Cat Golf Team Wins State Championship For Fourth Time

Ramsey, Allen Lead Team To Victory

Kentucky's hard swinging golf team wound up a six-win, one-tie, one-loss season Saturday by annexing the State Golf team championship on the Seneca links in Louisville.

Despite the fact that Ed Dana-way, a Pennsylvania player for the Western State Hilltoppers, blasted out a 231 over the 54-hole route to carry off top-honors, the Cats placed their four entries in the first six to win the Courier-Journal team trophy. It was the university's fourth team victory in the seven year history of the tournament.

Cate Lloyd Ramsey and Eral Allen tied for second individual honors by posting 22's. Ramsey started out to burn up the circuit in the 36-hole play Friday, marking up two 75's on the 72 par course, but slumped badly to score an 82 Saturday. Allen gathered two 79's Friday, then got the hang of the links to go around Saturday in 75.

Granville Clark, captain, playing No. 3 for his team, came in third in the Kentucky line-up and fourth on the individual chart, posting a 228. Meade Ferris shot a 244 to tie for fifth place with Walt O'Bannon of Louisville.

Final 54-hole total:

F. Ramsey (KY)	222
E. Allen (KY)	222
G. Clark (KY)	228
T. Ferris (Ky.)	244
W. O'Bannon (Ky.)	244
M. Ferris (Ky.)	244
W. C. Little (Ky.)	250
L. Ramsey (Ky.)	250
A. E. Thomas (Ky.)	250

MOSELEY'S MEN TO FACE VOLS

Ambitious Cats Seek Double Win

By FRED HILL

Kentucky's weird diamond Cats might make it yet! After stumbling around dizzily for ten games at the mercy of all but three of their opponents, they finally woke up Thursday, announced their intentions of ending the season with a 300 average, and proceeded to shut out Cincinnati.

That win was their fourth against seven losses. Today they are scheduled to face Tennessee's Vols, with whom they split a series earlier in the year, in the first of two same series at Knoxville. Two victories will raise their top-side record to six, and Monday they will cap the season with a struggle with Xavier.

On the mound for the Cats today will be Carl "Slide-Rule" Staker, big right-hander, who has been most of the season by miseries in the arm of the season. Tomorrow's starter will probably be George Topnochni, another right-hander.

Catch Moseley, apparently high-pitched with his squad's awakening, planned to make no change in Thursday's line-up. Eddie Pritz will carry the bat, with Charlie Carnes, Joe Shepherd, and Noland Navarre will take over the infield, while the Willoughby Black, and Lincoln Ellington will cover the garden.

Brown Named Rifle Club Head

The University rifle club elected officers for the coming year at a recent meeting.

Those who had made Kentucky's basketball teams as famous as the State's reputation for fast runners, celebrated their tenth year head Wildcat basketball coach last week.

The former Kansas university star of the early 20s tells modestly of his amazing record of 161 victories and 36 losses while at the University. Rather than mention his own record, he prefers to tell about his uniformed "All-Americans" during the past ten years.

Two years after Rupp took over the reins as head coach he turned out "Aggie" Sale, forward, who was unanimously selected on every All-American quintet. Sale showed his versatility by again making the All-American five in 1933, this time as a center.

Rupp's third All-American player, and probably his most famous was Leroy Edwards, known to thousands of basketball fans as "Big Ed." Bernie Oppen, captain and guard of the 1939 team, was Rupp's latest contribution to the select five.

Other outstanding players that Rupp has coached are Ellis Johnson, Morehead college basketball and football coach; John "Frenchie" Demosier, now assistant superintendent at Greendale reform school; Dave Lawrence, head basketball coach at Cavanaugh high school; Evan Settles, basketball coach at Shelbyville high school; Garland Lewis, coach at Brownstown high school; Ralph Carlisle, at Madisonville; Joe "Red" Eagan, Pigeon Creek; Elmo Head, Irvine Barretts high school; Charles Combs, Harford school; and Bob Taylor, assistant basketball coach at Covington high school.

Since the colorful Wildcat coach, who always wears a brown suit to basketball games, has been head coach at the University, he has won the Southeastern conference title six times out of a possible ten; his team's record out on top in 1932, '33, '38, and '40.

Twice he has sent teams to the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans and both times they have returned home the victors. In 1937, his boys came down a mighty Pines State team by a 41-29 count. His latest Sugar Bowl triumph was this past season when his amazing Cats defeated Ohio State's amazing touted

The Locker Room

By FRED HILL

Society note.—The University of Kentucky basketball team entertained Thursday afternoon at their lovely home on Stoll field with a tea in honor of the University of Cincinnati—just down for a visit.

Amusement for the party was furnished by a visitor, Coach Bud Bonar of Cincinnati, who turned handspins, all most, did a song and dance and a gymnastics routine single-handed, and then took his faithful following and led them from the field.

And here the society note must stop. It is a strict journal, and here the society note must stop. It is a strict journal, and here the society note must stop.

Cats swarmed out and gave Coach Moseley a chance to chalk up his first shut-out.

After playing ten games with a combination that regularly gave up from five to ten errors, the change proved quite a relief to Kentucky fans, who watched them play two error ball.

More encouraging even than that, however, was the spirit the team showed. What caused them to shake off the prospects of a three-win season would be hard to say, but the fight they showed on the field at bat was enough to serve warning to the Tennessee team that they face today, and even to brighten up their chances of ending the season with a 300 average.

To date they have four wins against seven defeats, a sloppy 375, but they have proved that Tennessee is not invincible by knocking them off earlier in the season and win, once before, from the Xaverites, we'll give 'em a flush, and predict all wins—well, anyway, two wins.

Besides, George Topnochni and "Frenchie" Navarre have threatened to shove only after victories, and the "Frenchie" will be happy to start next season with a pitcher and third baseman looking like refugees from the House of David.

Alumni Club To Give Dinner For Athletes

Kentucky's Southeastern conference championship basketball team and all athletes participating in spring sports will be guests of the Alumni Club at its annual dinner Friday night, May 31, in the Lafayette hotel.

Besides the captains, participants in boxing, fencing, baseball, golf, tennis, and swimming will be honored. Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, president, said.

'Man In The Brown Suit' Proud Of All-Americans

By ROY STEINFORT
Adolph Rupp, the man in the brown suit who has made Kentucky's basketball teams as famous as the State's reputation for fast runners, celebrated their tenth year head Wildcat basketball coach last week.

The former Kansas university star of the early 20s tells modestly of his amazing record of 161 victories and 36 losses while at the University. Rather than mention his own record, he prefers to tell about his uniformed "All-Americans" during the past ten years.

quintet 36-30. He will send his third team to the Sugar Bowl this coming fall, against what he terms a "really tough" Indiana university quintet.

Rupp, who was guard on the 1922-23 championship Kansas university team, which didn't lose a single game in two years, said he had only two more ambitions: first, to win the national basketball championship, and to see a field house here at the University that would seat 12,000 persons "comfortably."

Pitchers Shine In Softball Play

Two-Hit Games Blank Kappa Sig, Delta Taus

Two 2-hit pitching performances and an extra inning contest marked the opening of the play in the fraternity softball league yesterday.

Turning in the 2-hit pitching feats were Renaker of the AGRs, and Stokley of the Phi Kappa Taus.

Hitting the scoring top for the day, the Phi Taus lashed out in the seventh run in the first two innings, crushing the Delta Taus 13-0, to move into the second round opposite the ATOs, who drew a bye.

After a scoreless deadlock for the first four innings, the AGRs finally got to score five runs in both the fifth and sixth innings, and behind the airtight twirling of Renaker, coasted to a 10-0 triumph over the Kappa Sig. Getting the longest hit of the game was Kelly, whose lowering drive went for a round rule double in the fifth inning.

Scoring on an error in the eighth, the Sigma Nus, behind the pitching of Hamilton, advanced into the second round with a 9-8 victory over Sigma Phi Epsilon.

Play will be resumed in the tournament Wednesday, with the AGRs meeting the Sigma Nus, and the Phi Taus tangling with the ATOs.

In the independent league, the Law College and Stagg's Independents will battle it out for the honor of meeting the Greek champ for the semi-final title.

Meanwhile, the preliminary events of the intramural track meet will be run off at 4 o'clock today, including the 100, 220, and the 440 yard dashes, and the low hurdles.

Tennis singles, SAE Nash topped Lowry, also of SAE, and will meet the winner of the Calmer-Punk match for the championship. In the doubles, Nash and Lowry, SAE, will clash with Delta Tau's Horn and Moore for the title in that division.

McVey and Kelley, Delta Tau Delta, went their way into the finals of the golf tourney by downing SAE's Punk match for the championship. Semi-final results in the golf finals are due today.

211 Inynchings occurred in the U. S. in 1934.

TENNIS TEAM BEATS DETROIT

Downing's Squad Winds Up Season

Coach H. H. Downing's tennis team wound up the 1939 season Friday afternoon on the Rose street courts with a 7-0 win over the University of Detroit netters.

The victory marked the finale of a six-win season for the Cats as Captain Bobby Boone signed with a win over Detroit number two man in his last appearance under the Blue and White of Kentucky.

Despite the top-heavy score most of the Wildcats were pressed hard by the Detroit racketeers. Three of the seven matches went for three sets.

Summary:
Horn (K) defeated Kelly (D) 6-4, 1-4, 6-2.
Boone (K) defeated Goldberry (D) 6-2, 6-4, 6-8.

Scientists Organize Kentucky Society

While attending the annual meeting of the Kentucky Academy of Science, 50 scientists formed a Kentucky State Chapter of the Society of American Bacteriologists, and members of the parent organization for a charter affiliation.

Elected to serve as temporary chairman was Dr. Morris Scheraga, head of the bacteriology department. According to the plan of organization, the society will hold two meetings annually, alternating between Lexington and Louisville.

McVey Will Speak

President Frank L. McVey will deliver the principal address at the Ohio University commencement exercises on June 3 in Athens, Ohio, it was announced yesterday.

Doctor McVey was born in Wilmington, Ohio, and received most of his early education in that state. He received an A. B. degree from Ohio Wesleyan in 1933.

BLYTHE WINS SOCIETY AWARD

UK Speakers Place In Contest

David K. Blythe, Georgetown, received an award as the outstanding University student in civil engineering from Kentucky's section of the American Society of Civil Engineers at the organization's banquet Friday night in the Union building.

The prize was a badge of merit and a junior membership in the engineering society.

Harry Weeks, Water Valley, won the second prize of $10 in the speaking contest at the dinner, with an address on "The Kentucky Dam."

Rhema Ewing, Art Freshman—"No, I don't think the war is going to enter the war, because the President is doing everything in his power to keep us out. If we do, it will not be before the next four or five months."

Thomas Finnie of Lexington took third place honor in the contest. He received a prize of $15.

Hold by the Kentucky section of the American Society of Civil Engineers, the banquet was attended by approximately 150 persons.

Campus Research Results Published

Dr. T. C. Sherwood, formerly associate professor of physiology at the University and now a research student at the Wisconsin school of medicine, recently published a paper in Rhochemistry on the results of basal metabolism experiments conducted here last year.

Doctor Sherwood was the only person in the United States to conduct this phase of the stillbirth experiment. The publication gives credit to Doctor Sherwood, as the conductor, and to the University, as the sponsor, for valuable scientific research.

This was the 12th paper published by Doctor Sherwood since 1934. He is now preparing a paper which will be another in the series of publications about the experiments studied at the University.

Doctor McVey was born in Wilmington, Ohio, and received most of his early education in that state. He received an A. B. degree from Ohio Wesleyan in 1933.

What They Think

By BOB AMMONS

QUESTION
"Do you think the United States will enter the present war, and if so when?"

Orville Leach, Graduate—"I do not think we will enter the present war. However, I approve of President Roosevelt's asking for 50,000 war planes and over one billion dollars for defense."

Shella Robertson, Commerce senior—"I don't think we will. We couldn't get in before the election, and at the rate the war is going now, it will be over by then."

Rhema Ewing, Art Freshman—"No, I don't think the war is going to enter the war, because the President is doing everything in his power to keep us out. If we do, it will not be before the next four or five months."

Stinchell L. Rayner, Commerce junior—"Yes, The President in his last speech seemed to assume that the United States' entrance was inevitable. When it will come depends on the strength of propaganda impressed on the American people and the results of the important conflicts and developments abroad."

Jack Treadway, A & S senior—"No, The American people are too propaganda-wise."

Cornell won the Eastern Intercollegiate league basketball championship in 1939.

'The River'—Documentary Film Of Great Social Significance

Several years ago, the U. S. Film service produced a documentary motion picture entitled "The River." It was an illustrated biography of the Mississippi valley, and it caused a great deal of comment and drew much praise at the time. Oscar Lorentz, its director, was awarded an "Oscar" by the Academy of Motion Picture Artists. James Joyce said its accompanying commentary was "the most beautiful prose I have heard in ten years." In short, it was universally accepted as a work of art and as having a message of great social significance.

Unfortunately, that message, which emphasized the need for soil conservation still is not being heeded, and the U. S. is paying for its neglect with an increasingly devastating series of annual floods.

On Friday, "The River" will be shown on the UK campus under the sponsorship of the geology department. Because it has great social significance, and because it is a work of cinematic and literary art, The Kernel highly recommends "The River" to the University students and faculty.

On The Threshold Of Chaos: The Desperate Summer Of 1940

Ever since school began last September, the college throughout the nation has been gazing guardedly but incessantly, with anxious eyes at Europe. We have been wondering all these months whether our anxiety for our futures is just another silly fear, or whether we are, as it sometimes seems during our more morbid moments, actually playing against the stacked cards of Fate.

Suddenly last week, like a stinging blow in the face, came the answer to the great majority of this generation. It was an excruciatingly painful thing to have to admit — an x of which we will not even yet — but we have suddenly become aware of the steady suction of a widening whirlpool of public opinion that is grasping at us, threatening to draw us at any moment down the drain of intervention.

We undergraduates are by nature a frank, skeptical, bewildered, sentimental, tolerant, instinctively pacific bunch of beings who hate no one and nothing, and who are helplessly aware that we are being cornered by a thing that was not of our making. It is like salt on a wound for us to have to watch a mounting hatred on the part of our parents — a hatred which in the end will lead to our destruction.

With every new border Herr Hitler crosses, we perceive our President's voice grow angrier and our uncles' necks grow redder. With each day that passes, we watch the brutal efficiency of fascism encroach upon a way of life which our elders somehow or other have come to hold dear. We youngsters think the British "way" at best a tyrannical imperialism, but those elders are still of the opinion it is Democracy.

OMINOUS SHADOW OF WAR

Constantly we are aware of all this. Even now, our faces are growing longer; we scan the headlines anxiously. Slowly but surely we are acquiring a quiet bitterness and a feeling of desperation. This week, for the first time, we are willing to admit that peace and all we have hoped for and fought for and even prayed for are nearly lost; that we are a people standing at the threshold of chaos, a generation "living in the shadow."

This week, for the first time, studies seem insignificant, term papers and quizzes trivial. The O'Bannon-building controversy which occupied so much of our thought short days ago now seems absurd. All education indeed appears futile, when undergraduates like ourselves — students from Oxford and Cambridge, Heidelberg and Leipzig, Brussels and Leyden, Paris and the Sorbonne — are doing like flies in the Low Countries and the M-Day staffs are laying plans for us to do the same. It is not a comforting thought: it is a wonder we still have the perseverance and powers of concentration we do.

In a few weeks school will be over and summer in the real sense will be here. For some it will be a time to work and save for what they hope will be another completed year in college. For a great many others, the summer months are a lazy period to be wasted away at boating, swimming, traveling, courting, tennis, golf, and lying in the sun in efforts to become hard, brown boys and girls. It should be a summer just like any other, full of languidness and not-always-sober pleasures — not one filled with fatalism and harrowing thoughts of armed men marching.

SUMMER OF DESPERATION

But it won't be carefree; it will be desperate. The camps which line the Kentucky river and Herrington lake and which bulge each summer with lounging undergraduates are going to be even fuller. There will be even more automobile wrecks involving members of this generation than ever before and more promiscuous drinking. There will be a gaiety of desperation and wider laughter and coeds will more nearly approach the "blissful generosity" which the straight-laced have been attributing to them for the past ten years.

Our age-group will begin to pair off and there will be a wave of court marriages which will freshen the series of beautifully desperate war-weddings soon to follow.

For those who love to recall it, the Summer of 1940 will be a memorable one: a last fling before a terrible storm, an interlude just before the supposedly civilized World went to Hell and dragged us along with it.

We know not what to expect from the events which are to follow; we only know that whatever they are, they will be ghastly. Our futures after that are even less certain, for warfare has yet to settle anything, and the post-war order will be so different.

But just now this generation stands at a bloody bridge between the disillusioned Old and the unknown New, with crossing that bridge yet to be attempted. Bearing all this in mind, we can only say, God help this generation!

Out Of This World

By Henry Hillenmeyer

The past week-end brought many picnics and swimming parties. Saturday the Kernel staff spent a moose afternoon and evening at the Club's Ferry while the Engineers sprawled about on the beach at Boonesboro. Sunday, the possibility of rainy weather scared many, and to some, brought a change of plans.

The week-end also found Jim Patton in town to see his faithful pine, Mildred Cox, and as usual they enjoyed themselves very much. And why wasn't Harry Denham courting his queen, Jean Elliott, last Friday? When asked, he didn't know where he was. By the way, latest rumors have it that he isn't pined. And speaking of Denham, he, Ed Gibson, and Phil Scott are entering a cur in the Kernel Dog Show. They promise to win and with the prize are planning to Lina Barrow has been going around with a long face trying to find out who the "unknown quantity" is that Bob Fishback has been seen around with frequently of late. Could it be Mary Jane Watt? . . . Odds have it that Martha Ann Archer won't be pined long. . . Jim McGraw is top man with Dot Beeler these days. The other night he had to be in at nine-thirty as they could bake a cake. But I don't believe Dot thought so much of the idea.

What conspiracy goes on between "Doc's Daughter," Ruth McClung and Phil "Percy" Scott. She sends him love notes and for awhile he showed them to his one and only Dog Show. They promise to win and with the prize are planning to

Writer Defends CAA Program At Louisville

To the Editor of the Kernel:

In the past there have been many questions as to Mr. Ray's mental attitude on various controversial subjects, and now I come forward in question to Mr. Ray's mental attitude on the CAA program. It is a foregone conclusion that a person in Mr. Ray's position as editor of the Cardinal has some intelligence, but is it possible that he can have one-half the intelligence that some people ascribe to him and still write the article with the CAA aviation unit in the University of Louisville, which is the English language and to use words from his dictionary. He states that the CAA program in our University has proven a failure. On what, I would like to know, does he base his conception of failure? It has been my impression, as a member of this CAA unit, that every person in the class is thoroughly absorbed and interested in its content. What better criterion could possibly be offered for the success of any course?

He says that at the present time it is one of the most unpopular courses on the campus and that only twenty students out of an eligible 300 enrolled. The question of popularity may be disposed of with this statement. I have had more questions asked me about how to become eligible for this course than for any other in the university.

In quoting figures Mr. Ray has made a statement from which he cannot retreat. Enrolled in the class at the beginning of the semester were thirty students (the total allotted by the government), several more applied but were unable to pass the physical examination. At present 28 remain. One person was asked to drop the course because of low grades in the rest of his school work; the other person is not with us because he saw fit to drop out of school and follow aviation as a vocation.

Mr. Ray states that the CAA program is merely subterfuge for the establishment of military training. I dismiss this with a good healthy SO WHAT!

I might add that there were numerous students who wanted to enroll in the CAA, but who could not get their parents' permission or the $34 necessary for enrollment.

I wish that in the future when ever, latest gossip has it that Phil is "one of the boys" now and is no longer pined. Have "Percy" and "Mae" an affair now?

Why was Sally Cannon dating a man from Yankeland the other night, last she pined? . . . It's taken for granted that June Melrose has the upper hand on Al Sauer . . . Phil's Buck Clay sported his first date since September the other night. The lucky gal—Caroline Bean. . . SAE Granville Clark now has his pin back from Stevens college . . . And Richard Daniel has his heart set on some little gal way up in New York.

It's a wonder somebody doesn't take Ann Ritter up on her deal—$5, to anyone who will have a date with her. She's a fine gal, boy, but I'm afraid she won't pay off. Think I'm wrong again, Ann? . . . Joe Logan Masse is and has been trying to be head man with Ann Orlin since last fall but his competition down Georgia way is too tough. . . Speaking of "man get overs," Ross Hunter has, for ages, tried to get some attention from Margareta Breckinridge. It looks like Boyne Wood has her checked.

Louise Wilson looked worried the other day while waiting for Sigma Delta. . . Jim's sister would be along. What about this, Shelby? . . . Gertie Breckinridge has had the blues lately. Is it because she isn't speaking to Charley Beach or has Bub King solved some something to hurt her feelings.

In last week's "Social Briefs" the Tau's luncheon guests were: Deedie Allen, Barbara Rhem, Mary James, and Peggy Deury, the only four mentioned. It so happened that Tommy Rusk escorted every one of these queens. However, this seems contrary to all general chatter—for this week it's reported that he and Jo Reed are that way about each other. Lloyd Robertson might be interested in this.

Who was Marvin "Growsop" Stoll out with last Wednesday—nobody knew. Maybe it was Deedie Castleman who has his eyes a-popping. Growsop says "The third date a charm and I've only had two." . . . The shock Joe Houlahan received last week which removed one of his "shining ivories" was due to one of three things, a winged door, a brass bar rail, or C. I. C. Shumate. Behind Iovied Walls

Kings Row, by Henry Bellamann

Under the shadow of the State Insane Asylum on the hill overlooking the little mid-western town of Kings Row, Henry Bellamann has written a dark Gothic story of children growing to maturity in a community as marked by mental distortion and degeneracy as a medieval cur. Around the life of young Doctor Parrish Mitchell who is good, fortunate and wise, old honor dies.

At the end good may stand secure in the scientific young doctor and the mystical old Catholic priest, but the devil certainly has had a frolic in the town. As a horror tale of the human mind in a small town, Kings Row is both crowded and compelling. It is written with the pull of a thriller, but also with a knowledge and skill which lift it above the level of the ordinary hair-raiser.

Summer Schedule

1. How to Read a Book, by Mortimer Adler; this volume includes an exceptional list, though not exhaustive, of the greatest and most worthy books of all time.
2. The Art of Living, by Andre Maurois; grave and charming suggestions whether they be on the art of living, art of thinking, or the art of leading.
3. Thoreau, by Henry Seidel Canby; widely praised, and an all-time best-seller; about a man who always did what his heart desired.
4. Oscar Wilde and the Yellow Nineties, by Frances Winwar; a new and understanding treatment of a difficult character, this book presents a brilliant portrait.
5. The Art and Life of William Shakespeare, by Hazelton Spencer; an exceptionally fine written volume concerned with the facts about Shakespeare, giving in addition to an account of his life, a discussion of his medium (the theatre of his time) and a clear study of each of the thirty-six plays.
6. Native Son, by Richard Wright; it, with the Grapes of Wrath, is classed as the greatest novel of modern times.
7. Verdun, by Jules Romains; latest in the series "Men of Good Will"; instead of following the current war in the newspapers, just read this book and you'll get a clearer picture of what's going on at the front, even though the story is about the first World War.
8. Importance of Living, by Lin Yutang; exquisitely charming reading on what leisure means in China; vivid passages on loafing, smoking, eating, and sleeping. A book which, once started, will hold your attention to the last page.
9. Joseph In Egypt, by Thomas Mann; the author is an artist of incomparable finesse; this set of two books must be read.
10. You and Heredity, by Amram Schienfeld; science for the layman . . . and important science.

The above are not necessarily the best books, of course. But for good, solid reading they make a fine set for anybody's collection.
