FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK:

Although it's been a month since the last GB, not too much has happened. Such are the wonders of summer. June 1 marked the dedication of the Logan English Collection. The third floor of King North has been rearranged. Government Publications is awaiting its upcoming inspection. The next exciting event, for those can afford it (or those who can't but are going anyway) is the ALA convention in New York City. I'll send a postcard.

FIRE ALARMS

The next scheduled fire alarm test for M. I. King North and South is Wednesday, July 2. It is not necessary to evacuate the building.

OCLC GATEWAY IS OPEN

From a recent BRS Bulletin, No. 2, 1986, p. 9:

The OCLC Gateway Service is now open. Through this service those OCLC members who are also BRS users can access over 100 BRS databases from their OCLC dedicated-line terminals. Using one terminal you have access to the 13 million holdings symbols in the Online Union Catalog, while the Gateway provides a low-cost telecommunications link to the BRS system. The OCLC EASI Reference database, available on BRS since September 1985, provides subject access to a significant portion of the OCLC On Line Union Catalog. If after performing a subject search on BRS, you want to obtain holdings information in the OCLC On Line Union Catalog, you can do so quickly from your OCLC dedicated-line terminal.
