OUR LADY OF GETHSEMANI
TRAPPIST, KENTUCKY

Oct. 30, 1958

Dear Jim:

This list is probably more in the nature of suggestions than requests as I expect you will not have most of these yet, and might not have thought of getting some.

First, I have seen an interesting review in the latest New Statesman and Nation (London) of some African novels that look fascinating:

Amos Tutuola- My life in the bush of ghosts
Brave African Hunter
Palm Wine Drinkard.
G. Lamming - In the Castle of my Skin
Chinua Achebe- Things fall apart
Sylvester Stein- Second Class Taxi.

I do not know about the last three but the first one seems well worth looking into, and if you get one please remember me!

Another interesting writer is the theologian Sergei Bulgakov, hard to get and rather old now. One title is his "Orthodox Church", London 1935.

Rider in London is publishing the collected works of D.T. Suzuki, the great authority on Zen, and I would like to get his Zen and Japanese Culture if you should happen ever to buy it (which I strongly urge, as well as for the whole collection).

And now- do you have any one of these?

C.G. Jung- Secret of the Golden Flower
N. Berdyaev- Realm of Spirit and Realm of Caesar
M. Mayer- Madison Avenue USA.

I received a nice card from the Hammers and will be expecting them back in November.

As always,

Gratefully in Christ

/m Louis
