Sunday Musicales Features Choral Skit By Phi Beta

"Mozart's Time" Presented by Honorary in Unique Vesper Program

By FRANK BURGER

After seeing "Mozart's Time," a choral skit presented by Phi Beta, honorary music and dramatic fraternity, we quite agree that "there's something about an old-fashioned girl." The program, given in Memorial hall Sunday at 4 p. m., was a scheduled feature of the present Sunday afternoon musical series, arranged by Prof. R. D. McIntyre.

Although we cannot endorse the performance as being of professional quality, nevertheless, it was well produced and greatly enjoyed by the vesper audience. Each of the Phi Beta members had some part in the production. The scores by Mary Lichthart contained several songs, all of the more enjoyable because seldom heard. Solos, duets, and choral numbers, interspersed with occasional instrumental pieces, were the program. Virginia Murrell was the musical director. Dramatics were supervised by Frances Reid.

Throughout the performance Eva Mae Nummelly and Martha Sue Durham were heard in a richly delicate violin-piano accompaniment. Honors for vocal work indisputably go to Mary Louise McKenna, whose charm of personality is second only to her lovely soprano voice. For dramatic ability we choose Clara Hughes and Helen Farmer as outstanding.

In spotting highlights of the show one cannot but mention the sensationally entertaining story of the love life of the "little French doll" with the empty head. The chorus was at its best in a song called "Friendship Is a Lovely Thing." The appearance of the costumes, styled in the pure, old-fashioned loveliness of the 18th century, added much to the program's beauty.

Next Sunday: The second appearance of the present musical concert band, directed by John Lewis.

Your Hit Parade Poll To Be Held

Maybe you still go ga-ga when you hear "Stardust" and "My Old Kentucky Home"—but what would you know if the newest song which you think is the tops in rhythm and lyrics. In other words, we're giving you the chance to vote on the popular hit that you rate as the current favorite on the campus.

The American Tobacco company, makers of Lucky Strike cigarettes, is sponsoring a collegiate poll to determine which songs are the favorites among college students in their ratings program, "Your Hit Parade," and would like to know what the Kentuckians are humming and whistling.

Turn in your ballot, with your favorite, into the post office box 100 and Wednesday, and will announce the winning popular songs in the Friday edition of the Kernel. Sign your ballot, and remember that it's one vote to a ballot. Ballot on page 3 of this issue.

Man From Missouri Says Leave Heavy Artillery Outside

Stage Hand's Job Proves to Be Dangerous One for Former U.K. Student

Missourians are evidently not familiar with the best traditions of Kentucky gentlemen, says Morton Collins, former U.K. student and assistant Kernel news editor, who is now attending the University of Missouri, was arrested for carrying concealed weapons.

A Columbia City detective saw him, late at night in a cafe, with a forty-five bulging out of his pocket. The flirty tapped him and wanted chapter and verse. "Oh, I have another one with me," nonchalantly replied Collins and dragged that one out, too.

Evidently regarding the future journalist as a dangerous character, the detective took him into custody for further questioning. At police headquarters he was given the second degree, only.

It seems that Collins is on the stage crew of a student dramatic society similar to "Strollers" and is in charge of the backstage hold. A member of the ROTC he has borrowed two army guns as properties. He was released after the police had waked the supply officer. The guns were kept overnight and Collins had to bring the supply officer down the next morning to get them.

Yes, his Mizrou nickname is "Two Gun" Collins.

Part II includes names of students registered for the first semester who reported on registration cards some change in address, phone number, or college.

BONES OF INDIAN ARE UNCOVERED

U. K. Museum Staff Photographs Grave; Bones Are Placed in Glass Case; No Artifacts Found

The bones of an Indian, probably a member of the Algonquin tribe, were uncovered by P.W.A. workers at Stoll field Friday, March 13. The grave, thought to be about three hundred years old, was found beneath the cinder path of the athletic field.

The Indian, whose skull and leg bones were still intact, was thought to have been approximately sixteen years old at the time of burial. Members of the department of anthropology at the University were unable to say whether it was a boy or girl.

The grave was noticed by W. T. Records, who immediately notified members of the University museum staff. Pictures of the grave were taken which will be removed to the museum where they will be assembled in a glass case by referring to the photograph.

This discovery brings to mind the finding last year of the grave of an Indian at Stoll field. It also renews the belief that Stoll field is a prehistoric burying ground of the Indians.

No artifacts were found in the grave.

HERE SHALL THE KERNEL ALL STUDENT RIGHTS MAINTAIN

THE HIGH SCHOOL TOURNAMENT

Thursday, Friday and Saturday of this week the campus will be favored with the presence of the outstanding secondary cage teams of the state.

These representatives of the various sections of the commonwealth will battle through the tournament in an effort to win the coveted championship.

Along with the members of the teams will come members of the student bodies of the various schools to cheer their classmates on to victory. The University will be host to a large group.

The impressions formed by these young representatives of these schools will be lasting ones. They will carry back with them to their communities either a favorable or unfavorable impression of higher education as exemplified at the University of Kentucky.

It is therefore our duty and our privilege as members of the student body to see that these younger aspirants in education receive every courtesy and every means of hospitality at our command in order that they may feel that they are welcome here and go home with a desire to pursue their higher education here at the University.

To our young high school visitors we say welcome; to the student body we say make them welcome.

FORUMS

Students understand what is meant by the term "Bull Session." All students have participated in at least one of them, and some people are so constituted that they are involved in one of these lengthy and incoherent discussions several times each week.

This exchange of ideas, however, has a remarkable tendency to educate. Opinions are invariably changed or strengthened after hearing the viewpoint of others. These meetings are not only beneficial, but are also enjoyable. Human nature demands the association of other people; society and public opinion require conformity to laws.

The University of Kentucky has recognized the need for an exchange of viewpoint, and there are a series of glorified "bull sessions" now available each Tuesday night in Patterson Hall. These discussions have become increasingly popular with students, as evidenced by the increase in attendance from year to year.

Many cities at present sponsor "Forums" in order that public opinion may be determined and discussed. Cities which have tried this system report that the arrangement is beneficial, and that informed groups are in a better position to effect reforms or to become good citizens because of the information that has been derived from open discussions.

FOOLS ON WHEELS

Is your car a killer? The Kernel, along with other publications, is attempting to call attention to the amazing slaughter which takes place each year owing to automobile accidents and other mishaps in which the automobile figures prominently.

Last year 36,000 people were killed in motorcar accidents in this country, and 864,000 were injured. Carelessness was the cause of this horrible death toll; yet, we can't blame solely the motorist, for both motorists and pedestrians are responsible.

Here we submit the greatest man-made destruction of limb and life ever recorded outside of war. So far as we Americans are concerned, not even war has inflicted so heavy a toll.

Worse still, we seem to be making very little headway in our efforts to reduce the number of deaths and injuries. According to the Travelers

Insurance Company, the number killed in 1935, 36,000, was approximately the same as in 1934. The record was actually worse last year for the reasons that the rate of death per accident increased nearly 7 per cent. We had fewer but worse accidents in 1935.

Driving errors were involved in two-thirds of the 828,000 accidents reported. Carelessness in driving killed 24,000 people. So far as the facts show, the terrific tragedies of previous years have taught us very little. Apparently more carelessness was exhibited last year than ever before.

In years past, numerous experiments in safe traffic control have been undertaken and abandoned. First we had laws and ordinances which established ridiculously low speed limits. These limits were ignored because they were ridiculous. Most of these ancient laws and ordinances have been repealed or tacitly ignored by enforcement authorities.

We must establish some effectual discipline for motorists. It is absurd to wait until a reckless driver has killed someone before depriving him of his license. Much sharper inspection of driving practices must be established, and those whose road habits are clearly a source of danger must be prohibited the use of the road.

The motorist isn't the only reckless user of the roads. Pedestrians have their share of responsibility. In fact, figures indicate that at least half the adult pedestrians killed in automobile accidents failed to exercise due care.

Reckless pedestrians and reckless motorists alike are responsible. The motorcar is an indispensable tool of our civilization, but we have not learned how to use it without incurring incalculable losses of life, health and property. The present waste is tragic and intolerable, and it should not be allowed to continue.

REAL PLAYS?

Lexington has long enjoyed the reputation of being a cultured town. For decades her churches, industries, schools and colleges have produced an environment which is the envy of most southern cities. The present generation, now denied the entertainment of the legitimate stage, has opportunity to rival the "old days," and again to witness great presentations of outstanding plays.

At one time, Lexington was known as "the best one-night stand in America." This was not an empty title. It was true. Stock companies rivaled each other for the right to play to the appreciative audiences of this city. The advent of the moving picture, and the World War were responsible for a great deal of indifference to the stage, and led finally to the total discontinuance of the plays.

Operas, symphony orchestras and ballets have also vanished along with the stage productions. At present there is a revival of interest. Concert artists are being heard in Lexington in connection with the movement in other cities. Nothing, however, has been done to alleviate the plight of the play.

The management of the Opera House has announced that it will bring a first-rate road show to Lexington if sufficient interest is manifested by the citizens. In this case, it is the duty of all playgoers to support the movement. If the plan is adopted, actors will begin to grace our stage in person. Their shadows will blend with those of another day. Charles Timblin's "Jeeter Lester" will pave the way for others to add their voices to those such great actors as Sara Bernhard, Maude Adams, Alice Brady, William Gillette, Richard Mansfield and all the others in the host who have played to capacity houses here.

The Kernel advocates that University of Kentucky students support this movement to revive plays on the legitimate stage. The value of such entertainment to the cultural and social background of the student is positive.

You can teach an old dog new tricks, say Stanford University psychologists. Age has little to do with learning, and one can learn almost as easily at 50 as at 20.

Four University of Pennsylvania students have been put on probation because of a poem deemed "sacrilegious" which appeared in the campus literary magazine.

Seven members of the Williams College football team are on the dean's list of high ranking scholars.

Envy says that he is too busy to write his column and for me to try again to please the public. Dear Sir, I know I was doing the wrong thing when I climbed out of bed early this mornin' and did all my studying. Never content to leave well enough alone.

The Kappa dance the tops. Not too crowded, not too "sticky" according to the jargon used in an editorial in the last issue of the Kernel. I staggered and then had the privilege of havin' the sixth no-break. Did I enjoy it? Rawther! The report of the 1,008 balloons and the 15 miles of crepe paper used for decorations, like Mark Twain's death, was slightly exaggerated.

Dwight McMahn says that he is top man in the triangle. How about it, Brown? Jack May and "Six" Craft dining the Tuscarora Inn. A nice place to go on Sunday nights. Good food and excellent service. How about it, "Six"? "Forgive me for that remark I made to you at the Pikap dance?"

Is it easy for you to remember names? You know I have been a busy time at that sort of thing. All Joes are Bills and all Smiths are Joneses. Makes it rather embarrassing when I'm trying to make an introduction. Which brings me around to the little story of a sure-fire method of remembering names. Mac, a Scotchman and Mike, an Irishman met on a street corner one day. "Hi, Mike," said that queried Mac, "how do you account for your remarkable ability to remember names?" "Share with me that," returns Mike. "You see it's like this, I make the name of the person rhyme with something familiar to myself. For instance, here comes Mr. Hummock. Now Mac, what rhymes with Hummock? Why, stomach of course." All went well until about a week later. Mac met Mr. Hummock on the street and said to himself, "The name rhymes with something very familiar to me, what is it? Hoot mon, I have it. Good morning to you, Mr. Kelly," well, anyway it illustrates the point.

News reel "The World Today" really started the box moving. Where are we headed and how soon will we arrive? "Society" makes us subjects a race track if they win the war. What will be gained by that? They lose either way. Unique description—a car so new that it smells. "Don't ever try to read the musical score of 'Fanny' for a book to read. It can't be done. Get the book, ahead of time. Have you ever stopped to think how much of a world of your own that you live in while at college. Your interests are the same as those with whom you associate, during your play and your work. Your environment is very different from that of the home. It is the outside world. It is an existence you have only so long as you are in school. Make the most of it. 'Twill be gone before you know it. It brings a lump into the throats of all of us who are about to begin in spite of our callous statements to the contrary. Have you somebody tell me if WLV is still featuring "Dreary Blues" and on what night and time it comes. Next to "Moon River" it's my favorite program of the type. For a good b... laugh listen in to the "True Story" program, on Sunday night from 8:30 to 9:30. Sex-puty is the worst enemy of humanity. No one will ever succeed who cannot rise above his personal feelings. What kick do people get out of studying on a date, especially when they are pined. Wish I knew that Vachel Lindsay's "Congoo" appeals to me in a way that no other poem does. I'm passing along the first part of it to you, hoping that you will be aroused enough to read the rest of it.

Pat black bucks in a wine-barrel room. Barrel-house kings, with feet unshakable. Saggid and reeled and pounded on the table. Pounded on the table, Beat an empty barrel with the handle of a broom, Haul as they were able, Boom, boom, BOOM. With a silk umbrella and the handle of a broom, Boomlay, boomlay, boomlay, BOOM THEN I had religion, THEN I had a vision. I could not turn from their revel in derision. THEN I SAW THE CONGO, CREEPING THROUGH THE BLACK. CUTTING THROUGH THE JUNGLE WITH A GOLDEN TRACK. The most beautiful music I ever heard was that of a gang of Negroes, working on a highway, here in Kentucky. They say the songs sung by the sledgeors, on the levees, are excellent, too. Guess I'll know when summer comes. "Paragraphs" tells us that one of the pages of the Kernel when locked in form, weighs 200 pounds. Heavy literature, huh? Ed Carder, former University student, was in town the other day to get a hair cut. He needed it. Ed, left school at end of the first semester and is now making, none of your business, a month's wage, continually for the WLV programs. Maughan says that, "Modestly is a genuine virtue." How about it, girls? He goes on to say quite a lot about virtue but I'll save that for the Senior edition. Anything goes there. Edwin Sweeney is ace. He knows his way around and gets around. I'm told that he is very fond of horse-back riding. By the way, Sweeney, have you bumped into her out at the Cavalry club yet? March seems to be the month of high winds and Founders' Days. Sixteen high school basketball teams have hurdled the second obstacle in sixteen regions and will be enroute to Lexington tomorrow to start the final drive toward their annual goal, the state championship, in the tournament which opens in Alumni gym on Thursday afternoon.

Only four of the schools which were represented last year will be on Thursday. St. Xavier, defending champion, passed up the state tournament to defend their national Catholic crown at Chicago.

Midway took the Lexington district trophy by defeating Lexington Henry Clay and continued on by taking the Blue Devils again the regional joust at Richmond. The Woodford county team is reputed to have a tricky offensive with a group of fine ball-handlers, and may spring a surprise this week-end.

Ashland, one of the annual favorites for state honors, fell by the wayside in the fourteenth region, being eliminated by the winner in the semifinal round. Russell took the final in that region.

Dee, one of last year's more colorful teams, took Betsy Layne in the Prestonburg region, to advance to the final. The team's victories at Dee are not the finest and according to reports, the team does much of its practicing on an outdoor court. Last year, Dee had a husky club which lacked experience and this season they may have the polish necessary to take back the title to the mountains.

DuPont Manual High school will represent the Louisville region for the first time in several years. In the past few years, St. Xavier and Male High have dominated the play in the preliminary tournaments but with the Catholic team out of play and Male upset in the district meet, Manual had little trouble in battling its way to the local affair.

Coach Rice Mountjoy's Danville Admirals and Coach Blue Foster's Newport squad once again fought their way through the district to gain a place in the starting lineup Thursday. Both these teams were chief contenders last year and both are reported to have at least a few prospects this year.

There will be plenty of rosters in town for each of the clubs to play with the possible exception of Kirksby and Nebo which will come here from the far side of the state, but if either of these clubs which seems to be without too many partisans, shows any promise of reaching the finals, there will be a host of unattached spectators from the University who will delight in cheering the winners. Every year some team catches the fancy of the crowd which has no particular favorite, Manual has been on the aspect of the "dark horse."

Manual will have its share of Louisville supporters in the stands, probably led by Sherman Hinkle, than whom there is no greater Manual supporter. Sam and Lexie Peter and J. Gay Webb will be on hand to root for Whitesburg while Abby Ayles will see to it that Corbin gets a tremendous cheering mob. A whole raft of adherents with the large group of University students from Kenton and Campbell counties.

Maybe all the cheering will help win a ball game.

INTRAMURAL

By BILLY EVANS

Only one upset marked the opening of the intramural basketball elimination tourney, which will decide the University championship. The Sigma Chi, Phi Delta, and Phi Sigma won as expected with the Delta pulling a slight upset by defeating the S. A. E.'s in an overtime contest.

The Sigma Chi, pre-tourney favorites, had quite a job defeating the Phi Tau team. The final score read 16 to 14. The losers flashed their same excellent defense which has characterized them throughout the year. Especially fine games on the defense were turned in by their two stellar guards, Coleman and Dunn, in holding the two forwards of the Sigma Chi team to one field goal between them. The winners again turned in a fine exhibition of ball handling and their superior height and experience coupled with the shooting of their guard, Butler, who was high point man, registering three field goals and one foul shot for a total of seven markers, meant defeat for their opponents.

In another close game the Phi Delta won from the Alpha Sigma by the score of 13 to 11. The winners again failed to show enough scoring punch to make them formidable in the final analysis of the tourney. To date they have not been as brilliant but as was characteristic of their championship team last year, W. Hillenmeyer led the attack for the victors registering seven points, three fouls, and Shotwell was high with four.

The Delta defeated the S. A. E.'s in the only overtime contest of the evening, by the score of 16 to 14. This winning team has developed rapidly since their early defeat at the hands of the Phi Tau, and might prove quite a powerful se-

Ralph Emerson, "Mighty" Carlisle, star forward of the basketball team, is a graduate of the Kavanaugh High school of Lawrenceburg, the school that has produced such athletic stars as Paul McBrayer, Forest Sale, and "Mac" Borries. And now we have "Mighty" Mr. and Mrs. Carlisle's favorite and only son is 21 years old, 6 feet and one inch tall, and weighs 168 pounds... a junior in the Arts and Science college, and a major in his history.

Ralph had a task of upholding the level in athletics set by his predecessor. Last year he was unable to break into the starting lineup until the latter part of the season when an injured hand forced him to wear a cast. He was not to be long till the military parades start... all courting off between the girls on this campus. "Won't be long till the military parades start... all courting off between the girls on this campus."

April 9-14... The Kappa dance, most original and best of the social season was very "blue." Blue music, blue costumes and beautiful blue decorations... Girls attending boarding schools seem to make very good astronomers... A beautiful sight... a little white cottage with green shutters... Most beautiful lovers lane in Fayette county... Walnut Hill road... Fins.

The Kappa Kappa Gamma formal decorations for Phi Delta Theta was a great success; this is, up to the last ten minutes, when some type phobias apparently pervaded the minds of many of the so-called university men and caused them to completely wreck any vestige of a decoration, and even then this was not quite enough, attempted to burn down the gymnasium. Say I am going to stay away, because I had such a nice little paragraph telling how Evelyn Carroll was falling for that mushy old line of "Honeybeats" Caywood.

Rescue Me Coach Dick Robinson takes things just as they come. He insists that he must not go out for spring football practice because he must rest up for the Junior team. Quarterback Robbie says, "when in doubt, punt."

Bears Charmed Life Jack Crain, while enroute to the recent tournament in Knoxville almost lost a leg. He was not recognized by a fellow Leairer cousin as they passed each other. Crain gave the peace sign (fingers about the nose) that it was understood and so the crazy mountaineer took a shot at poor Jack. Crain was afraid to return over the same road, so he came back on the train.

Chemistry Element—when it comes to Physical properties... Rather pale in appearance; usually coated with dusky film of aboriginal hue. Weight varies with creator's taste; specimen usually tries to keep it low. Specific heat also varies with specimen; however no specimen has constant specific heat. As Burd winkle says, "It depends on the fire-render." The element is a gaseous solid, usually filled with hot air.

Chemical properties... The element adheres closely to stone such as diamonds, rubies, sapphires, and emeralds. Peculiar with this species is its tendency to cling to gold. Reacts violently to heat; reacts violently when left alone. Turns green when placed beside better similar element. Capacity for food enormous. (Selected)

A Suggestion It looks like spring is here to stay. The new fad around the sorority houses is skating. Mr. Hackensmith, don't you think the intramural department could sponsor a skate meet. Some Saturday afternoon would be ideal. I'm sure all the girls would turn out to see their heroes do tricks on the wheels.

Poi Shots Dick Boyd is one of those "silent" powerhouses... Bill Spicer's middle name is Harold... Milton Magruder is engaged. Kelly is her name; in another June bride... Hatford Langan has a laugh like a mule... Bruce Davis claims that some day he will be active manager of the University Hillenmeyer nurseries... what about this Bain... Bill Heath is much interested in school this semester.

REGIONAL BASKETBALL CHAMPS TO START TITLE PLAY THURSDAY

By MAX LANCASTER

Three of the teams that reached the semi-finals of last year's tourney—Newport, Inez, and Danville—were victorious in their final regional games Saturday and will be represented in the 1936 Kentucky Interscholastic Basketball championship race which begins at the Alumni gymnasium Thursday afternoon.

St. Xavier, the champion of 1935, will not defend its title this year, choosing to play in the National Catholic tournament which is now in progress at Chicago. Newport, runners-up to Xavier last year, had easy sailing Saturday night against Erlanger in the tenth, and are favored by some to cop the '36 state crown. Danville, the team that was eliminated by Newport in one of the semi-final games, has had little difficulty through either the district or regional tournaments, and defeated McKimley last week for the title of the 22 to 15, Inc. the other semi-finalist of last year, won its title game at the expense of West of Lewis 22 to 19, and will represent the fifteenth.

In the other thirteen regions nearly every winner is a newcomer this year, and some of them have never reached the State tournament before.

Many upsets were recorded during the three days of regional play and some of the teams that were picked to go far in the State had been eliminated by comparatively weak teams in early round play. Male, Ashland, Hazard, Kavanaugh, Paducah, and Tolu were some of the favorites who failed to reach the state meet.

An announcement was made Saturday by J. Rice Mountjoy, president of the State Coaches association, that the drawings for the State tournament will be held at the Phoenix hotel Wednesday evening. Tournament play will start Thursday afternoon at 2 p. m. and continue through Saturday night when the State champion will be crowned. All games will be held in Alumni gymnasium.
