Sing "Don't Get the Blues, for I Shine Your Shoes When It Rains"

By Sara Elvove

If some entreprising collegian would establish a shoe shining stand at the head and foot of the path which leads to McVey Hall, he could earn a small fortune each time it rained.

When it rains, "Don't get the blues, for I shine your shoes when it rains" is the slogan.

A hard working young bootblack ought to be able to rival Mr. Rockefeller at the end of the year—that is, if the rain continues to pour down in profitable quantities.

Students who complained with vocal exclamations or facial grimaces, of the memory building of last year, find their troubles have doubled since their favorite by necessity path means that they have entered with a soft cement or something-or-other mixture.

colleiate footwear in a conspicuous white coating. Of course when the cement has dried, it is jolly nice walking, but when it's wet—well, it's ALL wet!

SEPTEMBER
September in a golden gown thrills the hills and the valleys; The fragrance of the wild grapes is clinging to her hair; All the heavens bend to her blue and shining chalice. Brimming with a beauty that is laughing at despair.

Goldenrod is sighing in the way that she is singing; Milkweed bursts to glory in globules white as snow; And upon the hillside purple mists are clinging Like an incense lifting from the flaming hearths below.

Cornfields lean toward her and pumpkins turn their faces To catch the last, fierce rapture, the music of her feet; And there comes a whisper from far secret places As the orchards kiss her mouth so radiant and sweet.

All the trees are harkening as September passes. For her eyes are gleaming with the dreams she knows, And September whispers to the withered grasses: Promises of Spring's return when the Winter goes! Edgar, Daniel Kramer.

SCIENCE AIDS LEPROSY CURE

Disease Is Being Brought to Curable Stage by Advancement in Knowledge of the Dread Malady.

CARVILLE, La.—Science is taking the terror out of one of the world's most dreaded diseases. Regarded since the dawn of history as a living death, leprosy apparently is being brought within the list of curable maladies, and the leper is being given firm ground for hope.

"Unclean" the cry of fear, horror and revulsion has come down for centuries. The fear has always been exaggerated to a greater or less degree, but has been none the less real in the minds of victims and those about them.

Within the last few weeks, eight patients have been released on probation from the National Leprosarium here, sent back to their homes no longer a menace to the public health. Since the institution was established by the United States Public Health Service seven years ago, thirty-seven have been released, and only one has suffered a relapse. Those released recently had been under treatment from two to seven years, and about 40 others remain.

Many of the bacteriological, chemical, pathological and clinical studies which have contributed to the advances made in treatment of the disease in recent years have been

Skyscraper Design Used in Radiators

"Skyscraper architecture is used in designing modern radiators, according to the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau, Chicago. The tall building has caused architects to develop a new school of design in which vertical lines predominate. This type of design is found in most modern skyscrapers.

Radiator manufacturers, like architects, also depend on the vertical line for beauty. The present-day radiator, with its graceful, narrow tubes, owes part of its beauty to those characteristics of the skyscraper which give it grandeur.

This type of radiator is of recent design. Until a few years ago, radiators were made with wide columns. These old-fashioned radiators were a marked improvement over exposed pipes that were once used for heating buildings.

The "skyscraper" radiator was developed for two reasons. It is first of all, better mechanically, as it has a larger heating area in proportion to its size than its predecessor. It is furthermore, more beautiful. The beauty of this radiator lies in the fact that it essentially is a tall object and its vertical characteristic is accentuated in its design. The tall, straight columns harmonize with the general shape of the radiator.

The modern radiator fits into any room and harmonizes with any type of interior decoration. Architects and interior decorators both regard it as an important factor in making the homes they design and furnish beautiful and attractive.

conducted by health service workers in airway. Their principal achievement has been development of chemical derivatives from chaulmoogra oil, obtained from an oriental tree, which have increased its effectiveness in combating the leprosy germ. The treatment was rather painful, however, until the specialists here developed a method of administering the injections with a local anesthetic.

The scientific studies also have established that the disease is communicated only by direct and usually prolonged contact with a victim. Casual contact, the investigators found, is not so dangerous as it has been regarded, and they suspect that nasal secretions have most to do with transmission of the germs. These germs, in form and appearance, are extremely difficult to distinguish from those of tuberculosis, another plague which has beset mankind—and to a much greater extent—as far back as history goes and has begun to yield to the advances of science only in recent years. The resources of a skilled bacteriologist are required to identify them.

Statistical studies in connection with the scientific work indicate that the number of cases of leprosy in the United States exceeds 1,000. The disease, it has been learned, is most likely to appear in tropical climates, although a number of cases have been recorded in North

A DISPLAY WINDOW

Last week's issue of the Kernel was the largest single edition ever published in the history of the University. As a special paper featuring the reopening of school and news of the summer, it represented the best that the department of journalism has to offer in the way of news service and its presentation to the student body.

It was only last year that the department of journalism was rated among the best schools of its kind in the country. The Kernel is its medium of expression to the school, but more than that it is the display window of the University. In its columns the student reads about other departments than his own; through pictures, the prominent educators who are connected with the institution are seen. Thus with sure and imperceptible methods The Kernel coordinates the school.

As the school continues to grow in importance in the field of education, The Kernel aims to keep well with it, and to lead the way whenever it becomes possible. This can be accomplished all the better by special editions with their display of feature news and countless items that would never appear in an ordinary issue.

OUR FIRST VESPER SERVICE

Memorial Hall, the beautiful new building on the campus of the University of Kentucky, was the scene, last Sunday of an inspiring vesper program. The services were short and consisted of an organ prelude, the invocation by a local pastor, and a song by the Central Christian church quartet, followed in turn by reading of the Scriptures, also by a local pastor, a string ensemble, a short address by President McVey, a violin obligata, and the closing prayer. In all it took little more than an hour. The music was good, the address impressive; although it was such a service as few would wish to miss, who give thought to the higher things in life.

And what more fitting place could have been chosen than Memorial Hall, the building dedicated to Kentucky's war dead, for the scene of this beautiful meditative service? This building was erected last year and dedicated during the Spring graduation exercises. It is unique among buildings on the University campus.

The majority of the town's people think that the University of Kentucky merely teaches to the students things which are set down in books and gives no thought to the other important phases of life. But this is not true. The institution strives to impart the religious and the cultural side of life as well. This vesper service is but one little link in the fine cultural chain presented for the edification of the student. But do not get the idea from this that the students are the only ones considered. In fact many more town's folk than students attend these services. The effect of this upon the cultural life of Lexington is positive and eminently worth while.

THE MARCH IS ON

Last week The Kernel published a story about the largest enrollment in the history of the University. At that time it was predicted that last year's record would be exceeded by an additional five hundred students, which would be an increase of approximately 20 per cent in the student body. In other columns of today's paper that prediction has been justified.

The march is on at this University, and the direction being taken by an educational army of students is toward a worthy goal. Not only does it emphasize the growth of the school under the leadership of men who have given the best that is in them that the University might become the leading pulsing factor in education it is today.

LITERARY SECTION

Margaret Cundiff, Editor
This column has long endeavored to be the means of voicing literary aspirations of the students at the University. We always welcome any contributions in the form of poetry, short book reviews, and short prose selections, and urge new students to write for this section of The Kernel. Send all communications to the Literary Editor, The Kentucky Kernel.

AUTUMN
Autumn is a maiden lady
In a gorgeous dress
Waiting for the winter
Who is old and bent as she.
What has caused the romance
Is more than I can guess.
But all the winds are gossiping
And whispered it to me.
VIRGIL L. STURGILL.

FINIS
Close the book and let it be;
It is but a part of me—
But the snatches of a song
Sung my lonely course along
Kindly drop a tear for me;
Close the book and let it be.

THE FAILURE
Star-struck and weary,
The wanderer far
And sought the secret
Of the scheme called life.
The moon was a pendant,
The sky a dome
Where death's cold fingers
Carved his epitaph.
Yale '17.

DRIVE ON

As the enrollment of the University continues on its upward journey new restrictions must necessarily be imposed upon members of this social unit. Restrictions which by their nature might infringe on the rights of certain individuals are in reality necessary for the advancement of the University. Parking on our campus is and will remain a problem. Authorities of our institution are doing all within their power to remove this congested situation.

Rules and regulations have been framed which officials believe will to some extent relieve the situation. The real success of parking regulations, however, will be the observance which they receive at the hands of student automobile owners.

Cooperation will be the basis of success or failure of this new undertaking to control campus parking. If student cooperation is not forthcoming there may be a time in the future when ALL campus parking will be forbidden.

"IF I WERE A FROSH AGAIN"

"If I were to go through Yale again this is what I should do" . . . Thus we talked under the elms in the spring of senior year. I should definitely coordinate my activities toward four main goals: Physical, intellectual, social, religious.

First, I should choose a combination of athletics suitable to my build; major and minor, outdoor and indoor, or fall and spring sports, to insure balance and variety, one of which I could continue in later life. I should aim to make my college letter. Billy Queal once told me, "Any fellow with a fair body can make his Y if he trains consistently." I should tie in with my team-mates.

Second, I should aim to make Phi Beta Kappa, annually voted the highest honor. The thirty-eight simple rules in Starch's Educational Psychology make this goal possible for any serious, persistent student. Such a motive transforms a class from a bore to a stimulating game. "The most exciting adventures are intellectual ones." Whatever my later career, I should not fail to take philosophy—the art of thinking; psychology—the science of human nature; literature and history—the way of appreciation; science—the technique of observation; religion—the art of living. But in picking courses I should steer for the personality of the teacher rather than the mere title of the subject: I should soak myself in the virile poetry of Browning and the profound, fascinating writing of Plato. Indeed, my life is insured against the commonplace when I possess intimate friends such as Shakespeare, Boswell's Johnson, Browning, Plato and the Bible. The purpose of college is to acquire the contagion of intellectual enthusiasm and spiritual hunger from teachers, books, classmates. Inner craving, not repetition, is the goal of education.

Third, college days are a matchless opportunity to know and love men of every sort. I should make it my aim to know well every man in my class, and make him my friend if possible. These associations will bring immeasurable happiness all through life. I should seek the comradeship of the rich and poor, the bums and the saints. Above all, I should try to be my real self regardless of cliques or undergraduate autocracies. No man ever loses out by quietly challenging a social regime he does not respect. College is a real world, not stage-play. Cowards and heroes play their part there. Enduring friendship with one's most admired professors is a rich part of college social life. Talk with them. Visit at their homes: Absorb their personality and ideas.

Fourth, I should go in for the college religious activities. The strongest men in college stand out for religious ideals. In this age of international contacts, the Y. M. and Y. W. are doing more for such friendships than all other organizations put together. The student conferences are among the finest experiences of all college life. These temptations are faced, paramount issues clarified, lifelong inspirations received from world leaders.

The purpose of college is to teach the art of living a full, rounded life of physical, social and spiritual vigor, one of deep happiness for self and of rich public service.
DRYDEN L. PHELPS.

Orchestras Play In Many Lands During Summer

Three college dance orchestras, composed of students and bearing the name of the University, played summer engagements in North America, Europe and the Far East. The bands have returned to Lexington and will be heard at University dances this year.

The "Rhythm Kings" split into two sections during the summer. The first section, under the direction of Toy Sandaefer, sailed from Seattle, Wash., on the S. S. President Jefferson and travelled to Yokohama, Kobe, Manila, and Honolulu.

returning to San Francisco. The second section, under the direction of Jack Rash, sailed from New York on the S. S. Berengaria and played in France, Italy and Germany. John Sallee and his "Kentucky Masqueraders" returned to Canada during the warm months and performed at Crystal Beach, a well-known summer resort. They will open an engagement next month at Club Joy, formerly known as the Joyland Club House.

CLUB TO MEET

Mrs. D. Howard Peak will be hostess Tuesday, October 1, at her home on Linden Walk with the members of the board of the Woman's Club of the University as her guests for luncheon at 1 o'clock. The afternoon will be devoted to consideration of the Club's activities for the current year and the completion and announcement of committees.

Enrollment Total Reaches High Mark Of 2,800 Students

The total number of students enrolled at the University Wednesday afternoon at the close of registration hour reached the grand total of 2,800. This number represents an increase of nearly 500 over last year's enrollment.

Authorities said Wednesday that more students are expected to enroll by Monday, the day when admission will be denied to late applicants. The College of Law has 86 students, the College of Commerce 284, the College of Engineering 578, and the College of Agriculture 245. The Colleges of Education and Arts and Sciences have not been able to ascertain the exact number enrolled because of late registration.

 BY MARTIN R. GLENN

In seeking material for this week's column of blah this humble journalist and tramp printer besought the race track, local theaters and that famous terpichorean casino known as "Joyland," where Thelma Terry and her "Playboys" have just completed a rowdy engagement. Like many other masculine connoisseurs of feminine charm and abbreviated skirts, I have been utilizing my spare time by casting critical and, for the most part, admiring glances at the wealth of new talent that is present among that innocent assemblage of little ducklings that are termed "Fresh."

After such close observation of the debutantes I shall attempt to pass along a few fashion notes that I gleaned from this course in frills and fancies. "Plus four" skirts will be the vogue for the up-to-date flapper for street, but this means that skirts will be lengthened about ten inches and will come to a half four inches below the knee. Evening gowns will probably drag the floor. Oh well, everyone has already seen their pedal extremities, so why not give our eyes a rest.

Fashion is a foolish goddess. Skirts have been bloated like balloons and docket like horses' tails, some girls are as long in dressing as Caesar was in marshaling his army. God, plus the dressmaker, are women's creators. The standard of a country's morals is made evident by its fashion plates. History blames the apple for all of our fashion troubles, but a green pear really started the whole thing.

Cinema patrons who enjoy amorous college stories in which the hero is a typical "Joe College" must have been delighted with the bill at the Strand this week. "College Love" was just another one of those sickening, highly overdramatized performances that starred a hotly tosy lad who ran 70 yards for a touchdown with only one minute to play when the score was nine to seven in favor of the opposition. Quite naturally he received the praise of the Alma Mater and, incidentally, the love of the most beautiful girl on the campus. We wonder how King Solomon ever secured so many wives when he couldn't play football and didn't even possess a pint of gin.

The intelligence of the audience was further insulted by being forced to again witness the series of local advertisements that depict the qualities of butter-nut bread, et al, and the sex appeal of a Hudson automobile. Otherwise the program was a "wow."

The open season on freshmen terminated this week when twelve sororities decorated a score of little girls with the official badges of their respective organizations. Even now these fair maidens have visions of fame, popularity and perhaps the coveted title of "May Queen"—all emanating from the prestige and political prowess of the tea-club with which they have affiliated. 'Cats Open Season Next Week Against Maryville

NIGHT GAMES TO BE TESTED HERE

By HAYES OWENS

Coach Harry Gamage's fighting Wildcat football players are working hard for their opening game to be played one week from tomorrow night on Stoll field with Maryville as the opposition.

The squad this year is probably the largest that has ever been on hand for a Wildcat coat to use, but the majority of the candidates are sophomores or men who have never had a real test in college athletics.

Many persons are anxiously inquiring or trying to peep through a hole in the fence to see just how the Wildcats look this year. Some are saying that Kentucky won't lose a game, others are a little more generous and say that they might lose one or two, or possibly they might break even.

Danforth Rates Kentucky

Before one should form an opinion, he should try to find out about some of the big teams in the south that the Wildcats will play. Ed Danforth, sports writer for the Atlanta Constitution says: "Kentucky has a big line with fair backfield." "Alabama is as big as ever." "Tennessee has practically the same team as last year and will probably go undefeated." "Centre, a team fighting to gain its lost prestige, right in the middle of the schedule."

Coach Gamage has been working on two regular teams, the blues and the reds, with rank in order named. In the blue team backfield he has two sophomores, "Shipwreck" Kelly and either Tom or Jack Phipps. Kelly is fast enough for a halfback, but his speed is not helping him with his blocking and tackling. Tom and Jack both need worlds of experience before they will be able to back up the line as it was done last year by "Baldy" Gibb, the best blocking and tackling back in Kentucky.

Spicer to Call Signals

Captain Will Ed Covington and Carey Spicer, names that speak well for themselves, are veterans and capable of handling their jobs. Spicer will probably do most of the signal calling.

In the line, Kentucky will have one man who can't be classed as big, but he has the spirit and determination to make up for it, namely,

Warner Ford

The gentleman pictured above says that although his name is Ford he is no relation to the Tin King. He will long be remembered for his dazzling performances against V. M. I. when he galloped up and down the field like the ghost Grange. This year he has been doing some fancy work for Lord Gamage and expects to show the boys how it is done before the season is over.

Max Colker, the center. He will be edged in with "Floppy" Fovner, Newcastle's choice for All-Southern, at one guard and "Conny" Rose, the "high pocket" boy from Evansville, at the other.

Pete Drury, mentioned for All-Southern honors last year, and "Babe" Wright, the "Bill" from Sturgis, are the tackles. At the end positions, Kenneth Andrews and George Yates, both sophomores, seem to have shown up the best.

Reserves Are Strong

The array of reserve strength on the red team is not brilliant but all are hard workers and some of them will probably change their colors to blue before the season is well under way. In the backfield Coach Gamage has been using Tot, Urbanick, Richardis and Myers. Bronston, Kistner, Kipling, Williams, Ollie Johnson, Tom Walters, Thompson, Casana, Abley, McElroy, Morgan, Gentile and John Drury are the linemen. This team is almost as heavy as the blue team and it looks as though Coach Gamage will finally be able to substitute for his regulars.

Intramural Sports

CROSS COUNTRY

Special attention along intramural lines this week should be directed toward the cross-country run, according to an announcement by Sid Robinson, new director of intramural athletics. The actual event will not take place until November 9, between halves of the freshman football game on that day, but the training period for the distance men will begin on a week from next Monday or October 7.

Mr. Robinson, a former star distance man for Uncle Sam in the Olympic games, will have personal supervision of this training. It is not necessary for all of the entries to take this training, but it is very advisable for them to do so. Each fraternity should enter a team of eleven men at once. Twenty points extra will be given to each organization that has all of its men out for a short workout five days every week during the four-weeks period. In addition, all men enrolled in gym classes will be excused during this training period if they report daily to Mr. Robinson.

More detailed announcements concerning this sport will be found in this column next week.

GOLF

The first round of the annual fall golf tournament, which under way yesterday with a large number of entries, will be completed next week.

Rooms Renovated For Winter Sports

When Coach Harry Gamage and Maury Crutcher, superintendent of buildings and grounds, get together something is sure to happen. The latest innovation of this pair is now under construction and will soon be ready for use.

The rooms in the basement of the Men's Gymnasium formerly occupied by the Campus Book Store and Postoffice are undergoing changes which will fit them for miniature gymnasiums. Several permanent canvas mats laid on an 8-inch sawdust base are being installed for use of the boxing and wrestling classes this winter. The football mentor requires that his griders take up these two sports during the off-season. Heretofore the men have been handicapped by inadequate quarters in which to workout.

The classes in corrective gymnastics taught by M. E. Potter will also be held in these rooms as soon as they are completed.

The intra-mural officials are hurrying this sport along so the finals should be reached earlier than has formerly been the case. All of the matches are being played on the Fieldstone course at the end of South Broadway. Special rates of 35 cents have been obtained for the students and tickets for use of the course may be obtained tomorrow at the intra-mural office in the basement of the Men's Gym.

TENNIS

The annual fall tennis tournament likewise got under way yesterday on the University courts. The clay courts have recently been graded and rolled and although still somewhat soft are in much better condition than before. Tennis has always been a popular sport within the University and this entry list proved to be no exception. The schedule of play for the first round matches is posted on the bulletin board in the basement of the gym.

Airplanes from Tennessee

Grantland Rice in a current issue of Collier's, has rated Tennessee as one of the three strongest teams in the South along with Georgia Tech and Florida. Following a long established habit of his, Mr. Rice failed to remember that Kentucky had a football team on the Southern market. However, the good people of Knoxville who saw Kentucky hold the Volunteers to a 0 to 0 tie last November, take a different attitude. And anyone who doubts this might make a call on E. R. Savage, vice president of the Mason and Dixon Air Line, Cincinnati. Mr. Savage said this week that three airplanes had already been chartered by different parties in Knoxville to fly to Lexington on Thanksgiving for the Kentucky-Tennessee game. Tennessee will open her schedule tomorrow afternoon at home with a group of prayerful fans from Centre College, a Kentucky school of post football fame.

Low What We've Got

ATLANTA, Sept. 23 (AP)—Results of Saturday's football opener in the South were not at all encouraging to those teams which have the Clemson Tigers on their schedules. Josh Cody's scrapping Bengals unhooked a powerful offensive to humiliate the light but game Newberry Indians 68 to 0. Cody's powerful backs gained almost at will and the slaughter did not stop when they gave way to second-stringers. Ten touchdowns were chalked up by the Tigers.

V. M. E's Flying Squadron, the only other conference team in action, also got off to a victorious start, while-washing Hampden-Sydney, 19 to 0. Coach Bill Rafferty sent 11 leftmen into the opening game. Roy Dunn, plunging runner, back, supplied most of the thrills by scoring two touchdowns in the first half.

Freshman Lungs?

What are the plans for the Kentucky freshman at the opening football game with Maryville Saturday night, October 5? What has happened to the cheer leaders who were elected last winter? Will Kentucky have the same loose-jointed yelling exhibitions this year after the fashion of a small town high school? Or will there be an organized effort? Freshman spirit bubbled over almost into the Lexington police court last year without a guiding hand to transfer it into the air in Still Field. With the largest frosh class in the history of the school; with the largest student body in the history of the school; with the best football team in any number of years; and with the best band in Dixie, what is there to prevent Kentucky from raising the roof off of the Southern Conference with the combined vocal chorus of some 2,700 voices?

Members of the SuKy circle should have held their first meeting immediately upon the opening of school; a committee from the organization should have participated in Freshman Week. Football teams do not hold their first practice the night before the game. Why not get the good work started? Or we might have to resort to prayers.

"Shay, Friend," do you know where I could get a posthumn?"
"What kind of a posthumn?"
"Reclining."

Back to Nature—This manufacturing mud that whitens black shoes and blackens white shoes on the new campus walks when it rains—the only difference that can be noticed is that the mud of former years could be removed from your feet. Rainy day signs for the campus should read "Please Walk on the Grass."

We'd like to see the revival of the Freshman-Sophomore tug-o-war.

ON THE AIR With U OF K.

Wednesday, October 2, the Wednesday night musical program, broadcast from the University of Kentucky remote control studios through station WIAS of the Courier Journal and Times at Louisville, will be on the air from 10 to 11 o'clock in the evening, one hour later than the summer programs have been scheduled.

FROSH TEAM HAS GOOD PROSPECTS

Many Stars Are On Roster of Big Green; Backfield More Impressive Than Line at Present.

Another season and from all indications some more reasons why Kentucky's football prospects get brighter and brighter. Coach Blizett Fribble has a freshman squad of thirty-five men which includes some of the best football talent ever turned out of Kentucky high schools.

While it is a bit early to predict what showing the frosh will make as a team, it doesn't take a very smart man to forecast big things for some of the present members of the green outfit. The class of the line to date seems to center around a big lad by the name of Seals who weighs over 200 pounds and is fast. He is outstanding in the line now and when the rest of the green forward wall measures up to his example then place your bets on the Kittens to win.

The shades of Notre Dame's Four Horsemen have arisen in the four sturdy members of the frosh backfield, Johnson, Ashland; Boardman, Anchorage; Bickel, Louisville Male, and Darby, Ashland. These men all match-up closely in size, weight and speed and with a week or so of practice will be hard to stop.

Fribble is being assisted this season by Claire Dees and Al Fortwood who were members of Gamage's high class eleven the last three years. The freshmen schedule will be announced later.

"College Night" Is Held in U. K. Armory By Y. M. and Y. W.

"College Night," annual all-student party given jointly by the University Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. was held at 7:30 Friday evening in the U. K. Armory. Members of the general committee in charge were James Boucher, Albert Kikel and Elise Derickson.

The first floor of the Armory contained various booths, including a fish pond, shooting gallery, picture gallery, and stands for the dispensation of pop, candy, ice-cream and doughnuts. A professional crystal-gazer told the students fortunes. Upstairs rooms were devoted to a chamber of horrors in charge of Bernice Byland and Bryant Jones, and a four-set vaudeville show managed by Malcolm Barnes and Elizabeth Cramer.

SAYS KENTUCKY SCHOOLS GAINING

Dr. Frank H. Phillips Claims That State Is Gradually Improving in Its Educational System.

Dr. Frank Phillips, of the Washington Bureau of Education, who spoke at the university during the summer, told summer school students that Kentucky has been gradually increasing her status in the educational field each year with the exception of the year 1920.

An audience that filled the Memorial building assembled to hear Dr. Phillips tell why Kentucky ranks behind educationally and with the aid of charts he depicted the weak points of the state.

The rating of states is based on the Ayres system which includes the following 10 points: Percentage of population between the ages of 5 and 17 years; average number of days school attended by each child between the ages of 5 and 17 years; average number of days school was in session; percentage of high school enrollment to total; percentage of boys and girls in high schools; average expenses of child attending school; average expenses of child per school age; average expenses per teacher employed; expenses per pupil for purposes other than teachers' salaries; expenses per teacher for salaries.

The chart arranged by Dr. Phillips showed an enrollment of 59.2 per cent in Kentucky schools and that the average salary of teachers in Kentucky schools is $853.98 a year, or $71 a month. In comment on the salary figure, Dr. Phillips said that it now takes $1.72 to buy what one dollar would purchase in 1913.

The reason Kentucky's rating went down in 1920 was the fact that the cost of living increased while teachers' salaries did not, Dr. Phillips said.

In 1928 figures showed there were 477,786 boys and girls between the ages of 5 and 17 years in Kentucky, with 228,210 of the number, or 58.7 per cent, in the public schools.

One reason Kentucky rates low is because many counties fail to make reports of the number of pupils in school, he said. Kentucky reached its peak in 1922 when 0.5 per cent of the number of children of school age were enrolled in the institutions of the state.

Rev. Hayes Farish, pastor of the Woodland Christian church, pronounced the invocation at today's convocation and Dr. W. S. Taylor, dean of the College of Education and head of the summer school, made announcements and introduced the speaker.

Sulzer Announces Tryouts for Drum Major Assistant

Prof. Elmer G. Sulzer, director of the University band, has announced that tryouts for assistant drum major of the band, originally scheduled for Sept. 20, will be held tonight at 7 o'clock at the band room in the art center. Anyone with the exception of a senior is eligible for this position.

Due to the unsettled condition of the student body at the beginning of school it was thought that a later date would be more suitable for the tryouts as this would give candidates a better chance to enter the competition.

The winning candidate will be instructed by Wallace Hoeting, the present drum major, and will lead the band in military maneuvers in the near future. It is urged that anyone who has had any former experience whatever along these lines come to the tryouts.

TO PUBLISH U. K. HISTORY

The Publicity Bureau of the University is preparing a story of the history and work of the school for publication in the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad magazine, to be issued in the near future. This story will be accompanied by pictures of interesting parts of the University.

If you turn on the hot water faucet and get cold water; if you turn on the cold water and scald your hands, benchahant—you're in a fraternity house.
