

FIRST SEMESTER STANDINGS SHOW 1.378 AVERAGE

Relative Scholarships Reveal Women Have Higher Grades than Men

EDUCATION COLLEGE TOPS MARKING LIST Reports Compiled in Accordance With Method Adopted by Deans

Relative scholarship standings of campus groups for the first semester, 1930-31, released from the office of C. R. Fletcher, dean of men place the all student average at 1.378. They also reveal a higher average for women than for men, and indicate that students in the College of Education achieve better than students in any other college.

The scholarship report was compiled in accordance with the method adopted by the 1925 conference of deans and advisers of men. This method designates the general university average, 1.378, by zero and places the various organizations in groups above and below the general average according to their relative standings. Those in Group I plus are those which average 1.378 or more points more than the average; those in Group 2 plus, have from .162 to .254 points more than the average; and so on. Those in Group 1 minus have from 0 to .162 points less than the average; those in Group 2 minus, from .162 to .324 points less than the average; and so on. The report follows:

Table with 2 columns: Organization and Average. Includes All students (1.378), All freshmen (1.294), All sophomores (1.182), etc.

NEW HONOR LAW SOCIETY FORMED

University Is Granted Chapter of Order of the Coif, Organization Similar to Phi Beta Kappa in Arts College

The university law college has been granted a chapter of the Order of the Coif, honorary organization similar to Phi Beta Kappa in Arts and Sciences. The announcement is expected to be made in the near future at the university since there are more than 70 law school members of the association of American law schools, and only about 27 have previously been granted the privilege of a chapter.

The Order of the Coif is of English origin, and is very ancient. Its membership in the past has been made up of a legal group known as Serjeants-at-law. From this group the Order of the Coif has derived its social significance. The rank of Serjeant-at-law has since been abolished, the Order ceased to exist. The society, based upon this historical foundation, was established in 1902 at Northwestern University for the purpose of encouraging scholarship in the law.

Kentucky is the first law school that has been admitted to membership during the last three years. The election is by three-fourths vote of all the chapters. The considerations upon which the candidates are selected, are the extent and character of the library and its growth and progress; the housing of the school; the ability, training and scholarship of its faculty, and their teaching ability and capacity for research; the character and quality of the nature of their training as shown by their accomplishments. There are other considerations of a tangible nature which bear upon the spirit of the school, which are not easily enumerated.

The symbol of membership is a key, on the face of which is the likeness of an early serjeant wearing his coif. The coif was a close-fitting cap of white lawn or silk, worn by serjeants-at-law as a distinguishing mark of their profession.

Membership in any one chapter is limited to the 10 per cent of the graduating class who have attained the highest grade. The members may be selected from a limited group of those who have attained the highest grade. The members may be selected from a limited group of those who have attained the highest grade. Strollers Hold Election of Officers at Dinner Meeting

At a business meeting of Strollers student dramatic organization immediately before the annual Stroller banquet, at 8:30 o'clock Monday night, the officers for the coming year were elected. They are: Jack Robey, president; business manager, Russell Segner; secretary, Dorothy Jones, who was elected by acclamation. The election of the production manager was postponed.

The retiring officers are: Rex Allison, president; Thomas L. Riley, director; Dorothy Jones, secretary; Earl Cella, business manager. Strollers had its first revue type of performance this year. It was highly successful under the direction of Thomas L. Riley. All persons who participated in the 1931 revue but were not elected to Strollers, were placed on the eligibility list.

This year marks the inauguration of the new point system in Strollers. In order to become a Stroller, a student must now have 100 points. For taking minor parts in Stroller productions, one is given a certain number of points, lower than 100. When his total points are 100, he is given membership in Strollers. Other officers installed were Myra Dietz, who is elected editor of the "K" book for 1931-32; Clara Margaret Fort, secretary; Gladys Garnett, treasurer; Edna Hone, business manager; Myra Dietz, editor of the "K" book for 1931-32; Clara Margaret Fort, secretary; Gladys Garnett, treasurer; Edna Hone, business manager.

Kentucky Botanical Garden Offers Opportunity to Study Plant Life

By SUSAN GROVER It would be safe to say that almost half the students at the university have never visited its Botanical Garden. Doubtless most everyone has heard of it, but has either thought it not significant enough for his studies or has not taken the time to look around or perchance some felt too unimportant to appreciate its worth. Whatever the answer to such negligence may be, the reply is—do not leave the campus without seeing it.

In the fall of 1927 about seven acres of sloping land lying between White Hall and the main campus street were set aside to be developed into a botanical garden and wild flower reserve. The Garden was the first of its kind in the state of Kentucky. It is now a well-developed garden, and is a most interesting place to visit. It is a most interesting place to visit. It is a most interesting place to visit.

The plan is to have growing in this one acre of the native Kentucky trees, shrubs, and wild flowers, each labeled with both scientific and common names. The instruction of visitors; and also to include any beautiful and interesting plants which are found to thrive in this locality. An attractive entrance has been made at the top of the hill back of White Hall, and a path leads down the slope to two pools at the bottom. A little stream issues from the hill, and flows down these pools, bordered by native ferns and moisture-loving wild flowers. A rocky bank has been developed on part of the area. The soil in another location has been specially prepared to accommodate such plants as the rhododendrons, and

Dorothy Compton Is In Audition Contest

Young men and women, winners of the local contests in 11 counties, competed last night in the fifth annual Dorothy Compton Audition Contest in Memorial Hall. The winners of this contest will represent the county in the regional contest, the winner of which will represent the state in the regional contest.

Each contestant sang one song of his or her own choosing; they were screened off from the judges by means of a curtain. The names of the judges were not announced. Dorothy Compton, sophomore in the College of Arts and Sciences, was the winner of the contest. She was the winner of the contest. She was the winner of the contest.

PLANS ARE MADE FOR OBSERVING LEXINGTON DAY

Thursday, May 28, Is Set for Acquainting Lexingtonians With University

FORMAL OPENING TO BEGIN AT 10 O'CLOCK

Competent Guide Will Conduct Visitors over Campus

Final plans for "Lexington Day" which will be held at the university Thursday, May 28, have been completed by the committees representing the school and the Lexington Chamber of Commerce.

"Lexington Day" is to give the people of Lexington and Fayette county an opportunity to visit the university, inspect its workshops and laboratories, and to make a complete tour of its campus under the guidance of a competent guide.

The day program has been planned by the committees which were appointed to formulate the plans. The program for the day will be opened formally at 10 o'clock Thursday morning in Memorial Hall by Dr. Frank L. McVey, who will give a short outline of the work of the university. At this time there will also be a program of organ music by Dr. Abner Keiser. A similar program will be held at 1 o'clock that afternoon.

Starting at 10 o'clock and lasting until 12:30 guides will leave Memorial Hall with inspection parties every fifteen minutes. Any visitors may join these parties for a detailed tour of the campus and buildings. At 1:15 there will be a luncheon at the university. The university campus will be opened to visitors or guests may spread their lunches on the lawn.

At 2 o'clock in the afternoon the annual field day of the Military Department will begin with a parade by the 100 piece university band which will march to Stoll field. There the cadets will hold their exercises. More than 1100 students of military science will take part in the exercises. At this time the graduation exercises for the advanced students in the R. O. T. C. will be held. Individual and group competitive drill will also be an exhibition by Pershing Rifles and given. There will be a parade of students and there will be special designation of the honor graduates. There will be a parade of students and there will be special designation of the honor graduates.

The program for the concert follows: March 14th Infantry; King; John; The Waves of Windsor; Nicolai; Kol Nidre; Traditional; Selections from "Rose Marie"; Primal and Intermission.

Cortege du Sardar from Caucasus; The Popolow Itanow; Deep River; Traditional; Medley; Victor Herbert's Favorites; Herbert; Second Collegiate Dixie; Sulzer. Second-semester examinations will begin Friday, May 29, and will end Thursday, June 4. All class work will be completed by Friday, June 4.

LIMIT TO MAN'S KNOWLEDGE

Just how far will scientists extend the knowledge of man? The knowledge he already has seems incredible. The powers of electricity have been harnessed into an infinite number of man-like devices to serve as many purposes. Man's engineering ability has enabled him to build skyscrapers hundreds of feet into the air and sink shafts as many hundreds of feet into the earth.

Enough research and new discoveries are being made to supply several monthly periodicals with all their material. Each month reveals something "wonderful" or impossible to the readers. But they only have to wait a few months to find it a reality, and a successful one. Once it was the super-durable with its luxurious equipment; another time it was the autogyro, an airplane which ascended and descended vertically; then again it was the airplane carrier, a floating airport; the submarine designed to travel beneath the ice of the frozen Arctic ocean was another, and these are only a few of the many. They all seem commonplace enough now.

What do these things prophesy? Why were they built? Were they conceived to glorify man, to glorify humankind's passion for power? Or is it but an inevitable expression of the new age, a step in a growth just as a new limb is a step in the growth of a tree?

It is not for mere man to prophesy, not when so many things are possible. Several decades ago when man was an infant in knowledge, it was easy to foretell the future in relation to past events. Now it is only guess work, with several channels into which one might enter.

Man is the superior animal, from the view of brainpower, but man is not a supreme being. His knowledge is limited, the boundary and the distance he has traveled toward it cannot be computed.

Man is the superior animal, from the point of view of brainpower, but man is not a supreme being. His knowledge is limited, the boundary and the distance he has traveled toward it cannot be computed.

Where do we come from? Where do we go? Who made us? Why? Why do things happen? When and where was the beginning? Is there an end?

Such questions cannot be demonstrated in the research laboratories of our scientists. Answers to any of them cannot be based on absolute knowledge.

Scientists will lead man far into the realm of the known, but they will stop at the end of the road. Both will bow before the Supreme Being who sees all, knows all, understands all.

CO-OPERATIVE BUYING

A cooperative buying plan for fraternities and sororities has been proposed at the University of Kentucky recently. The plan involves radical changes in the financial systems of the Greek letter organizations, much interest is being shown in it throughout the collegiate world. The plan, in brief, provides for an agent acting for 25 or 30 sororities and fraternities, to do all the buying in quantity lots of the more staple articles and to arrange for the purchase of minor articles at a price which will, it is believed, save the organizations a considerable amount each year. It also provides for scientific menu service under the guidance of a dietitian.

The values of such a system can be seen at first glance. The inefficiency and waste which in some degree accompanies the dining room activities of all fraternities, would be greatly decreased. The trouble and expense of having individual buyers, many of whom are inexperienced, would be eliminated. The mental and physical health of all students would no doubt be improved by scientifically balanced meals. Under drawbacks to the plan may be mentioned the possible confusion of delivering goods to the proper sources, the delay in obtaining the occasional "minor articles" desired, and the lack of 100 per cent cooperation with the plan.

However, the plan, with its advantages and defects, can only be observed fairly after it is in operation. At Michigan two organizations have passed it, two are considering it, and the others are holding a joint open house meeting to talk over its merits and faults. Every college and university in the country is anxiously awaiting the final verdict given by Michigan, and is anxiously hoping to see the plan in operation so it may also have the chance of considering it.

THE AMERICAN UNIVERSITY

An institution that has no coherent concept of its real purpose is the expression of pure tragedy. What is more tragic than the position of the American college, an institution that faces this problem? Educators have long discussed the real purpose of a university, while in theory they settle the problem, practice makes fools of those who theorize. It is our privilege and pleasure to define what we believe.

to be the real function which a university is created to perform. Schools and school systems have a function to express and a work to do; the function is the only justification for their being. They are founded by the social group to develop creative brains so that those brains may lighten the burdens that life seems to impose upon man.

Institutions must give to mankind a type of man, who, in the words of an English poet, is a man whose religion is, "to seek, to find, and not to yield." We need men on our side of life today who are willing to strive toward the attainment of something beyond the accomplishments of former men and generations. The scholar is ever seeking and sooner or later he will reach his goal if he keeps his true art as a thinker always before him. Ability and accomplishment are not enough; the thing quality of creative intellect is not to yield. Not to yield, is the theme by which the product of the ideal university must guide himself. His primary purpose is postulated: the greatest good for the greatest is his aim. Any deviation from this ideal makes him an intellectual traitor. Intellectual treason here is no question in our minds. Our American universities are not producing the trust men, but rather, public relations counsels, business men, demagogues and beer barrel orators, whose university training is used to enslave them.

Let the students of the university forget their fraternities, let them forget their sports, let them forget the thousand nature shocks that intellectual endeavor is heir to, and remember that they have in them reposed a trust that must not be violated. The social life of a university has its purpose but that purpose is all in the interest of the individual. It gives happiness to the person, not the state.

The American university is the expression of a conflict of interests. Shall it be the happiness and the well being of the greater or the lesser problem that is facing us? Is a college a place for assuming certain social grades or is it a place where we should be developing creative ability and a desire to create for the sake of the campus life. Until they do they will be open to the same type of derogatory criticism which authorities are heaping upon them today.

PROFANITY

Practically everyone is familiar with the following phrase concerning profanity and its use: "People who use profanity do so because they can find no better way in which to express themselves." The truth in this statement makes it a slur on our intelligence to give forth a burst of profanity. When we say "dammit" it is usually because we are totally at loss for anything else to say; as far as the meaning of the term we might as well have said nothing at all. As far as the actual usefulness of profanity is concerned there is no use at all for it. It is as meaningless as a breath of hot air and is well termed by collegians "hot air" for that reason.

An explosive epithet is also a reflection on a person's vocabulary, and most certainly hinders the progress of the formation of a good vocabulary. The popularity of profanity might be blamed for the decrease in vocabulary usage and especially for the apparent unfamiliarity which the average student body has with the usage of his own language. During the last decade profanity has become more common than ever before. In times previous to 1920 a person who was free with the use of profanity was considered as being common, vulgar, with a mind nearing obscenity. The tolerant attitude which is in effect now makes swearing almost a necessity for it is "being done."

The day of the great orators and speakers is gone; no more will we hear men with the ability to sway an audience with the expression of their thoughts. The only reason is that there are few men in existence who have the power to speak forcefully and conclusively on any subject because their vocabulary is too limited and too trite. No longer is a person who is verbose, who has a wide command of words at his control, admired and envied. He has been superseded by a group of intelligent people who cannot display their intelligence in an intelligent manner. These people are victims of "short cut" expressions, trite phrases, profanity.

Profanity is not pleasing to hear. Regardless of current toleration, it still retains the inherent commonness of jargon. It is still trite, and it is still offensive to well educated people. There will never be a time when men can swear gracefully or men can make swearing take the place of more definite thought.

By indulging in profanity we are merely limiting ourselves, degrading ourselves and narrowing our conceptions and perceptions. The time has come for us to think before we swear and phrase our feelings in some more definite and satisfactory way which will clarify our meaning.

Hoover Is Elected English Club Head

The English club of the university elected Andrew Hoover president and Mary Moore Nash secretary-treasurer for the ensuing year, at a meeting held at the home of President and Mrs. Frank L. McVey. During the meeting, Dr. Robinson Shipper, former president of Lincoln Memorial university, addressed the members, speaking on "The Benefits of the New Library and the Benefits Gained from English Composition." Frank Stone and Duke Johnston are the retiring president and secretary-treasurer of the organization. The English club of the university is composed of students majoring in English and those interested in the work of the English department.

"Papa," wrote Gloria E., "I have become infatuated with callisthenes. 'Well, daughter,' wrote her father, 'if your heart's set upon him I haven't a word to say; but I always did hope you'd marry an American.'"

What's YOUR favorite pipe tobacco?

Most PRINCETON men smoke—

If you walk along Prospect Street in Princeton you'll notice how many men lead their pipes from the familiar blue Edgeworth tin. At Senior Singing on the steps of Nassau Hall this spring the pipes will glow with Edgeworth.

A pipe and Edgeworth—this is the smoking combination that has won the college man. Yale, Dartmouth, Cornell, Illinois, Stanford... all agree with Princeton.

College men everywhere respond to the appeal of pipes—packed with cool, slow-burning Edgeworth. Be guided by their choice: Try Edgeworth yourself. Taste its rich natural savor that is enhanced immeasurably by Edgeworth's distinctive eleventh process.

You will find Edgeworth at your nearest tobacco shop—15¢ the tin. Or, for generous free sample, address Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.

EDGEWORTH SMOKING TOBACCO

CHARLIE CHAPLIN AND OUR ALUMNI

"Did the jester snub the King?" Our old friend Charlie Chaplin is accused of having refused to give a "command" performance before the King of England, while he was stopping in London during his recent European tour. Charlie is a native "Londoner" and the English people are greatly offended at his action.

When questioned Charlie Chaplin stated, "I received no command from the King, but merely a request from the music hall manager to appear in a charity show." However, Londoners seem to disagree with him and the comment which has arisen from this incident has brought to light some very interesting views of the famous comedian.

When confronted with the statement that he has a duty to England, he replied, "I wonder just what that duty is? No one wanted me or cared for me in England 17 years ago. I had to go to America for my chance and I got it there. Only then did England take the slightest notice of me." We were struck by the everyday logic of this statement and the applicability of it to conditions with which we are familiar.

It is not uncommon for a graduate of a university when confronted with the assumption of some responsibility of his position as an alumni to utter the same thought that Chaplin did when his duty to England was questioned. It is the logic of a person who is utterly lacking in the concept of relative values, because it does not recognize anything except the exterior conditions.

Loyalty is not sentimentality as so many people seem to think it is. Rather, loyalty is the visible expression of appreciation. If Charlie Chaplin had never lived in London, he might never have had the stimulus which drove him to America, nor the characteristics which made him such a success as an American comedian. If the university graduate had never gone to college he would never have had the opportunity to train himself to fit the job which he found through some other means at the university. In this way, indebtedness assumes the proportions of loyalty.

During commencement week many alumni will return to visit the campus. There will be an astoundingly small number of them in comparison with the number of graduates in the class of 1931. As we look at them and wonder what has become of the many men and women who have received their start in their profession in this university, let us remember and appreciate that these few loyal alumni are those who had the insight, the understanding of relative values to appreciate their university, that they are loyal to Kentucky.

Seniors, when you see them, remember that next year you will be alumni and that the university does not need anymore "Charlie Chaplinish" alumni and that it is looking forward to having each one of you for a "loyal" alumni.

SOCIETY

THE ONE BEFORE THE LAST I dreamt I was in love again With the One Before the Last, And smiled to greet the pleasant pain Of that innocent young past.

But I jumped to feel how sharp had been The pain when it did live. How the faded dreams of nineteen-ten Were Hell in nineteen-five.

Annual Convention of Kentucky Sheep Growers Is Held

The fifth annual convention of the Kentucky Sheep and Wool Growers Association was held at the Livestock Pavilion of the Agriculture College, Friday.

Approximately 150 delegates from all sections of the state were present at the one-day meeting.

The officers of the association, who were re-elected for a second term, are P. B. Gaines, Carrollton, president, and Richard Miller, of the College of Agriculture, secretary.

The principal speaker at the meeting was R. E. Mateson, chief buyer of lambs for Swift and Co. packing house, who demonstrated the correct method of selecting sheep for the market.

Mr. Mateson pointed out in the flock raised by the university agriculture students the sheep that were best fitted for the market.

The sheep were then slaughtered and the carcasses brought in to the assembled delegates as further proof of their marketing value.

Seven states sent representatives to the convention to observe the method employed by the Kentucky growers. States represented were Virginia, West Virginia, Tennessee, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, and Wisconsin.

The conference was closed with a banquet at the Lafayette hotel Friday evening. President McVey was the principal speaker.

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

An almost ideal athletic department has turned to golf. Daily the gentlemen of sportium journey to Pleadmore or other nearby courses and putter around.

Some of the huskies are right clever at the game, but just who is best is undetermined for an intramural golf tournament for faculty never materialized. There probably would have been a tournament if the time had been changed to a later date.

"Daddy" Boles likes the game just because "whatever happens is your fault." And that's the only very reason Shively likes the game. It seems to be the only worthwhile game that doesn't require team work.

Hooks and slices worry Hagenback, but otherwise he is quite fond of the game of the ancient Scots. Hackensmith can't see the game over handball for there isn't action enough. He cares for a rougher game, but golf does make a "fine gente diversion."

Potter seems very interested in the game. The game is too expensive for the ordinary person, so he has gotten special rates for the students and faculty, and he is selling the tickets in his office.

As far as the university is concerned the sporting year is at an end. We review the year and we can't help but feel that the work done by the various coaches is deserving.

Football brought more publicity to our school than has ever before come this way. A record crowd turned out to witness that Alabama game. We didn't beat them, but as a result of the game we were regarded as formidable.

With a new coach, a new system, and a new team, Kentucky went to the finals in the Southern Conference basketball tournament. As a result, four men were chosen for the all-Southern team.

The real reason for any sport is the joy of competition. To win or not to win is not the object. The baseball team played the game and enjoyed it. Which is plenty.

And while all of the other sports were attracting most of the attention, the intramural department was carrying on with a most extensive program. Under C. W. Hackensmith, the department expanded and attracted literally thousands. New sports were introduced, and the carnival of last Saturday is brand new in these parts.

Hansen and Potter produced a gymnastic exhibition that more than entertained the crowd that turned out for it. A review of the year's work proved the value of the compulsory physical training. Next year the department intends to give the show in the stadium under the flood lights.

Golf, tennis, rifle were sprinkled throughout the year and they all received their share of the honors in their fields.

Track came through with a bang. They were undefeated in dual meets, and in some instances members of the squad were undefeated in their event.

But now it is all history, and we look forward to another year. University officials have sanctioned and financed the renovation of the old Independent Tobacco warehouse across the university campus, and it is now well on its way to complete recovery from a state of dilapidation.

Handball, basketball, and volleyball courts will be installed on the new floors. An indoor track, driving net (golf), and a baseball practice net will be included in the transformation. The last mentioned additions to the campus facilities will start the various teams that use them well on their way before our present weather conditions will allow.

THE GIRLS WITH ROSES
After the young lady whom we choose to wear our rose today we shall have only one more flower girl. Since we have tried to select cities who are outstanding for their beauty, their campus activities, their charm, or other qualities which endear them to the hearts of gentlemen we believe that it would not be unwise to see the scores of the various sororities for the semester. Since it is impossible to eliminate entirely one's personal likes and dislikes in a selection of this kind we believe that we have approached elimination as nearly as it is possible. We have several other ladies whom we believe deserve a rose but the presentations necessarily must come to a close with the end of the semester.
The totals for the sororities:

36th
Mrs. Frazee Wilson, nee Mary Virginia Willis
Eugenie Beck
Justine White
Alice Bruner
Katherine Kennedy
Mary Grace Heavenridge
Mrs. Rod Keeny, nee Lois Adams
Allagans
Henrietta Sherwood
Mrs. James Gloeter, nee Jane Carey
Kappa
Georgetta Walker
Phi Phi
Virginia Dougherty
And this week:
Alice Bruner
"Queenie" Bruner is selected to receive our rose this week because she has campus activities no end; because she was the only lady to have two pictures in The Kernel May Day pictograph; because she has the dainty beauty which formerly was the type most highly esteemed; because she has made many friends; because Seldi rushes fall in love with her; because she believes in her lodge; because she is, has always been, will always be a success; because she dresses tastefully; because she is not the sort who pushes herself for campus position and honors but the sort to whom such position and honors come naturally; because she has an answer to her sorority and to the university.

Line of the week to Jack Bart, who, when the waiter at the Lafayette spilled coffee in his saucer, quickly said, "You're damn right, you don't mind we use the cup in the mountains."

Sophisticates
Howinell can a Kappa be sophisticated in a track suit? The victory of our old friends in the track meet Saturday leaves us with the impression that they are about as biased as are milkmaids at a barn dance.

If it occurs to anyone that the success of the fair ones may have been in direct proportion to their appeal to the eds we mourn for our pals, the Kimegas with their zero standing.

Roamin' the Rialto

with Thomas L. Blay

The outstanding cinematic creation in town at present is "Svengali" at the Strand. Naturally, the picture is not, nor will it, gross a huge box-office play yet it undoubtedly presents John Barrymore in his greatest screen interpretation which is a sweeping statement. "Svengali" proves that Barrymore is the greatest actor extant. That the production is that Warner Brothers are responsible for it yet the offering bears none of the botched technique usually found in pictures bearing that studio's banner. "Svengali" is a splendid tribute to motion picture art and especially is it important in demonstrating what can be done in talking pictures. "Svengali" story is familiar and not particularly great. It is the acting, directing, lighting, photography, and other production details that make the picture. The story tells of a strange love of a hypnotist for an artist, maddened and how, through his influence, she reaches heights as a singer. Marion Marsh is Trilby, the model, and while a newcomer to the screen, acquits herself admirably in a difficult role. However, "Svengali" is Barrymore, the great, who, in Ren's words, is the most lovable person I ever saw to be so horrible.

Lough of the week was contributed by a professor trying to give an imitation of Maurice Chevalier naturally mispronouncing the star's name.

"Indiscreet," the newest starring opus of Gloria Swanson, opens at the Kentucky today. Advance reports are very favorably impressed with the United Artists' release which is Gloria's third talking effort. "Indiscreet" also has one of our newest favorites in its cast. He is Monroe Owsley, undoubtedly the very best cad and rotter in show business. You perhaps remember him as "Holiday." He has enacted the roles of wastrel sons and rotter husbands in several pictures.

The three worst show towns in the United States according to a recent survey, are Memphis, Toledo, and Birmingham. Those most
