THE BOARD OF TRUSTEES

Several years ago members of the Alumni Association went to great pains to obtain the right to elect one of the number as a member of the Board of Trustees of the University of Kentucky. Several of the most interested alumni gave a great deal of their time and expended a lot of energy to put this project over. Early last summer ballots were sent to every graduate of the University of Kentucky asking each one to nominate six of the alumni whom they thought would be capable and interested in helping administer the affairs of the University of Kentucky. When the results of this nomination was tabulated it was found that a comparatively small number of alumni had responded. The nominations have been made and in a short time the nominees will be presented to you for election. There should be no alumnus who is not interested enough in this election to show his interest in the University of Kentucky by casting his vote for the alumnus whom he thinks is the right man for the place. When you receive your ballot give it a little consideration and vote in and return it to the university. The ballot has been so arranged as to give you the minimum of trouble. Show the University of Kentucky that you have not entirely forgotten the four years spent on the campus. Show that you are interested in the welfare of your alma mater.

THE THANKSGIVING GAME

This year the home-coming game will be played in Lexington on November 24, (Thanksgiving) and according to custom the University of Kentucky eleven will meet that of the University of Tennessee. The games between the Wildcats and the University of Tennessee teams have been a regular occurrence for a great many years and the feeling of rivalry between the two teams, while at all times strong, never has overshadowed the feeling of friendship for our neighboring university. The good sportsmanship always in evidence whenever Wildcat meets Volunteer has gone far to make this game the most popular of the entire season for students, alumni and friends of the University of Kentucky and University of Tennessee. The University of Tennessee always produces a team of real strength and the game, while it has many times gone contrary to our hopes, is one that never fails to attract great crowds of spectators. This year this game is the one set aside for the homecoming alumni, and other events are being planned for your entertainment on that day. It will be well for you who wish to attend to make your reservations now. The stadium will hold its record crowd for the year on that day. Let us here in this office help you out in any way possible. We are always glad to do any favor, either large or small.

ALUMNAE NAMED FOR NEW POSITION

Margaret Ingels, '17, First Vice, New York Engineering Graduate, Gets Big Post on New York Commission

WORK IS HIGHLY PRAISED

Miss Margaret Ingels, who was graduated from the College of Engineering, University of Kentucky, in 1917 with the distinction of being the first woman in America to graduate from a full-year course in mechanical engineering carrying successfully all the courses in shops and laboratories, has just resigned as one of the research heads of the laboratory of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers at Pittsburgh. She has been appointed a member of the technical staff of the New York Commission on Ventilation with headquarters in New York City. Miss Ingels was selected for this position on account of her wide experience in research on heating and ventilating problems.

In a recent issue of "The Aeronautist," published in Chicago, there appears a likeness of Miss Ingels, with the following story: Margaret Ingels Miss Ingels is a true Kentuckian, born in the Blue Grass State and

CINCINNATI CLUB IS PROGRESSING

The University of Kentucky Club of Greater Cincinnati Is New Name Selected for Organization

OFFICERS ARE ELECTED

At a meeting of the Cincinnati Alumni Club of the University of Kentucky held last May, officers were elected and plans made for the activity of the club for this year. The officers elected were: E. E. Elsey, president; Margaret Smith Borden, vice president; F. T. Miles, treasurer, and Mrs. Adaline Mann Whaley, secretary. At the business meeting the name of the club was changed to "The University of Kentucky Club of Greater Cincinnati." The interest shown by the officers and members is evidence enough that the other alumni clubs will have to exert themselves to keep step with the reorganized group in Cincinnati. Regular meetings will be held during the winter, the dates and places to be announced later.

They Tell Me

1897 Henry Clay Anderson is another on the honor roll. He now is head of the mechanical engineering department of the University of Michigan. He has offices in the Engineering building on the campus at Ann Arbor. He also has been active since 1914. George Matt Morgan is on the honor roll and has been an active member of the association since 1914. He also has been in the lumber business in Cincinnati since 1914, according to our knowledge. How long before that we can't say. He is living at 3545 Epworth avenue, Cincinnati, at the present.

1898 Arthur Solomon Lovenhart came back into the association as an active member last year after being inactive for ten years. We are going to make him stay active for at least ten more years now that we have his address. He is at present director of the research laboratories of the University of Wisconsin, Madison, Wisconsin. Job D. Turner needs no introduction to you "old heads." He has been a life member of the association ever since there was such a thing. At one time some years ago he was not only a life member of the association but the life of the association. He is head of the feeding stuffs department of the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station in Lexington, this information for the younger alumni only.

1899 When Jonas Grinstead is another honor man. He has been since 1914. At present he is teaching in the School of Education at the University of Pennsylvania. He spent several years teaching in the Eastern Kentucky State Normal and Teachers' College in Richmond. Dr. Samuel Mc... is another life member who has also a place on the honor roll. He is a practicing surgeon with offices at 406 Security Trust building. William Henry Scheriffs returned last spring from Pretoria, South Africa. He is mentioned the study of the Kato-Thermometer, of dust and dust determining apparatus. Recently the subject of infiltration has taken up the major portion of her time. Helmed Develop Determinator. Miss Ingels helped to develop the Anderson-Arnspach dust determinator, not only developing the apparatus in the laboratory but taking it in to the field for a long series of practical tests.

Some years ago a new air measuring device found its way into the research laboratory for study and calibration. The device in question utilized cigar or cigarette smoke as an indicating medium. The male members of the research staff were not as numerous as they are today. Furthermore, they all appeared to have been engaged in important and pressing problems and it devolved upon Miss Ingels to test the new device. Smoked Cigarettes of Camels. We are pleased to say that she arose to the occasion with the true spirit of fundamental research. Cigarette smoke was an essential part of the problem before her and cigarette smoke was therefore produced. Consuming cations of Camels is quite an ordinary affair for milday of today, but at the time of which we write it required true courage and an unswerving purpose.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

FOR KENTUCKY

It is unfortunate that such an occurrence as that which took place during the football game between Maryville College and the University of Kentucky last Saturday need be mentioned in the school paper. One wishes that the incident could be left as something past—that it could be forgotten with the absolute conviction that it would never again occur. So The Kernel would like to leave it but unfortunately circumstances forbid. Unluckily the incident is not yet past. In the minds of the spectators at Saturday's game it lives as vividly today as it did last Saturday. In addition through conversation and through press accounts news of the incident has spread abroad throughout the state. The university has suffered accordingly.

One knows not how to go about defending the university's good name, nor yet how to address the student body on the subject. The whole plan of the university administrative officers has been based on considering the student body as composed of men and women, gentlemen and ladies. Must we admit that this classification is wrong?

The Kernel does not wish to be understood as criticizing any one person or any one class. Surely it does not feel that the freshmen are to be blamed solely especially since they are encouraged by such cries from the upperclassmen as "Get them, Freshman," "Get Centre," "Get those Cops," etc. As Coach Gamage said, freshmen learn tradition from upperclassmen and when the older students—or the noisier portion of them at least—stand for what is wrong, one can't blame the new man. However, now the freshmen also know better and it is up to them to see that a recurrence of this action does not take place while they are students here.

Any further writing on this subject. The Kernel feels would be out of place. The Kernel feels confident that the student body, having meditated on the events, is ashamed of the occurrence and it feels that the reputation of the school is in no danger of suffering further from any such conduct as occurred last Saturday. Isn't this right, fellow students?

WELCOME TO THE UNIVERSITY

The sixty-second session of the University of Kentucky opened September 19 and the largest group of students in the history of the university entered to pursue their studies. In every student's heart is the determination to do his best. He has set up for himself a goal of high endeavor and noble aspiration.

It is a pleasure to welcome students who come in that spirit. I am wishing, hoping and trusting that it will carry on through the year. What a year the university would have if that spirit of work well done, ruled the class room, on the athletic field, in dormitory and fraternity hall! Alas, for human frailty and especially for student delinquencies, these hopes are too often shipwrecked! They are always worth trying for—out of effort and purpose come victory.

Welcome! I say, to the students of this year; glorious they are in hope, enthusiasm and purpose. May they hold on through the months of hard work. To them I extend congratulations on their opportunities and good wishes for the year.

FRANK L. McVEY,
President of the University.

"LETTERS"

Through the combined efforts of the department of Journalism, The Kernel and the department of English, the foundation has been laid for a quarterly magazine which promises positive service in the field of literature in the Commonwealth of Kentucky.

For a number of years forward-looking faculty members in the department of English and the department of Journalism and others, together with students majoring in English, have felt the need of some well established and properly conducted means of expression for the literary talent of the state; and The Kernel takes a pardonable pride it hopes, in being able to supply necessary funds to place this project upon an enduring foundation. In other words, the student paper has obligated itself, in conjunction with the department of Journalism, to supply the funds necessary to meet the expenses of the project, regardless of the income of the new journal.

This paper is aware that, financially speaking, the undertaking is a grave one; that immediate prospects for advertising returns are virtually negligible and will be for a number of years, and therefore, it entertains the confident hope that those interested in such a step, certainly faculty, alumni, students and cultural clubs of the state, will see their way clear to lend assistance by becoming subscribers, to it.

The Kernel should like to assure the public that "Letters" is not to be published as a commercial project. This paper well knows that it cannot but lose money each year upon its publication but it is willing to make the sacrifice and undertake the hazard, to make this small contribution to the cultural life of the state. This paper knows also that to meet the added expense its staff will be compelled to practice rigid economy and industry, but it believes that results ultimately to be obtained will be eminently worth this sacrifice.

The Kernel feels that the enterprise is fortunate indeed in having as its editor so distinguished a scholar and so pronounced a leader in the field of literary training as is Prof. E. F. Farquhar, of the department of English. It is happy also in the fact that he has been able to surround himself with so capable a staff, whose services are to be without remuneration.

The student paper does not often ask favors of those whom it feels it has a right to consider its friends and well-wishers, but it proposes in this instance to test the loyalty of those friends by requesting that they subscribe at once for this journal and help us make it a credit to the university.

Within the past three and a half years this paper has purchased and approximately paid for its plant at a cost of about $5,000. By taking on publication of "Letters" it has been compelled to purchase additional equipment but we do not hesitate to say that if its friends are game, we are game.

Let's work together.

DECADENCE

Genius is a broad term. The word connotes a mind of such exalted intellectuality that it is able to grasp some small portion of the principle of life, creation and the universe. If we are to accept the syllogism of Berkeley that matter exists only insofar as the human mind conceives it, we are forced to admit that the term "genius" is quite as inclusive as the vague abstraction that we call "the universe."

Conceptions of the underlying principles of creation differ, however, and though we may state a negative analogy between such terms as "universe" and "genius" we cannot contend that there is such a thing as an universal genius or a common conception of the motivating forces of nature. There are the deists who see in existence an harmonious system ruled by a Supreme Being. There are the egoists, the apostles of Nietzsche, who believe that man alone is supreme and that the hope of the future lies in man's development to the point of super-ego. There are a thousand cults and creeds and creeds which seek, through the genius of their adherents, to explain that which appears to be beyond the conception of the human mind.

The most peculiar of all genius is that of the Decadents, the men who tread the downward paths toward truth and arrive only at the conviction of the final futility of all things. They desecrate the most sacred of the ancient shrines, and spit upon the faces of old gods. In them is seen a paradox; it is the compelling strength of the creative instinct that urges them to destroy. They devastate, they blaspheme. The world to them is chaos and life is mocking irony. Yet their imagination is the most extraordinary of all geniuses. It extends beyond mortal existence, and reaches into dim infinitude. They are lustful, but their lust transcends the flesh. Their hunger is insatiable craving for beauty that they do not find. And there is a strange, an awful beauty in the works of these tempestuous geniuses.

Balzac sees in sex a gross buffonery. Schopenhauer curses and snarls at humanity. De Maupassant narrates the human comedy subtly and ironically. De Gourmont makes cynical epigrams from every human action. Wilde laughs and weeps and satirizes, playing upon his overworked emotions like a musician upon his instrument. Poe wrings poetry from despair. But it is Baudelaire who epitomizes the Decadence. He makes captive every fleeting sensation and thought. His works are a fabric of paradoxes, for to him all emotion is paradoxical and life itself is the greatest contradiction. He poetizes evil until evil becomes beautiful. He destroys the line of demarcation between the positive and the negative. He sees God as a great beast spuming in chaos, and his reactions to such a conception have given to us in the "Flowers of Evil" some of the most remarkable poetry of all time.

The faintest stirring of the aesthetic instinct enables us to perceive the beauty of a rose. But Baudelaire is not content with superficialities. He delves deeper and finds the worm in the bud. His flowers of evil sprout from beds of filth. The genius of Decadence probes into the bowels of everything until he discovers its intrinsic rottenness. Having drunk the wine, he meditates upon the lees. David C. Alexander.

PREVIEWS OF LOCAL SHOWS

BEN ALI THEATER

"MARRIED ALIVE" The Fox Films production now showing at the Ben Ali Theater shows what a lot of difference there can be between theory and practice.

This clever satire on polygamy deals with the theories of a brilliant professor whose books and lectures on the subject have caused such a furore throughout the country and with the practices of a modern Bluebeard whose reputation is seemingly of the best and none of whose wives know the others exist.

Lou Tellegen is the Bluebeard whose collection of wives includes Margaret Livingston, Claire Adams, Marcella Daly and Emily Fitzroy, all of them distinctive types.

Matt Moore is the professor whose theories are completely upset and changed by the end of the picture. Gertrude Claire is his adoring though disapproving aunt; Eric Mack is his dignified doctor and Charles Lane the excitable vicar whose ward is one of Moore's wives.

"Married Alive" was adapted from the novel by Ralph Straus, one of the most popular of the younger English writers.

Three acts of vividly will also be presented in addition to a fur and diamond show. Two orchestras will be on the stage.

STRAND THEATER

"SPARROWS"

Mary Pickford, who is now playing at the Strand Theater in her newest United Artists Corporation release, "Sparrows" is one American whose name appears in newspapers and magazines in every language the world over.

Mary, "the world's sweetheart," has many aliases as a result.

In France she is known as La Belle Pickford. In Italy it is Mary Pickford. In Sweden, Marie Pickford. Other countries have their own names. At her studio, with members of her company and staff, she is always called Miss Pickford.

At her home in Pickfair, where she is mistress of the house, she is addressed as Mrs. Fairbanks, or by the house staff as Mme. Fairbanks.

So Mary might be known as "the girl with many names."

"THE ROAD TO ROMANCE"

Roy D'Arcy, whose name is synonymous with screen villainy, has the biggest role of his screen career since his portrayal of the crown prince in "The Merry Widow," in the part of the judge in "The Road to Romance," which begins a four-act run at the Strand Theater on Sunday.

The suave villain of Joseph Conrad's pirate story of early Cuban days is described by the famous writer of sea stories as about the slickest "heavy" of his times.

Polished, courtly, highly educated and holding positions of great trust as a judge of the high Cuban courts, the judge was really in league with the pirates then swarming the Spanish Indies.

His high handed conduct, under the guise of altruism, gives D'Arcy an even better role than his role of the French judge in John Giber's "Barbed Wire and the Magnificent."

Rapson Navarro is the star of "The Road to Romance." Marceline Day has the featured feminine role and the cast also includes: Marc McDermott, Otto Matison, Cesare Grivina, Jules Cowles and Bobby Mack. The picture was directly directed "Captain Salvation."

RELIGIOUS DISCUSSION

CONSIDER JESUS

Matthew 11:2-6
Jesus spoke with an air of confidence when he declared: "He that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness" (John 8-12). He saw life clearly with consistent references to God and the Eternal Father. He spoke with authority because His teaching was illuminated by His character of purity, sanity and fidelity. "Just as the sense of beauty culminated in Greece some twenty-three centuries ago, so all our artists bend in admiration over a poor fragment of the Virgin marbles, so in the revelation of ethical standards culminated in Palestine, the Parthenon, battered and crumbling, shows us a building beyond which architecture may not go. We may build something different, something more nearly perfect, no man hopes to build. So character reaches its supreme embodiment and standard in Jesus of Nazareth."

Jesus in new edition of the Sermon on the Mount, and no modification of the Golden Rule. In the realm of character and religion a greater master and leader the world will never see. If with Emerson we still say: "Earth proudly wears the Parthenon"

As best gem upon her zone:"

we must also say with Robert Brown: "That one face, far from vanishing, rather grows. Becomes my universe that feels and knows."

The characteristic of Christianity is that its ideal is not embodied in verbal statements, but in a life. The Christian ideal is Christ. To be a Christian is to absorb and share His attitude toward God and man. It is to regard as real what was real to Him, to love what He loved, to hate what He hated, to find in the Father what He found, and to reaffirm His valuation of life. (Dr. Faunce.)

Duty was related by Christ to love, which is not a form of sentimentalism, but the most rational principle for the conservation and development of the highest values. He insisted on the open mind as well as the open heart, and placed the responsibility for the decision upon every individual.

As Dr. Fortune stated in his talks to the freshmen every student in the University of Kentucky must choose and choose for himself. There is the highway that leads to the highest in life or there is the low way that leads to the lowest in life. Which will you choose? You may think that you go just a little piece down the low way and not be hurt. A student in a southern university thought the same. He was a brilliant young man but said he could drink just a little and he did. The first year he got by and was well liked by the students, a very popular fellow, but the second year he slipped farther and farther down the way until last year he was dismissed from the university, missed Phi Beta Kappa because of his low character and he could hardly claim a friend upon the campus. He thought he could go a little way.

Whether one is to follow the line of least resistance or of greatest resistance depends upon circumstances. But the decision must always bear on the spiritual enrichment of personality and service. Conceive what Jesus would probably do in a similar situation and then decide without fear. A ready made program does not provide for differences of temperament and training. Hence the need for intelligent interpretation and wise application in the view of present requirements.

If we understand and reverence right motives, Jesus will assuredly guide our conduct.

WILDCATS TIE MARYVILLE IN OPENING GAME

Kittens Rapidly Rounding Into Shape for First Grid Game of Season

Penalty Paves Way for Highlander Touchdown; Final Count is 6 to 6

(By John W. Dundon, Jr.)
 The try for point after touchdown, blocked by Dees and Drury, steering Wildcat linemen, saved the day for Kentucky last Saturday afternoon on Still field. This aforesaid kick came just after the Maryville Highlanders, first gridiron foe of the Blue and White, had succeeded in tying the score at 6 to 6, in the last period.

The Wildcats, playing their first game under the tutelage of Coach Harry Gamage, Illinois product, and using the Illinois system, were quite the wonder team before the combat. Everyone wanted to know just what they had in the way of football knowledge and strategy. This question was not fully answered in last Saturday's game, since the Wildcats used hardly three dissimilar plays during the contest. A line play, an off-tackle play, and passes seemed to complete the Blue and White repertoire for the initial encounter.

Maryville gained their chance early in the fourth period. Davis, punting to Kentucky, booted the ball 30 yards to the Blue and White 22-yard line. Here, the referee claimed that a Wildcat player was guilty of clipping, and gave the ball to Maryville at this place. On the first play, Clemmons, Highland halfback, caught the left side of Kentucky's line asleep, and with a perfect wave of red jerseys in front of him, romped the whole distance to Kentucky's goal line, to tie up the game. After the damage had been done, the Wildcat forwards, aroused by such an unseemly play, rushed through to block Davis' attempted place-kick for the point that would have been defeat.

Blue Outplays Crimson
 With the exception of this period, the Wildcats outplayed their opponents. Kentucky gained 270 yards to their opponents' 150 and made 14 first downs to Maryville's 9. The Blue tried 9 passes, completing two for a gain of 45 yards. The Red Jerseys tried five passes, making one for 11 yards. The Wildcats were penalized a total of 76 yards to 10 yards for their foe.

After the Maryville score, with but a few moments remaining, Jenkins was substituted for Ellis, and four passes were tried consecutively, the first one, to Mohney, gaining about 20 yards. The others failed. The game ended with the ball in Maryville's possession on Kentucky's 35-yard line.

Squad Dwindles to 60 As Coach Major Begins Real Labor With Frosh

Out of the near hundred aspiring freshmen who answered the call set out by Coach Fred J. Major for Kitten candidates only 60 remain for the daily toiling which the Green and White mentor is dishing out.

As the squad grows smaller, Coach Major and Pribble can handle the men easier and spend more time with the selecting of first string men. It is expected that the squad will be down to 40 or less by the time that the first game is called.

Head Coach Harry Gamage has been using the freshmen to advantage for the past week, Coach Major supplying them with Indiana plays for the varsity to run against. The Kittens are rapidly rounding into condition and are expected to place a fair eleven on the gridiron this fall.

The first game of the season for the yearlings is with the Georgetown Cubs at Georgetown, October 28, and this game may divide the state championship which at present is held by the Coast combine. "Should the Kittens win this game they will have only Centre's Lieutenants in their way for the title.

The material which Coach Major has to deal with this year is the best ever assembled at Kentucky for a Kitten eleven and prospects for a stellar season are bright. The best players on hand are linemen and that is what the Wildcats will need next year. The backfield candidates are far above normal and the Kitten mentor should be able to round out a neat eleven for the opening game which is less than a month away.

Following the Cub tussle comes the Vanderbilt eleven here for a game a week later. This game will be no set up. West Virginia, touted as having the best freshman prospects in many years and a newcomer on the Kitten card may upset the Kitten drive and although the game is sometime off it will be waited for with much interest. Following this game Centre's eleven will come here for their annual struggle. Tennessee furnishes the night cap when Coach Major takes his yearlings to Knoxville for the annual tilt with the Rats.

WESLEYAN GAME MAY BE CLOSE

Methodists Show Unexpected Strength at Beginning of Season; Win From Cincinnati University

FRAY IS NEXT SATURDAY

Kentucky Wesleyan's decisive defeat of Cincinnati indicates that the University of Kentucky will have a more difficult task than is expected when the Methodists come to Lexington to play. Cincinnati proved to be one of the stronger teams in the Ohio Conference last year.

Wesleyan has a strong defensive team while Kentucky has a strong offensive machine, hence the breaks should favor Wesleyan. Wesleyan being strong in the defense will be better able to handle the slips that go against them.

INDIANA SQUAD WILL ARRIVE AT U. K. TODAY

Coach Pat Page to Bring 34 Hoosiers for Contest; Is Visitors' First Game

Bloomington, Ind., Sept. 30.—Only a day now separates the Indiana University football machine and its first game with the University of Kentucky Wildcats at Lexington. The game has approached faster than has been realized by the gridlers who have not as yet been working three weeks.

Coach Page issued final plays and signals Monday afternoon to be used against the Wildcats. His time has been so occupied with selecting probable first stringers that he has been unable to pay much attention to plays for approaching games.

The schedule is so outstanding with stellar teams this season that Coach Page will have to take the games as they come. The chart will not permit him to "set" his men for any certain team.

After the Kentucky game, Chicago against the Wildcats. His time has been so occupied with selecting

Program for Intramural Athletics Made for Season by Physical Instructor Potter

Intra-mural athletics, which were inaugurated upon a large scale last year by Mr. Potter, a member of the physical education department and director of intra-mural athletics, will be carried on this year with a complete program of events.

For the benefit of the younger members of the university, it might be advisable to say that intra-mural athletics were founded with the express purpose of giving students who were not capable of participating in the regular university sports a chance to gain valuable exercise and at the same time getting a chance to enjoy recreation in this manner.

The schedule this year will start with golf and fall tennis. A number of memberships in a local golf club have been taken out by the intra-mural department, and this will afford participants of the school game an opportunity to indulge in their hearts content. These two sports will start in the next few days. All students, not members of the varsity tennis team, are eligible to compete in the intra-mural tennis meet, and all such entrants should get into communication with Mr. Potter in the men's gym at once. A nominal fee will be charged.

Following these sports there will be a track meet and a cross-country event. All of our aspiring runners should get into action at once, preparing for these events. Needless to say, suitable and worthy trophies are awarded to the winners in all of these intra-mural contests.

In the winter, such diversions as basketball, volleyball, boxing and wrestling contests will be staged. These sports bridge the gap until spring sports open. Then there will be track, diamond ball, tennis and golf. Then the great diversion of last year, the roller skating extravaganza, will also be run off, which should be the occasion of much mirth, on the part of the spectators, and many downfalls, on the part of the entrants. This completes the schedule as made up by Mr. Potter. Other announcements will be made later.

Spain and Holland, and modern oil paintings.

Mr. Carl M. Sax also spent the summer in Europe where he established many connections which will keep the department of art in closer touch with the trend of modern art in Europe. Besides numerous articles of high artistic value, he has brought with him books on various phases of development and preservation of works in oil, sculpture and commercial art. Miss Callahan's and Mr. Sax's collection of colored reproductions cover an amazing area in the field of art, embracing thoroughly the major exhibits in European museums that will appeal to university students of art. Preparations are being made for the erection of a projecting machine in the Roman theater, where the reproductions will be exhibited for the classes.

ART NEWS

Mr. John Rothenstein Comes in Place Vacated by Miss Gene Lowry

The department of art at the University of Kentucky has added to its staff John Roweth Maurice Rothenstein, artist, critic and author, of London, England. Mr. Rothenstein will take the place vacated by Miss Gene Ballitt Lowry. Mr. Rothenstein is exceptionally well suited both by training and environment for work in the department. Since graduating from Oxford, he has been leader-writer for The Daily Express, literary critic on The London Times Literary Supplement, and contributor to various art periodicals of the English press. He is a nephew of Sir William Orpen.

He has published a monumental work on the portrait-drawings of William Rothenstein, his father, who has made more portraits of his great contemporaries than any living painter. Mr. John Rothenstein's most recent work is a critical study of the work of his godfather, Eric Gill, the sculptor of the Stations of the Cross for Westminster Catholic Cathedral, London.

He is widely traveled and has entered into the innermost circles of London's artistic and literary world. His interest in America and American art are principally responsible for his coming to this country.

Mr. John Rothenstein is to give three lectures on the History of Primitive and Ancient Art, Medieval Art, and Renaissance and Modern Art.

Mrs. William Addams, who has returned from Harvard where she enjoyed a Carnegie scholarship, offers a new one-credit course the second hour Saturdays in art appreciation.

Miss Ann Callahan has returned from a tour of the continent and has brought with her many examples of commercial art and material from the exhibition rooms of the art centers of Europe for the benefit of her classes. ### ANTHROPOLOGY WILL BE TAUGHT

New Department Is Established by Executive Committee; Dean Funkhouser and Professor Webb on Staff

The establishing of a department of anthropology and archaeology was one of the important actions of the executive committee of the board of trustees of the university during the past summer. Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, dean of the graduate school, and Prof. W. S. Webb, of the department of physics, will compose the staff of the new department.

Following the action of the board of trustees, Doctor Funkhouser and Professor Webb immediately started work in outlining and preparing courses. Owing to the proximity of the fall session it was impossible to offer any courses in the department this fall but probably courses will be offered the second semester.

While definite plans have not been worked out as yet it is probable that Doctor Funkhouser's course will be of the lecture type and will deal with physical anthropology, ethnology, and ancient races of man, while Professor Webb's courses will deal more with ancient culture and archaeology. Professor Webb's lectures will be illustrated by a large number of lantern slides which he has been collecting for many years.

The primary purpose of the courses which will be offered at first will be to interest students and citizens in Kentucky archaeology. Kentucky is particularly rich in archaeological material. Many limestone caves in the state abound in wealth of skeletons left from the days when Indians roamed this section of the country.

Doctor Funkhouser and Professor Webb have been carrying on investigations in the field of archaeology in Kentucky for the past four or five years, and during this time they have accumulated many relics and facts which are offered in the new department of special interest to the student body. The department will be in the College of Arts and Sciences.

When the new department begins its actual work the University of Kentucky will be one of the very few educational institutions in the country which offer courses in archaeology and anthropology.

Irritable lady (in crowded New York elevator): "Stop pushing, please."
Fat Man: "I'm not pushing; I only sighed."

"Why do you always smoke clay pipes, old man?"
"Because when you drop one you don't have to pick it up."

Everybody Welcome.
Five campus hospitals are to be built at Northwestern University.

COLLECT PHOTOS OF WILDCAT STARS

Pictures of Team Captains to Be Placed in Panels in Hall on Second Floor of Men's Gymnasium

Within a short time pictures of captains of all athletic teams of the university will be placed in panels built this summer on the second floor walls on the west side of the men's gymnasium, according to plans of S. A. "Daddy" Boles, director of the department of athletics and physical education.

About forty panels have been placed on the walls but more will be added from time to time as they are needed. Letters have been written to all former captains of the university asking them to send in pictures of themselves taken when they were in college. Some fifteen or twenty pictures have been received already and more are expected in the near future. In the future the pictures of each year's team will be placed in the panel at the end of every year.

The idea of this preserving for undergraduates and for graduates who return to their alma mater as well remembrances of heroes of former days, is expected to add to the growing interest taken in athletics by students and alumni of the university. These panels are in addition to those of the trophy room, which, located on the eastern side of the gym, contains cups, trophies, group pictures and other reminiscences of athletic contests.

Illinois assistants will give. No Cat will have a number under 20 except Len Miller who requested No. 11.

The only opportunities Lexington football enthusiasts will have this season to see the Wildcats in action will be in the scheduled games. There will be no curious onlookers hanging around Stoll Field if Coach Harry Gamage carries out an edict he made last spring.

The gates will be padlocked and that part of the fence through which a vision of the practice field may be had has already been concealed with canvas strips.

Even the knot holes in the high board fence have been covered up.

With Westinghouse U. K. Graduates Are Working for Electric Company

Austin, '27, are enrolled in the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company's Graduate Student Course. At present these men are located at the East Pittsburgh works of the Westinghouse company.

SIDELINE DOPE

Fans who turned out to see the Wildcat-Maryville game were treated with a sight they have not witnessed since the University of Kentucky took football.

The Wildcats were clad in navy blue jerseys. The old royal blue shirts have been cast aside. They won't be seen on a Wildcat's back again, or at least not while Gamage is head coach.

Royal blue makes a player look larger than he is, Gamage thinks. And besides navy blue is much neater and more serviceable.

"I'll have the best looking team Kentucky has ever had, even if I don't have the best football squad," Gamage said.

The new jerseys will make the Cats look exactly like the Washington and Lee Generals. How then will the fans distinguish the players when these two teams meet here October 22? It would be pretty hard if Coach Gamage didn't have another trick effect up his sleeve.

The Cats also have white jerseys with royal blue numerals. Nice, fluffy white jerseys that look like the latest designs in stylish sweaters.

They are not for that purpose alone, however. Coach Gamage ordered them for use in the tropics, when the Cats take a fling at the equator and play Florida at Jacksonville, October 15.

They are light and cool and should be a great help to the Cats in withstanding the heat.

When Washington and Lee comes here, Coach Gamage will make the Cats wear the white jerseys. There won't be any trouble distinguishing the teams then, providing the field isn't muddy.

About two carloads of equipment have been purchased by the University of Kentucky this year. Shoes, light, medium and heavy, shining new head gears, silk pants and a "blue millian" other items of equipment are in stock and ready to be issued.

As Gamage said, the Cats surely will be dressed up.

All the backfield men on the team will have double numerals. Such as 11, 22, 33, 44, 55, 66, 88, 99.

There won't be any 77. Gamage, like other Illinois men, is superstitious about that number. Red Grange wore it. That's the reason. Even Zupke has cut the 77 at Illinois. "We wouldn't think of putting 77 on any of our men." That's the only explanation Gamage and his Victor R. Portmann, Experienced Newspaper Man and Instructor, to Offer New Courses at U. K.

IS WORLD WAR VETERAN

As a result of the addition to its teaching staff of Prof. Victor R. Portmann, giving it opportunity both to modify and extend its curriculum, the department of journalism is inaugurating the current session a number of important changes.

From the sophomore year has been taken the work in newspaper and general etymology and in its stead has been established a course in feature writing. The work in etymology has been moved up to the junior year with the course in verbal criticism as a second semester subject. Both these courses, however, will be given each semester.

In the senior year "Law of the Press" and editorial writing have been made a semester subject jointly and a first-semester course in critical writing for the press will be given additionally, carrying three credits.

In the second semester, a new course, "Community Journalism" will be offered, and with the beginning of the session of 1928-29, when more space will be afforded in the new building, a full course in typography will be offered.

Mr. Portmann will have charge of the editorial and critical writing courses and will also handle the copyreading divisions that hitherto have been taught by Mr. Graham, who will give chief attention to departmental publications and to classes in the study of words.

Professor Portmann, the new teacher, is a graduate of the school of journalism of the University of Wisconsin, and has had long service as a newspaper man in Minneapolis. He was also head pro tem of the department of journalism, University of just closed.

Professor Portmann and Mrs. Portmann and baby are making their home on Kalmia avenue.

Other achievements of Mr. Portmann, although The Kernel publishes the information over his protest, are a tennis championship and proficiency as a trombone player in the Wisconsin concert band during his school days.

Two Members of Law Faculty Leave University of Kentucky

Dean Charles J. Turck, of the College of Law, is now President C. J. Turck, of Centre College. His resignation at the university was effective August 31 and Dr. Alvin E. Evans, of George Washington University, has filled the vacancy.

President Turck came to the university in 1924 to become head of the College of Law, filling the position left by the late W. T. LaFollet. During his years at the university the law college prospered greatly and last year it was moved into a building of its own.

"Dean" Turck is a member of the Kentucky, New York, Louisiana and Tennessee bar associations. He is a member of Sigma Nu social fraternity, a member of Phi Beta Kappa, honorary scholastic fraternity, and Phi Delta Phi, honorary legal fraternity. For several years he has been a national officer of Square and Compass, national collegiate Masonic fraternity. He is a member of the Lexington Rotary Club, a director of the Lexington Automobile Club, and an elder in the Second Presbyterian church.

Professor Scarborough had been at the university for five years and specialized in the teaching of torts, private and municipal corporations and contracts. During the last summer session he taught and left Lexington for his new location soon after the close of the last term of the session.

Before coming to Lexington to teach at the university, Professor Scarborough was a member of the law firm of Nicholson, Warnock and Scarborough at Youngstown, Ohio.
