EMILY HARDIN

TO YOUTH

Do as you will and go where you will. Be cruel. Or compassionate, ignorant or wise. Still you remain the one essential fuel. That life needs for his flaming wardies.

Be arrogant as only fools can be. Cocksure and ruthless, boasting as a prince. Still you remain the honeyed savory life needs within its sup of lime and quince.

Do as you will and go where you will. Life's sure. Contract with God is your signature.

Seen From The Press Box

By VERNON D. ROOKS

It is not the desire of The Kernel sports department to enter into any kind of controversy with Centre College. The student body as a whole has shown a lack of interest in the matter and we deeply regret the attitude assumed by our neighbors at Danville.

One of the Reasons Why Kentucky Will Not Play Centre

(From "Centro," Centre College student paper)

(An open letter addressed to the inmates of that so-called institution of higher learning known to be located in the town of Lexington, Ky., commonly known as the University of Kentucky.)

It was with a great deal of surprise that we read that one-third of the State student body has voted eleven to one against the resumption of athletic activities between State and Centre.

We at Centre had known that Gammage had fooled your athletic board but we never thought that he would be able to "run a sandy" on the student body. We thought you were smart enough to see through his story after his promises to you at the time of the break had never materialized.

Last year he told you that State dropped Centre so a game with a Big Ten or Eastern eleven could be scheduled, but who got the Big Ten game to replace the Centre-State game? Why, it was little Centre, the only team in Kentucky that had any claim to a championship. Who is going East this year to play? Just little Centre again, the only championship team in Kentucky. Why don't you ask him about his rash promises and why he hasn't lived up to them?

The president of your athletic board has announced that you are ready to play any team in a charity contest and that they are endeavoring to arrange such a game or that they will donate the gate receipts of a game to charity but that State will not play Centre. In other words they are willing to do anything but risk a defeat at the hands of Centre. We don't blame them. Nothing would ruin a coach quicker over there than a loss to Centre and nothing would lower your opinion of the athletic board more than such a loss.

If you are going to play a game for charity why are you seeking an out-of-state game which will mean that half of the money realized from such a game will go out of the state? Your athletic board is the advise of your coach is blindly seeking a game or any other possible substitute for a game with Centre which public opinion is demanding. If you're smart you will know that public opinion cannot long be ignored.

Are we ready to play you? ANYTIME, but we'll never ask you to play us. You as a student body should realize what nincompoops Gammage and your athletic board have made of you in the eyes of the rest of the state.

Print this letter in your paper if Dictator Gammage will let you and give us an answer. THINK IT OVER STATE, AND GET WISE TO YOURSELF.

THE CENTRE COLLEGE STUDENT BODY.

History of Women's Athletics Dates Back to Reign of Bustles

By LOUISE LOVING

For years, athletics for women were considered a detriment to femininity, charm and even health. Among those things a young lady should do to be of "what-not-to-do" list. But that was in the days when a young lady, on the slightest provocation, and bustles reigned supreme. Now, with the advent of Helen Wills Moore, Gertrude Elderle, Glenna Collett, and others who were pioneers in their particular sport, women's athletics have come into their own, and the university has been no exception, as we may judge from a brief history of their presence in the institution.

In the winter of 1902, the world's first women's basketball team, introduced on the campus. Boys' rules were used, of course, and each season found the sport more popular. At that time it was an intercollegiate sport and for some years the university boasted a Southern championship team. Basketball, it was played then, was so fast-moving and well organized that it attained recognition not only in the South and the United States, but abroad as well. The university received from Holland, and other foreign countries, written requests for the rules and high points of the game as played by the Southern championship girls.

The uniform then worn was a plain white duck suit consisting of short pleated skirt with bloomers underneath. Changing with the times, however, the skirt was discarded, and the middle blouse and bloomer outfit took its place. These were gradually shortened until we now have the popular shorts and jerseys.

Due to its great success the sport of basketball was held in high esteem by the women and the freshman girls' dream then was a place on the team and her picture on the sport page on the newspaper.

Each game was carefully supervised by the physical director for women, and the great care and physical health of the girls but to the morals of the student body as well. At present, basketball is played with girls rules (six players to a team), and no intercollegiate games are allowed, interclass games taking their place.

Hocker, Independent, Wins Annual I-M Cross Country

By NORBERT CAMPBELL

Covering the cross country course of approximately one mile and a half in length, in the exceptionally fast time of six minutes and 43 seconds, Hocker, independent, won the fourth annual running of the event Friday afternoon. F. Kerriek, independent, who finished just a stride behind Hocker, was this year's runner-up in the event, and W. Farmer, independent, took third place.

This year the independents were doubly successful, as the three men who were the first to stagger across the finish line are members of the independent team which won the university championship in the little marathon.

Phi Sigma Kappa fraternity, is the fraternity winner of the event. The Phi Sigus were adjudged the winners after it was discovered that the Delta Tau Delas had violated one of the eligibility rules.

It is a rule of the intramural department that a cross country team shall consist of seven men and that these seven men must complete in the event. It was for this infraction of the rules that the Delts lost out on a perfect start and they were awarded a silver medal for second place, and a bronze medal will go to Farmer for finishing in the show position.

The next seven men to finish behind the galloping independents, and who will receive bronze medals for their efforts are: B. Massie, Phi Delta Theta, O. B. Coffman, Delta Tau Delta, B. Vinson, Independent, L. Mahan, Phi Sigma Kappa, J. Jacobs, Delta Tau Delta, J. Gatewood, Phi Delta Theta, took third money.

For winning the university cross country championship Hocker will receive a gold medal. Kerriek will be awarded a silver medal for second place, and a bronze medal will go to Farmer for finishing in the show position.

The next seven men to finish behind the galloping independents, and who will receive bronze medals for their efforts are: B. Massie, Phi Delta Theta, O. B. Coffman, Delta Tau Delta, B. Vinson, Independent, L. Mahan, Phi Sigma Kappa, J. Jacobs, Delta Tau Delta, J. Gatewood, Phi Delta Theta, and George, Sigma Chi.

Starter, George Whitlow, sent the pack off on a perfect start and they presented a colorful spectacle as they stampeded around the cinder path on the first lap of the long grind. At the outset, L. Mahan set a dizzy pace which left the stragglers pack strung out in a long line behind him. Mahan had a dogged grip of his lengthy lead and for a time it seemed that he would finish in the lead. But he relinquished his lead to Kerriek as he evened pace soon told on him and he relinquished his lead to Kerriek as the men started around the Agricultural building. Meanwhile, Hocker was running easy in third place behind Kerriek. Kerriek kept his lead for the rest of the course until he was within a few feet of the finish line, when Hocker, in a last burst of effort, threw himself across the tape to take first honors.

There were 60 men who entered the event, and of this number approximately 40 finished.

C. F. Harkness, director of Intramurals, expressed himself as well pleased with the outcome of the event. He said that this year's running of the cross country was Wildcats Turn Back Gobblers of V. P. I.

(Continued from Page One) The next gain was made by Groth, who tipped off 16 yards. Here, Casey tried Kelly's side of the line with a forward pass, but the blue-eyed blonde was not napping. He leaped into the air to intercept the pass on his own eight-yard line. Duplicating his long run against W. and L. he set out and ran through the entire Gobbler eleven with Casey after him. As he crossed the goal line amid the ear-splitting howls of the crowd, Referee Lane discovered that Kelly had missed the sward the other side of the side line and Kelly was called back to the 37-yard line.

V. P. I. scored after a concerted drive from their 44-yard line, and a series of plunges, passes, and a penalty brought them to the 11 yard line. Kentucky held for two downs when Hardwick shot a short pass to Groth, who stepped over the goal. Duff smacked their placement down as it started off the ground. The second half looked better for Kentucky. They scored once in each of the remaining quarters, and the first downs were 8 to 5 for the Blue.

A brilliant series of runs advanced the ball from Kentucky's 20-yard line over Virginia's goal. Kercheval carrying the oval across. Davidson made good his kick from placement. Casey showed his first flash of real form early in the fourth quarter when he circled right end and broke away for what looked like a touchdown. Bob Montgomery, substituting for "Babe" Wright, got up some real speed and over-hauled

'NEEZY LIFE, FOLKS

You can't sneeze when the president of the United States is around. No siree, there's a law agin' it. At least Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, dean of our graduate school, gives us that impression.

Here's the story: "I'd just been lined up waiting for the photographer to take the picture with the president while in Washington recently. Perhaps it was that the long wait had chilled the good zoologist or perhaps a bit of dust had entered his nostrils.

At any rate Doctor Funkhouser was on the verge of sneezing, handkerchief in his back pocket. Here he found that his stermutation (sneeze to the freshmen) was arrested by the hand of a White House guard. After ascertaining that the object of the sneeze was only a handkerchief and not a weapon the general head of the graduate school was allowed to proceed.

The worth while things live. Many contemporary dramatists of Shakespeare are remembered only by profound students of the times that the plays of this great human dramatist have lived through ages to be the model, the inspiration of modern drama. To understand a subject one must know its foundation. To understand and appreciate drama one must know Shakespeare. We are very fortunate to have the Ben Greet players here today to present to us a reproduction of one of Shakespeare and we sincerely hope that the student body will come and take advantage of this opportunity.

FOREIGN DEBATE SEASON OPENS

The 193 international collegiate debating season opened October 21 when the English Universities team, one of the three brought to this country this year by the National Student Federation, debated a Hamilton College team at Clinton, New York, on whether or not "the dose provides a better method of solving the unemployment problem than does the charity system," with the English team taking the affirmative.

The N.S.F.A. has been handling all of the international debating in the United States for the past three years. A team representing Germany, Scotland, the English National Union of Students and Cambridge University were brought over last fall, and the experiment of sponsoring an English-speaking continental team (the German one) was so successful that it was decided to respect it this year.

The Turkish team was brought in cooperation with the American Friends of Turkey, the Turkish Embassy in Washington, and Robert College in Constantinople. A Dutch team was arranged for as well, but was obliged to cancel its tour at the last moment.

Mothers of women students of the university, meeting Wednesday afternoon in Memorial hall, heard an address by Dean Sarah G. Blanding in which she pointed out that the additional interests of co-ed students who live in Lexington result in a lower standard of scholarship than that of the dormitory students. SUGGESTION WAS MADE TO THE MOTHERS THAT THE LEXINGTON WOMEN STUDENTS FOLLOW RULES SIMILAR TO THOSE WHICH STUDENTS LIVE IN THE VARIOUS UNIVERSITY HALLS ABIDE BY.

Phns for three other meetings this year were made by the group, the next meeting to be in November. At the remaining gatherings, the mothers will hear addresses by members of the university faculty and become acquainted with the university organization and program.
