REMEMBER THE SALT SHAKER

Forgetting that the number he was calling was no longer on the University extension, one of the Sigma Chis, when asked what number he was calling, said, "City, please." In a few seconds, a deep voice growled out, "City Police!"

Many stories have been told about the penny-pinching habits of the late John D. Rockefeller. Our favorite one concerns the time he went to a dentist to have his tooth pulled. "How much?" he asked in advance. "Three dollars," said the dentist, who didn't even know who his client was. "I thought three dollars was a little high," grumbled John D. "Here's a dollar. Loosen it a little bit!"

STUDENT MASSACRE IN PRAGUE Ode to Mayhem

By Don Lail
The tragedy of adolescence is a nameless entity Fischer. The grail of the blood banks, vampire of "samurai" and feet blood into a smile of "The Voice" gave a demonstration of her vocal achievement at a birthday dinner in October. It is claimed that she got on the tune once—however, it still sounded like the breaking of glass. The "chisp initiation" as she is now known as in these times, gave a rendition of a "wooden whistle." The "wooden whistle" is achieved by the remarkable resemblance to Charlie McCarthy—both are stooges. Fischer is a stage of the learned; however, if one intelligent remark has ever been issued we have to hear it. She sang for her dinner as little Tommy Tucker of the sea of father Goose, which is synonymous with the intellectual level of our own Fischer. Having completed the first grade they burned down the school to get her into UK. The "bronx" is the only chess set ever got in her long, long life of twelve years.

Sur-Meis-Ing

By Shirley Meister
First of all I want to explain to one of our professors that those of us who wear slacks and jeans to the Sadie Hawkins Dance are not bow-legged, knock-kneed, or pigeon-toed. We also appreciated the thoughtful boys who carried checks with them Saturday night in case any of their dates ran out of money.

What they did in '69 helps you every day

When Professor Elisha Gray and young Enos M. Barton, not long out of college, organized in 1869 the partnership later to become Western Electric, they paved the way for many developments which have enriched your life. For many years, the Company has been manufacturer, purchasing agent, and distributor for the Bell Telephone System, whose service you have known all your life.

You Weren't One Of Them

Five years ago today, on November 17, 1939, in Prague, one hundred and fifty-six Czechoslovak students were massacred by the Nazis, and one thousand two hundred taken to concentration camps in Germany, because they rebelled against German invasion.

Since that day valiant youths from all of those countries which have been occupied by the Germans and all students from the other United Nations have fought and bled and died to build together a future world where free men may peacefully survive from such force.

To mark this blackest of events in the history of youth an anniversary known as International Students' Day has been observed for the past four years, and this year, with so much of Europe already liberated from Nazi rule, November 17 will be especially significant.

So there is an appeal to the youth of America—an appeal which means just a little bit more than respecting those young people who have had to sacrifice their dreams of walking unmolested through a University campus, for starvation, for loss of entire families, for mass murder, and for mere existence in war-torn cities and villages. In tomorrow's world it will be French, Yugoslavian, Norwegian, Polish, Chinese, and American youth who will be fighting, through courageous effort, by friendship, and common striving to replenish the intellectual loss.

A pledge must be made to strive toward these principles of democracy even though the tasks that are before us will not be easily accomplished in a short time. The idea could be strengthened by helping to work out an International Youth Bill of Rights, to instigate an organization of student groups in which the importance of working together would be stressed, or maybe the challenge lies in fulfilling first of all the appeal made at home.

The procurement of blood for the armed forces is one of the most important wartime activities. The fact that blood plasma saves 97 out of every 100 wounded men is a challenge in itself.

You, yourself, might have been one of the 156 Czechs.

University Courses Opened to Students
The University cafeteria, "State Hall" was thrown open to the student body Monday afternoon with an informal reception, for the purpose of interesting the students in this enterprise. The opening marked the culmination of the scheme followed by President Blair and Mrs. Anna Hamilton for the erection of a suitable building for a dining hall which would provide the student body with food at cost prices.

More than eight hundred students and faculty members were present. A program of music was rendered and refreshments were served.

The coaches and athletic committee have made arrangements with the management to set apart two training tables for both the Varsity and the freshman teams.

Every member of either team should arrange to bring their own equipment to the training table during the football season.

Military Science Forging to Front
The department of Military Science at the University is one of the best departments in the University. It is not only a way to create discipline in the student body, but the physical effect on the students is manifest.

All men who are physically able and who are not employed outside the University are required to take this work. It is a very manly patriotic duty to take this work, in order to better equipped to defend his country if need be.

Prohibition League
The Prohibition League of the University will hold a meeting Friday evening. There are seven leagues in Kentucky at present: Georgetown College, Kentucky Wesleyan, Eastern State Normal, Transylvania, Berea College, Asbury College, and State University.

Lexington Horses Bought for Cavalry
A big shipment of several cars of horses for cavalry service in the French Army were due to leave Lexington Friday for Baltimore. Whether they really left at that time can not be certainly told, as every effort is being made by the French and English agents to keep such things secret to prevent any possibility of trouble from German ships after the horses leave the shores of the United States.

Horses, mules, and other stock are among the things that have been declared contraband by the belligerent nations, and these shipments of horses and mules from the United States will be conveyed by British or French cruises or warships as soon as they leave the three-mile limit along the United States coast.

Last of the Election
Now that the election and Sadie Hawkins week are over we can settle down again to our comparative life of ease. Nothing more to do except to mope and mope again. No more do we argue politics on a date because "that man in again." Very little minds think of now. It will be a great problem for those who made a mistake for a living. Likewise

Measuring Up!

By Adele Demman

The most interesting topic for discussion about the campus is the recent Queen contest. Many of our chair strategists chose the beauties that they considered to be the first seven to get their beauty vote. With all due respect for the judges, we shall have our mythical contest eliminate the winners of the original selection. The winners of our secondary contest, in addition to the others, are: Sue Flynn, Mary Fox Clarke, Deedee Melvin, Janet Miller, Brownie Talbot, and Margaret Hollyfield.

I speak strictly as a non-partisan when I say, "Something should be done about the Independent party." I am ashamed of you all, as large a bunch of people as you represent, and then you see how many persons on the campus do not work for your cause.

Interest is at a minimum, don't you think when out of four hundred members, thirteen people are present at a meeting. This information comes straight from Independent themselves, so this is a factual gripe. As individuals, your leaders have distinguished themselves more than once. As campus figures, they are leaders, with a lack of responsibility. Then, may I ask, "Why don't they lead for a change?" Please have mercy on my soul when I say, you are potentially a swell group. You have a vast amount of workers to choose from. When you choose them, let them work, and see what you can do about a tough situation. At present, however, I'm just ashamed of you.

Every year Sukey sponsors a Sadie Hawkins dance for the benefit of the students of the University. They must have a little rubber plant, then and asked if they would like to have her little rubber plant. After graciously accepting the gift, dorm residents were amazed to see five men slinger in the next day with the token, an edifice that would make any tree in the North woods, bluish and say "I call me 'Sukey'."

This "Dumbo" the rubber plant that sits its whistles, stands in the lounge, scraping plaster from the ceiling, and offering ample shade for goodnight farewells.

The winner of the "Who's Gonna Get To Play Bridge With Mr. Calhoun's In His Partner" contest is Edith Conant. All she can say when addressed is "I bid two clubs" or instead of a negative answer to a question—"I pass."

The book if the week is Dear Sir. It is a true and exact compilation of letters written to draft boards, war plants and even Dorothy Dix. People make mistakes, but these made every blunder conceivable. For instance, one letter read:

Dear Miss Dix: I would like to have another third baby born into the world of Chinese, do you think I should take a chance? For best entertainment, read Dear Sir, Duell, Sloan, & Pearce. $1.00.

Last and Least: Brownie Talbot and her little flame, these days. Congratulations, Mrs. John Hudson, formerly "Brankie" Lewis. Newest sensation of the Engineering "Quad" and football teams respectively are Joe Smeeth and Tony Rotman. Wanda Sparks seems to be working on the latter sensation, with results!

Reet Pleet

By Martha Jones

If the girls who dress for the men in their lives, recently squandered their week's salaries on what they thought was a gorgeous hat, they will read this and quickly go into mourning for the rest of their lives. Men definitely do not like the hat women think they do, according to the masculine reactions at a recent millinery show in St. Louis.

The St. Louis millinery show was put on to entertain several thousand servicemen at the USO center, although there was some concern as to how interested they might be in woman's fashions. GI Joes from everywhere came running by the hundreds, some with their best girls clinging to their arms. They lammed against the ropes and watched in total silence as the big parade went sweeping by.

Sixty-eight hats were shown with colors ranging from fuchsia to gold, pale blue to deep royal, clay-dull green and black. All types of hats were included, big brimmed hats with dripping veils, little hats cocked low over one eye, elegant hats in the "more hat mood," classic hats, and high draped, high priced exotic turbans.

Coming down to that cold business of voting for their favorites, the fellows cast their ballots for the conservative little numbers in the low priced bracket, much to the utter despair of the woman stylists present. Smart but not too extreme, neat but not gaudy, was the boys' verdict.

The hat which triggered the voting roll in was a small hamper-brim fuchsia felt with a moderately high crown, trimmed with two little up-curl fuchsia wings and matching veil. More than half the hats the boys selected were fuchsia color. They liked best the hats with brims and turned thumbs-down on the sophisticated turbans that swish the head elegantly.

Some typical GI Joe comments heard behind the lines, politely sotto voce were: "Get a load of this, bud—a bird's nest! It'd found a nest" . . . "I like black hats" the voter for a red hat, the traitor . . . "Veils get in my way, baby" . . . "How could a fellow dance with a hat that big?" . . . "I don't like the hat but I'll take the girl—yes-yes."

Fifteen of the prize-winning hats were awarded to GI Joes at the end of the show. Most of the boys asked that the hat be sent to a wife or sweetheart in some other city.

So, when dating a service man, girls wear a neat, sweet little hat that will cause no one to turn around and wonder if that last drink was that strong, and that soldier will think you are too, too wonderful.

Scenes Around the Campus

At the Panhellenic dinner, Betty Yager wore a striking black taffeta dinner dress with an off-the-shoulder sleeve and black elbow length gloves. Judy Johnson wore a severely tailored, butterfly yellow crepe, short sleeves, sweetheart neck with multicolored sequins around the neck and sleeves. Susan Black wore white crepe with three-quarter length sleeves and tiny jet beads around the two pockets.

Lexingtonians Meet, Marry, Find Success In New York

By Dora Lee Robertson
Once upon a time two Lexingtonians who attended the University and yet never knew each other, went to New York, met, fell in love, married, and became successful, he with his music and she with her paintings.

Tom Scott opened a series of concerts with a program of American folk songs at McMullin theatre, Columbia University, November 1. On the same day, Miss Scott's 'Joy Pride,' opened an exhibition of her paintings at the Circle Gallery, Hollywood, Calif.

Interested In Folk Music
Mr. Scott was interested in folk music of America for a number of years and has experimented with various uses of it. He has made numerous arrangements of our native music for orchestra and chorus.

Will Exhibit Paintings
Mrs. Scott, who paints under her maiden name, Joy Pride, will exhibit paintings done this past summer while she and Mr. Scott were in California. Most of the works are abstract landscapes characterized by the brilliant color and rather exotic shapes typical of southern California. Oil and tempera are the media used for these pictures.

A Dingus tree was planted in memory of First Lt. Virgil K. Beasley, University College of Law graduate during a ceremony which was held Memorial day on the University campus near the law building.

For the past week, YM-YW members and students all over the world have joined together in prayer at this hour.

Miss Dorothy Collins, YWCA secretary, emphasized the fact that all University students were invited to attend these meetings.

On each day a different "leader of the day" gave the prayer, and religious music was played.

A bronze plate with Lieutenant Beasley's name and rank on it will be placed on the tree by the University.

While at the University, Lieutenant Beasley was listed in "Who's Who in American Universities and Colleges" in 1940-41, a member of Scaddard and Blade, national honorary military fraternity, Phi Alpha Delta, legal fraternity, president of the Student Bar Association, and a member of Alpha Tau Omega, social fraternity.

At Fort Knox, Lieutenant Beasley was made Commanding officer of the sixth infantry of the first army division before he went overseas.

Mrs. Anita Davis Resigns Position Mrs. Anita Burnham Davis, a field agent in 4H Club work for 24 years in the College of Agriculture, has resigned, it has been announced by Dean L. J. Hesticher.

She is now living with her husband, Capt. Benjamin H. Davis, who is stationed at a prisoner of war camp in Hereford, Texas.

YM-YWCA Holds Noonday Services In Union Building

Concluding the observance of a Week of World Fellowship and Prayer, the YWCA and YMCA will hold the last of its noonday prayer services at 12:30 today in the Music room of the Union building.

For the past week, YM-YW members and students all over the world have joined together in prayer at this hour.

Miss Dorothy Collins, YWCA secretary, emphasized the fact that all University students were invited to attend these meetings.

The programs were: Monday—for the people of Europe, Joan Scott and Ed Barry; Tuesday—for the people of the Far East, Melrose McCurk; Wednesday—for less fortunate persons, Virginia Ray; and Thursday—for men and women in the armed forces, Nancy Lockery.

Alicia Coffin To Visit Campus

Alicia Coffin, traveling secretary of the World Student Service Fund, will speak to both the Uperclass fellows and Freshman club on November 28.

Miss Coffin has been acquainted with the World Student Service Fund for the past several years and with its enterprise of world student relief. She will discuss the most recent news about the work of students relief and describe the problems that refugee students face in Europe and China and the needs of prisoners of war.

Miss Coffin was a graduate of the University of Maine in the class of 1943. Last year she was at the University of Nebraska as a Danforth Fellow. She was active in the Christian association at Maine and was president of the YWCA in her senior year.

'Kentucky: Designs For Her Future' Will Be Ready For Distribution In 1945

By Martha Yates Kentucky: Designs for Her Future, a constructive criticism of the past and an analysis of Kentucky's potentialities, will be ready for distribution early in 1945.

Written and edited by many of the foremost minds in the state, many University faculty members contributed to the book. Dr. Herman Le Donovan, University president, wrote the introduction.

Within its 13 chapters of excellent analysis and practical solutions, the fields of agriculture, chemistry, education, economics, geology, history, government, and sociology are discussed with the goal of Kentucky's prosperity constantly in mind.

Others who have been working on the future long before the current craze began. Thirty programs of this nature were presented over WHAS.

Those who have written the thirteen chapters of the book are: Howard W. Beers, Thomas D. Clark, Dana G. Card, Arthur C. McFarlan, William R. Allen, Marshall D. Ketchum, Laurence L. Quinn, Goddard Sullivan, James W. Sanders, Maurice P. Seay, James T. Martin, Dr. Beers, editor of the book.

The chapters of the chapters are: "Kentucky: A Study in Progress," "The People's Business," "The People's Education," "The People's Health and Welfare," and "Goals for Kentucky."

Tom Wallace of the Louisville Times, Mark Edinger of the Herald-Examiner, Fred Briney of the Courier-Journal, Fred Wachs, W. T. Rainey, and A. B. Cuthbert of the Herald-Leader advised also.

In the introductory chapter written by Mr. Beers, he states, "The problem is approached by following three points: first, the discussion of things as they are; second, the planned-for goals; and third, the solution of the things-as-they-are to the goals planned for. In other words, the questions are asked: what are the problems? What is the best way to solve those problems?"

Political development, rise of cities, stream of utilization of land, control, exploitation vs. conservation, coal resources, educational development, highways, government, and health improvement are discussed fully.

Members of the University faculty who have contributed to this valuable book are A. J. Brown, Thomas Poe Cooper, C. S. Crouse, E. N. A. O. Stanley Speaks To AST

By Frances Keller Mr. A. O. Stanley, former governor of Kentucky and one-time United States Senator, in an address to the AST men and social studies classes at the University last Friday, stated that "only great hearts, great minds, and great souls are filled with the fire and high ambition to be of service."

Senator Stanley stressed the word "service." "It is better never to have been born if you did not fill a place which in a measure you did not make happier, better, and safer," he said.

The senator urged students to make the most of their college years. He told of his own great love for the University. "As I look back on my college years I still long for delightful study where I can contemplate undisturbed the shining face of truth."

Quoting Shakespeare's immortal words, the senator said to the assembly, "This above all: To thine own self be true; And it must follow, as the night the day, Thou shalt not then be false to any man."

President H. L. Donovan introduced Senator Stanley and told something of his life. He attended the University of Kentucky and Centre College where he received his LL.D. For the past 15 years he has served on the United States-Canada Boundary Commission. Dr. Donovan said of him, "He is probably the most distinguished statesman Kentucky ever had, and one of the best orators the nation ever had. He is the first University student to become governor of the state."

Kentucky Author Donates Books To UK Library

Approximately 2,500 finely bound old books, covering English history, philosophy and literature have been donated to the University library by Mrs. Stuart Chevalier.

The books were presented to the library on behalf of Mrs. Chevalier's late father, Montgomery Pickett, in honor of his father Joseph D. Pickett, who was the second president of the University.

The collection of books is from the library of Rosemont, the Pickett estate overlooking the Ohio River near Cincinnati.

YM-YW Hold Special Service Tuesday Night

The YM and YWCA will hold a special Thanksgiving service at 6:30 p.m. Tuesday in the ballroom of the Union building. The Uperclass and Freshman club will meet together.

The special Thanksgiving service will consist of the following: call to worship, Warren Fisher, innovator; Ed Barry; hymn, "Prayer of Thanksgiving"; responsive reading, Psalm 92, Monte Drake, ASTF; prayer, Joan Scott; trio, "The Lord's Prayer"; Sue Thomas, James Thomas, and Melrose McCurk; Barbara a la Rose; Ed Barry will pronounce the benediction.

University Coeds Approve Of Mammy Yokum's Pipe

It is the cigarette short of the influences of Sadie Hawkins' week and Mammy Yokum's famous corn-cob pipe that causes the hangouts of University students to seek with a nervous and burning look.

Whatever the reason, not only the men, but many coeds have become pipe connoisseurs. Most of the pipe are sticking to the ole corn-cob, but by Christmas they will no doubt be asking Santa to please bring them Meerschams.

And about that aroma of burning leaves, it isn't always caused by cheap tobacco on top of the pipe. You buy a pipe with a box of pipe cleaners. If, because of wartime shortages, they do not have the above mentioned, a good substitute is a broom straw.

After obtaining a pipe cleaner (or some reasonable facsimile), sit down—pipe in hand—and disconnect the stem of the pipe from the bowl. Next, insert the cleaner into the pipe stem and go to work—back and forth—round and around, and presto! The pipe is as good as new.

One faithful member said, "I'm in no way a connoisseur, but I just finished a pipe full of homespun. It may be good enough for Mammy Yokum but give me Rum and Maple." A little freshman girl said, "If the movie actresses can smoke it so can I."
