POST CARD

Hi -

You can't begin to tell, even from the card how beautiful this place is and everything about it.
Having a grand time

Really wish you both could be here. Love, Dilly & Jay

was such a little bit, but remember that is every 2 hrs and they will up the amount today.

Her incision is about 1 1/2 in long just below the belt line on the right side and it is just a hair line - no cut up cankers. Also Glaser said she was in wonderful condition for the operation - cause we caught it before she really started to lose weight. We get to bring her home either tomorrow or Friday and no special care will be needed.

Everybody in Anchoage came down to try and take the place of my secret mamma, they helped but didn't come close to filling your place. Daddy, Mrs. Paxton, Coogie, Bactara, Alice, Motherbird, Mr. Board, Mary, and Mity were all there. Mr. Board got there before the operation and stayed till it was over. He followed me around like a puppy dog - even talked to the Drs. with us.

So that is what happened and we are all fine though it was one hell of a few days and I aged 100 yrs. I went to the Dr. yesterday and everything is fine so back when Laurie is 6 months old.

Wait to get this in the 1800 mail so will write again later. Have a wonderful time and stop woken about us.
All my love Jay and Laurie

Dear Mamma,

Here is the story from the start. You remember how Marie kept saying Laurie spit up so much and that she didn't eat Friday, well when she did start eating she would only take 2oz 2 1/2 at the most and in a few minutes all that would come up. Not just running out of her mouth but out on the floor. Saturday was the same way so we thought maybe the nipples were bad so Jay went and got so cross cut nipples. We kept saying that the next time she spit up we would call the doctor, but never did thought we just had a spitter. Well, Sunday we were all dressed to go to the fyers and I went in to get Laura dressed and she had spit up a whole lot in her bed and then again on to the floor when I picked her up so we called Glaser. He said to put her on sugar water - we did and up it came. Then she brought some suppositories by, but they didn't help cause there was nothing left to clean out. Gave her another sugar water bottle at 10:00 (Sun. night) and she projectile vomited that too so we called Glaser again and he said to meet him at the office in 20 min. We took her down there and he checked her from head to toe and couldn't find anything. Then he had me give her a bottle of sugar water while he pushed her Stomach. He felt a small lump like and olive and said he thought it was pyloric stenosis. He sent us on down to the hospital so they could feel her intestines and X-ray Mon. morning to be sure. Monday morning they took the X-rays and they say yes. So about 10:45 she went into surgery, Dr. Sergeant operating. The operation, itself, only took about 20-30 minutes. recovery room 1/2 hr. Jay and I saw her go from the operating room to recovery and she was awake just looking around and very peaceful, later we went on the elevator down to the nursery with her and she was sound a sleep, color just as pink as ever. About four o'clock she started giving her sugar water and she kept it down - she had three of those then went to half strength milk and is now on full strength 1oz every 2 hrs. I know that 1oz sounds
