LAW STUDENTS ADDRESSED BY EDWIN F. TRABUE

Prominent Kentucky Lawyer Stresses the Necessity of Higher Education

LEGAL REFORMS ARE STRONGLY ADVOCATED

Other Attorneys Will Speak to Law Students on Legal Matters

Mr. Edwin F. Trabue, one of Kentucky's most prominent lawyers, addressed the students of the College of Law of the University at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning...

Trabue, "the competent will come to the fore," incompetent will lag behind and indulge in evil practices, which are detrimental to the profession...

Mr. Trabue gave a detailed account and description of the French, English, and German system of law, and pointed out the differences between these the German is probably the best...

The only remedy for this deplorable situation is the improvement of higher education. He urged to think that the young person in preparation for the practice of law should have three years of University education...

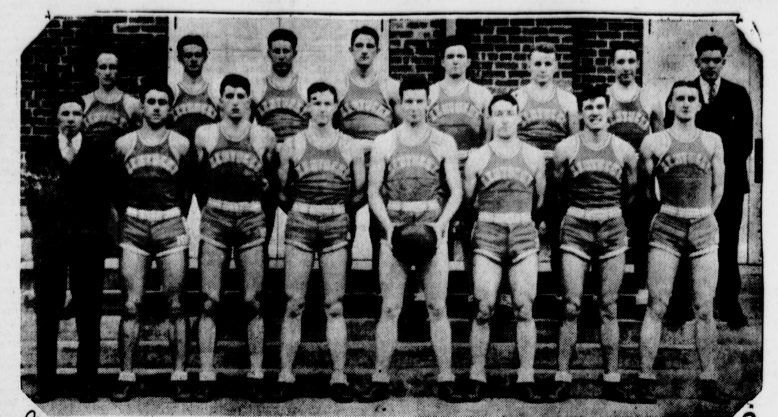

"In the last few years," he said, "there has been a movement to place more power in the hands of the federal government. This has come about through legislation through Congress through the forty-eight state legislatures...

"Peer Gynt" Is Title of Next Guignol Play

Director Frank Fowler Will Play Title Role in Production

"From the ridiculous to the sublime" seems to be the motto that prevails down at the Guignol Theater, where an exceedingly large and versatile cast is diligently rehearsing Henrik Ibsen's "Peer Gynt," which will be presented at the campus play-house during the entire week of March 24...

The play is in four acts and eleven scenes and will be presented in English and French. The designs have been designed by Prof. Fowler. Fantastic costumes of black and white are being created by Miss Elizabeth Cramer...

Y. M. C. A. Selects Staff for "K" Book

Books and Journals to Publish Annual "Frosh Bible" for Next Year

Vernon D. Rooks, sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences and a member of Sigma Beta Xi social fraternity, was elected editor of next year's "K" Book at a joint meeting of the freshman and senior Y. M. C. A. cabinets Tuesday night in Alumni Hall...

Mr. Rooks, of Paducah, is sports editor of the Kernel, and is sports editor of The Lexington Herald at present, was president of the freshman Y. M. C. A. cabinet last year. He was an associate editor of the "K" Book of this year's "K" Book. He is also prominent in intramural sports. Mr. Jones is treasurer of the "Y" senior cabinet.

The "K" Book, or "Frosh Bible," as it is popularly called, is one of the important publications upon campus, having for its purpose the instruction of incoming freshmen. It is given to freshmen at the beginning of each school year. Walker was editor of the publication and Malcolm Barnes was business manager last semester.

Next year's publication will mark the tenth appearance of the "K" Book on the University campus. It is sponsored by the Y. M. C. A. and the Y. W. C. A.

BRITAIN WILL BE THEME OF SPEECH

S. K. Ratcliffe Will Address Student Body at Convocation at Second Hour This Morning

S. K. Ratcliffe, prominent journalist from London, England, will be the speaker at the monthly convocation of the student body in Memorial Hall this morning at the second hour. His subject will be "The British Commonwealth of Nations." This afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. Ratcliffe will address the Pan-Politikon at Memorial Hall on the subject "England, the United States, and Russia."

Mr. Ratcliffe while here is the guest of the Pan-Politikon, and was the principal speaker at a dinner given by the International Relations group at the University Commons last night at 6:30 o'clock. In regard to the character of the subject, his subject will be "The British Commonwealth of Nations," which he will discuss as a very accomplished lecturer and a very remarkable man.

Pan-Politikon, student organization for studying foreign relations, is studying the British people during this month. He will be speaking in March during which time special programs and lectures will be conducted in connection with the series. At one of the Sunday vesper services, the program will be devoted entirely to Canadian music. The Rev. H. P. Almon Abbott, bishop of Canada, and bishop of the Episcopal diocese of Lexington, will be the speaker at Sunday's vesper services.

Lewis, and Malcolm Wallace.

BUDGET REQUEST IS REDUCED BY AMENDED BILL

University May Secure Only a Very Small Sum From General Assembly

BUILDING PROGRAM WILL BE IMPOSSIBLE

Proposed Measure Will Deal Terrific Blow to U. of K. if Enacted

President McVey's requested appropriations of $554,500 for buildings and equipment for the University for the next two years which were reduced to $170,000 in the budget bill which was recommended for passage by the Kentucky Legislature was reduced in an amendment to the proposed bill Wednesday. The increase in appropriation was for the proposed Agricultural engineering building. The bill, bearing the approval of the Senate and House Appropriations Committees, was read into the House Calendar Monday. The new budget of the University was $100,000 less than the original budget commission recommendation. If the bill is passed by the Legislature, the University will receive $45,100 less than any of the four normal schools which receive $250,000 each for next biennium. The original bill appropriated $498,031.30 for the first year and $466,831.30 for the second year; the new bill would appropriate $498,031.30 for the first year and $386,831.30 for the second year. Morehead Normal School would receive $50,000 more for the two-year period; Eastern State Normal School and Teachers' College $75,000 more; Western State Normal School and Teachers' College $50,000 more; and the University of Kentucky would receive a reduction of $70,000.

President McVey, in giving the University's report to the 1930 state legislature, requested a $200,000 laboratory for the College of Engineering, a $150,000 laboratory building for the Zoology department, a $75,000 Agricultural Mechanics and Engineering building for the second year, morehead Normal School would receive $50,000 more for the two-year period; Eastern State Normal and Teachers' College $50,000 more; and the University of Kentucky would receive a reduction of $70,000.

Proposed Measure Will Deal Terrific Blow to U. of K. if Enacted

Word from General Johnny Mauer in Atlanta was brief and to the point: "Arrived safely Thursday morning and have the situation well in hand." This afternoon the Kentucky Wildcat will report at their headquarters at the Georgian Terrace and tonight at 7 o'clock the 1930 edition of the Big Blue Kitty Cats will romp around the Atlanta municipal gymnasium with the Maryland Old Liners. We think we remind a little of the Old Liners, but the psychologist draws us, what do you "allow" Maryland is thinking?

The Cats left Lexington Wednesday night at 9 o'clock on a sleeper that arrived in Atlanta shortly after 5 o'clock Thursday morning. The adjectives used by O'Rear K. Barnes, who peeped through the train window, in describing the boys who made the trip are reproduced by permission of the Beet Trust. Coach John Mauer, the more or less monochromatic Captain McBrayer, Big and Little McVinnis, the impenetrable Spicer, "Y" sharp-shooting Combs, and the speed of Owens, the surprising Yates, the battling Bronston the grim Kleiser, the light-hearted Trot, the beaming Weakley, and the watchful Trainer Mann, and the crippled Milward.

The brackets are submitted as follows: (Pick your own winners) Upper Bracket Alabama vs. Clemson, 3 p. m. University of North Carolina vs. Georgia, 4 p. m. Tennessee vs. V. M. I., 4 p. m. Ole Miss vs. Washington and Lee, 2 p. m. Lower Bracket Kentucky vs. Maryland, 7 p. m. Sewanee vs. North Carolina State, 1 p. m. Georgia Tech vs. Tulane, 9 p. m. Louisiana State vs. Duke, 5 p. m. In case you can't figure algebra, brackets and women, the tournament will run something like this: Tennessee will beat Maryland, 30 to 25; Saturday they will beat North Carolina State, 25 to 18; Monday they nose out Duke, 22 to 20, and then Tuesday night Kentucky will win the Southern Conference tournament by repeating their drubbing of Washington and Lee.

High Schools Are Addressed on War By U. K. Debaters

Four members of the University debating team debated before the student bodies of Bellevue and Newport high schools yesterday on "Can International Wars be Prevented Through the Instrument of International Agreement." The affirmative team was composed of Sidney Schell and Kermit Pack while Hugh R. Jackson and H. C. Smith presented the negative side of the question. There will be a meeting of all the members of the University debating team in room 239 of McVey Hall at 7:30 p. m. Monday. At this meeting work will be assigned to the members so that preparation may begin for the debates that are to be held during the remainder of this semester.

Pettigrew Placed in Hall of Fame

The University for the second time in as many months "broke into print" in College Humor with the appearance of Leura Pettigrew in the Hall of Fame of that publication. Ruth Bonnin was Kentucky's first representative to attain this distinction last month. College Humor says of Miss Pettigrew that her activities besides her duties as a sponsor of the University band, are too numerous to mention, and rates her as one of the greatest representatives ever to appear in the magazine. Miss Pettigrew, whose home is in Texas, recently resigned as band sponsor to return to Texas. She was a member of Alpha Xi Delta sorority.

FOUR LITTLE FOXES

By Lew Garrett
Speak gently, Spring and make no sudden sound.
For in my windy valley, yesterday I found
New-born foxes squirming on the ground—
Speak gently.

Walk softly, March, for bear the bitter blow:
Her feet within the trap, her blood upon the snow.
The four little foxes to their mother go—
Walk softly.

Go lightly, Spring, oh, give them no alarm:
When I covered them boughs to shelter them from harm.
The thin blue foxes suckled at my arm—
Go lightly.

Step softly, March, with your rampant hurricane;
Nuzzling one another, and whimpering with pain.
The new little foxes are shivering in the rain—
Step softly.

Monday night, Mr. Boothe was guest of the Forum club at dinner at the University Commons at which the members of the faculty of the International Relations club were invited. About 125 guests were present.
Tuesday morning after a breakfast given by Mrs. McVey for Mr.

Russian Student Tells of Life's Events Before Coming Here

By AL STOFFEL
George Evenin is comparatively young in years, but possesses an old in experience. This 37-year-old Russian's varied life has led him from the wide steppes of Russia, through icy, snow-laden Siberia, into seething, sinister Manchuria. From there, the trail leads to busy Japan, Yokohama, and thence to America, by way of a 33 day voyage across the broad Pacific in an old fashioned sailing schooner. From Seattle, the trail swings downward, halfway across the continent to Chicago, pauses, and then turns south, ending on the campus of the University of Kentucky at Lexington.

George was sitting on the edge of his bed in a room situated a few blocks from the University campus as he talked. Any old world touch to him was completely lacking in the room, and the first school is a modern wardrobe trunk to the pile of school books on the study table, was distinctly American.
Clad in a very faded dressing gown, and smoking a cigarette, George himself looked like any average American ready to spend a quiet evening at home. "In Russia," he smiled, "to go to school is like to work. The first school is for boys about 15 years old. Here there is four years of practical work in agriculture and general education."

George has a "bare speaking acquaintance" with English, since his efforts to master the language date only from September 1929, when he enrolled in the university. "The next school, as you say, corresponding to high school," he continued, "here we go six years mainly to learn all about cattle. Also we have laboratory in chemistry and physics, and all kinds of work."
"Next we go to college like here in United States. In summer, there is practical work, and in winter we have laboratory every day from 8 until 3. Everybody must stay in nights, and three inspectors always watch. At 7 o'clock they ring the bell which means to study. In these schools it is or should I say was to get a job there, 150 rubles a year for board, clothing, room and books."

After leaving college as a full fledged agriculturist, George followed his profession for some time in Saratoff, a town in southern Russia, on the Volga river. "Then came the two years of service in the Russian army in Prussia and Lithuania. He was wounded six times, and nearly lost his right arm from blood infection.
"You see, my arm she is a bit crooked," he said pulling up his sleeve. "I was wounded, but she must cut it off, but I say 'No. If you cut it off, I say I am cripple, I cannot do my work.' So they send me for nine months to a hospital in Moscow, where they fix it up. Now it is all right and strong as ever."

In 1917 found Russia experiencing the first bloodshed of the revolution. In 1918 came the Bolshevik regime with Trotsky as dictator, and in 1919, we find George in Siberia working for the Central Russian Corporation. His position was Superintendent over a large factory situated in the heart of thousands of acres of potato fields. In the factory the juice of the potatoes was used to make a kind of syrup.
"I never have seen so much cold as in Siberia," says George. "Sometimes it gets so cold that I have seen birds start to fly up into the air, and then fall down, frozen to death. In summer it is nice, but there is too little summer."

Harbin, a city in Manchuria, was the next harbor of this wandering agriculturist. Here great numbers of white Russians have found refuge from the Bolsheviks, and red Russians. In Harbin George found employment in a Y. M. C. A. post. A man named Mitchell was the secretary, and he was instrumental in forming an organization of young Russians in Harbin for the purpose of eventually finding ways and means of sending them to the United States.
The organization grew by leaps and bounds, and by dint of much hard work, combined with pinching and saving, the first group of Russian young men left Harbin in 1921. Altogether there were eight groups which left Harbin for America. George came with the third group

Sleepy-Eyed Students Fail To Heed University Rules

The University has been forced to return to customs of old. Our campus is now covered with brush fences, built at the request of University officials, to keep thoughtless students from making "pig paths" over the beautiful blue grass sod. Sleepy-eyed students, weary from duties possibly much than studies, leave the walks and stroll over the campus on their way to class. Like great herds of cattle on a western plain they take to the grass. Signs do no good, only some entanglement such as fallen trees and brush can halt them from invasion.
Much improvement has been made on the campus within the past year and now it seems that everything is being done by the student body to reverse the situation. Large sums of money have been spent to bring the campus up to its present condition. Each bit of paper,

Botanical Lecture Will Be Featured By Radio Station

"Garden Flowers" will be the interesting talk featured by the University from the remote control radio station, Thursday, from 12:45 to 1:00 in connection with station WLAS of Louisville. Prof. Frank T. McFarland, head of the Botany department will give the talk. Other features of the five-day-a-week program beginning with the 15 minute noonday Monday, March 3, are:
Monday, 12:45-1:00—(a) "Suggestions For Spring Millinery," Miss Mabel Story, (b) "Sheep Talk," Prof. R. C. Millen, College of Agriculture.
Tuesday, 12:45-1:00—"Recent Changes in Bank Organization in the United States," Dean Edward West, College of Commerce.
Wednesday, 12:45-1:00—(a) "Opportunities Open to 4-H Girls," Miss Elizabeth Graddy, (b) "Bees" Prof. W. A. Price.
Wednesday, 10:00-10:30 p. m.—University Salon Ensemble.
Thursday, 12:45-1:00—"Garden Flowers," Prof. Frank T. McFarland.
Friday, 12:45-1:00—"What Farm Folks Are Asking," Prof. N. R. Elliot, College of Agriculture.

She: I showed Mother the verses which you sent me. She was pleased.
He: Indeed? And what did she say?
She: She said she was delighted to find that I was not going to marry a poet.
T: How did John feel when he saw you in that costume?
Tat: Cautiously.

Editor: Some guy named Belmont just handed in a poem.
Reporter: I know a fellow named Belmont. But he doesn't look as if he could write poetry.
Editor: Must be the same one.
Farmer's Wife (to druggist): Now, be sure and write plain on them bottles which is for the horse and which is for my husband. I don't want nothin' to happen to that horse before the spring plowin'.

TRANSYLVANIA PRINTING CO. Largest Stock of Pens and Pencils in the City

"Which Pen Do Most College Students Demand?"

College Humor Magazine Asked 137 College Pen Dealers

45% Said "Parker Duofold"

In a recent nation-wide magazine poll 12 vocational pen markets, Parker was first in 9 out of 12 vocations representing 94.72% of the vocational market.
In the new census of 137 college pen dealers, 45.11% say Parker is the official college pen—more than 2 to 1 the favorite over the next two nearest makes.
One big reason for Parker Duofold's overwhelming popularity is its convertible feature—like two pens for the price of one—for pocket, for study desk. Attaching a taper converts the Parker in 10 seconds from a Pocket Duofold to a Desk Pen.
So whether you want a Desk Pen, at once or later, if you now get the Convertible Pocket Duofold Pen, all you'll need is a base to complete the set. A taper and compass free. You save the price of a second pen.
See Parker's new streamlined shape that sets lower in the pocket because the clip starts at the top—not halfway down the cap. And see the name, "Geo. S. Parker-DUO-FOLD," that guarantees it for life!

Mrs. Alberta Sever aided by Mrs. A. H. Wilson entertained Saturday night at 6:30 with a dinner party last week in Romance Language department. The table decorations and the menu carried out the idea of the Spanish American countries where Mrs. Sever has been on her leave-of-absence. Members of the department who were present are: Professor A. C. Zembrod and Mrs. Zembrod, Professor H. B. Holmes and Mrs. Holmes, Mrs. B. Horsfield, the Reverend P. H. T. Horsfield and Professor Blaine Schick.

PERSONALS

Misses Willy and Helen King, Marguerite McLaughlin and Katherine Fuller spent the week-end in Cincinnati, where they saw Ethel Barrymore.

Miss Pauline Hall was in Stanton, for the week-end.

Mr. Hugh Russell Jackson will go to Louisville this week-end to attend the performance of the opera "Carmen."

Misses Eloise Dickinson and Nina Budd went to their homes in Covington last week.

Miss Kitty Frawell spent the week-end at her home in Winchester.

Misses Mary Frances Young and Margaret Douglas visited Miss Virginia Glass at her home in Louisville last week.

Alpha Delta Theta sorority will entertain this afternoon with an open house in honor of the Delta Chi fraternity.

Messrs. Ernest Woods and Edward Beuer, Washington and Lee, were week-end guests at the Delta Tau Delta fraternity house.

Mr. Lawton Daley, Covington, was a week-end guest at the Phi Delta Theta fraternity house.

Misses Kity Frawell and William Reed all of Louisville.

Messrs. Cliff Reeves, C. D. Temple, Gus Hamilton of Cincinnati; and W. D. Schofield and Dick Gehhart of Dayton were week-end visitors at the Lambda Chi Alpha house.

Messrs. Foster Yayton, Oreston Smith, Chas. Wooten, and John Hanson spent last week-end in Louisville.

Mr. Jack Shields visited his home in Elmwood last week-end.

Mr. Noel Engle returned to his home in Hamilton, Ohio for a short visit.

Kappa Delta Sorority Entertain
The pledges of Kappa Delta sorority entertained the active chapter and the mothers a party at the home of Mrs. L. L. Roberts on West Third street last Saturday afternoon. The affair was made the occasion of a surprise personal shower for the four guests of honor, Misses Marion Sands, Frances Hahn, Gladys Rice, and Betty Crawford.

During the afternoon, contests were held, all of which were in connection with the date, Washington's birthday. Decorations also carried out this idea, and delicious refreshments were served. Then the guests of honor were each given a small hatchet and told to search for something on which they could use them. Their quest led them to the dining room table, where they found four large "cherries," which, when properly chopped open, revealed many useful personal treasures, the gifts of the girls to their four sisters who had suffered misfortune in the recent Kappa Delta house fire. About fifty guests were present to enjoy the delightful occasion.

Miss Eleanore Doer motored to her home in Louisville and spent the week-end.

Miss Mary Virginia Halley spent the week-end at her home in Cincinnati, where she attended the formal party given by the Kappa Delta chapter. She will spend their rushing season for this year.

Military Training Is Subject of Meet Law Society Meets

The Henry Clay Law society at its regular meeting last Thursday night in the Law building had a rather heated argument among its members on the question of military training.

A bill to make military training at the University compulsory for the entire four years of the college course was introduced by Edward Duval. This bill was supported by Duval, Adams, Kike, and Barnes and was opposed by Rankin, Naff, Bradley and others. The bill was lost by a fair majority.

Pat Rankin introduced a bill to abolish military training at the University. A discussion followed as to whether the bill could be voted on and Chairman Elmer Drake ruled that it would have to be referred to the committee on resolutions; there by holding the bill until the next meeting.

A move was made by one of the militarists for adjournment which was carried by a vote of one. The society meets twice a month and the next meeting will be held on Wednesday. Some more important bills will be up for discussion then.

Phi Mu Alpha Acts as Host to Eta an Omicron of Cincinnati

The Kentucky chapter of Phi Mu Alpha was host to the Eta and Omicron chapters from Cincinnati last Tuesday night at a joint meeting held in the Music building on Euclid avenue. Fourteen members of the Cincinnati chapters were present.

Walter Devaux, province chief, presided and told of plans for the province convention which is to be held in Cincinnati late in May. National matters were discussed in connection with the official reports of each of the three chapters.

Phi Mu Alpha expects to sponsor more musical acts during the coming year and more radio programs, encouraging a better appreciation for music will be presented by the local chapter over the extension studio of WHAS Euclid avenue, president announced that a musical comedy composed of University students will be presented early next fall.

DEAN ANDERSON IN COMICS

Carl Schultz, formerly of Lexington and resident of this city, recently added a pen and ink sketch of Dean Anderson in the comic strip "Foxy Grandpa," and his "Jerry" to the postscript of a letter written to Miss Florence Dillan of the Lexington Public library. The letter, signed with a sketch of "Foxy Grandpa" asked for the privilege of the use of the three volumes of the comic strip which had been presented to the Lexington library. The center intends to use them in a revival of the comic strip.

Co-ed Bride: I want a piece of meat without any bone, fat, or gristle.

Women have been more successful in the past decade in entry than ever before, and in many professions and undertakings have excelled the once so-called "superior sex." So the time has come when not all women intend to be slaves of fashion and will cease to contribute to the bank accounts of the Parisienne designers, who have always derived the mode of fashion for properly attired American femmes.

Women in America will continue to dress in a comfortable fashion, free from girdles, bustles, muffs, hoops, and long skirts, that were popular long years ago. These atrocities will be found in their proper place, hidden in the most obscure corners of attic, if femininity wins the fight in the world of fashion, and is there not an old saying that "women have their way?"

Chi Delta Phi Gives Program for Club

The English club meeting was held in Patterson Hall at 3 o'clock February 27 with members of Chi Delta Phi, honorary literary sorority, in charge of the program. Miss Katherine Wilson, president of the sorority, presided at the meeting. Miss Lois Lemme Robinson, gave a short talk on the Nobel Prize Award and D'Alis Chapman gave book report on the prize winner "Kristin Lavransdatter," Margaret Cundiff also gave a report on Thomas Mann's "Magic Mountain." Nobel winner in 1929, a book which has aroused much comment and interest.

French Club Holds Interesting Meeting

Le Cercle Français met Wednesday afternoon at 3 o'clock in the Recreation Hall of Patterson Hall. Miss Alberta Riley held a short business meeting, then turned the program over to Miss Mae Bryant.

The 15 members present amused themselves by working French cross-word puzzles. Miss Rebecca Brown had arranged a short musical program by French composers.

The Club will hold its next program on March 5, in the lecture room of the Physics Building. At that time Miss Margaret Horsfield will give an illustrated lecture on France. Immediately after this program the Fleur de Lys members are asked to hold a meeting to make plans for the semester.

Ratcliffe, Booth Are Honor Guests

The International Relations class of the University met Monday evening in the Commons as the guests of the Political Science Forum and were addressed by Mr. C. Douglas Booth, widely known English publicist. Mr. Booth spoke on Franco-Italian relations, their effect on world peace, and Italy's attempt to extend her control in Balkans.

The study class held a formal dinner meeting in the Commons Thursday evening. The speaker was Mr. S. K. Ratcliffe, prominent English journalist of London.

Mr. Ratcliffe, who is the guest of the Pan-Politikon during his stay in Lexington, spoke for his subject, "Anglo-American Relations," Miss Esther Cole, of the political science department, presided.

TO INTERVIEW ENGINEERS

Arthur G. Ridgely, representative of the Prestone Tire and Rubber Company, is coming to the University March 4, to interview members of this year's senior class in regard to positions. Mr. Ridgely will be in room 202 White Hall at 9:30 A. M.

APPROPRIATIONS

The budget committee of the Kentucky General Assembly delivered a terrible blow to the University a few days ago when it materially reduced the formerly proposed appropriation to an amount that is insufficient to provide for the needs of the institution. Although we feel certain that the legislature acted with bona fide intent and that they were sincere in their desire to be of real service to the Commonwealth, we earnestly believe that they did not take cognizance of many of the material elements involved.

The University is a cosmic organization that includes six different colleges, each of which offers a different course of study that leads to a particular degree. The College of Arts and Sciences, the College of Law, the College of Engineering, the College of Commerce, the College of Education, and the College of Agriculture train large numbers of students in excellent vocations and professions. It is the only institution of higher learning in Kentucky that offers such a wide variety of courses, and yet it is restricted in its progress because the people of the state do not realize its importance.

During the past few years the University has been steadily growing and expanding. Its growth has been gradual but healthy. Step by step, it has been carefully ascending to its proper position and rank among the leading state universities that receive exceedingly large bounties from their respective law-making bodies. It has been devoted to the educational training of its youth. Scores of native sons and daughters of Kentucky migrate to other states to receive their education because their own state will not supply the much needed facilities.

We, as students, are proud of Kentucky. We brag of our frontier heritage; we boast of our time-honored traditions; we sing the praises of Blue Grass and Mountain Melodians from Mill's Point to the Big Sandy. And we are proud of our University. We admire its faculty, we love its vine-clad buildings, and we revere its cultural donation to the "progress" of the state. We sincerely believe that a stroke at the University is a stroke at us and, likewise, a stroke at us in an unpremeditated, well-delivered blow to the future progress and prosperity of the commonwealth.

One of the outstanding events of the second semester in the way of honors took place last week with the election of R. O. T. C. sponsors. The contest aroused great interest and competition among the co-eds on the campus, also giving the politicians something to do. However, the results are pleasing, the choices, exceedingly satisfactory, and we hope that the new honorary captains, majors, and colonels will accept the duties of their new positions as willingly and as graciously as they did the news of the honor bestowed upon them.

The sponsors chosen each year should have the ability to march with their units, and also to display feminine charm. We felt that selections this term have been unusually discriminating. Field Day will determine the real abilities of the new sponsors; their presentation at the Military Ball was the occasion of much favorable comment and congratulations, which we trust will extend throughout their term of the coming year.

Members of the R. O. T. C. regiment and band and newly-elected sponsors, we salute you!

A GRIDIRON BANQUET

An annual gridiron banquet which will vie with similar social affairs held annually in the leading universities of the North. This affair will also closely resemble the national newspaperman's gridiron banquet held in Washington each year.

At the Washington banquet the leading members of the journalism profession of the world gather with the political and social elite of the continent to participate in a constructive and, at the same time, humorous discussion of the activities of the world. Even the president of the United States has been called upon at this meeting to tell the journalist just why he acted in certain ways upon certain questions. To be sure there are many embarrassing moments at the banquet for the personages called upon but at the same time those present understand and appreciate the manner in which everything is to be construed.

Members of the Kentucky chapter have completed plans for the first banquet of this kind ever to be held at the University and already a great deal of interest has been manifested in the plan by the leading students of the University. The Delta Chi which is sponsoring the banquet will adopt, in staging the gridiron banquet, the same policy pursued in the publication of the Kampus Kat, "Burlisque toward all and malice toward none."

Only the outstanding students of the University will receive invitations to the banquet and officials of the local chapter hope that in time an invitation to the gridiron banquet will be looked upon by its recipient as a real social accomplishment. Leading newspapermen of the state, well known politicians and a few active Lexington business men will be invited to join with the University students in the fun making. As is the plan of all banquets of this type, every person attending will be pledged to keep absolutely secret anything they might hear or see behind the closed doors at the meeting. The identity of the "roastmaster," who has charge of placing the "victims upon the proverbial gridiron," will not be made known until the night of the banquet.

Of course only men will attend the affair but the slogan of the Washington banquet, "Remember the ladies are always with us, reporters never" will be emblazoned across the top of the banquet program.

COLLEGIATE MUSIC

It has been said that music hath power to soothe the savage beast. It might also be said that music hath power to make the most docile of beasts savage. Concert artists are probably capable of the first attribute but college dance orchestras certainly make a strong bid for supremacy of the "back to nature" cult.

The barbaric shills that are emanated by local groups of so-called musicians would cause a stampede among the Equisetum head-hunters and would petty the wildest cannibal in the New Hebrides. The embecclic maneuvers that are executed by the jazz bands would make a raving maniac admire his degree of insanity. To say that the majority of their numbers are melodious toe-ticking ditties would be absurd. The doubtful tom-tom of an African Fuzzy-Wuzzy could not create half as much animal instinct as the piercing notes of a crazed clarinet accompanied by the enervating crashes of a blatant cymbal. This is not music; it is an orgy of base, uncouth and unharmonious discord that permeates the atmosphere and tear asunder the portals of civilization.

It is very disconcerting that students of institutions of higher learning should sanction such conduct that is contrary to all cultural training. It is deplorable that scores of the supposedly educated class should flock to the rendezvous of these barbaric tribes and applaud their actions with hearty hand-claps and insipid grins. It is a sad state of affairs when students offer no objection to having their intelligence grossly insulted thus.

Ours is a mechanistic and materialistic civilization. It is an epoch of "hallions" and "athlete's foot." It is the era of Gretta Garbo and campus "rah, rah" lads (and also co-eds). The melodious notes of the lute have been supplanted by the tinkling tones of the tambourine have been replaced by the frantic wail of a saxophone.

College students of today should develop a greater appreciation of the fine arts and then mildly apply them to their forms of recreation. Dance plays an important role in the social life of the University but musical tastes should be forced to remain in the realm of reason and refinement.

SCABBARD AND BLADE

Each year when Scabbard and Blade holds its pledging exercises there is unfavorable comment, not on the new members, but on the worthy candidates who were not honored. There has also been heard the usual grumbling about politics playing an all-important role in the selection of candidates. To the spectators at the Military Ball last week it was rather absurd to see a fraternity man pledge a fraternity brother in the majority of cases.

Outsiders are often prone to draw conclusions, often knowing practically nothing about the inner workings and circumstances which prompt the selection of certain men for an honorary. Nevertheless, when the same sort of partially manifests itself year after year we also raise a questioning eyebrow.

The Kernel does feel, however, that the men pledged to Scabbard and Blade this year are of the highest calibre and looks to them for ideals and standards worthy of them.

Did you ever stop to think that the reason one makes so many mistakes in English is that he or she does not think?

Did you ever stop to think that it doesn't matter how good you are, there is always some one just a little better?

Did you ever stop to think that after your death the world will continue just the same?

THE TEAM

Standing at the side of Duke University at second place in the Southern Conference, the Wildcat basketball team tonight begin their last charge of the season in the tournament at Atlanta. Praised deservedly by sports writers throughout the country, the Kernel wishes to have a share in their laudation.

Each of the ten players who will enter the lists to carry the colors of Kentucky have proven themselves worthy of the honor and equal to the task. The cooperation and good sportsmanship that they have displayed during their past season will go far toward making their efforts successful.

Kentucky's warriors must meet a hard foe tonight, but with their aggressiveness, skill, and sportsmanship they are counting on them to put up a good fight. What ever they do, we are behind them. We want them to know that as they go into this tournament, we are relying on them to uphold the prestige of Kentucky, as former warriors have done.

That the spirit and persistence of the Wildcat is not lacking in our men, is again brought into the light, through the efforts of Stanley Milward, crippled center, to get ready to play. Feeble though his first attempt may have been, his determination was to be reckoned with.

Much credit for the strength and fineness of our Cats should be given to Coach Johnnie Major, who has labored strenuously to whip the team into form. His part in the excellent record of this year's basketballers has been far from small, and deserves due appreciation and praise.

Again, Wildcats, the Kernel urges you to fight with all the vigor and strength that you possess, remembering that we are back of you, believing in you, and your ability to win.

IN DEFENSE OF THE PUN

(MCGILL DAILY)
A pun has been described as the lowest form of wit; and if this definition is true, or even approximately correct, the brand of humor at McGill must be of a particularly bad quality, for our student body boasts a number of punsters who have a remarkable knack for turning the phrase.

The pun for some unknown reason has sunk in the general opinion as well as in the estimation of critics. "You may spit on your hostesses' carpet," said a well known English instructor, "and you may get away with it, but give birth to a pun in the best circles and you will be marked out for social ostracism." And this holds true not only in the "best circles" but also among students gathered around the convivial checker-board. A poor joke is greeted with polite laughter but the pun, what of it? It is received in a storm of groans and if its originator is fool-hardy enough to repeat the experiment he will be summarily banished.

And to what are we to ascribe the great modern movement away from the pun? To jealousy—nothing but sheer jealousy. Consider for a moment whom the punsters are—the quick and nimble witted. Consider the scoffers—the dull and the slow. There you have the answer. Punning has gone out of fashion along with the versatile brain.

The originator of a joke has time in which to prepare his material. We can even imagine him cloistered in his study buried in the research which is to end in the bringing to light of a new joke. But the pun is the work of an instant—a flash of fire from a white-hot brain. And we long continue to have punsters in our midst, and may the masses be speedily brought to a realization of their merits.

COLLEGE COMMENT

Now that the question as to whether or not the house mother system of supervision of sororities has been raised with much learned discussion pro and con, The Kernel wonders if the pertinent issue has been raised. It seems to us that something should be done about it, not as regards the house mothers, but for the poor girls that feel handicapped when the mother is asleep and consequently unable to be on hand when the screams are threatened.

We notice that the Xaverian News remarks as follows: Ohio College Newspaper Association offers reward for editorial. We wonder if the stipended is to be for a meritorious article or if the association is seeking to have some Ohio college editor show originality by writing an editorial for the first time in the history of the educational system of that state.

Students at the University of Cincinnati are hot and bothered about faculty supervision of the news published in the school papers. There should be no cause for worry along this line, it has been said.

The Columbus (Ohio) Dispatch rises to the occasion with the observation that students of today go to college to attain success in life. All true enough, if the life of the average student is to be considered as a success in terms of life.

Spring is here, tra-la! As one bright student has said, her arrival connotes also the arrival of thoughts, not especially of love but of higher things (stars).

Did you ever stop to think, that it is much easier to criticize than to accept criticism?

Did you ever stop to think, that success can not be achieved over night?

Did you ever stop to think, that it is more difficult to perform a task than to talk of performing one?

Did you ever stop to think, that you should not believe every thing that you hear?

Did you ever stop to think, that you are not the brightest person in the world?

Did you ever stop to think, why you came to college?

Swindler Posing As Transy Ministerial Student Gets $200

Posing as a ministerial student at Transylvania College, a stranger about thirty years old, who gave his name as E. W. Gould, victimized the Campus Book Store, Transylvania College, and other local businesses of approximately $200 recently.

Coming to Transylvania at the beginning of the second semester, this so-called Mr. Gould registered in the College of the Bible and made known that he wished to study for the ministry. He said his credits would be mailed from Oberlin College and in the meantime, paid his tuition of $85 with a check on the Lincoln National Bank of Newark, N. J. It was learned after that time he never attended any classes however.

He is said to have obtained about $84 from the Transylvania Book Store. Later attempts to get checks cashed at the Transylvania treasurer office failed because of the caution of Mrs. Josephine Cross, the treasurer. Mrs. Cross said she had no idea he was other than what he claimed to be but that she told him she was unable to cash the checks because she had not yet received a report on the first check.

After three separate visits to the Transylvania Book Store to talk about buying a typewriter, money was missed from a box which was used as more convenient than the cash register. The amounts missed were $33, $23, and $12.

In addition he got two checks cashed, one for $10 and one for $5, by purchasing a cheap book and some candy.

According to calls received at the University and at Transylvania the man managed to get a number of other checks cashed in the city, but no definite record of the firms victimized or the amounts obtained could be found.

Gould departed Friday before any of his checks had a chance to be returned from the New Jersey bank and he has not since been heard from. When he left his boarding house, he had been going to have dinner and spend the evening with a friend on the College of the Bible faculty.

Although the visitor was a student but four days his "ministerial career" was profitable as it netted him approximately $25 a day. According to the investigation carried on in the University and at Transylvania.

Criticisms of Kat Are Presented To Cover Ravages of Late Edition

By L. W. McMURRAY
"Strike while the iron is hot" is the motto which prompted the writing of this review of the Lampus Kat. Its purpose is to sooth the belpumpled consciences of those who were exposed to the ravages of the "evil kitty."

What's wrong with the Kat anyhow? Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalists fraternity, the group of lads responsible for so many sorrows and humiliations at the University. These unassuming, hard-hearted students are a by-product of (or reflection upon) the journalism department. It is they who so treacherously release the Kat at such inopportune times.

Despite the Kat's bad reputation as an unmerciful slandering, some actually believe it to be a great publication. Recently a well-known literary critic declared that the Kat is one of the best humorous publications of its kind to be found in American colleges. He described it as a clean, yet, lively publication. Very well.

Now here's where the kick comes. The writer was not asked to write any too many stories for the late Kat. He proposes to "spill the beans" between you, me, and the gatepost, there's somethin' rotten in Denmark. For one thing, too many have escaped the Kat's humiliation. If I had been editor:

First, the actual picture of the Kappa Deltas would have been arrayed on the front page of the Kat as I am acquainted with the satirical effect of a recent fire in Lexington. Furthermore I am contemplating on leaving school when the next "E" comes in, so what would be lost in libel?

Secondly, I would have done all the work on the Kat behind closed doors with Yale locks attached and after all was over I would have called upon the constabulary of this metropolis to escort me home (even if home had been none other than an ordinary fraternity house).

Last of all I would have suggested to the editors of Letters and the Kentuckian that they would surely benefit by closer and more careful scrutiny of the Kat. Why not reproduce "Barnes and His Beef Trust Beauties" in Letters for the sake of dignity and sophistication?

There was only one person at the University who seemed please the last Kat. He was none other than President McVey who informed the writer (entirely confidentially) that the Kat supplied him with new jokes for his future speeches. He declared that his latest efforts "nearly went on the rocks" because they were so dry. He said that he was in a bad fix for jokes.

Now the main purpose of this review was to scan the filthy sheets for editorial policy, but there was none to be found. (We believe there was one though).

Just before this went to press a teacher of an editorial class in journalism informed us that he felt that as there were girls in the room he couldn't refer to the Kat because of the public attention he would receive. He also declared that he was formerly acquainted with the Kat, but he now finds it beyond the faintest spark of recognition.

Worse yet, the Kat may spring upon the campus underworld at any time. It gives no warning. Editor Templin has a wary eye.

DID JEW EVER

Did you ever hear of the Scotchman who made a master's thesis. Hung up his suit in front of a mirror to create an atmosphere of extravagance?

Cried over his oatmeal because someone told him that his tears contained salt?

Sued a baseball club because he was hurt while watching a game? He fell out of a tree.

Used his bagpipe for waterworks? Wouldn't pay 25 cents for a handkerchief because he considered it too much to blow in?

Always reads the weather reports before taking a shower bath?

The first time he used free air at a garage he blew out all four tires? Could wear number 7, double A shoes, but bought the widest number 12s he could get because they were the same price?

Walked ten miles to see a ball game but was too tired to climb the fence?

BOOKS MAY BE REPAIRED IN EASY MANNER

How many times one has picked up a book that wobbled in one's hands, although the book was otherwise in good condition. This is especially true of hymnals, occasioned by their frequent opening in a more or less hurried fashion. The wobbling is caused by the loosening of the hinge (the hinge is the point where the covers meet the back and where there is a ridge). This loosening is due to the drying out of the paste glue which should hold the paper at this point. This is a condition easily remedied. With the following simple tools and a few instructions anyone can keep books in good shape.

One piece of shade roller nine inches long by seven-eighths of an inch wide; two nine-inch lengths of metal curtain rod three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter; two pieces of tape three-fourths of an inch wide and 20 inches long; a very thin metal knitting needle; one jar of good library paste; one spatula; one palette knife; several one-half inch strips of thin typewriter paper.

First inspect the volume for loose pages. To mend a loose one, take a strip of the typewriter paper the length of the page, fold it in two the long way and paste one-half of this strip up the loose leaf. Then paste on the other half of the strip, but on the opposite side from the one pasted before, and attach it to the book. This is very important as it takes the pull off the mended page, preventing its tearing out again.

If there are any places in the book where the sections seem to be coming apart, use the palette knife and delicately insert a very little library paste in the crack.

At the top and bottom of the binding at the back will be found a little piece of cloth. If this is loose, take the spatula and insert some paste down the back as far as the spatula will go. Be careful, however, not to paste the cloth back of the book to the binding.

Next turn to the hinges. Put the knitting needle in the paste and insert it in the hinges of the book down to the middle, working from both ends.

The next step is to tie up the book to dry overnight. Place the roller on the table, and holding the covers of the book tightly together, press the front edge firmly down upon the roller. This will shape up the book so that the front will be curved, and the back will then assume the right shape. Carefully insert in each ridge, at the hinge, one of the metal curtain rods. Pass a tape around the book at the extreme top and the extreme bottom and tie tightly, having the bows come in the front curve of the volume. To make the support still tighter, put a finger under each bow and pull together toward the center of the book.

Study of Reporters Is Theme of Thesis

CHICAGO—Newspaper reporters, illustrious quarry for the university expert out to classify them, have at last been studied at close enough range to make a master's thesis. Miss Roma D. Clift has filed in the University of Chicago library a study of 111 members and would-be members of the profession.

Miss Roma gave her tests to an equal number of persons not in the newspaper business and compared results. The reporters, she found, were more poetic in their expression, more original, and more fluent. The only thing they fell down on was spelling.

Another characteristic of the newspaper man, Miss Roma found, was the ease with which he went to work on his questionnaire.

The nonjournalists were fastidious about such matters as filling A's, their fountain pens, while most of the reporters, she observed, used almost illegible pencils.

The study was made with a view to making a test for admission to journalism schools.

Prof. A. Lande Will Speak Today

Noted Physicist to Deliver Series of Lectures on "Wave Mechanics"

Professor A. Lande, of the University of Tubingen, Germany, will give two lectures today on modern physics in the lecture room of the physics department in the Civil and Physics Building. He speaks on "Wave Mechanics" at 4 p. m. and the topic for his talk tonight at 7:30 will be "Determination and Probability in Modern Physics."

Professor Lande also gave two lectures Thursday on "Wave Mechanics," introducing the newest theories and viewpoints of physics as reconciled with the older theories. He is professor of physics at the University of Tubingen, and has been at Ohio State University for fall and winter quarters, where he delivered a series of lectures on modern physics. He is one of the pre-eminent physicists of the world in the study of fine structures of spectrum lines, and in the newer field of wave mechanics.

Pianist's Concert Will Be March 6

Arthur Shattuck Will Give Recital at Woodland Auditorium

Arthur Shattuck, one of the foremost pianists in the world today, will render a concert at the Woodland Auditorium Thursday night, March 6 at 8:15 o'clock. The program will be given under the auspices of the Lexington College of Music.

In regard to Mr. Shattuck, the Musical Courier says that he is without doubt one of the leading pianists of the world and that he stands out and above other pianists with a vigor of personality and style that renders him quite unique to his audience. Mr. Shattuck is a master of program building and for this program he has chosen compositions from the works of Bach, Chopin, Debussy, Ravel, and Liszt.

Miss Anna Chandler Goff, director of the College Music, stated that tickets could be obtained now at the College of Music and that the downtown sale would begin Tuesday, March 4, at the Phoenix hotel.

Rapprochement Is Planned for Slavs

PRAGUE—Plans for uniting the various South Slav races in a general social and cultural movement, and in this way helping to eliminate the racial conflicts that have characterized the Balkan states, have been set on foot at a recent student meeting here. The meeting was attended by representatives from the clubs of Slav students at the different universities in Germany, France, and central Europe. The movement aims to work through the various cultural societies in the Balkans.

In view of the tension in southeast Europe, it was surprising to find protests against such an attempt at rapprochement appearing in certain quarters; but the opposition only seemed to stimulate the efforts of those present. It was declared that between the Black Sea and Jugoslavia live different tribes of one nation, with a common past, common political and cultural interests, and that present conditions in the Balkans seem favorable to working out plans for close co-operation.

It was further stated that any new conflict in the Balkans would be regarded with distrust by European public opinion for the whole of Slavdom.

The congress pledged itself to work for South Slav understanding and decided to publish a special magazine for this purpose.

NORTH VERSUS THE SOUTH

Basketball teams from the Northern end of the Southern Conference are better than teams from the Southern section, according to all available statistics.

A review of the results of the basketball tournaments held for Southern teams in the last nine years show only two titles remaining in the South—seven going North.

The Southern section has controlled the football monopoly for the most part, and now the teams from out of the North threaten to break up their happy home.

Telephone Men Visit Engineers

Interviews Held With Prospective Candidates for Positions

Kendall Weisger of Atlanta, Ga., assistant to the president of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Co. and several other men representing various branches of the company, visited the University yesterday.

Among the other representatives present were Mr. Johnson of the Bell system laboratories in New York City; a representative from the Western Electric Co. at Kearney, N. J.; and Mr. Tebbutt of Atlanta, Ga., from the company's Long Lines department.

The interview took place in Dean Freeman's office in Mechanical Hall.

Stage Shelves Melodrama Of Legree and Little Eva

The blacknape whip of Simon Legree, after seventy-eight years of being "pe' ole Uncle Tom's Cabin" miseries, apparently has been laid on the cupboard shelf for keeps.

Statistics are not available, but it would be interesting to know just how many temperance acts have balked at the lowly role bestowed upon them as a secondary part—hat of standing in the wings and barking like a bloodhound while Eliza skittered across the dubious catwalk river of life.

The last stand was in New England, where "Tom shows" always have been big. Some of the most famous of the Tom actors and actresses came from Boston, says Equity, but the heart-throber exists no more in the Northeast hills.

Tom and Little Eva made their first appearance September 1852 in the Museum at Troy, N. Y. A little girl named Cordelia Howard, then four years old, was the first Eva, and when she died and went winging up to the Golden Gate, the customers fell over in the aisle and wept.

FOUR REGULAR POSTS ARE OPEN

With the 'Cat basketballers taking their final bow to the basketball season in Atlanta tonight, Coach Pat Devereaux will take over the reins of the Blue and White when he calls out his men for their initial practice at the great American pastime on Monday.

Coach Devereaux expects a large list of candidates to answer his call. The 'Cat baseball team of last season was one of the most successful ever to represent the University and with only four of the regular members of that team missing, and a fair supply of material coming in from last year's fresh team, the coming season should be as successful this year.

Taylor University Co-ed Finances Education With Hers

UPLAND, Ind.—When Mary went to school one day she was accompanied by her famous lamb, but Martha May Smith, an Indiana farm girl, went the legendary Mary a step better.

The hens, unlike the lamb, proved useful. Installed in a remodeled poultry house, they're busy financing Martha May's education. And although the young woman is studying music, she probably finds the barn-yard symphonies scolded by her proudest-making hens as satisfying as the classics heard in the classroom.

This unique way of paying for an education was conceived when Martha May's father, Omer Smith, a Wayne County farmer, spied an abandoned poultry house in Upland. Why not help his 17-year-old daughter realize her musical ambitions by giving her some of his fine flock of 150 hens, since he couldn't give her sufficient money? The idea was tried and is proving successful.

SQUIRREL FOOD

By C. E. BARNES

After being so generously criticized for our abstruse manner of expressing our somewhat disjointed opinions of last week, we approach the problem this week with no little timidity.

We are indebted to a good friend of ours for the following poetic sentiment. Not very long ago, still recent enough to inspire comment, mysterious fires started in the attics of two of our favorite societies. This only indicates the progress of the world. There was a time when a philosopher, Spinoza, dwelled in the attic and wrote books there, but times have changed and our attics are reserved for the ravages of fire. Considering that these fires were engendered in comparatively cool weather, we wonder what will happen when the stifling sun of complacent May turns its fervent rays upon the campus, and our young ladies really turn on the heat. We heartily recommend bigger and better insurance policies for these inflammable buildings.

With the advent of a premature session of spring we begin to wonder what will happen to our scholastic standing when old Sol shines down in all his celestial intensity, and the diaphanous dress of the more effeminate creatures goes swirling by in sunatorial ecstasy. The fashions promise more sail for the March winds. We hope that nobody gets "see" sick. Here's what we think is the weeks best doggerel:

Algy saw a bear;
The bear was bulgy;
The bulge was Algy.

We hadn't been so impressed with the current trend of student philosophy these days until we read a recent survey from Leland Stanford University which indicates that only five of the five hundred co-eds there ever expect to get married. Looks like the competition is getting keener and keener all the time. Anyhow, we can't say that we are convinced that all the native daughters will stick to such a declaration.

As the springtime rolls around we'd like to suggest, just as a matter of self-protection that amorous couples pick out less obtrusive places in which to do their courting. The couple that parks near the law library is a constant detriment to good study conditions.

nel, it appeared that the Valentine there had golden locks, twin rose lips and cetera. According to our observations the favored Romeo has cool black hair!

We can't help but be impressed with the noticeable lack of courtesy prevalent among certain students at recent dances. There is no particular reason why college students should be less thoughtful of others than any other class of people. Perhaps it is true that they are no worse than any others but it is a great deal more noticeable in this class than any other. We refer particularly (not caring to be misunderstood in this respect) to methods of "tagging," and to offensive forms of dancing that are clearly a misinterpretation of the Terpsichorean art.

Oh yes, we forgot that we intended to make some defense for our practice of using words of more than a single syllable. It is with a great deal of regret that we confess that the current collegiate practice is to use words that even a four year old can pronounce and use with facility. Far be it from us to defend a conscious pedantry but we do believe that vocabulary and the diaphanous dress of the more effeminate creatures go hand in hand. Oh hum!

Y. W. C. A. Talks

Dean Sarah G. Blanding is sponsoring a series of talks for the directors of the halls and housemothers of the various sorority houses. The meetings are to be held on five consecutive Monday afternoons in the Y. W. C. A. room, which directly adjoins the office of the Dean of Women. Tea will be served after each meeting.

The program is as follows:
March 3—"The Housemother's Responsibility to the University and the Individual Student," Dr. Frank L. McVey.
March 10—"Rules and Regulations of the University," Dean Sarah G. Blanding.
March 17—"Managing People," Dean Sarah B. Holmes.
March 24—"Some Phases of Adolescent Psychology," Prof. Gardner Bassett.
March 31—"Student Health," Dr. J. S. Chambers.

"Did you hear about the Scotchman suing the University?"
"Yeah, he fell out of a tree watching a football game."

Forest Protection In Kentucky Is of Vital Importance

Many interests in Kentucky are vitally concerned with the importance of forest protection. The forests, which depend upon the forests for their supply of material, are most keenly interested, since the forests constitute their stock in trade.

Other interests which are of a large extent concerned, are the railroads which draw upon the forests for large supplies of ties, poles, bridge timbers and other material; the telephone and telegraph companies which depend upon the forests for their supply of poles; the tanning industry, which depends upon the forest for its supply of tanbark; and the mining industry, which uses between three and four feet of timber, board measure, for every ton of coal brought from the mine.

There are also many other industries more or less dependent upon the sources of the forests of Kentucky, which makes it vitally important that the proper appropriation be made by the State, that our forest may be adequately protected.

Human carelessness in one form or another is the cause of over 90 per cent of our forest fires. A few are due to lightning, and a few are set intentionally. To reduce the great number of forest fires set carelessly it is necessary to bring the damage done to the hunters, smokers, campers, brush burners, and all classes of people who are responsible for them.

Forest fires in Kentucky can never be entirely stopped by forest wardens or other officials. Their presence is dependent upon installing into the public a better understanding of the damage caused by forest fires, so that they will be careful with fire in the woods as they are in their own homes.

In combating forest fires in Kentucky public education continues to be of first importance. The problem to the extent it is a matter of safety crusade in reducing accidents through an educational campaign. A forest fire can never suffer for lack of wood.

Funkhouser Will Attend Tournament

University Professor Is in Atlanta for Meeting of Conference Board

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, dean of the graduate school and head of the zoology department, left yesterday for Atlanta to attend a meeting of the executive committee of the southern conference which is being held February 28 and 29. Dr. Funkhouser is secretary of the Southern conference and is also secretary of the executive committee.

At the meeting several important issues will be decided. A definite agreement will be reached regarding the continuance of the New Years game between the North and the South which was played this year at Atlanta. Rules of eligibility to apply to all branches of intercollegiate athletics will be drawn up and other important problems of the conference will be discussed.

Dr. Funkhouser said that although his duties will be completed on Saturday he will remain in Atlanta as long as the Wildcats remain in the race for the Southern Conference championship.

There was once a farmer's widow who had difficulty in raising her pigs. So she wrote the following letter to the pig expert at the University:

"Something is wrong with my pigs. Every morning I find three or four lying in the lot cold and stiff, with their feet in the air. Can you tell me what is the matter?"

In a few days she received the following reply from the expert: "Dear Madame, your pigs are dead."

"Yes, Johnnie tried to argue me out of spanking him, but he got it in the end."

OPERA COMPANY IS NOW PLAYING AT LOUISVILLE

Chicago Civic Opera Stars Present Four Offerings at New Auditorium

MARY GARDEN SINGS IN "THAIS" TOMORROW

Formichi, Salvi, Oleszewska, And Schipa are in Excellent Cast

Many students and faculty members of the University were delighted with "Lucia" as presented by the Chicago Civic Opera Company last night in Memorial Auditorium at Louisville. This is the first of four grand opera offerings to be given there through three nights and a Saturday matinee. Last night's opening was one of the most unusual and colorful events that Louisville has known in a decade.

Boyd Martin in the Courier-Journal says, "The manner of staging operas in Louisville has been so much less finished than the average stage production that heretofore no one has been much excited over a season of grand opera. The lower of spectacle and popular stage dressing, however, need have no fear that his eyes will not be appealed to during the engagement of the Chicago company for the operas will be mounted gorgeously and costumed richly. Supported to the fullest extent by the people of Louisville, the Chicago Civic Opera Company has elaborate settings in which to present the four operas, and students here should be more than eager to attend at least one of the performances."

The opening with "Lucia" last night will be followed by "Tannhauser" tonight. "Thais" will be presented at the Saturday matinee, and "Carmen" will conclude the presentations Saturday night. The curtain rises at 8 o'clock sharp each evening, an iron-clad rule with the Chicago Civic Opera, and no one will be seated during the overture.

Mary Garden, Tito Schipa, Margherita Salvi, Marie Oleszewska, Cesare Formichi, Richard Bonelli, Wolfgang Giuseppe Cavadore, Walter Eugenio Sandrini as Biterolf, Lodovico Oliverio as Henry, Antonio Nicolich as Falomo, Cosetta as Venus, Alice Mock as the shepherd, Emil Cooper, famous Russian conductor, will direct "Tannhauser" in the place of Giorgio Polacco, who has been compelled by illness to abandon the tour.

"Thais" will present Mary Garden in the title role; Theodorita Ritch as Nicia; Cesare Formichi as Falomo; Antonio Nicolich as Falomo; Ada Paggi as Myrtille; Alice Mock as Crolye; and Eugenio Sandrini as the slave of Nicias. Robert Moranzoni will conduct "Thais," and the ballet will present incidental dances featuring Miss Pryor, Mr. Caton, Harriet Lundgren, Julia Barashkova and others.

In "Carmen" Rene Mason will sing the role of Jose; Eugenio Sandrini will appear as Morales; Antonio Nicolich as Zuniga; Marie Oleszewska as Carmen; Thelma Votiska as Frasquita; Ada Paggi as Mercedes; Chas. Baromasi as Escamillo; Edith Mason as Micaela; Desir Defrene as Dancairo; Lodovico Oliverio as Remendado. Incidental dances will be presented by the ballet, featuring Miss Lundgren, Mr. Caton, and the entire ballet. Mr. Cooper will direct "Carmen."

In the presentation of "Lucia" last night Giacomo Riminali appeared as Lord Henry Ashton; Margherita Salvi as Lucia; Tito Schipa as Edgardo di Ravenswood; Theodore Ritch as Lord Arturo; Virgilio Lazzari as Raymond; Alice d'Hermandy as Alice; and Lodovico Oliverio as Norman. "Lucia" was conducted by Frank St. Legar.

"That's my tale," said the cat, "and I'm going to stick to it."

Study of Household Arts Recommended

Dr. Douglas Suggests Studies in High School Course

Pots, pans, and dust rags are vying with Cicero and Caesar for places in the preparation of future collegiates, according to Dr. Harl R. Douglas of the College of Education, University of Minnesota. Dr. Douglas said, in a report to the American Association for the Advancement of Science, that studies in household arts, industrial and workshop subjects may do well as mathematics and foreign languages in preparing the student for college.

"The special values attributed to certain subjects taught in high school as peculiarly preparatory for college would seem to rest upon assumptions or theories that do not conform to fact," said Dr. Douglas. His observations are based upon analysis of the work of 400 students of the University of Oregon.

Tombstones Placed On Kappa Lawn At Colorado School

Boulder police have been investigating new clues which may lead to identification of the persons who placed eleven tombstones on the lawn of the Kappa Kappa Gamma sorority house at the University of Colorado early Tuesday morning.

Police believe that the persons who took the tombstones from Columbian Cemetery to the sorority house were the ones who stole six automobiles parked in front of the Phi Kappa Psi fraternity house shortly after midnight Monday and distributed them in widely scattered sections of University Hill.

No information has been disclosed by the police department regarding who the suspects may be, although many unverified rumors are current on the campus.

Speculation as to the motive and the parties involved has been widely spread since the tombstones were discovered on the lawn. The only facts known are that the grave markers were placed in front of the sorority house between 12 o'clock and 1:45 o'clock Tuesday morning.

One or more members of the sorority said that they saw several men placing the tombstones on the lawn, but they could not identify them. Two automobiles had been parked in the alley at the rear of their house shortly before the tombstones were placed, they said.

The University night watchman reported seeing several automobiles in front of Mackay auditorium during the night. One of these was a car which had been taken from in front of the Phi Kappa Psi house and which later was found to have in it two pieces of cement which were believed to have fallen from the bottom of the tombstones.

In an effort to make identifications, police took fingerprints from the tombstones. No fingerprints of students have been taken.

A reward is offered by the cemetery officials for the information leading to conviction.

Budget Request Is Reduced in Amended Bill by Assembly

(Continued from Page One) the $75,000 requested for equipping buildings under construction, $80,000 is allotted to the new education building, $80,000 to the new library, and $15,000 to the new products building.

Should the Legislature pass the bill as it stands, the University would receive for the next two years the following amounts for building and equipment: Service building, $25,000; equipment of new buildings, $75,000; hog barns and pens at Experiment Station, $15,000; beef cattle barns and pens at Experiment Station, $15,000; agricultural mechanics and engineering building, $80,000; building at Princeton station, $10,000.

The committee cut from the list of requested appropriations $75,000 for the construction of an engineering laboratory. The $75,000 appropriation for an agricultural mechanics and engineering building was reduced from $75,000 to $55,000. Senator J. J. McBrayer, Fayette county, and Representative John Y. Brown have declared that they will lead fight in the houses in an attempt to restore the original bill.

Music Festival Will Be Held April 10, 11, 12

The fifth Annual Kentucky High School Music Festival will be held at the University April 10, 11, and 12, 1930, according to Louis Clifton, Assistant Director of the Department of University Extension. The University sponsors this program each year through its department of extension in cooperation with the department of music of the University and the state supervisor of music. Approximately three hundred schools have registered their intention of having one or more entries in the program which consists of both vocal and instrumental music.

The purpose of the program, according to the announcement, is to promote a greater interest and appreciation for music in Kentucky by means of wholesome competition in musical achievement among the pupils in public and private high schools. Preceding the State Festival, sixteen district festivals will be held about March 15. In the district festivals each school is allowed an entry in each of the events. Entries in the State Festival will be restricted to those awarded first honors in the district festivals.

ELLIOTT ON GARDENING

The Fayette Rose and Garden Club sponsored an illustrated lecture on "Landscape Gardening and Design," Tuesday afternoon, March 4, at 3:30 in the auditorium of Henry Clay High School. Prof. R. N. Elliott of the University gave the lecture, which was attended by the members of the Fayette Rose and Garden Club and by members of all garden clubs and home-maker's clubs in the city and county, as well as other lovers of beauty.

Fashion Decrees "Boiled Shirt" Formal Attire for Men Comes With Long Skirt of Women

PHILADELPHIA — While the world is watching for fashion's final decree on the length of women's skirts, comes the prediction that the "boiled" shirt for men again is coming into vogue and that before long the well-dressed man will be the man attired in a stiff-boomed expanse of white linen, a high standing collar and spats.

This prediction was made here by Miss Ruth H. Herr, a stylist, of New York, in an address on fashions at the sixteenth annual convention of the Middle Atlantic Shoe Retailers Association. Miss Herr was non-committal on the prospects of long or short skirts for women but was emphatic in her belief that the Chesterfield era for men is coming back.

"I do not know who or what is accountable for this resurgence to formal attire for men," she said, as her audience of several hundred men squirmed in their chairs, "but before long you will find yourselves increased in starched armor, even to the stiff, high, starched collar. There are already indications that the Chesterfield overcoat, once a resplendent and popular raiment for men, is coming back. It is the decree of style and you can do nothing about it."

The formal day is coming, Miss Herr said, and added that the man who lounges about comfortably in soft shirt, rampant collar and necktie at an abandoned angle, will be strictly out of the style picture. Speaking of shoes, which was what she came to the meeting for, she said, sport shoes would be simply out of the question for anything except strictly sport wear. Men must learn not to take too many liberties with the formalities of dress and will have to wear spats and shoes in keeping with their "hermetically sealed" shirts and collars, she said.
