MINUTES OF THE UNIVERSITY SENATE, FEBRUARY 11, 1991

The University Senate met in regular session at 3:00 p.m., Monday, February 11, 1991, in Room 115 of the Nursing Health Sciences Building.

Carolyn S. Bratt, Chair of the Senate Council, presided.

Members absent were: Reginald J. Alston, Barry Applegate, Jim Arnett*, Carl Baker, Harry V. Barnard*, Anthony Q. Baxter, Mark C. Berger, Raymond F. Betts*, James D. Birchfield*, Dan A. The Minutes of the meetings of October 8, 1990, and November 12, 1990, were approved as submitted.

The Chair made the following announcements:

"If you remember, at our November Senate Meeting, the University Senate approved a number of changes in the Selective Admissions Policy. All of the changes we approved carried a Fall 1991 implementation date. In December of this past year, I met with the Director of Admissions, Joe Fink, to discuss some problems that he foresaw in implementing Recommendation 4 with the class they are currently in the process of admitting for Fall 1991. Recommendation 4 states that a student can no longer be admitted to the University unless he or she has an ACT score of 15 on the old scale or an 18 on the new scale. If a student has anything below that, the only way to be admitted is through the Exceptions Committee. There is a problem with immediate implementation for the class which is currently being admitted. During the summer and the fall of 1990, prior to our action in November, many high school counselors and many applicants were told by Admissions the old rule still prevailed. Admissions had no way of knowing that we were going to make changes in November. I invited Joe and his staff to come to the January 8 meeting of the Senate Council to talk about the problems of suddenly announcing there is a new rule when we are midway into the process of admitting students for the Fall 1991. The Senate Council acted on behalf of the Senate and postponed implementation of Recommendation 4. It becomes effective for any student admitted starting with the Spring 1992, Summer 1992, and Fall 1992. We felt that was absolutely necessary given the kinds of information we had put out in the Commonwealth. The Council wanted you to know it so acted.

The second item I need to talk to you about is an important one. The March Senate meeting date has been changed. We always meet on the second Monday of March. That falls during spring break; consequently the March Senate meeting has been scheduled for Monday, March 18 at 3:00 p.m. Because we are changing the date, we cannot use this room. The meeting will be in Room 107 of the Hunt Morgan Building. We will send out a reminder of this when we circulate the agenda to you, but I thought you might want to mark your calendars now. The meeting will be Monday, March 18, 3:00 p.m., Room 107 of the Hunt Morgan Building.

The third announcement that I need to make today has to do with the candidates for the Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences. On Friday, I was notified by Chancellor Hemenway's office of the names of the candidates and the dates they would be on campus. I thought I would share with you that information because a number of you probably will be interested in attending the open Faculty Forums scheduled for the five candidates. All of those open Faculty Forums are going to be held in the west end of the board room on the 18th floor of the Patterson Office Tower from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. The place and time stays the same for all the candidates. The dates are all different. The first candidate, Richard Edwards, who is from the University of Massachusetts, will be at that open Forum today from 4:00 to 5:00 p.m. The second candidate who will be interviewed is David Watt from the University of Kentucky on Tuesday, February 19. The third candidate, David Highly, from Auburn will be on Thursday, February 21; Lynn Billard who is from the University of Georgia will be here on Wednesday, February 27, and Ruth Jones from Arizona State will be here Thursday, February 28. If you are a faculty member from one of the departments embraced by the College of Arts and Sciences, you may want to attend those Faculty Forums.

I have been informed that the graduate faculty does not yet have any nominations for honorary degrees for the Senate to act upon.

At its February 4 meeting the Senate Council approved the University Calendar. As we circulate the Minutes of this meeting, we will attach the calendar. After you have reviewed it, if you see anything to which you object or any problems you have with it, please notify me at the Senate Council Office.

The last announcement has to do with the University Self-Study. Loys Mather tells me in about two weeks you all will be receiving a questionnaire from the Self-Study Committee. This is going to be the first time that the entire University Community will have an opportunity to participate in the Self-Study. It is particularly important that you take the time to complete the questionnaire and return it. There are a number of items on that survey that are going to be of particular interest to faculty members. It will provide an opportunity for you to indicate your priority on potential new employee benefits. It will provide you with an opportunity to voice your opinion on the type of facilities which ought to be included in the new library that is under consideration right now. There will be questions about faculty recruitment and performance evaluation and a set of questions that deal with those kinds of problems. It will be an opportunity for you to state your own sense of what the priorities of the University ought to be. It is important that you take the time to fill out the survey. When it comes in the mail, don't put it in the circular file."

The Chair recognized Professor David Watt (Chair, Department of Chemistry) for two memorial resolutions.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Merle D. Pattengill
1942 - 1989

Professor Merle Dean Pattengill, a faculty member in the Physical Chemistry Division, died on May 24, 1989. Merle fought his illness for more than a year with humor and determination, and lived longer and better than his doctors believed possible.

Merle was born in 1942 in McPherson, KS, a small city 50 miles north of Wichita. After earning a B.S. at the University of Kansas in 1964, he went on to the University of California at Irvine, where his Ph.D. thesis concerned the theory of gas-phase reactions. Two postdoctoral appointments followed: the first with R. B. Bernstein at the University of Wisconsin, and the second with J. C. Polanyi at the University of Toronto. Merle joined the Chemistry Department at the University of Kentucky in 1973 and rose through the ranks to become Professor in 1987.

Merle was awarded a prestigious John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Fellowship in 1985 that allowed him to spend a sabbatical year at Stanford University working with R. N. Zare. The active collaboration that developed with Zare and scientists at the NASA Ames Research Center continued until Merle's death. Their work on aerobraking was described on the science page of the Louisville Courier Journal in July of 1986.

Merle published about 35 papers, mostly in the field of reaction dynamics. He could be passionate about science, and was particularly skeptical about the theory that discusses activated complexes. His approach was painstaking and thorough, and his writing clear and concise.

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991.

Despite his success in research, Merle's first commitment was to teaching, especially at the freshman level. He reviewed textbooks and worried about pedagogical matters. He never went into class unprepared and always left his door open. He delighted in meeting former students who had gone on to graduate or professional school.

Around the department Merle was known for his wit. He always had a funny story, an atrocious pun, or a pungent observation to share. He loved politics, probably because it provided him with so many amusing anecdotes. Merle's childhood among the Kansas wheat-fields had left him wary of fancy talk, and he did his best to combat overblown rhetoric and all other forms of pomposity. Humor was his best weapon.

Merle is survived by his wife, Liz, and daughter, Mary. His many friends in the Chemistry Department wish that he could have stayed with us longer.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Ellwood M. Hammaker
1912 - 1990

Professor Ellwood M. Hammaker, retired Professor of Chemistry, died at his home on February 8, 1990. Woody, as he was known around the University, had been ill for some time, but remained active to the end. Never one to drive when he could walk, Woody had been seen striding towards campus just a week or so before his death.

Woody Hammaker was born in Lansdowne, PA in 1912. He majored in chemistry at Haverford College, graduating in 1934. He then went on to earn the Ph.D. degree from Rutgers University in 1940; his dissertation was titled "The Coprecipitation of Nitrate and Nitrite Ions by Barium Sulfate." After several wartime jobs in industry, Woody returned to Rutgers as a faculty member in 1945. In 1951 he came to the University of Kentucky as an Associate Professor and was promoted to Professor in 1959. He retired at the end of the 1977 spring semester.

Woody's specialty was analytical chemistry, and he shepherded generations of sophomore CHE 226 students through titrations and complicated equilibrium problems. He published eight papers on a variety of analytical problems in journals including "Analytical Chemistry" and the "Journal of the American Chemical Society." One of these articles reported the undergraduate research of Ralph N. Adams (B.S., Rutgers, 1950), who went on to become a well-known analytical chemist.

From 1956-59 Woody was a Visiting Professor at the University of Indonesia working under a U.S. government contract. By the end of his three years in Jakarta, Wood had become the Director of the team from the University of Kentucky.

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991

Woody served as Assistant Chairman of the Chemistry Department from 1965-77. His concern for students was legendary, as was his very tidy office. Faculty members coming to him for information were amazed to discover that he could nearly always extract the appropriate document from the top left-hand drawer of his desk.

After he retired, Woody and his wife, Evelyn, took part in the Donovan Scholars program on campus and went on long freighter trips. Woody continued these activities after Evelyn died in 1985, but it was clear that he missed her company. Woody took his last, and perhaps most adventuresome, cruise during the summer of 1989; the freighter went through the Mediterranean Sea and Suez Canal in the summer heat, and visited a port in Ethiopia, one of the poorest countries on earth. After he returned, Woody, always the teacher, told wonderful stories of the things and people he had seen.

Those of us who knew Woody will never forget his calm and sense of order, his great respect for others, his lanky frame, and his very understated sense of humor. He was truly one of a kind.

He is survived by two sons, Wayne and Alan Hammaker.

Professor Watt respectfully requested that the resolutions be spread upon the Minutes of the University Senate.

The request was so ordered and the Chair asked the Senate to stand for a moment of silence.

The Chair recognized Professor Dennis TeKrony (Agriculture) for a Memorial Resolution.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Doyle E. Peaslee
1930 - 1990

Doyle E. Peaslee, Director, Division of Regulatory Services and Professor of Agronomy at the University of Kentucky, died December 12, 1990, following a long illness with cancer. Dr. Peaslee was born in Stockton, Kansas, on February 24, 1930. He received the B.S. (1952) and M.S. (1956) degrees in Agriculture from Kansas State University. Between the two degrees, he served a 2-year active duty tour with the US Army. He received the Ph.D. degree from Iowa State University of Science and Technology in 1960.

Dr. Peaslee was Assistant and/or Associate Soil Scientist at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station from 1960 to 1966. He joined the faculty of the Department of Agronomy, University of Kentucky in June, 1966, and became Professor of Agronomy in 1971. At the University of Kentucky, he taught and advised several undergraduate, M.S., and Ph.D. students. He conducted research and published widely on soil-plant relationships, with special emphasis on the potassium, phosphorus, and zinc nutrition of crop plants. He served as Director of Regulatory Services of the College of Agriculture from 1980 to 1990.

Dr. Peaslee was a member of the Presbyterian church, ASA, SSSA, ISSS, and Sigma Xi, Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, and Acacia Fraternities. He is survived by his wife Mary Ann (Lexington); two sons, Steven Doyle (Stockton, KS) and Douglas Arthur (Kent, WA); and a granddaughter, Katie Morgan Peaslee (Kent, WA).

He will be remembered by his colleagues and many friends as an intelligent and gracious man who generously contributed his skills and energy to Kentucky agriculture, the University, and his community.

Professor TeKrony moved that the memorial resolution be included in the minutes of this meeting and that a copy be sent to Dr. Peaslee's widow, Mary Ann Peaslee.

The Chair so ordered and asked the Senate to rise for a moment of silence.

The final memorial resolution was offered by Professor Vincent Davis (Patterson School of Diplomacy and International Commerce.) Professor Davis stated that perhaps more is learned about fellow workers from the memorial resolutions than is known before, which is sad. He added that the occasion gave him a sense of personal privilege and honor to be able to tell the Senators about one of the truly great people on the faculty of this university who was a personal friend.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Amry Vandenbosch
1894 - 1990

Dr. Amry Vandenbosch, Founding Director of the Patterson School and longtime Chair and Professor of Political Science, died on Sunday, October 21, 1990. "Dr. Van" attended Calvin College not far from his hometown for his freshman and sophomore years, and then served as an enlisted man in the U.S. Army in Europe during World War I. Because he happened to be relatively fluent in French, he was transferred from his machine gun company and given a special assignment as a translator in liaison work between senior American and French generals. It was his first taste of international diplomacy-- a subject and an activity which would occupy the rest of his professional life in one form or another.

After the Armistice, Vandenbosch returned home to Michigan but chose to resume his studies at the University of Chicago where he received his undergraduate degree in 1920. Continuing straightaway into graduate studies, he earned his Ph.D. in 1926. Even today, the University of Chicago's Department of Political Science during that 1920s period is still regarded as perhaps the greatest group of scholars in this discipline ever assembled on one campus, shaping the field for decades to come. Van earned his doctoral degree under those "giants"--people such as Charles Beard and Harold Lasswell. His own work looked at the broad themes of international law, politics and organizations, but also on the more specialized subject of the Dutch overseas empire and its impact on those areas where the Dutch colonial experience was particularly heavy.

Vandenbosch did a little bit of high school teaching and also undertook a two-year teaching apprenticeship (1924-26) as a predoctoral instructor at Iowa State before immediately accepting a junior position as a Political Science faculty member at the University of Kentucky when his Ph.D. was completed in 1926. Aside from an occasional year as a visiting professor at distinguished institutions elsewhere, and not counting a brief period on the Centre College faculty after retiring at Kentucky, Dr. Van spent his entire academic career on the UK campus--including 25 years (1933-58) as Head of the Department of Political Science and then six years (1959-65) as the first Director of the Patterson School. He received every honor that the University of Kentucky could bestow on a faculty member, including an honorary doctorate. He also received many other forms of professional recognition--for example, he was one of only two people to have served as president for both the Southern and the Midwestern Political Science Associations. He was clearly a prominent figure and strong influence introducing and expanding international studies in these two major regions of the United States.

Although his age and his World War I service would have gained him an exemption from service during World War II, Dr. Van took a leave of absence from UK in order to make his own contribution to the great effort--first, a year with the OSS (1941-42) in which his knowledge of the Dutch islands in the Southwest Pacific was used to develop a native network of observers to monitor the movement of Japanese ships; and then three years (1942-45) of diplomatic work with the U.S. Department of State. The pinnacle of his service in diplomacy was membership on the famous U.S. delegation to the San Francisco Conference in 1944-45 where the United Nations Charter was drafted and approved.

He was a friend and mentor to generations of students, many of whom went on to achieve distinguished careers of their own. One of the best-known among his former students is Ambassador Thomas M. T. Niles. He was equally well regarded by--and a benevolent influence on--numerous colleagues and thousands of others who knew him at one time or another over his long and lively life. A representative of the "old school" in believing that a professor had a duty to profess, Dr. Van was never without well-peppered and sometimes well-salted views on a wide range of public issues both domestic and international. Small in stature but large of heart, he could quickly smile during and after loud exchanges of views, often proposing a beer and a game of pool as the denouement for a vociferous shouting match.

He is survived by his widow and frequent scholarly collaborator, the former Mary Belle Wilcox, whom he married on March 22, 1926. Their two children are Robert, a distinguished professor of nuclear physics at the University of Washington, and Margaret Anne, who has held academic affiliations at Florida State University and elsewhere. All who knew Amry will miss him.

Professor Davis requested that the memorial statement be spread on the Minutes of the Senate and that a copy be sent to his family.

The Chair so ordered and asked the Senators to stand for a moment of silence.

The last resolution for consideration was one submitted by the Senate Council. The Chair stated that it represents an attempt by the Senate Council to articulate the feelings of the Council, and they hope the Senate, concerning the need to preserve an atmosphere on the campus of one that is open to a point of complete dialogue concerning the current conflict in the Middle East and the Persian Gulf in particular.

The Chair recognized Professor Marcus McEllistrem, Chair-elect of the Senate Council, who read the following resolution for the Senate's consideration.

UNIVERSITY SENATE RESOLUTION
February 11, 1991

WHEREAS, the current conflict in the Persian Gulf is surrounded by a maelstrom of strongly held and conflicting ideas and opinions;

WHEREAS, the University of Kentucky is an institution dedicated to education;

WHEREAS, education occurs through the free and open exchange of ideas;

WHEREAS, the hallmark of an institution of higher education is tolerance and respect for diverse opinions;

NOW, THEREFORE, BE IT RESOLVED THAT:

The University Senate reaffirms the faculty's commitment to the free and open exchange of ideas and opinions as well as the protection and exercise of academic freedom, free expression and dissent.

On behalf of the Senate Council, Professor McEllistrem, moved approval. The Chair stated that the motion required no second. The floor was opened for comments. The motion in favor of adopting the resolution unanimously passed.

The Chair stated that a report was scheduled for the meeting because of the interest on campus as to what is going on for the planning of the new library. She added that Drs. Paul Willis and Kumble Subbaswamy had agreed to make presentations. Professor Subbaswamy is Chair of the Senate Library Committee and has been involved with the project for two years. The Chair recognized Professor Subbaswamy, and he made the following remarks.

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991

"In the 1980 self-study report, the library space situation was described as 'inadequate to good.' Since then nary a single square foot of space has been added to the system. Apart from the growth of book and journal collections, the electronic invasion has added to the space needs. The situation in all parts of the library system, including the Medical Center Library, is very acute.

As everyone knows, there was a library building proposal submitted for the last budget cycle. That proposal, unfortunately, was dictated more by expediency than by wisdom. There had not been adequate consultation with faculty. Connected with that proposal was also the spectre of all branch libraries being transformed into mere video parlors. Needless to say, not too many tears were shed when that proposal died. Since then, the library administration and the Senate Library Committee have been working very closely to develop a building plan that would enjoy the support of all sectors. President Wethington's announcement last fall to this Senate that a major library building project was high on his agenda was a very pleasant surprise indeed. With that, and the acquisition of a fairy Godfather in the form of Mr. John Gaines, we seem poised on our adventure that is the academic equivalent of the building of Rupp Arena.

Let us be certain about one thing. In a university as diverse as this there will not be unanimity on anything. There are those who advocate a single repository for all printed material no matter how removed they are from primary users, and those who wish to see all branches remain as they are no matter how the disciplines and use patterns have changed. We must strive for consensus, and the Senate Library Committee has been trying very hard. On the Lexington campus a consensus is emerging for the plan that Paul Willis will share with you. I am sure a consensus will emerge on the Medical Center, once all the facts are known, especially the fact that there are no plans to convert the Medical Center library into a video parlor. Communication has been a problem. The Chancellor for the Medical Center has recently appointed a Library ad hoc committee for the Medical Center. I urge that committee to work closely with the Medical Center representatives of the Senate Library Committee so that the University can put forward a unified package which enjoys broad support.

Please make your concerns and views known to your Senate representatives or to Paul Willis now or hold your peace forever!"

Professor Paul Willis (Director of Libraries) combined a slide presentation along with the following remarks.

Professor Willis thanked Professor Subbaswamy, the Chair and members of the Senate for the opportunity to talk about the library project. The library staff has been working with the Senate Library Committee for several years, and he especially appreciates the chance to work with Professor Subbaswamy and members of this year's committee.

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991

Professor Willis stated that Faith Harders is responsible for the project. He went on to say that on behalf of the library, she would give part of the presentation. Professor Willis recognized Omer Hamlin from the Medical Library who could answer questions as they relate to that aspect of the project. He also recognized David Nash who is chairing a committee for the Medical Center. He added that Gene Williams, Vice President for Information Systems, is the person to whom the Library reports and is the one who works with the project in terms of the President's Cabinet.

Professor Willis stated that most, if not all of the Senate, has dealt with the complexity of the King buildings and many deal with the inadequacies of the branch libraries. The original 1931 building was a pretty good building in its day, and the university administration did not want to add on to that building in 1963 when the first serious mistake was made with the central library. He went on to say that the library administration prevailed at that time in terms of getting the first addition added to the King Building. He feels that complexity was compounded when adding on the 1974 north wing. One of the things the library administration wants to accomplish with the project is to end up with a facility that is much easier for faculty and students to use and much more efficient to manage from a staff point of view as well as a patron point of view. He feels that a building designed efficiently can be operated with a lot fewer staff members than can the present building. To keep the King buildings open and functioning nights and weekends when there are not many patrons in the building still takes a lot of staff. He stated that some people have questioned the amount of money that has been talked about on the project. That is one-time money whereas the recurring money which it takes to operate the facility can be impacted rather significantly. If an efficient building is designed, it could be staffed a little easier.

He stated that if some consensus could be reached as to how to handle the collections, that would have some impact on the collections expenditures. The library, in spite of their best efforts, still has quite a bit of duplication in the journals budget and the reference budget. That budget totals in excess of $150,000 a year. Those are recurring dollars. He added that if some savings could be made without inconveniencing faculty and students, those would be savings that would go on and on.

Professor Willis stated that not only is the library out of space in the main buildings but also in the branches and many of the branches are "building locked." There is no logical way for most of the branches to be expanded. They are typically in the center of the academic buildings they serve. He stated that the library administration tried to look at a proposal that will address branch library space problems as well as space problems in the King buildings.

He stated that the Geology Library has more bath tubs than any library in the country. The Mathematics Library has about twelve seats. Plastic is also put up in one area to keep the books dry.

He stated that for the past several years materials from the library have been stored at the American Tobacco Building. After seeing how the materials were being stored, the library staff sent the boxes to the storage at High Bridge, KY.

The consensus that has been reached at this stage is that the library administration is going to go forward with the proposal to build a new central library. He stated that represents a rather significant decision on the part of President Wethington as opposed to adding on to one of the King buildings. He added that this proposal represents a major departure to be looking at relocating the main library. There are a lot of problems with adding on to the current buildings. He stated that there is not enough land around the current building to add on without making the building rather awkward. The current King building is no longer in the center of campus. The first decision which has been reached is that a new central library is going to be built depending on raising some private money and getting authorization from the State. If those two factors can be managed, Professor Willis believes that a new central library will be built.

Although the location has not yet been determined, the most talked about recommended site is near Clifton Circle. He envisions the new library being about 300,000 square feet. He stated that the Medical Center and Agriculture libraries are out of space and the Biological Sciences Library was out of space the day it moved into the Morgan Building. The people working on the library proposal are looking at having a separate wing or separate component of the new central library that would cover in some fashion the life sciences. Most of the duplication is with agriculture, medicine or biological sciences.

He stated that one of the advantages of the Clifton Circle site is that it is close to the Rose Street Parking Structure so it would give expanded parking to the library.

He stated that if there is a life sciences component to the library building, then he would envision the central library and the life sciences library functioning independently of one another. He added that there is some interest at the Medical Center in the life sciences component either facing the Medical Center or moving closer.

Professor Willis asked Faith Harders to give a presentation on the plan for the current King Library buildings. He stated that there would not be enough space in the new library to be able to move everything. He stated that the old building lends itself to some of the things being left behind.

A summary of Faith Harders' remarks follows:

Ms. Harders showed slides, one of which was King South in 1931 the original building. What the library staff wants to do with the 1931 building is to restore it and use it for special collections. She stated that idea is not original with UK, because the University of North Carolina at Chapel Hill did that when they built a new library. She stated that the green core stacks are part of the building support. They hold the building up, so unless a substantial amount of money is used to renovate, the building would have to be used as a library function. Many of the internal walls are load bearing which would make renovation even more difficult. Leaving the building for special collections seems to be the optimal and the most economic thing to do.

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991

Ms. Harders stated that the library really is in three parts. The part for special collections is the 1931 building. In 1963 another five floors were added. To the back side of that building an entrance could be created. At the present the library staff is talking with the people in geology, chemistry, physics, mathematics and engineering about bringing their collections together. Geology has an extensive map collection and there is also a map collection currently in King and those could be brought together.

Ms. Harders stated one thing that has been talked about for the 1974 building is to make a consolidated Fine Arts Library. Art is already in there so music and the listening center could be put there. Art could also put their slide library there. To do that the first and second floors would be used. The ground floor could possibly be used for bringing the Office of Instructional Resources together. Another possibility would be to locate the College of Library Science on the fourth floor.

Professor Willis stated that this is a unique opportunity to have the chance to build a new state-of-the-art library and the University seems to be committed to building a world-class facility. Professor Willis wanted to get questions or advice on the project. Professor McEllistrem wanted to know if many schools had gone to the structure called undergraduate library, such as the one at Indiana University. He wanted to know if Professor Willis had given any thought to having something that would function such as those. Professor Willis stated that he has looked at trying to meet undergraduate needs in the context of the new central library. He added that the library needs to have some special services for undergraduates. He does not believe that a research university has built an undergraduate library since the 1960's. Indiana may have been the last one and very few research institutions are moving in that direction. He feels it would be better to try to meet the undergraduate needs in the context of the central library, maybe with some special services.

Ms. Harders stated that when people build undergraduate libraries the policy usually is that everything in the undergraduate library is duplicated in the main library; this becomes very expensive. Professor Willis stated that the library staff would be happy to take questions by E-mail or letter.

The Chair thanked Professor Willis and Faith Harders for their presentations. She stated that Professor Willis has always been very willing to use as his committee the Senate Library Committee to avoid duplication of other committees doing essentially the same thing. She expressed her appreciation to him.

The Chair recognized Professor Marcus McEllistrem (Physics and Astronomy) to present the first action item. Professor McEllistrem, on behalf of the Senate Council, recommended approval of the proposal to amend University Senate Rules, Section V-1.3.2 (Incomplete Grades). He stated that with the Student Information System it is not necessary to supply all the information to university offices. The proposal would add the statement "and the department chair" to receive a copy of the I grade. This proposal was circulated to members of the senate under date of 25 January 1991.

The Chair stated that the motion did not need a second because it was a motion from the Senate Council. The floor was opened for discussion. There were no questions and the motion unanimously passed. The proposal reads as follows:

Proposal: (add highlighted portion; delete bracketed portion)

1.3.2 Grade I (US: 9/14/87)

The grade I means that part of the regularly assigned work of the course remains undone. It shall be given only when there is a reasonable possibility that the student can complete the work within the allowable period of time for removal of an I grade and that a passing grade will result from completion of the work. An I grade shall not be given when the student's reason for incompleteness is unsatisfactory to the instructor. A grade of I must be replaced by a regular final letter grade not later than 12 months from the end of the academic term in which the I grade was awarded or prior to the student's graduation, whichever occurs first. In the event the grade of I is not replaced by a regular final letter grade within the allowable period, the University Registrar shall change the I grade to a grade of E on the student's permanent academic record and adjust the student's grade point standing accordingly. A graduate who had an I grade on his or her academic record at the time of graduation (and which grade was subsequently changed to an E by the Registrar) may be allowed a maximum of 12 months following the end of the term in which the course was taken to satisfactorily complete the course and receive a grade change.

For each I grade assigned, the instructor shall complete an appropriate file record on a standard form provided by the University Registrar, which shall include the following:

- a. the name of the student;
- b. the course number and hours of credit;
- c. semester and year of enrollment;
- d. signature of the instructor;
- e. a brief statement of the reason(s) for recording the incomplete; and

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991

- f. specific instructions on how alternate grades on the work to be completed will affect the final grade;
- g. the specific time requirement (not to exceed 12 months) set by the instructor for removal of the I grade and consequences of not removing the I grade; and
- h. signature of the student, if feasible.

The instructor shall provide a completed copy of this record to the student [,] and the department chair. [the department chairman, the dean of the college in which the student is enrolled, the dean of the college offering the course, and University Registrar] at the time the I grade is reported. The term 'student' in this context excludes only students in the Graduate School and the Colleges of Medicine and Dentistry. (US: 9/14/87)

Rationale:

This revision eliminates the duplicate copies of the form required to document the I grade. When the rule was revised in 1987, grade recording and monitoring were manual operations, and conversion of an "expired" I was dependent upon a relatively extensive "paper trail." Recent enhancements to the on-line student records system (SIS) implemented after 1987 now make automatic electronic monitoring and conversion of expired I grades possible. Accordingly, several copies of the initial documentation are no longer necessary. Under the proposed revision, only the parties directly involved in the I grade transition - the student and the instructor, and instructor's department chair (or unit head, where appropriate) in the absence of the instructor - are involved in the required paper work. If an official grade assignment form to change the I to a regular letter grade is not filed within 12 months, the SIS automatically converts the I to an E.

The proposal was reviewed by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and the Senate Council, both of which recommend approval.

Implementation Date: Spring, 1991.

NOTE: This proposal will be forwarded to the Rules Committee for codification.

The Chair recognized Professor Marcus McEllistrem for the second action item. Professor McEllistrem, on behalf of the Senate Council, recommended approval of the proposal to amend University Senate Rules, Section IV-2.2.2 (b), Admission to Advanced Standing. He stated that the only change in the policy for admission to advanced standing refers to students coming from American universities which are not part of the University of Kentucky system. The statement to be deleted is "or by validation under conditions set forth by the Director of Admissions and the Dean of the College in which the student will enroll." The proposal was circulated to members of the senate under date of 24 January 1991.

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991

The Chair stated that because the motion was from the Senate Council it did not need a second. The floor was opened for questions.

The Chair recognized Professor Hans Gesund (Civil Engineering) who wanted to know how the university is going to regularize in the Senate Rules the advanced standing for individuals from foreign institutions. Professor McEllistrem stated that is a separate issue and right now the university has a system which is very flexible. He added that there is an officer in the Admissions Office who looks at the transcripts, consults with people in the appropriate college, and makes decisions on handling advanced standing.

The Chair recognized Dr. Joseph Fink (Director of Admissions) for any comments. Dr. Fink stated that Robert Prather is the admissions officer who works with those students, and he has developed expertise in evaluating the records that flow from educational systems. He went on to say that the educational systems around the world vary quite tremendously as to their grading systems, their academic calendars, and other grounds so to try to bring some regularity to that level at the university would be rather problematic. What works best for the student and the institution is to have flexibility in the Admissions Office where they can respond to individual situations and individual countries.

There was no further discussion. The motion in favor of approving Section IV-2.1.2 (b) in the Senate Rules unanimously passed and reads as follows:

Proposal: (Delete highlighted, bracketed portion)

2.1.2 Admission to Advanced Standing

- (a) Admission of University of Kentucky Community College Students:
Grades, credits, quality points and academic status from courses taken in the University of Kentucky Community College shall be transferred when the Community College student enrolls in the University System. The applicability of any given courses not offered in the University System towards a University degree shall be determined by the Dean of the College in which the student enrolls.
- (b) Admission of All Other Students:
Applicants for admission must present evidence that they are in good standing in every respect in the institution they last attended. At no time shall college or university records be disregarded to admit an applicant solely on the basis of his/her high school records. Credit hours for courses accepted from a junior college, or other two year colleges or branches, shall be limited to a maximum of 67 semester hours. Applicants must have maintained a grade point average of 2.0 or an average of C in all previous course work. (US:12/13/82)

All collegiate level work taken at a fully accredited college or university is recognized credit hour for credit hour except that the dean of a college may require validation by appropriate means of course equivalencies or applicability toward degree requirements for more specialized courses. In order to be classified as fully accredited, a U.S. college or university must be a member of one of the six regional accrediting associations, such as the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Advanced standing from an unaccredited U.S. college or university may be obtained by special subject examinations [or by validation under conditions set forth by the Director of Admissions and the Dean of the College in which the student will enroll]. The applicability of the transfer work toward a University degree shall be determined by the Dean of the College in which the student enrolls. (US: 12/13/82)

Background and Rationale:

At present, the University's practice of validating transfer credit from a non-accredited institution is based upon the student's performance at UK. The working arrangement is that students are allowed to count credits if they earn a 2.0 or better gpa in the first 24 hours of course work at UK. Thus, if a student does well at UK in advanced level classes, it is assumed that the credits earned at a non-accredited institution are valid. The policy permits the student's performance at UK to validate another institution's records. Consequently, UK Admissions could refuse to validate one of two identical records from an institution on the basis of varying student performance at UK. (The policy also assumes that the student's performance level here at UK is comparable to the performance level at the previous institution.)

The proposal to eliminate the phrase "...or by validation under conditions set forth by the Director of Admissions and the Dean of the College in which the student will enroll" was suggested at the associate dean level with the following comment: "With the current availability of CLEP exams, competency (by-pass) exams, equivalency credit, etc., it appears that there are means by which students could acquire credit for competency acquired at non-accredited institutions." Insisting that students from non-accredited colleges get credit only by special exam would also take care of the practical difficulty of having courses that may or may not count--a situation which makes advising very difficult.

Although foreign institutions are not, of course, accredited by one of the six regional accrediting associations, students from foreign institutions do not come under this section but are handled separately by the Admissions Office.

The proposal was reviewed by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and recommended to the University Senate Council.

Implementation Date: Fall, 1991

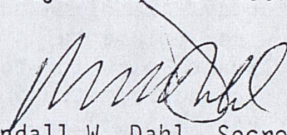

Minutes, University Senate, February 11, 1991

Note: This proposal was considered by the Senate in the Spring Semester, 1990 and referred back to Committee for further review. The principal concern expressed in the discussion on the floor of the Senate was the potentially adverse impact on international students applying for transfer and on domestic students who have been (or may seek to be) involved in study abroad programs.

NOTE: This proposal will be forwarded to the Rules Committee for codification.

The Chair reminded the faculty in the College of Arts and Sciences about the meeting in Patterson Office Tower with one of the candidates for the position as dean of that college.

There being no further business, the Chair adjourned the meeting at 4:05 p.m.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Amry Vandebosch

Dr. Amry Vandebosch, Founding Director of the Patterson School and longtime Chair and Professor of Political Science died on Sunday, October 21, 1990. "Dr. Van" attended Calvin College not far from his hometown for his freshman and sophomore years, and then served as an enlisted man in the U.S. Army in Europe during World War I. Because he happened to be relatively fluent in French, he was transferred from his machine gun company and given a special assignment as a translator in liaison work between senior American and French generals. It was his first taste of international diplomacy--a subject and an activity which would occupy the rest of his professional life in one form or another.

After the Armistice, Vandebosch returned home to Michigan but chose to resume his studies at the University of Chicago where he received his undergraduate degree in 1920. Continuing straightaway into graduate studies, he earned his Ph.D. in 1926. Even today, the University of Chicago's Department of Political Science during that 1920s period is still regarded as perhaps the greatest group of scholars in this discipline ever assembled on one campus, shaping the field for decades to come. Van earned his doctoral degree under those "giants"--people such as Charles Beard and Harold Lasswell. His own work looked at the broad themes of international law, politics and organizations, but also on the more specialized subject of the Dutch overseas empire and its impact on those areas where the Dutch colonial experience was particularly heavy.

Vandebosch did a little bit of high school teaching and also undertook a two-year teaching apprenticeship (1924-26) as a pre-doctoral instructor at Iowa State before immediately accepting a junior position as a Political Science faculty member at the University of Kentucky when his Ph.D. was completed in 1926. Aside from an occasional year as a visiting professor at distinguished institutions elsewhere, and not counting a brief period on the Centre College faculty after retiring at Kentucky, Dr. Van spent his entire academic career on the UK campus--including 25 years (1933-58) as Head of the Department of Political Science and then six years (1959-65) as the first Director of the Patterson School. He received every honor that the University of Kentucky could bestow on a faculty member, including an honorary doctorate. He also received many other forms of professional recognition--for example, he was one of only two people to have served as president for both the Southern and the Midwestern Political Science Associations. He was clearly a prominent figure and strong influence introducing and expanding international studies in these two major regions of the United States.

Although his age and his World War I service would have gained him an exemption from service during World War II, Dr. Van took a leave of absence from UK in order to make his own contribution to the great effort--first, a year with the OSS (1941-42) in which his knowledge of the Dutch islands in the Southwest Pacific was used to develop a native network of observers to monitor the movement of Japanese ships; and then three years (1942-45) of diplomatic work with the U.S. Department of State. The pinnacle of his service in diplomacy was membership on the famous U.S. delegation to the San Francisco Conference in 1944-45 where the United Nations Charter was drafted and approved.

He was a friend and mentor to generations of students, many of whom went on to achieve distinguished careers of their own. One of the best-known among his former students is Ambassador Thomas M. T. Niles. He was equally well regarded by--and a benevolent influence on--numerous colleagues and thousands of others who knew him at one time or another over his long and lively life. A representative of the "old school" in believing that a professor had a duty to profess, Dr. Van was never without well-peppered and sometimes well-salted views on a wide range of public issues both domestic and international. Small in stature but large of heart, he could quickly smile during and after loud exchanges of views, often proposing a beer and a game of pool as the denouement for a vociferous shouting match.

He is survived by his widow and frequent scholarly collaborator, the former Mary Belle Wilcox, whom he married on March 22, 1926. Their two children are Robert, a distinguished professor of nuclear physics at the University of Washington, and Margaret Anne, who has held academic affiliations at Florida State University and elsewhere. All who knew Amry will miss him.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Ellwood M. Hammaker
1912 - 1990

Professor Ellwood M. Hammaker, retired Professor of Chemistry, died at his home on February 8, 1990. Woody, as he was known around the University, had been ill for some time, but remained active to the end. Never one to drive when he could walk, Woody had been seen striding towards campus just a week or so before his death.

Woody Hammaker was born in Lansdowne, PA in 1912. He majored in chemistry at Haverford College, graduating in 1934. He then went on to earn the Ph.D. degree from Rutgers University in 1940; his dissertation was titled "The Coprecipitation of Nitrate and Nitrite Ions by Barium Sulfate." After several wartime jobs in industry, Woody returned to Rutgers as a faculty member in 1945. In 1951 he came to the University of Kentucky as an Associate Professor and was promoted to Professor in 1959. He retired at the end of the 1977 spring semester.

Woody's specialty was analytical chemistry, and he shepherded generations of sophomore CHE 226 students through titrations and complicated equilibrium problems. He published eight papers on a variety of analytical problems in journals including "Analytical Chemistry" and the "Journal of the American Chemical Society." One of these articles reported the undergraduate research of Ralph N. Adams (B.S., Rutgers, 1950), who went on to become a well-known analytical chemist.

From 1956-59 Woody was a Visiting Professor at the University of Indonesia working under a U.S. government contract. By the end of his three years in Jakarta, Woody had become the Director of the team from the University of Kentucky.

Woody served as Assistant Chairman of the Chemistry Department from 1965-77. His concern for students was legendary, as was his very tidy office. Faculty members coming to him for information were amazed to discover that he could nearly always extract the appropriate document from the top left-hand drawer of his desk.

After he retired, Woody and his wife, Evelyn, took part in the Donovan Scholars program on campus and went on long freighter trips. Woody continued these activities after Evelyn died in 1985, but it was clear that he missed her company. Woody took his last, and perhaps most adventuresome, cruise during the summer of 1989; the freighter went through the Mediterranean Sea and Suez Canal in the summer heat, and visited a port in Ethiopia, one of the poorest countries on earth. After he returned, Woody, always the teacher, told wonderful stories of the things and people he had seen.

Those of us who knew Woody will never forget his calm and sense of order, his great respect for others, his lanky frame, and his very understated sense of humor. He was truly one of a kind.

He is survived by two sons, Wayne and Alan Hammaker.

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Merle D. Pattengill
1942 - 1989

Professor Merle Dean Pattengill, a faculty member in the Physical Chemistry Division, died on May 24, 1989. Merle fought his illness for more than a year with humor and determination, and lived longer and better than his doctors believed possible.

Merle was born in 1942 in McPherson, KS, a small city 50 miles north of Wichita. After earning a B.S. at the University of Kansas in 1964, he went on to the University of California at Irvine, where his Ph.D. thesis concerned the theory of gas-phase reactions. Two postdoctoral appointments followed: the first with R. B. Bernstein at the University of Wisconsin, and the second with J. C. Polanyi at the University of Toronto. Merle joined the Chemistry Department at the University of Kentucky in 1973 and rose through the ranks to become Professor in 1987.

Merle was awarded a prestigious John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Fellowship in 1985 that allowed him to spend a sabbatical year at Stanford University working with R. N. Zare. The active collaboration that developed with Zare and scientists at the NASA Ames Research Center continued until Merle's death. Their work on aerobraking was described on the science page of the Louisville Courier Journal in July of 1986.

Merle published about 35 papers, mostly in the field of reaction dynamics. He could be passionate about science, and was particularly skeptical about the theory that discusses activated complexes. His approach was painstaking and thorough, and his writing clear and concise.

Despite his success in research, Merle's first commitment was to teaching, especially at the freshman level. He reviewed textbooks and worried about pedagogical matters. He never went into class unprepared and always left his door open. He delighted in meeting former students who had gone on to graduate or professional school.

Around the department Merle was known for his wit. He always had a funny story, an atrocious pun, or a pungent observation to share. He loved politics, probably because it provided him with so many amusing anecdotes. Merle's childhood among the Kansas wheatfields had left him wary of fancy talk, and he did his best to combat overblown rhetoric and all other forms of pomposity. Humor was his best weapon.

Merle is survived by his wife, Liz, and daughter, Mary. His many friends in the Chemistry Department wish that he could have stayed with us longer.

DOYLE E. PEASLEE

Doyle E. Peaslee, Director, Division of Regulatory Services and Professor of Agronomy at the University of Kentucky, died December 12, 1990, following a long illness with cancer. Dr. Peaslee was born in Stockton, Kansas, on February 24, 1930. He received the B.S. (1952) and M.S. (1956) degrees in Agriculture from Kansas State University. Between the two degrees, he served a 2-year active duty tour with the US Army. He received the Ph.D. degree from Iowa State University of Science and Technology in 1960.

Dr. Peaslee was Assistant and/or Associate Soil Scientist at the Connecticut Agricultural Experiment Station from 1960 to 1966. He joined the faculty of the Department of Agronomy, University of Kentucky in June, 1966, and became Professor of Agronomy in 1971. At the University of Kentucky, he taught and advised several undergraduate, M.S., and Ph.D. students. He conducted research and published widely on soil-plant relationships, with special emphasis on the potassium, phosphorus, and zinc nutrition of crop plants. He served as Director of Regulatory Services of the College of Agriculture from 1980 to 1990.

Dr. Peaslee was a member of the Presbyterian church, ASA, SSSA, ISSS, and Sigma Xi, Alpha Zeta, Gamma Sigma Delta, and Acacia Fraternities. He is survived by his wife Mary Ann (Lexington); two sons, Steven Doyle (Stockton, KS) and Douglas Arthur (Kent, WA); and a granddaughter, Katie Morgan Peaslee (Kent, WA).

He will be remembered by his colleagues and many friends as an intelligent and gracious man who generously contributed his skills and energy to Kentucky agriculture, the University, and his community.

I move that this memorial resolution be included in the minutes of this meeting and that a copy be sent to Dr. Peaslee's widow, Mary Ann Peaslee.

- (b) Admission of All Other Students:
Applicants for admission must present evidence that they are in good standing in every respect in the institution they last attended. At no time shall college or university records be disregarded to admit an applicant solely on the basis of his/her high school records. Credit hours for courses accepted from a junior college, or other two year colleges or branches, shall be limited to a maximum of 67 semester hours. Applicants must have maintained a grade point average of 2.0 or an average of C in all previous course work. (US:12/13/82)

System.

All collegiate level work taken at a fully accredited college or university is recognized credit hour for credit hour except that the dean of a college may require validation by appropriate means of course equivalencies or applicability toward degree requirements for more specialized courses. In order to be classified as fully accredited, a college or university must be a member of one of the six regional accrediting associations, such as the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Advanced standing from an unaccredited college or university may be obtained by special subject examinations [or by validation under conditions set forth by the Director of Admissions and the Dean of the College in which the student will enroll]. The applicability of the transfer work toward a University degree shall be determined by the Dean of the College in which the student enrolls. (US: 12/13/82)

United States

Background and Rationale:

At present, the University's practice of validating transfer credit from a non-accredited institution is based upon the student's performance at UK. The working arrangement is that students are allowed to count credits if they earn a 2.0 or better gpa in the first 24 hours of course work at UK. Thus, if a student does well at UK in advanced level classes, it is assumed that the credits earned at a non-accredited institution are valid. The policy permits the student's performance at UK to validate another institution's records. Consequently, UK Admissions could refuse to validate one of two identical records from an institution on the basis of varying student performance at UK. (The policy also assumes that the student's performance level here at UK is comparable to the performance level at the previous institution.)

The proposal to eliminate the phrase "...or by validation under conditions set forth by the Director of Admissions and the Dean of the College in which the student will enroll" was suggested at the associate dean level with the following comment: "With the current availability of CLEP exams, competency (by-pass) exams, equivalency credit, etc., it appears that there are means by which students could acquire credit for competency acquired at non-accredited institutions." Insisting that students from non-accredited colleges get credit only by special exam would also take care of the practical difficulty of having courses that may or may not count--a situation which makes advising very difficult.

Although foreign institutions are not, of course, accredited by one of the six regional accrediting associations, students from foreign institutions do not come under this section but are handled separately by the Admissions Office.

The proposal was reviewed by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and recommended to the University Senate Council.

Implementation Date: Fall, 1991

Note: This proposal was considered by the Senate in the Spring Semester, 1990 and referred back to Committee for further review. The principal concern expressed in the discussion on the floor of the Senate was the potentially adverse impact on international students applying for transfer and on domestic students who have been (or may seek to be) involved in study abroad programs.

UNIVERSITY SENATE COUNCIL
10 ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

TO: Members, University Senate

FROM: University Senate Council

RE: AGENDA ITEM: University Senate Meeting, Monday, February 11, 1991.
Proposal to amend University Senate Rules, Section V - 1.3.2, Incomplete Grades.

Proposal: (add highlighted portion; delete bracketed portion)

1.3.2 Grade I (US: 9/14/87)

The grade I means that part of the regularly assigned work of the course remains undone. It shall be given only when there is a reasonable possibility that the student can complete the work within the allowable period of time for removal of an I grade and that a passing grade will result from completion of the work. An I grade shall not be given when the student's reason for incompleteness is unsatisfactory to the instructor. A grade of I must be replaced by a regular final letter grade not later than 12 months from the end of the academic term in which the I grade was awarded or prior to the student's graduation, whichever occurs first. In the event the grade of I is not replaced by a regular final letter grade within the allowable period, the University Registrar shall change the I grade to a grade of E on the student's permanent academic record and adjust the student's grade point standing accordingly. A graduate who had an I grade on his or her academic record at the time of graduation (and which grade was subsequently changed to an E by the Registrar) may be allowed a maximum of 12 months following the end of the term in which the course was taken to satisfactorily complete the course and receive a grade change.

For each I grade assigned, the instructor shall complete an appropriate file record on a standard form provided by the University Registrar, which shall include the following:

- a. the name of the student;
- b. the course number and hours of credit;
- c. semester and year of enrollment;
- d. signature of the instructor;
- e. a brief statement of the reason(s) for recording the incomplete; and
- f. specific instructions on how alternate grades on the work to be completed will affect the final grade;
- g. the specific time requirement (not to exceed 12 months) set by the instructor for removal of the I grade and consequences of not removing the I grade; and
- h. signature of the student, if feasible.

US Agenda Item: I Grade, V-1.3.2
25 January 1991

The instructor shall provide a completed copy of this record to the student [,] and the department chair, [the department chairman, the dean of the college in which the student is enrolled, the dean of the college offering the course, and University Registrar] at the time the I grade is reported. The term 'student' in this context excludes only students in the Graduate School and the Colleges of Medicine and Dentistry. (US: 9/14/87)

Rationale:

This revision eliminates the duplicate copies of the form required to document the I grade. When the rule was revised in 1987, grade recording and monitoring were manual operations, and conversion of an "expired" I was dependent upon a relatively extensive "paper trail". Recent enhancements to the on-line student records system (SIS) implemented after 1987 now make automatic electronic monitoring and conversion of expired I grades possible. Accordingly, several copies of the initial documentation are no longer necessary. Under the proposed revision, only the parties directly involved in the I grade transition - the student and the instructor, and instructor's department chair (or unit head, where appropriate) in the absence of the instructor - are involved in the required paperwork. If an official grade assignment form to change the I to a regular letter grade is not filed within 12 months, the SIS automatically converts the I to an E.

The proposal was reviewed by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and the Senate Council, both of which recommend approval.

Implementation Date: Spring, 1991.
