Medical Examiner Who Conducted Autopsy Testifies at Lindbergh Trial

DISCOVERER OF BODY IS CALLED TO STAND

Relates Finding of Body in "Bushy" Part of Woods Near Lonely Road

By JAMES L. KILGALLAN International News Service Staff Correspondent

WANTED. SPEAKERS! Flemington, N. J., Jan. 17.—(INS)—Newspapers covering the Lindbergh trial are in demand as public speakers.

William Allen, negro laborer, first witness called to the stand today at the Bruno Richard Hauptmann murder trial, told the jury how he found the body of little Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr., near a lonely New Jersey roadway on May 12, 1932, 72 days after the infant was kidnaped from his nursery.

News Flashes SENATE MUNITIONS INQUIRY Washington, Jan. 17.—(INS)—A fund of $50,000 was voted by the Senate this afternoon to continue its sensational munitions inquiry.

NRA - FORD DECREE Washington, Jan. 17.—(INS)—The NRA today "gave another kick" to Henry Ford in the "Ford" case.

MEAL SAVES MAN'S LIFE Petaluma, Cal., Jan. 17.—(INS)—A ten-cent piece and a St. Anthony medal, which he carried in his hip pocket, probably saved the life of Frank Sykes, chairman of the state prison board, who was kidnapped with five other prison officials and terrorized during a wild ride from San Quentin prison by four escaping convicts.

SAAR RETURNED TO REICH Geneva, Jan. 17.—(INS)—The Saar Basin, rich mining region between Germany and France, bitterly contested since the World War, went back to the Reich today under the terms of the League of Nations council. Acting on a resolution by Baron Pompeo Aldesi, the council decided to award the entire territory to Germany with the stipulation that it be regarded as part of the "Left Bank" of the Rhine under the Versailles treaty.

"Little" Monk Simons To Lead Greenies Against 'Cats Friday, Saturday

Riding on the crest of a wave of new hopes, with three regulars, "Little Monk" Simons, Carriere and Schmitt are one of the best ball teams in town this morning for a two-game engagement with Coach "Herr Adolph" Rupp's Wildcats.

Tonight at the Alumni Gymnasium, at 8:30 o'clock, the Wave quintet will attempt to avenge the two defeats they received at the hands of Kentucky earlier in the season at New Orleans. With Simons and company returning to the squad after the Sugar Bowl football till New Year's Day, the greenies will have a real battle.

"Little Monk" Simons, who will be remembered by Kentucky football fans as one of the best ball field men ever seen on Stoll field, will see action against the 'Cats along with Kenneth Crum, one of the top ranking intercollegiate tennis performers who is recognized as one of the most promising players in the country.

Coach Adolph Rupp has been having his worries with the injuries received by members of his regular starting lineup. Jack Tucker, who has been on the sidelines for a week with an injured foot, may not be able to play against the Wave. "Big Ed" Edwards is nursing an injured thumb and a bruised head which have been slow in responding to treatment. Coach Rupp, however, plans to use both Tucker and Edwards as much as possible in the two games.

In a preliminary game Saturday night, the Kentucky frosh will meet the Georgetown college freshmen in a quiet made up entirely of members of the 1934 Georgetown High school team which won the Central Kentucky Conference championship.

SECURITY BRIEF GOES TO SENATE "Employment Assurance" Feature of Report of President's Economic Security Committee

Washington, Jan. 17.—(INS)—Receipts from a summary of the report of the President's committee on economic security sent to congress today follow:

"Since most people live by work, the first objective in a program of economic security must be maximum employment. As the major contribution of the federal government in providing a safeguard against unemployment we suggest employment assurance—the stimulation of private employment and the provision of public employment for those able-bodied workers whom the industry cannot employ at a given time. Public work programs are most necessary in periods of severe depression, but may be needed in normal times as well to help meet the problems of stranded communities and over-manned or declining industries.

"We regard work as preferable to other forms of relief where possible. While we favor unemployment compensation in cash, we believe that it should be provided for limited periods only, and that it should be without government subsidies. Public funds should be devoted to providing work, rather than to introducing relief element into what should be strictly an insurance system.

SEVEN MEETINGS WILL FEATURE FIRST SESSION

Annual Farm and Home Convention Will Hold Three-Day Meeting

RURAL PASTORS TO DISCUSS CHURCHES Dr. H. Y. McClusky, University of Michigan, Will Address Homemakers

Seven separate meetings, representing dairy farmers, rural church workers, veterinarians, bee keepers, homemakers, rural pastors, livestock farmers, housewives, and market gardeners, will mark the opening day of the annual Farm and Home convention which will open at the University Experiment Station, January 22. The convention will extend through January 25.

The Literary Digest comments on the poll as follows: "College newspapers have launched an editorial drive to insure large and representative returns. College (Continued on Page Four)

EXTRA GUARDS POSTED AT SAN QUENTIN AFTER BREAK

San Quentin Prison, Calif., Jan. 17.—(INS)—Extra guards today were pushed to San Quentin, world's most popular prison, in the fear another break may follow the escape of a convict today. The life of one convict, led to the serious wounding of Warden James B. Hagan and the kidnapping of his officials and the shooting of two.

Holohan, former United States marshal in San Francisco and warden here since 1927, was in the prison hospital, his skull fractured, his head cut and battered by convict guns, and his chances for recovery "very slim."

He was beaten to the floor of his home in the prison reservation by four desperate felons who then kidnaped all three members of the California State Board of Prison Terms and Paroles; added the secretary of the board and two guards to their cargo, and sped out of one of the prison gates to a little hamlet about fifty miles away today where they were captured in a blaze of gunfire.

The three living desperados were brought back to the prison and confessed that Clyde Stevens, elusive bank robber and San Fran-

NEWSPAPER MEN PROTEST WAGES

Sigma Delta Chi, National Journalism Fraternity, is protesting the low wages paid Washington Code Meeting

Sigma Delta Chi, professional journalism fraternity, with a membership of 8,000 men, presented a brief at the recent public hearing on editorial hours and wages at Washington, D. C., protesting the minimum wages set up under the daily newspaper code. The brief was filed with NRA by Walter R. Humphrey, Toledo (Ohio) Telegram, chairman of the fraternity's executive council.

"We believe that the proposed wages are contrary to the best interests of newspapers and of the public because should they be accepted generally by newspapers they would fall to attract to journalism the type of men and women needed to maintain a free press and to conduct the training for the important work," stated Mr. Humphrey in his brief.

"It is our belief that the best interests of journalism and of the public are served by the employment of men of integrity, adequately prepared by education and training to gather and disseminate news and by remunerating them in accordance with the important services they perform.

"Publishers of the better and more successful newspapers generally have accepted the principles above expressed," he continued. "By their own actions, and in some cases by their public expressions, they have indicated that they consider it 'good business' to employ high-caliber men and women, to pay them well, and to assure them of reasonable security. That some publishers have not, we feel, makes us regret this protest."

"That the college graduate is adequately educated to meet modern newspaper needs and that he lends himself to the training for the important service of newspapers to the public are attested by the individual members of the fraternity who are members of present staffs of newspapers. But the college graduate will not be attracted to this important service by beginning salaries too low to provide him with an adequate living and by opportunity to advance to the proposed minima."

ELLIOT WILL SPEAK Prof. N. R. Elliot, of the department of Horticulture in the College of Agriculture, will speak to the Warren county garden club in Bowling Green Saturday. "Planning a Garden" will be his topic. The club has eighty-two members, including the persons having the best gardens in Bowling Green and Warren county. This year the club has organized a regular program of meetings to be held once a month.

Scientific Group Procures Speaker

Dr. Glen Block of Indianapolis, Indiana, will address a meeting of the Kentucky Archaeological Society on January 26.

Dr. Block is the state archaeologist of Indiana and has made recent extensive excavations in some mounds in Southern Indiana, near Cincinnati.

The address will be open to the public and will be illustrated with photographs and slides. Dr. and Mrs. Block will be the guests of Dr. William Webb during their stay at Lexington.

The January meeting of the society is the time set for the annual election of officers, and this procedure will follow the address.

Kampus Kernels

Students are requested to obtain their X-ray readings at the dental clinic on January 29, when the second semester freshmen are given examinations.

There will be a meeting of the Junior League Child Guidance Service Friday afternoon in Neville Hall at Lexington.

The snapshot section of the 1935 Kentucky is now being prepared. All snapshots of campus life, students, faculty members, etc., are much in demand. Anyone having snapshots of campus life, students, faculty members, etc., are requested to give them to Cameron Coffman, Basil Baker, or Elizabeth Ann Miller, or bring them to the Kentuckiana office, room 54, basement McVey hall.

Those planning to take the Bar examination are requested to meet in the Law building on January 29, at 5 p. m.

The student branch of the American Society of Electrical Engineers will meet at 11 a. m. today, in Memorial Hall. Roy Owsley, field secretary of the Municipal League will speak on "The Municipal League."

There will be a meeting of the faculty of the Arts and Sciences school at 4 p. m. in McVey hall, room 113, Tuesday, January 22.

LEASHING HUEY

Conscientious discussions, and possibly well-founded ones, are being written by prominent authors every day regarding the Louisiana senator's threats to form another party and also the alarming large number of persons advocating his plans for the maintenance of the country as a whole and the treatment of individual citizens with reference to their financial status. To all those fearing Huey's possible control of the nation encouraged by the 50,000 letters he asserts he receives every week, there is a very strong leash close at hand which should serve on intelligent people to keep this blustering, "what-a-man" would be dictator in check. It is his own "Louisiana Plan" which he declares he will adopt in his platform for the third party. Let us take a look at a few of the characteristics of this plan as practiced by the "Kingfish" in Louisiana today. All school boards are under the political thumb—a practice which has unquestionably resulted, in every instance, to be the worse possible method of conducting public educational institutions. Then we have the forfeit of the right of free speech and freedom of the press. Mr. Long is so set on riding his state off the cliff that he went so far as to suppress the college press because the editor dared to criticize him. And incidentally, we might mention the illuminating character of Mr. Long himself which the would-be advocates of the "Louisiana Plan" would have to tolerate. The leader of this retrogressive political hodgepodge would be the typical small town politician devoting about one-third of the taxes to the establishment of gaudy uniforms for huge brass bands at the head of which he would delight in marching Pennsylvania avenue would be the scene of a parade possibly once every week so that Huey could shout to the house tops what a great man he is and let off the steam of a colossal small town punk possessing an equally small mind and gray matter.

HEARST WAVES A NEW BANNER

The Sage of San Simeon has a new ace up his sleeve. Not content with prattling against internationalism, he is now devoting his attention to the eradication of college Communism, which, he proclaims, is growing rapidly through the subversive teachings of bearded professors. Mr. Hearst has a perfect right to resent Communism, but there is sufficient evidence to show that under the guise of this "100 per cent Americanism" he is waging a battle against all dissenting opinion. That the methods whereby he attempted to justify his personal ends at Syracuse and Columbia were promptly exposed and condemned does little credit to Mr. Hearst. It does, however, honor a group of prominent educators who were determined to see no intrusion of Fascistic doctrine on the American campus, and justly protested against this effort to stamp out freedom of thought and expression. Mr. Hearst, apparently, is going to encounter more opposition than he has anticipated. Another professedly "clever move" was to sponsor a Washington meeting of the editors of all college dailies. There they were feted and dined, and then removed to New York to be subjected to the wisdom of some of Mr. Hearst's foreign satellites. Two Washington newspaper men of recognized enterprise asserted this was just his way of pouring syrup after a challenge letter sent him by the Association of College Editors. Mr. Hearst imagined, they declared, that such generosity would make immeasurably easier the progress of the "red scare" among the separate colleges. Following the conference, Newsweek claimed the "Hearst-Youth hatchet buried"—a farcical misstatement as never in print. It cannot be denied that a few of those present had slightly too much regard for Mr. Hearst's altruism, and were rudely shocked when he was accused of ulterior motives. But the overwhelming majority came and went in firm opposition to his principles and methods. Talks by Hearst writers; Richard Washburn Child and Bainbridge Colby and indirect offers to become wavers of the Hearst banner did surprisingly little to alter their opinion. Drop in the bucket though it may have been, the money which rolled from the Hearstian coffers to smoothe the surface can be written in the ledger with red ink. Mr. Hearst, it would seem, is planning too much faith in human stupidity.—Daily Princetonian.

MANNERS

If a college education accomplishes nothing else it should, at least, serve to polish the rough social edge of the young knowledge seekers. Much attention is paid by the students to their correct attire for social events, it is carefully seen to that they are well supplied with polite, harmless conversation, and that they are discreet where their associates are concerned. The advice given to new pledges by their sorority and fraternity brothers and sisters shows the truth of this statement. All this is well and good, but there is still room for improvement in every-day campus manners. It is the little polite things that count the most, and these are the ones that are most lacking. It is seldom that one sees a college boy tip his hat to a young lady acquaintance, and it is small things like this that mean so much in some circles of social life. However, in such courtesies, one does not have to abide by Emily Post in the most minute detail. There are some persons, who, when they attend college, think they are still under the high school reign in some of their actions and manners. Their imitations of Joe Penner, "leader and funner" and cat-calls usually heard whenever a large group assembles, indicate a lack of consideration for those on the platform and for the remainder of the audience. Another thing is the "sloppy" appearance of some men while they are attending classes. No movement to achieve the Eton-like appearance is suggested, but still they can at least wear a tie and shirt. When a person is graduated from a university he is more or less set in his ways, and it is hard to change them after he is out on his own. A university or college is said to be the place to gain knowledge, and so why not acquire a little social knowledge as well as that taken from books.

JEST AMONG US

When you define liberty you limit it, and when you limit it you destroy it.—Brand Whitlock.

The varied theories of the political science professors on values in politics do not seem to apply to student politics. At the University of Missouri student election 200 more votes were cast than there are students.

Carnival Queen To Be Selected Soon

When the Dartmouth winter carnival opens on February 8, the "Dutchess of Dartmouth," a girl selected from one of the colleges east of the Mississippi will be a guest of the "Daily Dartmouth," college newspaper.

Undergraduates from every college and university east of the Mississippi, and 1933 and 1934 graduates of these institutions are eligible to compete in the contest now being conducted to select the "Dutchess." She is to be chosen on the merits of a letter, limited to 250 words, addressed to the contest editor, "What I Would Expect From a Dartmouth Winter Carnival."

Last year the contestants were restricted to undergraduates in but a few neighboring colleges, but this year the contest was opened to include women from every college east of the Mississippi. The contest closes midnight, February 6, and the winner will be brought to the carnival with all expenses paid.

DR. ADAMS SPEAKS TO TEACHING CLUB

Dr. Jesse E. Adams, professor of the philosophy of education, and director of the summer session at the University of Kentucky, spoke on "The Selection of Textbooks" before members of the Fayette County Teacher's association last night at a meeting held at Bryan Station high school.
He will speak Thursday afternoon in Frankfort on "The Philosophy Underlying Curricula Making," before teachers of Frankfort and Franklin county. On January 24 he will make the commencement address for the graduating class of Morton Junior high school.

Dilemma

This pre-exam interlude is a twice annual nightmare. You know it well: monotony is its keynote, exasperation and boredom are its composition, weariness is its art reward, while knowledge is its grasped-for fruit—a wily slippery fruit.

Systems bother us. Everybody has one; it's human collegiate nature to try them all. Anything to save time reluctantly gives way to the old adage about haste making waste. In spite of that we don't learn. The man who said, "I'll try anything," had a college degree, no doubt.

They say the best idea is to go over the text and study the topic heads and paragraph subdivisions. If you know what they're about, you go on; if you don't, you read the paragraph. Write the hands of the clock liberally by on.

Time has a funny nature. You have noticed that waiting for somebody to meet you, or going to the dentist take up hours, but sitting in the movie or reading a good book make no dents in those same hours, and you find yourself wondering how it happens that the sickle cuts quick and clean or slow and ragged.

Once a student told me the was of the crammist faith) that you can do it after Xmas, and that he had gotten a "B" out of a course he thought he was going to flunk. According to his deduction, it only cost him a few nights' sleep, and, as he said, if he'd worked consistently all semester, he'd have wound up with a C or something. So I tried it.

That was when I was young and innocent and believing. And now that I'm getting old and wise and patient, I can just smile and realize what he is, just being a so and so.
When I get to the point where my say so counts, I'll have the word "examination" cut out of the English language on general principles. It's an ugly sounding word anyhow, and you can't be much more musical about your speech if you didn't use it, besides being a little less alarming. You know good and well that when you hear the first syllable, you get scared, even if you know the stuff from beginning to end.

Another thing that's annoying about this time of year, is that you inevitably get to figuring up your standing. If you could guess right, there wouldn't be anything wrong in the sport, but you're either so bewildered at the outcome that you can't speak, or so absolutely crestfallen you can't help but swear, that it has to come to be not much use. We have an adage for that too—you mustn't plan too much, my child, and then the disappointment won't be quite so overwhelming.

The bird that just breezes along with the breeze completely baffles me. I envy him, but I always wind up with the idea that this study stuff is not the "bunk."
Somebody who was hopeful stuck this bit of poetry under the door of the fifth's door, and Dave wants it printed, because, as he says, it's timely:

Oh! give me a chance to pass the exams
By striving, by straining, by last minute crams,
To make up for loafing and playing around
To keep the finals from getting me down,
To the height of ambition I do not aspire,
But to save my record from an ugly mar.
So grant me simply a standing of one
In place of the two I should have done.
And lead me not to a single "E"
But allow me only a sweet straight "C."
I ask for a chance with the winners to cheer,
And to march with them all another year.
So if this ditty you chance to see—
Grant this prayer, Dear Prof., to me.

It's signed by one "W. L. W."—probably Crosley refrigerators and radios.

DISSENTER ELECTED CHAIRMAN OF L. I. D.

(L.I.D.)—Albert Hamilton, whose application to be reinstated at U.C. L.A. from which he had been expelled because of his refusal to take military drill, the action of the school being upheld by the U. S. Supreme Court, was elected National Chairman of the Student League for Industrial Democracy, at its recent convention in Evanston, Ill. Another expelled student, Morris Milgram of City College of New York who was dropped from the college roll because of his participation in the anti-fascist protest, was also elected to the N. E. C.

The chief item on the agenda of the convention of the Student League for Industrial Democracy, at which 40 of the League's 125 chapters were represented, was the planning of the united student movement against war to be held this coming April, which this year is to be international in scope.

TO SPEAK AT TAFT MUSEUM

A Smart CORDUROY SPORT COAT

You'll see a lot of Corduroy Coats under the open sky this season at the University. It's fashion's favored fabric.

We illustrate one of the grandest expressions of this traditional fabric. It's a keen version of the newly revived Norfolk Model... chuck-full of old vagabondage.

In rich brown, dark blue, or powder blue.

By all means see them at once.

—so far as we know tobacco was first used about 400 years ago —throughout the years what one thing has given so much pleasure..so much satisfaction They came looking for gold ... but they found tobacco ... and tobacco has been like gold ever since! The tobacco raised in Virginia and exchanged for goods helped the struggling colonists to get a foothold when they came to America. Later on, it was tobacco that helped to clothe and feed Washington's brave army at Valley Forge. Today it is tobacco that helps—more than any other commodity raised in this country—to pay the expense of running our Government. In the fiscal year 1933-34 the Federal Government collected $425,000,000 from the tax on tobacco. Most of this came from cigarettes — six cents tax on every package of twenty. Yes, the cigarette helps a lot—and it certainly gives men and women a lot of pleasure. Smokers have several reasons for liking Chesterfields. For one thing, Chesterfields are milder. For another thing, they taste better. They Satisfy.
