

'Cats, "Rebounding" From Vol Defeat, Meet Tough Xavier Quintet Tonight

Craig and Bliss, First Line Reserves, Will Probably See Plenty of Action

By MAX LANCASTER The sedate Kentucky never loses two basketball games in a row will be tested when the powerful Xavier Musketeers visit the Kentucky Wildcats on the floor of Alumni gymnasium tonight at 8 o'clock in the second encounter between these two institutions.

Kentucky heretofore has always rebounded after a stinging defeat and registered surprising victories over some stronger foes. The Musketeers will endeavor to prove that the Wildcats can lose two games straight.

In the previous game played between the Cats and the Muskies at Cincinnati, early in January, the Kentucky team was hard pressed to edge out a 36-32 victory.

All superlatives, predictions or what have you point to a Wildcat victory tonight. In the first game between these two teams, Kentucky was rebounding from their defeat at the hands of the NYU Violets.

Two Wildcat "bench warmers," Roy Craig and Courtland Bliss, may see plenty of action tonight due to the poor showing of the Kentucky forward line last week.

The Musketeers have two clever performers in Leo Sack and Russ Swerney, both forwards. Sack is one of the most clever cagers to perform in Ohio, and Kentucky fans will see an artist tonight that will bring back memories of the days of Dave Lawrence, former Wildcat ace forward.

RULES, RULES, RULES

Rules, rules, and still more rules—such is typical in regard to the restrictions and regulations regarding the conduct of girls at the University.

Not only are these regulations so voluminous that no one could possibly live within them at all times unless she carried a copy of them with her and looked up the "answers" to the various situations in which she found herself, but a large number of them are antiquated and overlapping. To cite a couple of examples: "Sec. 2. B. Radios may be run during quiet hours so long as they are not heard outside the room.

Another example: "Sec. 5. Lights Out. A. Upperclassmen are required to put out their lights by 12:00 p. m. B. Freshmen are required to put out their lights by 11:00 p. m."

The above examples are just a few of the many; at the same time they are notable. They represent a situation which does exist and which sincerely calls for remedy.

The past decade has witnessed the passing of a large number of rules and regulations with regard to college life; students and faculty alike have come more and more to feel that the student should be given more responsibility in taking care of himself in order that college may be a training ground for life.

The Kernel does not advocate the abolishment of all rules regarding life of women students at the University; it does feel, however, that worthwhile revisions of the present rules could be made and more liberal attitudes taken on a number of questions.

When a student has demonstrated her ability to take care of herself she should be granted privileges in keeping with that ability. Why should a sophomore who has made an academic standing of 2 the previous semester be allowed to use her time as she sees fit only on week-end? Why not grant the privileges of the next class to a freshman or sophomore who has done her academic work well the previous semester?

We present this criticism with the idea of aiding in a much-needed revision of the present rules, leading to a more liberal and college-life interpretation. It is hoped that an arrangement more satisfactory to faculty and students alike may be reached.

BOO YOURSELF!

What used to be a somewhat comical situation, indulged in only by a few who desired nothing more than to attract a little attention to themselves, has by its own momentum, grown until it has now reached serious proportions.

We refer to the practice of "booing" every decision of officials against the home team by University students.

Granting the fact that sometimes the officiating at various athletic contests is not all it should be, it does not excuse those students who vent their displeasure by letting loose a loud and lusty "boo" everytime they feel that the decision is even slightly controversial.

A fast game of basketball lends itself admirably to this practice. Decisions must necessarily be called at short intervals and a first-class boer has a chance to come into his own. Also, an enclosed building, such as the gymnasium, insures the excellent acoustical qualities that his outbursts need and warrant.

There is one thing of which The Kernel is certain: If this practice continues, as it has recently, the Kentucky student body and the entire University is certain to acquire a reputation for being unsportsmanlike in their attitude toward athletics and those things for which a hard, fair athletic contest stand.

The Blue and White Orchestra was chosen by the Columbia Broadcasting Company to present their annual Pre-Derby Program over their entire network in May, 1935. Appearing on this program with The Blue and White Orchestra was Mrs. Elizabeth Dangerfield, owner of the famous race horse, Man O' War.

Hoi Polloi

By special permission of all the deans and trustees of the university we are going to present this column to you Friday written by a good. The last girl to write it went haywire and was almost expelled but we have this one's assurance that she will be good. Incidentally, I forgot to tell you her idea of being good was.)

Not So Dumb About six months ago when Sigismach "Poots" Buntain was asked for his opinion of Rowena Taylor he said, "It's a good thing 'th' Lord give her looks cause he forgot everything else." Now he courts her madly and calls her his "dream girl." Good how women breed inconsistency.

Our Perennial Freshman Perhaps the prize for persistence should go to Chio Anne Stevenson. Yep, she's back in school for her fourth year as a freshman. She told us to be a special student and we agree.

Another Marriage We read in the papers that Blanche Griffin and Ralph Kercheval were married last Sunday morning. At this time we would like to offer them a wish for much happiness and many little happinesses.

Facing Mr. Crosby The romance between Agnes Gilbert and Jerry Holstein is rapidly emerging from the embryonic stage. By Spring we prophesy love in bloom, or something.

Embarrassing Moment No. 1 We hear from Baril Baker that Jimmy "Bud" Anderson and Elizabeth Anne Ligon underwent an embarrassing few minutes at the KD in the hands of a woman over a question of feminine contours.

Moon River It's all wrong boys, instead of being cold and sophisticated the Kappas are just a sweet innocent bunch of romantic girls. Why, every night they turn off all their lights, light a little blue candle and sigh to the strains of Moon River which is broadcast from Cincinnati. But we suspect that it is really Uncle Henry's Original Kentucky Mountaineers to whom they listen.

Attempted Blackmail It is our belief that Hess just wanted to get his name in this column again or wish to be mentioned to warn me against putting his name with Betty Murphy's. But don't worry, we'll kick you, Bob.

Wilma's Valentine Another Valentine's day has come and gone and the sweetest valentine we have heard of was received by Wilma Bush from her true love. As follows: My, what GREAT BIG BOOPFUL MY EYES.

Song #11 Phi Alpha Delta, over in the law college, reports that as they pledged all the good men the beginning of this semester, we should dedicate to "Dance For One, Please James" to their lowly rivals, the Phi Delta Phis.

Answer Yes or No Will Frank "Fanny" Caywood please explain what he was doing on the back steps of the Omega house about midnight one night last week? And while we are on the subject of the Maddox sisters it gives us great pleasure to report that sister Lucy's reserve was finally broken up by a clever boy who told her to close her eyes and put her hands in her lap. Then the boy kissed her. It was a fine idea although the boy was run out of the house by Lucy. Believe it or not she is sweet sixteen, etc. (i. e. she was)

Efficiency Expert Needed Why doesn't someone suggest a way to relieve the congestion on the inside steps in the north side of McVey hall between hours? And how to keep cokes in the Commons from getting "flat" between the time one buys it and goes back to a table.

Big Joke The best one of the week was overheard at the President's Ball in Paris last Friday night. The woman: "You remind me so much of my husband." John D. Haggard: "Where is he?" T. H.: "He's dead."

Stargazing If this column is still in existence six years from now we want to make the prediction that the columnist will be throwing roses at a table.

SHOP SIGHTS By BETTY EARLE

There's something not quite logical about this time sitting here, looking at the snow from the snow and trying to tell you all about the latest spring styles! Well, genius is only one step from imbecility, they say.

Down at Mitchell, Baker, and Smith's they had a vegetable plait to SUIT a queen—a black manish tailored one-button jacket, dark gray pleated skirt of something like sharkskin, gray cut-out oxford strapped across the instep, a black grained leather purse, gray gloves, hose, and hat, as well as a white silk scarf with a hand-pleated edge.

Back up the street at Baynham's I ran onto a keen bargain in hosiery—a 78¢ special—and they're practically the same quality as the $1.35 hose. The two weights are sheer and service-armor socks, so you won't walk through them the first time you step out of the house. The shades are smoky, a neutral color, Parle beige for pastels and light shades. Ottoway mist for gray accessories, best safe for brown. And in the better hose, Gordon suggests a 3 or 7-thread semi-sheer stocking for "heavy duty" wear; a 4-thread sheer and service-armor chignon for formal afternoon or evening clothes. Baynham's have them in light shades—Charm, a warm light brown for early spring wear with dark background prints; Frolic, a beige-ish sort of color to wear with navy; the spring-hedges, brown, early prints and deep pastels—also for contrast wear with gray, if brown accent colors are used; Discreet, a light neutral tangle of tailored wools in black, navy, grayed blue or wine; Coquette, a suntan for white, pink, aqua, and the peach to sprig tones.

Baynham's also took a night off and have decorated their windows with the earliest spring styles, so their feet are right out where you will trip over them. We're to go a bit radical this season—the old conventional styles are out and all the points we once not so long ago taboored are very much in the swim. Cabardine, a new light weight suede called bucko, and patent leathers are to be used—but very few kid leathers. Patent is being used for the whole shoe as well as the trim. Cabardine is used with kid to modernize. Bucko is the reverse side of calf and will be very comfortable for early spring wear—not too warm as some of you may imagine. The latest is the iridescent patent—a dressed up kind—and believe it or not, it's colored in high pastel shades. No shoe is extremely feminine this year—all of them are served in some way. For instance, dress shoes are high-heeled but with square toes. In sport shoes, heels are square. The colors are sand, blue, gray, and tan. A striking combination that promises to be popular is that of rust with natural, which is the inside of calfskin. Saks Fifth Avenue has introduced a new shade called Terra. Cotta by them and British tan by others—not the old dead looking color, but a live tan.

The meeting of Chi Delta Phi, scheduled for Tuesday night, has been postponed until next week.

On Military

JOSEPH S. AMES, President JOHN'S HOPKINS UNIVERSITY

To the best of my knowledge, the influence of this Corps has been in every way satisfactory. Participation in the Corps is entirely voluntary with our students, and yet the number of young men who join remains very high, and the quality of young men it attracts is, I think, the best we have among our undergraduate students.

We have always had extremely competent and fine officers detailed from the Army, and their influence throughout the whole University has been good. The class-work has been admirable, and of high college standards. Inquiry from many of the young men who have taken part in the organization convinces me that they have obtained a great deal of good from an educational standpoint in their work.

The effect upon the morale of the students has been in no way lessening, and indeed good to say of the system. The statement is often made that the operation of the system enforces militarism, whatever it may mean. I have never noticed any trace of this, however.

ROBERT S. SHAW, President MICHIGAN STATE COLLEGE

I have always been strongly in favor of required military training for freshman and sophomore men students at Michigan State College. By far too many American boys fail to appreciate the significance of discipline and obedience. If they do not learn to understand what these things mean at all in the elementary schools, it is time for the colleges to give them a proper impression.

I feel, too, that it is a good thing to train a boy to get his chin off his boom, assume a manly bearing, look the world fairly and squarely in the face and be prepared to face the problems of life in a serious way. Military Science, as taught in the schools of this age, is not a provocative, but a preventative war.

RAY LYMAN WILBUR, President STANFORD UNIVERSITY

Our experience at Stanford with the courses in Military Science associated with the Reserve Officers' Training Corps has been very satisfactory. These courses are on a voluntary basis. Since the establishment of our units in Field Artillery and Ordnance there has been a close relationship between the faculty of the School of Engineering and the staff of the ROTC.

I think those students who have taken the work in Military Training have profited materially from it. At the same time they have taken a new attitude toward their responsibilities as citizens and are in a position, in case of need, to serve their country along military lines.

JAMES M. SMITH, President LOUISIANA STATE UNIVERSITY

I feel that the training that a young man gets in the ROTC is of inestimable value to him. Not only does this training provide the country with a minimum of trained officers in case of a major emergency, but it does for the individual even a greater thing. It accustoms him to obey authority, to respect the rights of others and finally to exercise leadership. In addition to inculcating these thoroughly wholesome habits and proper attitude it also guarantees a minimum, at least of wholesome physical exercise. The ROTC unit at this University certainly has my support.

Fresh from last Saturday's home victory over Ohio Wesleyan's Battling Bishops, Coach Clem Crowe and his Xavier Musketeers ride into Lexington today prepared to take their season's last stand against Kentucky in the Alumni gym tonight.

The Wildcats will have two or three advantages over Clem Crowe's club. In the first place, Kentucky will be defending the only record they have salvaged from the present campaign, that of consistent wins on their home grounds. The very fact that Kentucky is playing at home is an advantage and, then, too, the Cats hold one decision over the Crowe men already this year.

However, with all these odds seemingly against them, Xavier is certain to battle to the last and with why Clem Crowe guiding them, may give the Kentuckians more than many of the customers' money. Tonight's game is Xavier's last of the year and they would like nothing better than to crown their fairly successful season with a win over Kentucky, probably their most powerful rival.

Lexingtonians who did not witness the first meeting between the 'Cats and Musketeers will get an equal view when they give the defense the once-over. In their own pajamas last night, the Musketeers threw a big scare into the new local patron's present, with apparently unorthodox tactics. Not content with the conventional man-to-man defense, Coach Crowe's men went far into Kentucky's backcourt to pick up their opponents and kept the Cats continually off balance during most of the evening. It took a sustained rally, featuring some long distance heaving in the farfield luncheon, to finally enable Coach rupp's ball tossers to get the decision.

If that last game is an indication of what may happen tonight, the best thing you could do is mull over to the gym and take in the contest. Coach Crowe may have a new trick or two to experiment with or maybe Kentucky will want to do something about taking away the sting of the Tennessee trimming and vent some accumulated ire on the Xaviers. Anyway, it is recommended entertainment.

Kentucky's fledgling boxing team brought its season to a close last Saturday night, losing to West Virginia's Mountaineers, 6-2. The final score fails to indicate just how close the match was, however, and according to reports the Wildcat pugilists gave a good account of themselves against one of the nation's top-ranking squads.

Jimmy Wadlington and Joe Moore punched their way to Kentucky's two victories while Buddy Curry and Bob Forsythe threw enough punches to earn what the remainder of the Kentucky team figured might be at least a draw. Of course their teammates might have been a bit biased, but they believed that Curry and Forsythe held up their end in fit fashion. Wadlington's win was scored over the Mountaineer captain, who was puzzled by Jimmy's southpaw style. Moore outpunched his opponent for a clean cut margin of victory.

Although participating in only two matches, because of the difficulty in making a schedule, the Kentucky pugilists' season may be considered as successful. The boys gained a lot of experience in their two matches against Tennessee and West Virginia and interest was aroused so much that next year the Wildcats should be represented by an excellent team. With at least three home contests, local fans will have plenty of opportunity to witness intercollegiate boxing.

Coach Bill Hanson did a great job with the material he worked with and should be heartily commended for his efforts. He kept the boys hard at work and made them like it which is something in itself. Next year he will give Kentucky a real team, make no mistake about that.

tucky lad, thinking he had the bout won, merely coasted in the final round, only to see the referee raise his opponent's glove as the sign of victory for the West Virginia man. Bob's hobby is horse racing.... like swimming.... just "krazy" 'bout Italian spaghetti.... has a dog named Blue.... likes girls with curves and dimples—former more important.... favorite actress, Marlene Dietrich, next to a Tri Dell.... If anyone knows where Bob got his nickname, "Blue Nose," and would like to earn a milk shake easily, kindly make it known. He says that this will never be disclosed.

U K FROSH DOWN CUMBERLAND 40-22

The University of Kentucky freshmen basketball team defeated Cumberland College of Williamsburg 40-22 last Saturday for their third win in three nights despite the fact that Coach Jim Bowser's Cumberland cagers stayed with the fast traveling Kentucky freshmen up until the last twelve minutes of play when they pulled away to comfortable lead.

McBryner's well-trained lads took a six point lead early in the game and were leading 17-9 at the half. They did not reach a comfortable margin till the middle of the second half. The kittens have an enviable record this season having lost but one game, that to the Georgetown College frosh.

Adams led the winners attack on the offense but Thompson, Hodge and Opper also turned in good performances, the defensive and floor work of the latter two being especially good. Stiner was outstanding for Cumberland.

Japanese soldiers, in training, are made to practice in light clothing them—a no evil hr shr rdru in a rigorous climate to inure themselves to hardships and cold. The New York Times newspaper has not had a factual or a proof mistake in any of its columns, that has been discovered as yet, for a number of years.

RUPP COACHED TEAM BOWS FOR FIRST TIME TO TENNESSEE

For the first time since Coach Adolph Rupp became basketball mentor here at the University, the powerful Tennessee Volunteers were victorious over the Wildcats in the annual game clash between these two traditional rivals at Knoxville Saturday night, 39 to 23.

This defeat was the second loss for the Kentuckians within the Southeastern Conference loop this season. Vanderbilt defeated the Cats at Nashville earlier in the season.

The Wildcats battled on even terms with the Volunteers until the last five minutes of play. At this point, Alvin Rice, sophomore forward for the Vols, and former Ashland High Tomcat, tossed in three successive field goals, from about 25 feet away, and sank one free throw to place the Tennesseeans in a commanding 35 to 20 lead.

This barrage of baskets broke the Wildcats' spirit and although they fought desperately they could not overcome the lead.

"Red" Hagan was high point man for the Wildcats with nine markers. Corforth also played an excellent game for Kentucky. The outstanding man on the floor Saturday night was Floyd Marshall, slender Vol forward, who brushed the nets for a total of 17 points. He also played an excellent floor game.

Kentucky got off to a fast start in the first half of the game when Anderson and Hagan sank a field goal apiece. Marshall kept the Vols in the running but they trailed the Cats at half time by 17 to 16. This surprise victory practically clinched Tennessee as one of the eight teams that will participate in the Southeastern Conference basketball tournament to be played in Knoxville February 28 to March 3. Other teams will probably be Kentucky, Vanderbilt, Auburn, the two Mississippi teams, with the two remaining positions wide open. Alabama has a good chance of gaining entrance as has Louisiana State, co-holder with Kentucky for the Conference crown last year.

'CAT PUGILIST'S DROP LAST MATCH

Kentucky's varsity boxing team brought its season to a close last Saturday night, losing a 6-2 match to the University of West Virginia at Morgantown.

In beating Kentucky, the Mountaineers preserved their unbeaten record and advanced another step toward the national title to which they were runners-up last season. Joe Moore, battling in the light heavyweight division, and Jimmy Wadlington, Kentucky's 165-pound southpaw, were the only Wildcats to score victories. Bob Forsythe and Buddy Curry dropped such close decisions that even the home crowd
