Next Year in Jerusalem But This Year At Victorian Square

A multi-media show about the beauty of Israel and its people will be presented April 19-22 at Victorian Square.

A gala opening ceremony and celebration is scheduled for Saturday evening, April 19, at 8 p.m. at Victorian Square. The entire Central Kentucky Jewish community is invited to attend. Local and state officials have been invited, entertainment is planned, and refreshments will be provided.

"ANOTHER ISRAEL" is intended to give the entire Central Kentucky community the opportunity to learn more about Israel and to see another side of the country than the image often presented on the news.

The 25-minute sound and slide show depicts the cultural life of Israel as well as its important sites and scenery. It will be accompanied by an exhibit about Israel on loan from Imer Steier, the shaliach of the Louisville Jewish Community Center.

"ANOTHER ISRAEL" will be shown several times a day, both to the general public and to schools and religious and civic groups that request to see it. Anyone who would like to arrange a group showing should contact the CKJF office. There is seating for 40 to 60 people for each show.

Passover-Pesach

This year we enter the Passover season buoyed by the recent release of several leading refuseniks. Passover is the quintessential expression of freedom for Jews everywhere. But, as in years past, much of our concern is directed toward the Jews in the Soviet Union.

In 1926, there were 1,000 synagogues in the USSR; today, 60. No new synagogues have been built in 20 years. Private religious services and Hebrew teaching or study are illegal. Soviet media are widely used to spread "anti-Zionist" propaganda.

"Refusenik" is the term applied to about 20,000 Jews who have started the migration process but have been denied visas, many several times. They have lost jobs; their academic degrees have been rescinded. Some have been waiting twenty years or more.

"Prisoners of Conscience" are the men and women -- currently about 20 -- who have been tried and convicted of encouraging emigration or raising Jewish consciousness among other Jews. The formal charges were "hooliganism" or "parasitism," or even treason. They have been jailed, exiled to Siberia, brutally treated. But they persist. They are our inspiration.

The Bread of Affliction

The Matzah of Hope

Anatoly Scharansky

"In every generation, every Jew must feel as if he himself came out of Egypt."

NCSJ

After reciting "Ha Lachma Anya"
—"This is the bread of affliction," the leader of the Seder raises the matzah again and recites the following:

The genius of our people is that we have always been able to transform the bread of affliction into the Matzah of Hope. In a solitary-confinement cell, Anatoly Scharansky dreamed of a "next year in Jerusalem." This year he is there, celebrating Pesach with his beloved wife Avital and friends.

But we have not forgotten those who are not yet free. As the leaders of the United States and the Soviet Union prepare for the second Summit, we pledge ourselves to work for the release of those Soviet Jews who are silent, who are exiled, who are imprisoned -- whose only crime is a love of the Hebrew language and a desire to live in Israel.

We will urge those in power to transcend their limitations and respect the yearnings and traditions of an ancient people.

As we raise this Matzah of Hope once more, let us resolve that someday all our people in the Soviet Union will be reunited with their families, repatriated to their ancient homeland, Israel. Today they recite "Next year in Jerusalem" in tears; tomorrow, may they say it in joy.

הָא לַחְמָא עֲנִיא דִּי אֲכָלוּ אַבְהֹתָנָא בְּאַרְעָא דְּמִצְרַיִם. כָּל
דְּכִפְּיָן יִיתֵי וְיִלֵּל. כָּל דְּצָרִיק יִיתֵי וְיַפְסֹחַ. הַשְּׁתָּא הָכָא.
לְשָׁנָה הַבָּאָה בְּאַרְעָא דִּישְׂרָאֵל. הַשְּׁתָּא עַבְדֵּי לְשָׁנָה
הַבָּאָה בְּגִי חוֹרְרִין:

This is the bread of affliction which our ancestors ate in the last of Egypt. Let all who are hungry come and eat. Let all who are in need come and celebrate Passover. This year we are here; next year, in the Land of Israel! This year we are slaves; next year, we are free.

הֲרַחֲמֵן הוּא יִשְׁבֹּר עֵלְנָנוּ מֵעַל צַוְאַרְנוּ
וְהוּא יוֹלִיכֵנוּ קוֹמְמֵיּוֹת לְאַרְצֵנוּ:

May the All Merciful One break the yoke from our neck and lead us upright to our Land!

הֲזָרְעִים בְּדַמְעָה בְּרִנָּה יִקְצְרוּ:

They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.

ISRAEL BOND TRIBUTE DINNER

SOVIET JEWRY CONFERENCE

REAFFIRMS JEWISH RESPONSIBILITY

On Monday, March 31, lay people and professionals from seven states gathered in Cincinnati, Ohio to review the background and to plan action on behalf of Soviet Jewry. Titled "To Summit II...And Beyond", the first midwest regional conference was sponsored by the Jewish Community Relations Council of Cincinnati in cooperation with the National Conference on Soviet Jewry and the National Jewish Community Relations Advisory Council (NJCRAC). The conference provided a comprehensive overview of the whole issue of Soviet Jewry. Representing CKJF were Gail Cohen, chair of the Community Relations Committee sub-committee on Soviet & Oppressed Jewry, and CKJF Administrator Judy Saxe.

Plenary sessions featured major national speakers such as Albert Chernin, Executive Vice-Chairman, NJCRAC; Joshua Pratt of the Embassy of Israel; Jerry Goodman, Executive Director, National Conference on Soviet Jewry; and Abraham J. Bayer, Director, International Commission of NJCRAC. Also featured was Eliahu Essas, recently released refusenik who now resides in Jerusalem.

All the speakers have visited the Soviet Union, and each one related personal encounters with refuseniks. The speakers were unanimous in their judgement that there is no future for Jews in the USSR. Therefore, the emphasis of our activities must be to open the gates of emigration for all those Jews who wish to leave, and they number in the hundreds of thousands.

Joshua Pratt reviewed the history of anti-Semitism in the Soviet Union in the 20th century, stressing that many of these Jews live in small communities and are fearful of applying for a visa to emigrate.

Albert Chernin pointed out that recent history shows public pressure influences Soviet activity. It is important for us to take an activist role in protesting the treatment of Jews in the Soviet Union. At the same time we should support a more open relationship between the two countries, as, for example, in the area of cultural exchange which has already begun as a result of the Geneva Summit. He said it is at the times of closest relationships between the U.S. and the U.S.S.R. that emigration has reached its highest levels.

Also included in the conference were a series of Advocacy Seminars -- workshops directed toward implementation of action programs based on materials presented at the conference.

Ohio Governor Richard Celeste was a guest speaker at the luncheon which featured a number of Ohio legislators, congressmen and other officer holders. The occasion was the announcement of the formation of Ohio Public Officials for Soviet Jewry, an organization which has the support of many of the top officials of the State of Ohio.

Governor Celeste and others spoke eloquently of our American heritage and of responsibility to uphold human rights wherever they may be abused.

The goals of this group are to encourage public officials to adopt a Soviet family, write letters in times of crisis, and increase public awareness of the condition of Soviet Jewry. Ohio is the fourth state to create such an organization.

Eliahu Essas emphasized that the recent release of several notable refuseniks does not indicate a change in basic Soviet policy. In the past 10-15 years there has been a change within the Russian Jewish community. Increasing numbers are actively seeking to reinforce their Jewish identity by educating themselves in Jewish history, culture, and the Hebrew language.

Essas said we must turn our efforts toward influencing public opinion and the U.S. administration. In the framework of confrontation and cold war we shall not see any results. In the framework of constructive negotiations we can achieve much more than we already have.

Referring to the approach of Passover, Albert Chernin sounded a hopeful note, saying, "the mighty hand of the collective will of the Jewish people may yet bring the Soviet Jews out of bondage to freedom."

"ANOTHER ISRAEL" will be shown between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Sunday, April 20, and 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. Monday and Tuesday, April 21 and 22.

The government of Israel commissioned "Another Israel" in hopes of countering the images of strife that often are presented to the general public in the United States.

The presentation of "Another Israel" in Lexington is sponsored by CKJF in conjunction with B'nai B'rith, the Faculty Association on Jewish Affairs, Lexington Chapter of Hadassah, Lexington Havurah, Ohavay Zion Synagogue and its Sisterhood, Temple Adath Israel and its Brotherhood, Sisterhood and Mitzvah Corps, and the University of Kentucky Hillel.

NEW SITE FOR CAMP SHALOM

A parcel of land next to Jacobsen Park will be the site for this summer's Camp Shalom. The 36-acre site at the intersection of Athens-Boonesboro Road and Walnut Hill-Chilesburg Road has been made available by Steve Caller, Irving Rosenstein and Robert Rosenstein.

Mark Scarr, who will be returning as camp director, is working on the program for the three-week camp, and details will be announced soon.

The session will begin Monday, June 9 and continue through Friday, June 27.

The half-day session (9 am to 12:30 pm) is open to children who will be 4 by September 30 and 5-year-olds. The cost is $90. The full-day session (9 am to 3 pm) is open to children 6-8. The cost is $135. Scholarships are available through CKJF.

A brochure describing the camp will be sent to all CKJF members and an application will be included, but for more information now call Carol Veal at 268-8137.

Camp Shalom is one of the continuing projects of CKJF made possible by your contributions to the CKJF-UJA fund raising campaign.

ISRAEL BONDS TRIBUTE DINNER

TO BE HELD MAY 18

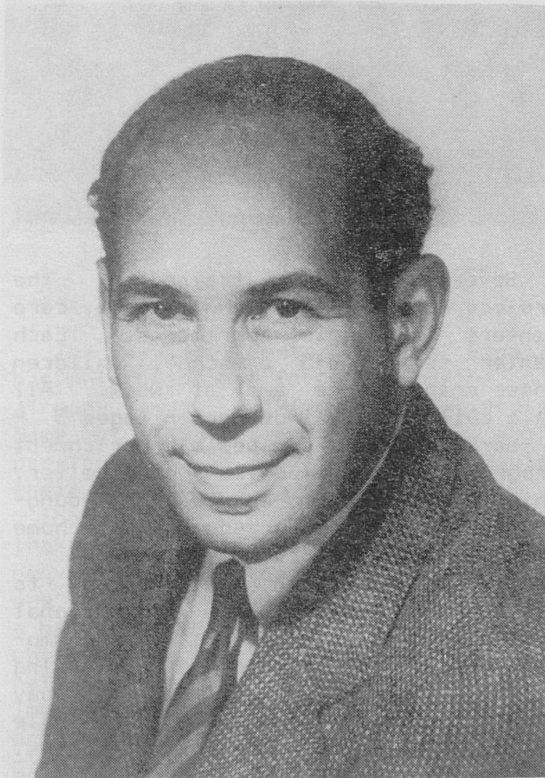

The guest speaker at an Israel Bonds dinner honoring former Governor Albert "Happy" Chandler will be Yosef Yaakov, Israel's consul general in Washington.

The dinner, co-sponsored by the Central Kentucky Jewish Federation, Ohavay Zion Synagogue, and Temple Adath Israel, in conjunction with the State of Israel Bond Organization, will be held at the Temple on Sunday, May 18.

Yaakov will speak on the importance of bonds to Israel and current events in the Middle East.

Chandler, 87, has a long history of public service, having served two terms as governor as well as having been a U.S. senator, lieutenant governor, state senator and commissioner of major league baseball. While in the U.S. Senate, he was a strong supporter of Israel.

"This tribute dinner gives us an opportunity to pay tribute to an outstanding community and national leader and at the same time to help Israel's economic development," said Charles Stern, chairman of the CKJF Israel Bonds Campaign.

Yosef Yaakov

Governor A.B. "Happy" Chandler

Israel Bonds are a major source of capital for Israel, having provided more than $7.5 billion since the program began in 1951 to help build every aspect of the nation's economy.

Yaakov has served Israel in many capacities over the years. He was born in Shanghai and served as a correspondent for United Press International during the Chinese Civil War. After emigrating to Israel, he served in the prime minister's office and the foreign ministry. He has been part of Israel's delegation to the United Nations as well as counselor at the Israeli embassies in Ottawa and London.

He has also been acting director of the diaspora affairs division of the foreign ministry and deputy director of its North American Affairs Division. He was appointed to his present post in 1983.

The cost of the tribute dinner, which is being catered according to Jewish dietary laws, will be $25 per person. The dinner is open to the entire community.

YOUR FEDERATION DOLLARS AT WORK - IN ISRAEL: PROJECT RENEWAL

BOB AND JUDY BAUMANN REPORT ON PROGRESS IN SELA

BACKGROUND

During our three weeks in Israel (March, 1986) we visited a number of projects supported by CKJF. Our first report concerns Sela, a slum neighborhood (Shikun) of Netanya, which Lexington and Louisville help rehabilitate through Project Renewal.

Sela is a community of prefabricated concrete block buildings built in the 1950s. It is now surrounded on two sides by the main Tel Aviv-Haifa highway and the off ramp to downtown Natanya. The population of Sela is about 600 families, approximately the size of the Lexington Jewish community.

Most of these families came from Libya around 1950. Those families who have been financially successful have left Sela leaving a community where over 50% of the adults have less than an 8th grade education, few children go on to high school, and those adults who are employed hold menial jobs.

Sela has made striking progress since the last visit from a Lexington delegation! Most obvious is the bright yellow balconies and clean grounds of the newly remodeled apartment buildings, which clearly outnumber the drab and worn older buildings. There is also an expanded Health Center, a new, bustling Senior Citizens Center, and the continued construction of park and play areas. All have been built by Project Renewal.

Nissim Buchar, the project manager, was quick to point out that the major change is the programs which Project Renewal has helped to bring about. These are improving the quality of life for a group of Israelis who had been left behind as the country advanced.

PUBLIC HEALTH

With the expanded Health Center there is now a full time public health nurse who does well-baby care, provides nursing services for the elderly and disabled, etc.

For the last year there has also been a half time early childhood stimulation specialist, Leah, who is working with mothers who have children under one year old. Leah is teaching them about normal development and how to enrich their children's lives. She would like to be funded full time if the money could be found, because she finds the mothers quite receptive. Leah would like to be able to organize more mothers' groups and to be able to make home visits.

CHILDRENS SERVICES

Several mothers, trained by the Project Renewal staff, run mini-day care centers in their apartments. Each center serves 3-5 preschool children whose mothers are away at work. All Sela children in kindergarten (ages 3 - 6 years) attend a special enrichment program in a remodeled bombshelter. This is intended to ensure that youngsters with limited resources at home will be successful first graders.

All the children are invited to attend the sports and recreational programs which Kushi runs at the Community Center. The Center has a lending library at which 200 children each pay NS 1 (1 new shekel = $.70 US) to be able to borrow books for the next 3 months. The demand for books always exceeds the supply -- a good sign for the future of Sela.

Project Renewal spent $9000 last year to send children from Sela to summer camp and spent $14,000 for tutoring for 40 high school students. Children from Sela have seldom graduated from high school; the tutoring program wants to change that. Nissim requested $25,000 for tutoring in the 1986-87 budget if the additional money can be raised.

He also needs $40,000 for the purchase of Commodore computers and software for the local elementary school. Such computers are coming into widespread use in Israeli schools and he is concerned that the children from Sela will soon be left behind.

SENIOR CITIZENS

The Day Care Center for the Elderly has only been open for three months but already it is serving 300 residents. Some of the older residents would previously spend days without leaving their homes.

The Center provides breakfast for those who can't make their own and provides a large group lunch for everyone who wants to attend. There is also a bath (for those who need assistance), physical therapy, and a social worker to help with personal and family problems. The Center has a daily recreational program for all senior citizens in Sela plus a sheltered workshop for those who wish to earn additional money.

All of the above projects are funded in part by your Project Renewal contributions. One of the strengths of the Project Renewal program is that it provides matching funds to help bring in workers and programs from various government ministries. Thus, each dollar that is contributed has a multiplier effect.

There are other Project Renewal activities in Sela such as vocational training, adult education, community holiday celebrations, etc., which we did not have an opportunity to observe.

Project Renewal is a good example of monies going directly to help those in need!

... When Your Phone Line
Becomes a Lifeline

The fourth annual CKJF-UJA Super Sunday was held March 23. Again, a large group of volunteers joined together for a very successful effort and great fun doing it.

The Central Kentucky Jewish community responded as expected with positive support and record-setting pledges to the fund raising campaign.

By the end of the day 303 people had made pledges to the 1986 Super Sunday campaign totalling $16,623, compared to $14,662 pledged on Super Sunday 1985. Of these 303 gifts, 72 were first-time pledges.

But Super Sunday is not over until everyone has been reached. Letters to those people who were not at home are on their way. There is still time for every member of this community to make a positive response to the 1986 campaign.

When your letter arrives...PLEASE LET YOUR RESPONSE COMPLETE THE SUPER SUNDAY LIFELINE!

Watch for the final Super Sunday totals in next month's newsletter.

Super Sunday co-chairs VINNIE DUBILIER and JOE ROSENBERG and all the volunteers are commended for their outstanding efforts and a job well done!

SHARI ELDOT HOSPITALIZED

As this bulletin goes to press, Shari Eldot is hospitalized in Pittsburgh. Her condition has become much more serious, and doctors anticipate she will undergo surgery within a few days. There is still a problem regarding an appropriate organ match, but her physicians are hopeful they will locate a donor shortly.

The board of CKJF has voted to immediately transfer all funds over the initial $5000, currently totalling $3,959.87, to the fund based in Richmond. The expense of maintaining her and her mother who is with her has exceeded the current insurance coverage and family resources. The balance of the funds will be transferred at the time of surgery.

Contributions are still needed! Make your check payable to the CKJF Shari Eldot Fund and send to CKJF, 333 Waller Avenue, Suite 5, Lexington, KY 40504.

CKJF BOARD NOTES

On Mar. 12, George Kessler, Associate Director of the Endowment Development Department of the Council of Jewish Federation, was in Lexington to meet with the CKJF Endowment Committee and to present a workshop on endowments to the board.

Mr. Kessler emphasized the importance of endowments to assure the future of Jewish community life, to meet emergencies, and to aid in developing new programs.

At the Mar. 26 board meeting, Marilyn Gall, co-chair of the Sue Friedman Jewish Family Life Memorial Program, reported that Sol Gordon would be the first speaker in this series.

The recently established Joe Wolf endowment fund will be used to underwrite this program together with funds allocated from the CKJF Social Services budget. Marilyn explained that the committee hopes to enlist the participation of all local Jewish organizations in developing Jewish family life education programs for the Central Kentucky Jewish community.

CKJF FORUM SERIES REACTIVATED

The CKJF Forum Series has been reactivated under the chairmanship of Susan Cantor with an outstanding opening program honoring the memory of Betty Rosenberg through the Elizabeth Rosenberg Memorial Fund.

Carol Meyers, an archaeologist who helped uncover a piece of the oldest sacred ark yet found in Israel, will speak at a CKJF Forum on Saturday, May 31, at 8 p.m. at Ohavay Zion Synagogue, 120 W. Maxwell St.

Mrs. Meyers, Associate Professor of Religion at Duke University, will speak on "Discovery of a Lost Ark."

Mrs. Meyers, who has a Ph.D. in Near Eastern and Judaic Studies from Duke, has been involved in digs in Israel for more than twenty years.

She has worked on the Joint Sephoni project, the Meiron excavation project, the joint expedition to Khirbet Shema, the joint expedition to Tell Gezer, the Masada excavations, the Tell Arad excavations, the excavations at Beit Yerah and the Ashdod excavation project.

The piece of the ark she helped uncover was a triangular piece of stone inscribed with a Lion of Judah that is believed to have been set on the wooden structure housing the Torah.

When discovered, it was part of the wall of an ancient synagogue in the northern Galilee.

Carol Meyers

This program is open to the public and is free of charge.

"ABANDONMENT OF THE JEWS" DAVID WYMAN ADDRESSES COMMUNITY

U.S. and British government fears that they might have to take in Jewish refugees led them to do little to help European Jews during the Holocaust, author David Wyman said in a speech in Lexington, March 16.

News that the Nazis were trying to exterminate the Jews began to appear in U.S. newspapers in November 1942, Wyman said, but it took President Franklin Roosevelt until January 1944 to begin a formal rescue effort by establishing the War Refugee Board. And even then, Roosevelt gave the board only minimal support, Wyman said.

Wyman is author of "Abandonment of the Jews," which looks at how the American government reacted to the Holocaust as it went on.

"Almost certainly, hundreds of thousands could have been saved who weren't," said Wyman, a history professor at the University of Massachusetts who was Temple Adath Israel's major speaker of the year. More than 150 people, Jews and non-Jews, heard him speak.

"The United States and Great Britain didn't want large numbers of Jews to come out of Hitler's Europe," Wyman said.

The British, he said, were afraid that large-scale Jewish emigration to Palestine might stir up the Arabs. Under immigration quotas in force at the time, the United States could have taken in a total of 210,000 Jewish refugees during its war years. Only 21,000 were actually admitted, he said.

Wyman traced Roosevelt's inaction to fears of a backlash by anti-Semitic members of Congress. Wyman said that at one point during the war, about one-third of the members of Congress would have been adamantly opposed to increased Jewish immigration.

Yet, Wyman said, Roosevelt could have done more by employing his considerable powers of persuasion to drum up grassroots sympathy for the plight of the Jews and support for their emigration to the United States.

Wyman listed a number of things the United States could have done to help rescue the Jews:

- * It could have created the War Refugee Board much earlier and given it much more support.

- * It could have bombed the gas chambers at the death camps.

- * It could have taken in more Jewish refugees or alternatively arranged for them to be transported to North Africa.

- * It could have applied pressure on Hungary, Romania and Bulgaria, which were part of the Axis, not to allow extermination of their Jews on penalty of severe treatment at the end of the war.

- * It should have made better use of communications to let the Germans know they would be prosecuted for war crimes, to urge the European Christian community not to participate in the persecution of the Jews and to get information to Jews in occupied Europe about what was being done at the camps.

- * It should have infiltrated agents into Europe to stimulate Jewish resistance to the Nazis.

Wyman also faulted the American media for not playing up more the news it had about the crimes of the Nazis. He also said the Christian community should have done more to mobilize support for the Jews.

And, he said, the American Jewish community itself could have done more.

He said that on a scale of one to ten, the American Jewish community would score about 7.5 for its efforts. Wyman said that divisions within the Jewish community, particularly between pro- and anti-Zionists, reduced effectiveness.

A limited number of copies of MATZAH OF HOPE are available through the CKJF office.

Now is the time to register your child for the 1986-87 Temple Adath Israel pre-school year. There will be classes for 2 1/2 through 4 year olds. If you are looking for a traditional pre-school that teaches about the Jewish holidays and traditions you need look no further.

If you need more information or an application, please call the Director, Sally Kocen at 269-2979.

ANYTOWN, KENTUCKY

Applications are now being accepted from high school sophomores and juniors for ANYTOWN KENTUCKY, a human relations camp sponsored by the Lexington and Louisville offices of the National Conference of Christians and Jews.

This year the camp will run from June 15-21 at a campsite in a beautiful wooded area overlooking Rough River near Leitchfield, KY. Teenagers representing diverse racial, religious and cultural backgrounds will come together to create their own unique community for one week.

Last year's delegates found the discussion groups, workshops and special evening events created an opportunity for understanding and respect -- "an experience of a lifetime". Tuition, which includes transportation to camp, is $175.00.

Among last year's delegates were Tammy Fitzpatrick and Michele Mayer, who were awarded partial scholarships by CKJF in recognition of their leadership and service in the Jewish community.

For more information or to apply to become a delegate, call Lauren Weinberg at 277-4434 or write to NCCJ, 3357 Hunter Road, Lexington, KY 40502.

CKJF scholarship information may be obtained from the CKJF office, 252-7622, or write 333 Waller Avenue, Suite 5, Lexington, KY 40504.

Our daughter, Melinda Michele will celebrate her Bat Mitzvah on Friday, May 9 at 8:00 p.m. at Temple Adath Israel.

We invite you to share in our joy and worship with us and to join us for an Oneg Shabbat following the service.

Please join us for an Open House in Melinda's honor Saturday evening at 9:00 p.m. at her home, 2136 Island Drive.

Anita and Ira Mersack

The next meeting of the TAI Sisterhood Mitzvah Corps will be Tuesday, April 15 at 12 noon at the Temple. Lunch will be brown-bag with beverage provided.

The guest speaker for that meeting is Mr. Hank Galbraith, Director of the Family Counseling Service in Lexington. He will speak on "To Touch or Not To Touch". A lively discussion is certain to follow his talk.

Plan now to attend the last meeting of Mitzvah Corps before the summer break on Tuesday, May 27 at noon at the Temple.

The Mitzvah Corps board will host the luncheon, so be prepared to enjoy a delicious meal and a festive atmosphere.

Besides installation of officers, the program will include a repeat musical performance by Father McDonald.
