pin. She acquiesced. A few hours later while she was sitting brokenhearted in her room, she was told by the maid that a package was waiting for her in the kitchen. She went down, investigated and found a dozen of the most beautiful American roses in existence. And in the center was a small box, which upon opening, disclosed a diamond sweetheart pin. Ain't that so fine? Congratulations to you both and for Kerier and me, we apologize for not acknowledging this last week.

Publications from the University of Kentucky certainly do get around. The Sourmash business office received a letter from the University of Nebraska informing them that the Sourmash had been added to their mailing list.

It's been a wonder to me, being in the heart of the race horse industry, why this has never happened before. Lidley Finley, the chewing gum lawyer and Moosepus McLoney, the big game hunter, have bought a racehorse. His name is Brooktrout, and was purchased for the price of $90 from Col. E. R. Bradley. They are now pointing him to the Kentucky Stakes which will be held next spring. The horse is so small that the only jockey that they could find that would not overload the horse is little Martha Alexander. They say it is harder keeping Alexander in training than the plug. Incidentally if anyone would be interested in seeing this horse, the owners have engaged it a stall on the top floor of the Ritz hotel.

This week we award the gold plated back scratcher to SAE Lawrence Garland. From the way we hear he is jumping around lately, it will come in extremely handy. (And is Moose gloating.)

HOOEY POLLUI

Sigma Chi Red Simpson, finding competition a bit too stiff for him in the Greathouse league, has cast his eye around the KD chapter and singled out Tillie Denton to be the center of his amours. Funny how some of these big he-men have such a hard time getting over, and others just monopolize the situation. Wingman Duke Ellington, for instance, after the Clemson game, oblivious to the thousands of people milling around and the mud all over him, swept Mary Louise Bradley off her feet with a crushing bear hug and embrace, while his family beamed on approvingly. Wonder if he knows she spent her time during the game, not watching the action on the field, but searching the stadium for whom ever she could see. And Duke out there dying for dear old Kentucky.

The Tri Deltis are seriously considering entering Mary Walker Flowers in intramural wrestling. Reports from that direction have it that she can lick her weight in wildcats when the occasion arises. The only drawback to her entry is that silverware and other dangerous weapons which she uses to subdue overzealous suitors are not allowed in the ring.

Just like Prof. Portmann of the journalism department says, it looks as if it has finally reached the end of outwardsness on the part of the modern girl. Why? Well, for instance, last Saturday night John Bain Brechinridge was escorted to the dance by Elizabeth Zimmer and Mildred Bryant. They called for him, presented him with a boutonniere and wanted to give him chocolates but lacked the necessary funds. And all the time his pal Bob Forsythe was sitting up in the bleachers with that essence of love-liness, Mary Eleanor Clay, enjoying the craning of necks in his direction when they were pointed out by his pal, Frank Caywood. What are they trying to do anyway?

Confucius said "it is better to jilt than to be jilted" which has nothing to do with the following. Me and ole Colonel Reid have done it and done it again. Which proves, just like Herbert Marshall said in the picture "Till We Meet Again," "A man in love is a fool, but a fool in love is not always a MAN."

Thought: With the Chios would do something exciting, or otherwise so we could write something about them in the column. But such is life on Lexington avenue. The only thing we can think of is that the Phidels decided at eight o'clock Wednesday night to have a dinner dance on Dec. 4, and by eight-thirty of the same evening, Emily Quigley, the gal from New Orleans, had been asked by four separate boys with pledge Johnny Greathouse coming out the winner.

Besides developing good football players like Gene Myers and training champion race horses, Kentucky also has the honor of breeding the best dogs. A 22-month old Kentucky breed horse, Kate Dawson, won the Grand National Chase of the National Fox hunters Association. The dog also won first in all the other divisions of the field trials.

W.A.A. News

By ELEANOR SNEDEKER
Rifle has started off with a bang... and what a bang. Over 100 girls reported at the first meeting held in Patterson hall Tuesday night. Sidney Kelly, the instructor explained the fundamentals of shooting. His assistants are Stanley Hays and Allen Rogers. Practices are being held on Monday and Wednesday afternoons from one to five. Any girls wishing to remain on the squad must not miss more than three practices or she will be automatically dropped. The first match will be fired February 13th with Carnegie Tech. As this is the only intercollegiate sport that the women students compete in, great care is taken in selecting the team.

Hockey is just about over. The first game was Wednesday afternoon. The next W. A. A. game will be played at four p. m. Monday, November 23. A challenged game by the Hockey class will be played at 3:30 p. m. Saturday afternoon in back of Patterson hall. Don't forget that to receive your points you must play in at least one game. Make-up practices will be held today and Tuesday.

The winner of the archery tournament has been announced. Ruth Nave was high scorer with 52 points out of a possible 162. Miss Nave is a senior in the College of Agriculture and this was her first year in shooting competition. Miss Frances House was second with 55 points while Miss Dorothy Harris was third with 45.

of these people who never need to carry your vanity and lipstick along with you, try the dance hankie that fastens to a tiny rhinestone ring which slips on your finger—chiffon, again flows along as you "prouette" graciously! How's that, gals! over the dance floor. If you're in the market for some really lovely lounging pajamas, trol down to B. B. Smith's and see those of the latest material combination—trousers of wine transparent velvet topped by cream rose printed satin, double-breasted, and belted to match in wine velvet.

CLUB TO MEET MONDAY

An "Amateur Night" program for the meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Transfer club will be held at 7:30 o'clock Monday night in Boyd hall. All women transfers are invited to attend this meeting. Alice Howry, program chairman, has asked all members of the club interested in appearing on the entertainment to call her.

MEET POSTPONED

The cross country track meet, originally scheduled to be held tomorrow between the Wildcats and the University of Tennessee harrisers has been postponed. It was stated last night by Coach Striplen of the Wildcat team. A new date is being arranged.

TAYLOR SPEAKS TONIGHT

Dean W. S. Taylor, College of Education, will speak tonight at the dinner meeting of the Mountain club to be held at the Phoenix hotel. On Monday Dean Taylor will speak to the Kenton county teachers at Covington.

KAMPUS KERNELS

There will be a joint meeting of the Y. W. C. A. Music and Worship groups on Monday, Nov. 23, at 3 p. m. in the Woman's building, to make plans for the annual Thanksgiving service to be held on Tuesday. Ruth Eason and Margaret Markley chairmen of the groups respectively, will plan the programs and rehearse the service with members of the groups.

Students interested in intercollegiate debating and oratory are requested to see Professor Sutherland of the English department next Monday or Tuesday at his office, Room 222 McVey hall.

W. A. A. rifle practice will be held from 1 to 5 p. m. on Monday and Wednesday in the basement of the Women's gymnasium.

W. A. A. hockey games will be held at 2:30 p. m. Saturday afternoon and at 4 p. m. Monday afternoon. It is necessary to play in one of these games to receive your points.

The senior class contract has been awarded to L. G. Balfour and company and orders for them may now be taken at the Campus book store. Everett Metcalf, chairman of the senior jury committee, announced yesterday.

There will be a supper meeting of the Sophomore Y. W. C. A. Commission at 6 o'clock Monday evening. All the members are requested to sign up with Dot Clements or Miss Cowen by noon Monday. It will cost 20 cents.

Will the following students report to the Dispensary laboratory some time before the Thanksgiving holidays: Charles W. Alden, Armand Angelucci, Warner Broughman, J. B. Brunfield, Joe Calvert, Joe Candiotti, Ben Cliff, Elliott C. Core, David Adams, J. E. Fudd, James Greene, James Hugh, Julian Hume, George Johnstone, H. R. SEEING SPORT STUFF
By JOE QUINN
KERNEL SPORTS EDITOR

It's an off week for the Wildcats as far as intercollegiate activity is concerned, but the varsity won't know the difference in the matter of work. Coach Wynne plans to have the freshman squad disguise themselves as Tennessee and work Volunteer formations against the varsity tomorrow afternoon.

According to reports the frosh and varsity will stage a regular game tomorrow, which should develop into something of a preview of next Thursday's fracas, as the yearling squad will use Tennessee plays exclusively.

Some observers are not conceding the 'Cats a chance of annexing the Turkey Day classic but as yet the football team has failed to hear about them. The griders are confident of making it two in a row over the Knoxville hopelists and see no reason why they shouldn't. We see no good reason, either.

The following is a letter we received from Jimmy Miner, boxing editor of The Cincinnati Post, and which we are glad to publish at this time:

Dear Mr. Quinn:
I am taking this opportunity on behalf of The Cincinnati Post to invite the University of Kentucky boxing team to participate in The Post's Greater Cincinnati Golden Gloves tournament. The dates for the tournament are Monday, Feb. 8, Wednesday, Feb. 10, and Wednesday, Feb. 17. All bouts will be staged in the Music Hall sports arena.

Should the University of Kentucky desire not to send a full team in the regular eight weight divisions, perhaps several or even one of your boys would like to compete. We are expecting teams from the University of Cincinnati, Xavier University and Miami University of Oxford, Ohio, as well as the local athletic clubs. The winning team will be sent to Chicago (all expenses paid by The Cincinnati Post) to compete in The Chicago Tribune's National Golden Gloves tournament on Feb. 22, 23 and 24, at Chicago stadium.

Last year 9000 people saw our bouts on two nights. This winter on three evenings, we expect well over 15,000 sportsmen and sportswomen to attend the Golden Gloves. Suitable awards will be made to the champions and runners-up in each weight division and to the team champion.

We sincerely hope the University of Kentucky's athletic department will send a team to compete in The Cincinnati Post Golden Gloves. With best wishes for the University of Kentucky, Yours in sport,

JIMMY MINER,
Post Boxing Editor.

This is the week-end that brings together the clubs which have been battling it out on the same front for years and whose games have become traditional. It's always a tough task for a forecaster to step in where angels fear to tread and try to predict results among these "ivy league" contests. But after last week's successful attack which found us batting 900, we're ready for anything. And here's where we get it.

California-Stanford—Two seemingly strong clubs getting together for their annual matinee with the outcome supposed to be a toss-up. But we'll choose the Stanfords.

Chicago-Illinois—The boys on the Midway have no Berwanger to fall back on this year as they did last season when they scored a one-point win over the Illini. Make it a double order of Illinois.

Mississippi State-Mississippi—After dropping that game to Marquette last week the Ole Miss outfit will be feeling twice as bad this week after Major Sasse's squad gets through.

Notre Dame-Northwestern—The outstanding attraction of the day, very likely. Although the underdog, we like the Irish as they are a great

INTRAMURAL

By BILLY EVANS

The Sigma Chis became one of the finalists of the intramural football tourney by sking out a victory over the A. T. O.'s last Thursday. The winners' margin of victory was three first downs to two. Trailing two first downs to one with five minutes left in the game the victors completed a break pass which was good for one first down, tying up the game. Then, a few plays later, with three yards needed for another first down, Symson ran the ball for the needed yardage and victory.

Because of this victory the Sigma

Chis become the winners of one half of the tourney, and will meet the winners of the consolation half for the University championship. After their defeat the A. T. O.'s went into the consolation bracket. The Phi Deltis defeated the Lambda Chis, and by virtue of their victory became a semi-finalist in the consolation half. The final score of this game read one first down to nothing with the Phi Deltis on top.

By winning two games against the Phi Sigs and the Deltis respectively, the Phi Taus advanced to the other half of the semi-final bracket opposite the Phi Deltis. The winners defeated the Phi Sigs by the margin of a safety which followed a blocked punt behind their own goal line. In their next game, against the Deltis, the Phi Taus demonstrated more scoring power and won by the score of 12 to 0. Both of the winners' touchdowns came by means of long passes.

This week's games will bring the Phi Deltis against the Phi Taus and the winner will play the A. T. O.'s to determine the winner of the consolation tourney.

The Appalachian State College has one of the highest scoring football machines in the country as they won one of their games by a 105 point margin. Perhaps their success is due to the team supporters as one of their more ardent fans rides 40 miles over the mountains every game just to see them play.

Out of 225 professional football players in the National Football League there are only 8 men that are left-handed.

Duquesne, conqueror of Pittsburgh, has had four different coaches in four years and each year the assistant coach has moved up to head coach.

Of 46 men on New York University's football team there are only three that live very far from the city.

Ace Parker, Duke's candidate for All-American, on three different occasions this year has carried the ball over for a touchdown only 30 yards.

The All-Star Detroit Lion football game played at Soldier's Field in Chicago netted $32,143.41 for charity. There have been three games between college all stars and the champions of the professionals at Soldier's Field and the games have brought in the sum of $78,048.55 for Chicago charities.

One of the most important games in the nation last Sunday was played between two small colleges at Santa Clara kept her record clean by defeating St. Mary's 19-0.

Northwestern is said to have had the hardest schedule of any team in the country for the past ten years. The Big Ten Conference, which they are in, is supposed to be one of the toughest conferences in the nation.

Len Harvey, matchmaker at the Empire Pool in England, matched a fight between he and John Henry Lewis. Harvey won only one round in the scrap.

Art Buck, quarterback of Carroll of Wisconsin, is leading the nation in scoring with 102 points in seven games. His nearest rival is Fred King, Hobar full back, with 76 tallies.

Fred Perry, winner of the British and American titles three times each, has turned professional and will open a nation-wide tour in Madison Square Garden on January 6. He is supposed to be assured of $25,000 and may rake in from $50,000 to $75,000 if the five-month tour is a successful one.

Ray Buvid, Marquette back, has better than a 500 passing average this season.

The Ashland High "Tomcats" from 1925 to the end of the 1933 season won 82 games and lost only three. They ran up a streak of 33 triumphs from 1928 until defeated in 1932. In 53 of their victories they shut out the loser. Many of the players that played on those teams are now stars on college elevens.

Not a yard was gained around Frank Hinkey's end in four years of playing for Yale, so historians claim.

The largest score ever rolled up by a team in the Kentucky-Alabama series is the 42-7 victory by the Crimson Tide in 1924.

Last year there were four bowl games on New Year's Day. The most noted one was the Rose Bowl in Pasadena, California, won by Stanford over Southern Methodist University 7 to 0. The other three games of lesser importance were the Orange Bowl at Miami, Florida; Sugar Bowl at New Orleans, and the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Texas.

Alabama has the best record of any team that has gone out to Pasadena to play the Pacific Coast champions. Four times they have traveled westward and on three occasions have been victorious and once played a tie game. Two other southern teams have played in the Rose Bowl classic, Georgia Tech winning in 1929 and Tulane Tech in 1932.

Man o' War set five world's records as a three-year-old in 1920. In 1922 he filled out his five of England's five racing classics.

PHOTOGRAPH RECORD HOURS REARRANGED

Periods during which the records recently given the University music department by the Carnegie Institute may be heard have been changed from morning and afternoon hours to afternoon and evening hours, it was announced yesterday by the University library, where the records are on file.

The records may now be heard from 2 to 5 o'clock in the afternoon and 7 to 9 o'clock at night. A phonograph has been installed in room 429 of the library for this purpose. A total of 945 records is available.

Failure To Address Is P. O. Headache

By LESLIE LEE JONES

A yellow piece of cardboard more commonly known as a postcard is slipped hastily through a slot marked letters. It falls amidst a pile of various shaped envelopes, and stops. A few days later, Sarah, a sophomore at the University, be-

DUKE UNIVERSITY SCHOOL OF MEDICINE DURHAM, N. C.

Four terms of eleven weeks are given each year. These may be taken consecutively (graduation in three and one quarter years) or three terms may be taken each year (graduation in four years). The entrance requirements are intelligence, character and at least two years of college work, including the subjects specified for Grade A medical schools. Catalogues and application forms may be obtained from the Dean.

pins to wonder why on earth the folks haven't sent the black taffeta evening wrap she so urgently requested on that postcard. This is only one of the minor complications that occur daily at the University postoffice, located in the basement of McVey hall. For according to Miss Carrie Bean, postmistress during the past 23 years, one of the most common mistakes made by students is that of failing to address their postcards. Merely "Dear Polks," signed Jack, will not go far, so if you failed to fill out the postmaster's card the day you registered, that card probably hasn't a chance.

Few students on the campus know that the University postoffice is really a busy place. It takes care of both University and government mail, including all registered mail, money orders, parcel post, first-class mail, air mail, special deliveries, and telegrams. Each student, with the exception of those who reside in the women's residence halls, has a box and receives all his or her notices, Kernels, and other University publications through this box. This year, due to the great increase in enrollment, the mail will be heavier than it has been for many years, consequently full cooperation on the part of every student is earnestly desired.

Over in Patti and Boyd halls Mrs. Ina McMonigle, has for ten years, "put-up" the mail for girls. She describes her job as interesting, yet trying. Until the new women students become accustomed to the fact, it is her weary duty to say every Monday afternoon, "No mail this afternoon, girls." On Sunday, the day that brings poignant memories of home, the girls eagerly await the arrival of the noon mail, which seldom fails to prove disappointing. And would you believe it, a few letters have been received addressed to Miss Patti Hall or Miss Boyd Hall!

Alabama's Crimson Tide is really rolling up an impressive record for the current football season. In seven games they have made 1848 yards from line of scrimmage or 264 yards a game. They have made a total of 97 first downs and scored 134 points to their opponent's 13.

The University of Cincinnati, Kentucky's old rival gained a total of 297 yards from the line of scrimmage against Ohio Wesleyan.
