UNIVERSITY SENATE COUNCIL
10 ADMINISTRATION BUILDING

24 January 1990

TO: Members, University Senate

FROM: University Senate Council

RE: AGENDA ITEM: University Senate Meeting, Monday, February 12, 1990.
Proposal to amend University Senate Rules, Section IV - 2.1.2 (b),
Admission to Advanced Standing.

Proposal: (Delete highlighted, bracketed portion)

2.1.2 Admission to Advanced Standing

- (a) Admission of University of Kentucky Community College Students:
Grades, credits, quality points and academic status from courses taken in the University of Kentucky Community College shall be transferred when the Community College student enrolls in the University System. The applicability of any given courses not offered in the University System towards a University degree shall be determined by the Dean of the College in which the student enrolls.
- (b) Admission of All Other Students:
Applicants for admission must present evidence that they are in good standing in every respect in the institution they last attended. At no time shall college or university records be disregarded to admit an applicant solely on the basis of his/her high school records. Credit hours for courses accepted from a junior college, or other two year colleges or branches, shall be limited to a maximum of 67 semester hours. Applicants must have maintained a grade point average of 2.0 or an average of C in all previous course work. (US:12/13/82)

All collegiate level work taken at a fully accredited college or university is recognized credit hour for credit hour except that the dean of a college may require validation by appropriate means of course equivalencies or applicability toward degree requirements for more specialized courses. In order to be classified as fully accredited, a college or university must be a member of one of the six regional accrediting associations, such as the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools. Advanced standing from an unaccredited college or university may be obtained by special subject examinations [or by validation under conditions set forth by the Director of Admissions and the Dean of the College in which the student will enroll]. The applicability of the transfer work toward a University degree shall be determined by the Dean of the College in which the student enrolls. (US: 12/13/82)

US Agenda Item: IV - 2.1.2 (b)

24 January 1990

Background and Rationale:

At present, the University's practice of validating transfer credit from a non-accredited institution is based upon the student's performance at UK. The working arrangement is that students are allowed to count credits if they earn a 2.0 or better gpa in the first 24 hours of course work at UK. Thus, if a student does well at UK in advanced level classes, it is assumed that the credits earned at a non-accredited institution are valid. The policy permits the student's performance at UK to validate another institution's records. Consequently, UK Admissions could refuse to validate one of two identical records from an institution on the basis of varying student performance at UK. (The policy also assumes that the student's performance level here at UK is comparable to the performance level at the previous institution.)

The proposal to eliminate the phrase "...or by validation under conditions set forth by the Director of Admissions and the Dean of the College in which the student will enroll" was suggested at the associate dean level with the following comment: "With the current availability of CLEP exams, competency (by pass) exams, equivalency credit, etc., it appears that there are means by which students could acquire credit for competency acquired at non-accredited institutions." Insisting that students from non-accredited colleges get credit only by special exam would also take care of the practical difficulty of having courses that may or may not count—a situation which makes advising very difficult.

The proposal was reviewed by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and recommended to the University Senate Council.

WHEREAS, Dr. Roselle provided national leadership in restoring academic and institutional integrity to the UK basketball program, while sustaining and enhancing other athletic programs of the University in a way consistent with the academic mission of the institution, and *Absence explained.

WHEREAS, his leadership in integrating computer usage into the daily operations of the University has put this institution ahead of many others, and

MEMORIAL RESOLUTION

Harry Hudson Bailey
1921 - 1990

Harry Hudson (Hank) Bailey, Emeritus Professor of Agronomy at the University of Kentucky, died unexpectedly on 24 January 1990. He was born in Virginia in 1921. He earned his B.S. degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in 1942, and following service as an officer in the U.S. Army from 1942 to 1946, he returned to academic pursuits at Michigan State University. He received his M.S. and Ph.D. degrees in soil science at Michigan State University in 1949 and 1956. He remained active in the U.S. Army Reserves, attaining the rank of Colonel.

Before coming to the University of Kentucky in 1955, Dr. Bailey was a soil surveyor in Virginia, Michigan, and New Hampshire. In 1950-51 he worked on the U.S. Department of Agriculture's World Soil Map project.

Dr. Bailey had a deep concern for the education of undergraduate students in the College of Agriculture. He served as faculty advisor for hundreds of students, provided guidance and leadership to the Agronomy Club, and coached the University of Kentucky soil judging teams for 10 years. In recognition of his outstanding teaching and advising of undergraduate students, he was selected for the Gamma Sigma Delta Master Teacher Award and the University of Kentucky Alumni Association Great Teacher Award.

Dr. Bailey published numerous scientific journal papers and experiment station articles on soil genesis, morphology, and classification. Throughout his tenure at the University of Kentucky, he served as the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station representative for the Cooperative Soil Survey in Kentucky. His career included two assignments on USAID-University of Kentucky development projects, one at the University of Bogor, Indonesia from 1959 to 1961 and the other at Palembang, Sumatra, Indonesia in 1983 and 1984.

He was a certified Professional Soil Scientist, a member of the American Society of Agronomy, Soil Science Society of America, International Soil Science Society, Clay Minerals Society, Soil and Water Conservation, Sigma Xi, Gamma Sigma Delta, and American Associations of University Professors.

Dr. Bailey retired from the Department of Agronomy on 31 January 1986 with 31 years of outstanding service to the University of Kentucky. Following his retirement, Dr. Bailey volunteered his services to the International Book Project, a Lexington-based organization that collects and sends over 130,000 books each year to more than 80 developing countries.

He was an active member of Kiwanis International. He was a deacon and taught a Sunday School class at Calvary Baptist Church.

Dr. Bailey is survived by his wife, Terry, two daughters and a son.

He will be remembered by his colleagues, former students, and many friends as a kind, gentle, highly capable man who generously gave of himself to his students, the University of Kentucky, his church and community, and the world. This is truly a better world because of the life of Hank Bailey.

(Prepared by Professor Scott Smith, Department of Agronomy)

Professor Smith moved that the resolution be included in the minutes and that a copy of it be sent to Dr. Bailey's widow, Terry Bailey. The Chair asked the Senate to rise for a moment of silence.

The Chairman announced that the remaining Senate Meetings for this semester will be in room 106 of the Classroom Building.

The Chair recognized Professor William Lyons, a member of the Presidential Search Committee, for a report.

Professor William Lyons (Political Science) stated that most of the senators know that three faculty members have been elected to serve on the Presidential Search Committee. The other two members are Professors Loys Mather (Agriculture) and Carolyn Bratt (Law). The first meeting of the Search Committee is scheduled for 2:00 p.m., Friday, February 16 in the Old Board Room. He stated that there was not much to report on but he wanted to take the opportunity to inform the Senate that the Board of Trustees Chairman, Foster Ockerman, has said that there will be an open nation-wide search for a new president. He felt that the faculty representatives on the Search Committee are committed to that end. The faculty members on the committee feel that one of the ways they can try to keep the University community informed about what is going on is through the University Senate. The three committee members will be taking turns throughout the process to give brief reports to the Senate from now until the process is completed. He also noted there should be more in the press this time about the process. The last time the Herald-Leader filed suit involving the open meetings law and won. Basically, this means that all proceedings of the Search Committee will be conducted in open session except those discussions pertaining to specific individuals. He felt the faculty would have more information about the process and what is being discussed. It is the committee's understanding that Chairman Foster Ockerman intends to recommend to the Search Committee that it adopt the qualifications that were drawn up by the Search Committee the last time. Professor Lyons feels that everyone on the faculty is more than happy with this statement, so the three faculty members on the Search Committee will probably support the adoption of these qualifications. The committee wants to solicit the faculty's views and hopes they will contact any members of the Search Committee about potential nominees or candidates for the position. Professor Lyons asked for questions. Professor Lester Goldstein (Biological Sciences) noted that the Senate had endorsed a statement of qualifications and wanted the members on the Search Committee to be aware of that. Professor Lyons stated the committee is committed to the intent of those qualifications. He again noted the meetings were open and there should be no problem if anyone wanted to attend. The first meeting will be Friday, February 16 at 2:00 p.m. in the Old Board Room of the Administration Building.

The Chair thanked Professor Lyons and added that the Old Board Room was not a large room but faculty should not be intimidated by a small room or perhaps the meeting could be moved to the 18th floor of Patterson Office Tower.

The Chairman made the following announcements:

You may have read by now that Ernesto Scorsone's Bill on the appointment of trustees passed one week ago today. It passed by a margin of 86 to 10 in the House. That bill does two things. It lengthens the term of trustees from four to six years and it creates a selection committee which will submit three names to the Governor for each vacancy on the Board of Trustees or Board of Regents of all of the state universities.

I would like to recall for you that COSFL, the coalition of state faculty leaders, played an important role in initiating this legislation this year. As you may recall, this was one of the legislative agenda items that COSFL was interested in pursuing and we met with Representative Scorsone last November 4 and said that we would like for him to reintroduce his Bill of 1988. In 1988 that Bill got out of the House Education Committee but the Governor lobbied against it and Scorsone did not bring it to the House of Representatives Floor. He was rather pessimistic about it this time but said that if COSFL was willing to support it, he would go ahead. Of course, what has happened in the meantime is that the relationship between the Governor and legislators has changed considerably and his bill breezed through the House. He undoubtedly would have reintroduced it even without our prompting when he saw the mood of the legislature. That bill now goes to the Senate as Senate Bill 86 and the sponsor is Ed O'Daniel, and I would like to urge all of you to contact your state Senator and support that legislation.

Interim President Charles Wethington was scheduled to address the Senate today but due to a scheduling mixup in the President's office, he will not be here today, but he is rescheduled for the March 5 meeting.

The Chair recognized Professor Brauch Fugate (Mathematics) for a report from the Selective Admissions Committee. Professor Fugate stated that the committee began its work a year ago in August and has worked nearly a year and a half on a review of the University's selective admissions policy. The members were Glenn Blomquist, Economics and Public Administration; Mary Beth Brookshire Young, the student representative; Barbara Mabry, Admissions from the College of Medicine; Mike Reed, Agricultural Economics; Kawanna Simpson, College of Education; Paul Taylor, Lexington Community College (Ron Thomas, Elizabethtown Community College, was replaced by Paul Taylor); and Jo Ann Wever, College of Nursing. The Committee thinks Selective Admissions has been a success at the University and that it has been a positive force. Graduation rates are up, grade point averages are up, ACT scores are up, retention rates are up, geographic diversity is up, racial diversity is increasing and the performance of black students, as measured by retention and graduation rates, is close to that for all students.

Professor Fugate stated that the committee detected, from the people with whom they talked, no sentiment at all to go back to open admissions. He went on to say that there are substantial problems with the current system. Most of the improvements occurred in the first year and since that time things have been improving very slowly. He remarked that under our present circumstances it is very hard to change our rules. Any rule change has to come through the Senate and it has to be submitted to the catalog and then it goes into effect roughly eighteen months after it is proposed. He indicated that this made for a cumbersome system.

Professor Fugate remarked that one of the serious problems with the current admissions system is there has been no regular collection or analysis of data. He noted that very little data on admissions was collected and analyzed until the committee made their request as part of their study.

The committee has formulated ten recommendations to try to deal with the problems they found. They feel that one problem is the University's admissions criteria which are set forth in a step-chart on the front page of the catalog. It is a combination of ACT scores and high school grades which has been determined by a least squares fit to student performance data several years ago. Professor Fugate added that this system does not seem to allow the University to continue to improve its undergraduate profiles. Each year about twenty-five percent of the incoming freshman class does not obtain a grade point average of 2.0 or better. He stated that has been quite constant over the last several years. The committee feels this percentage is too high.

His feeling is that a more flexible admissions system should be created, that is, one where the admissions criteria are not stated explicitly. Benchmark institutions do not state their criteria explicitly. This will raise the problem of how the Senate is going to maintain control of admissions standards. The University Senate Rules call for the University Senate to set admissions standards for the University. The Committee recommends creating an Executive Admissions Committee to deal with that problem. The committee would be composed of the Registrar, Director of Admissions, the Chair of the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards, and three faculty members to be appointed by the Senate Council to staggered three-year terms. The function of the Executive Admissions Committee would be to set admissions policy.

The Committee's second recommendation is for the regular collection, analysis, and reporting of data on admissions. Professor Fugate stated that the Executive Admissions Committee should call for reports on the profile of the incoming class each year, including their scholastic, geographic, and racial characteristics. In addition, data should be collected that will let the University know how it is doing with respect to retention and graduation, year after year. The committee also calls for the Chancellor of the Lexington Campus to make an annual report on admissions to the University Senate. Professor Fugate feels that this should be as much a feature of annual reporting as is the President's traditional report at the opening of each year.

The third recommendation of the committee is the creation of an Enrollment Management System. Professor Fugate stated that no longer would explicit criteria of grades and test scores be printed in front of the catalog as guaranteeing a student admission to the University. He added that instead the Executive Admissions Committee would decide each year on the desired size of the entering class. (One figure that has been suggested is 2700, plus or minus a hundred students.) The EAC then establishes criteria for admission designed to get the best possible class of the appropriate size. There would still be an Exceptions Committee which would serve as an appeals board when people were unhappy with a decision on admission. This committee would consider admission of people on other than academic grounds.

The fourth recommendation is that students with ACT scores below 15 (on the old ACT scale) not be admitted to the University unless they are admitted by the Exceptions Committee. The data shows that over half of these students in the range of 11 to 15 do not return for their junior year. The committee feels that both the students and the University would be better served if these students first went to a Community College and then, if they were successful, transferred to the Lexington campus.

The committee also calls for the creation of firm admissions deadlines. There is a continuing problem with large numbers of students being admitted late to the University when it is very difficult to advise them properly. They come in with incomplete credentials, classes are full, and it is very difficult for departments and advisors to deal with the situation. The committee thinks that students should be encouraged to make a commitment early and to carry out their part of the admissions process in a timely way. To address the problem of not knowing who is going to attend the University until very late, the committee is calling for a tuition deposit of $100 from new students when they accept admission to the University of Kentucky. Most of our benchmark institutions have such a deposit, and many ask for more than $100. This would replace the current $50 fee to hold a schedule which entering freshmen are charged.

The committee calls for the Pre-College Curriculum to be more strictly enforced and recommends that the University institute an early decision program. That means students who apply by November 15 get preferential treatment. The idea is that they should be outstanding students and they agree when they apply under an early decision program that if accepted they will attend the University of Kentucky. The Committee thinks that is a way to attract more outstanding students.

The Committee believes the University should offer more scholarships on an academic basis and scholarships that carry more money. At the present time the regionals are offering scholarships to good students that the University is unable to match. Professor Fugate feels more funds should be put into that endeavor.

Professor Fugate stated that he would be happy to answer any questions. Professor Hans Gesund (Civil Engineering) wanted to know what provision would be made for a prospective student who did not have the $100 deposit. Professor Fugate felt there would be some administrative process where in hardship cases or someone who would have a scholarship that the fee would be waived. Professor Gesund wanted to know when a student was rejected for low scores, could the University accept that student on behalf of the Community College System. He felt the student could go to college close to home and then transfer to the University when their grades were acceptable. Professor Fugate felt that would be a function of the Admissions Office. Dr. Joseph Fink (Director of Admissions) stated that the Admissions Office has no authority over the Community College System. Professor Gesund's understanding is that we are one university and that would be one way of projecting a good image to the Commonwealth of being positive instead of negative. Dr. Fink stated that was done by including in the letter of denial of admission the fact that if the student went to an accredited institution and finished twenty-four semester hours of work with a 2.0 average or better, then that student can transfer to the University of Kentucky, and the UK Community College System is mentioned in the letter. He added that the University would not like the Community Colleges telling local students that they were admitted to the University of Kentucky. There were no further comments.

Chairman Leigh thanked Professor Fugate and his committee for the work they have done and felt the report was excellent. He added that the report would be brought to the March 5 meeting for approval.

Chairman Leigh recognized Professor Carolyn S. Bratt, Chair-elect of the Senate Council, for the first agenda item. Professor Bratt, on behalf of the Senate Council, moved that the Senate adopt changes in University Senate Rules, Section IV - 2.1.2 (b) which has to do with Admission of Students to Advanced Standing who have come to the University from an unaccredited college or university. She stated that the change would delete a segment of the Rule that permits students from unaccredited colleges to gain advance standing based on their performance once they are enrolled. The Rule would then read:

"Advance standing from an unaccredited college or university may be obtained by special subject examinations." Professor Bratt indicated that the proposed change had been reviewed by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and by the Senate Council, and both have approved. The proposal was circulated under date of 24 January 1990.

Chairman Leigh opened the floor for discussion. Professor Gesund asked about the international students. He stated that a student might have two years in a school abroad that would not be accredited. He wanted to know if that student would have to take CLEP exams for a year of courses. He sees a real problem for international students. Chairman Leigh asked Dr. Fink how international students are now handled. Dr. Fink stated that international students' records are evaluated by someone in the Admissions Office who is familiar with resource materials used in evaluating foreign transcripts. Professor Fink felt Professor Gesund had a good point.

Professor Gesund felt the proposal should go back to the committee. Chairman Leigh asked for discussion on the motion to refer. There was no discussion and the motion unanimously passed. Professor Gesund suggested that the committee also look at American students who spend some time abroad.

Chairman Leigh again recognized Professor Carolyn Bratt for the second agenda item. Professor Bratt, on behalf of the Senate Council, moved that the Senate adopt the proposal to amend University Senate Rules, Section V - 2.4.7, dealing with common examinations. Professor Bratt stated that the first recommended change was in the first numbered paragraph to read: "List the days of the month, week, and the time at which the exam will be given in the official Schedule of Classes." The next change would appear in the paragraph marked number two which would delete all the material after the word "block" and the sentence would read: "Spread each examination over a time block at least one and a half times the length of the examination." The third paragraph would be changed to delete the parenthetical phrase (perhaps 7:00 AM) so that the section reads: "Give two examinations at widely disparate times, but not the morning after the evening examination." Professor Gesund wanted to know why not give the exam the morning after the evening exam. Professor Bratt did not know, but perhaps on the theory if the student missed the night before, it might not be possible for them to attend the next morning. Professor Gesund wanted to know if that could be deleted. Professor Bratt did not think so because there was sentiment in the Senate Council that they did not want to have exams scheduled eight, nine or ten hours after the originally scheduled exam. Professor Bratt stated that the next change was one following the asterisk which is the current Rules Committee interpretation, but it is not part of the official rule. The amendment would change the asterisk to a number four and incorporate the rule interpretation into the rule itself with certain additions and changes. The paragraph would be four and reads: "And, any department giving a common examination must give a make-up exam or develop some other arrangement for students with excused absences to gain credit as if they had taken the common exam; a department may not apply a "drop the lowest score" policy to common exams missed with an excused absence. The following material should be added: "If a student has a course scheduled at the same time as a common exam and the student has given notice of the conflict to the instructor at least two weeks prior to the common exam, the student shall be entitled to an excused absence from the conflicting common examination." She added that these are the substantive changes. The feeling has been that the common exam has caused some students to have to make choices in terms of courses they want to take because the course is scheduled when a common exam will be held. Professor Bratt went on to say that this would permit a student to select a course that meets during the time periods when a common exam is scheduled and it would give them an excused absence and the ability to make that common exam up. The proposed changes are recommended by the Senate Committee on Admissions and Academic Standards and the University Senate Council. The proposal was circulated under date of 23 January 1990.

The floor was opened for discussion. A student senator asked about the word "And". Professor Bratt stated the "And" was added deliberately to make sure it was recognized as an addition to the Rules. She added that the number four needed to be deleted but prefaced with and so that there is a recognition it is not an alternative. The question was asked as to how many students were affected by the common exam. Academic Ombudsman, Daniel Fulks (Business and Economics) stated there was no way of knowing how many students are precluded from taking a course because of the common exam. He added that the Ombudsman's Office gets about forty calls per year involving common exams. The former Ombudsman, William Moody, stated that every year in the last few years the common exam is one of the top complaints in the office. Even if the numbers are not that large, Professor Moody feels it is a major problem. Professor Lester Goldstein (Biological Sciences) wanted to know if this would be after the students have spoken to the instructor. Professor Moody remarked that students are encouraged to go to the instructor first.

Professor Mark Berger (Economics), coordinator for Economics 201 stated the college has around 1500 students in 201 and 202 each semester. He opposed the whole motion. He feels common exams are good and his department has standardized the examination process, cleaned up the inconsistencies of grading, and if impediments are put in the way of common exams, the department will forget about them. He opposed the idea of each TA grading their own exam. He felt the proposal was written as though there are no benefits to common exams. He added that not to have common exams might be good for upper level courses, but he assured the Senate common exams are good for courses such as Economics 201 and Accounting 201.

Professor Raymond Cox (Mathematics), course coordinator for Mathematics and Calculus, affirmed what had been said. He stated that departments would have great difficulty in having to have two separate examinations at different times. Professor Bratt stated the proposal gave the department a choice but did not require anymore than if it were a makeup exam.

Professor Berger felt more students would have excused absences; therefore instructors would have to have makeup exams which they will not do. Individual instructors would make up their own exams.

Professor David Watt (Chemistry) stated that chemistry had some problems with the motion before the Senate. The department supports the first three. The first one the department feels is eminently sensible because students do have job responsibilities. He feels the University owes the students the responsibility of publishing specific dates, times and places. The department takes issue with the motion in number four. He wondered why the current registration system could not flag the conflicts and not allow students to register for those particular courses where there is a conflict with a common exam.

The Chair ruled that as much as possible the four items would be split in order to vote on them separately. He stated that discussion would be limited to the first item. Professor James Marsden (Economics) feels that since the system for scheduling is so early it is not feasible to schedule the common exams, and that number one is just extra impediments. Professor Watt pointed out that many departments, including chemistry, already give the dates.

There was no further discussion on the first item. In a voice vote the first item of the proposal passed and reads as follows:

"List the days of the month, week, and the time at which the exam will be given in the official Schedule of Classes."

The Chair noted that the implementation date would be changed to a feasible date. The floor was opened for discussion on the second item. Professor McEllistrem suggested an editorial change to add "session" after examination.

Professor Paul Eakin (Mathematics) stated their exams are one-hour exams but the Mathematics Department gives the students two hours to complete the exam. He added that the writers of the proposal did not address that issue. The Chairman did not understand the problem. Professor Eakin wanted to know if the result of the rule would be that the department would now have to say the exams are one-hour exams which is what he feels will happen. Chairman Leigh stated that if it were a two-hour exam, then the department could give the students three hours, but if it is a two-hour exam, the students should be given two hours to take the exam. Professor Eakin feels the result would be the same. Chairman Leigh did not think the rule states that students can come and go at arbitrary times.

Professor McEllistrem's interpretation of the rule is that if the exam is an hour exam and 7:00 p.m. is the normal starting time and a student comes to the exam at that time, when they turn in their test paper is entirely up to the proctor at the time of the examination. He stated that had nothing to do with the rules. If other students come in at 8:00 p.m., they can stay until 9:00 because the exam was prepared as a one-hour exam. He added that a student who comes to the exam at 8:00 p.m. penalizes himself by not getting there at 7:00 p.m. Professor Cox feels that would just lead to confusion when students are arriving at different times.

Professor Berger asked about the requirement that no student could enter an exam after the first student left. He wanted to know if he had an hour exam which had been scheduled for an hour and a half, could he then impose the requirement that no student could start an exam after another student left. Professor Bratt stated that was her understanding.

Professor Cox stated that the Mathematics Department had a system that seems to work. If an exam begins at 7:30 p.m., the student cannot get there, they need to get excused, and then make up the exam at a later time. Chairman Leigh stated that would not be acceptable if number two passed because for a two-hour exam there would have to be a three-hour period. Professor Berger urged the Senators to vote against the motion.

Student Senator Mehran Jahed spoke for the students and said he felt some changes could be made to make the proposal more practical.

Professor Eakin stated that the problem was that some students would want to leave and would make up excuses to leave the room. He did not like the idea of formalizing the rule, and said it is not a reasonable thing to ask people to do. Professor Loys Mather (Agricultural Economics) suggested a way to address the problem was for the department to elect not to use number two but another option. Professor Eakin said that it was not a reasonable option.

Professor Gesund was somewhat unhappy about trying to rewrite the rules on the floor of the Senate and suggested to send the proposal back to the committee with instructions that the committee invite the coordinators of the departments for common exams to address the problems they are having.

The Chair asked Professor David Durant to address the process used in drafting the proposal. He stated that departments and the Ombudsman were consulted. Professor Gesund wanted the coordinators to meet with the committee and have the proposal rewritten rather than making the changes on the floor. Professor Leigh stated there was a serious attempt by the committee to get as much input as possible and it is a complicated matter. The committee's feeling is the proposal is the best they could bring to the Senate on such a complicated subject.

Professor Fulks feels the proposal is in appropriate form and that the committee has done a good job in drafting and has put forth a lot of effort to clarify some rules. He does have some observations. He is discouraged with the number of departments who are gradually doing away with common exams rather than trying to improve what is already a good thing. He feels that is counterproductive. Secondly, the means that some departments are using in satisfying the makeup of exams in excused absences is not in accordance with the spirit of the excused absence rules. He feels that will be addressed at some point in the future. He feels that in terms of the makeup exam, the proposal is not much different than the current rule. He added that he saw the changes as mostly editorial.

Professor William Lyons (Political Science) asked for a point of information. He stated that the third paragraph on page three seems to suggest that the committee's opinion is that the rule which now exists states there should be a time block that when departments schedule two hours for that time block they should give the students two hours to take the exam. He wanted to know if that is the interpretation of the existing rule. He wanted to know if that is what the committee is suggesting. Professor Durant answered in the affirmative. He stated that the three provisions seem to be three ways to give people separate shots at the examinations. Professor Lyons' view is the rule was intended to give students the opportunity to take the exam sometime during the two-hour period. He stated if that is the interpretation and everyone agrees with that, then he did not see that the change is a big deal. He feels it is more of an editorial change if the Senate agrees on what the original intent is.

Professor Eakin stated if there are only a few people, anything can be handled, but if a random selection of the class has the option of showing up at any given time, it will not work. Chairman Leigh pointed out that the rule did not say a scheduled time could be worked out in advance. He feels there are various administrative ways to handle the situation so that it would not be complete chaos. Professor Eakin stated that it took a long time to take up an exam for 200 students and have another 200 coming into the room.

Professor Bratt moved the question. The second item, as amended, passed in a hand count of 25 to 23 and reads as follows:

"Spread each examination session over a time block at least one and a half times the length of the examination."

The Chair placed the third item on the floor for discussion. Professor James Marsden (Economics) saw no reason for a change because 7:00 a.m. might be the only time a student did not have a conflict. Chairman Leigh stated that 7:00 a.m. could still be used, because it was used only as an example.

Professor Jonathan Glixon (Music) stated there might be valid reasons for a student not to be able to attend the 7:00 a.m. class, if the student had an excuse for the evening before exam.

Professor Bratt stated that the only change was taking out 7:00 a.m. but not changing the current rule.

There was no more discussion and the third item, which unanimously passed, reads as follows:

"Give two examinations at widely disparate times, but not the morning after the evening examination."

The Chair placed the fourth change on the floor for discussion. A senator asked about the asterisk. Chairman Leigh stated the asterisk meant it was a rules interpretation originally, but now his understanding is the Senate Council wanted to make it a rule. He added that the asterisk would not be there in the new rule. Professor George Blandford's (Civil Engineering) understanding is that if a student had an excused absence from the class that was in conflict with the common exam and instead of putting the burden on the common exam put the burden on the class and make that an excused absence to make up the course work there. Student Senator Robert Lohman wanted to know why not let the student be excused from either the common exam or the class. The reason was that the class might be a review for an upcoming class.

Professor Michael Freeman (Mathematics) wanted to know why the common exams, which are published in the Schedule of Classes, are singled out for special treatment. He stated that common exams had been a part of campus life for at least ten years. He added they had been quite successful in the Mathematics Department.

From Professor Fulks' experience as Ombudsman, he has found that in any questions or issues the office has had involving common exams, every department has been very cooperative. Secondly, and more importantly, he feels there are two changes in number four which are being proposed. He wants to see them separated. One change is the movement from an interpretation to a rule and the other is an addition to the current interpretation.

Professor Lyons moved to separate the two items in number four. Professor Mather seconded the motion. Chairman Leigh stated that the underlined sentence would be the fifth item. The floor was opened for discussion. Professor Berger wanted to know where the "And" would go. Chairman Leigh's understanding is that it would stay there. The Chair clarified that beginning with "If a student" would be the fifth item. The fourth item would be the previous interpretation with the word "And" added at the beginning.

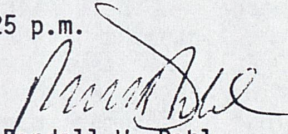

Item number four bothers Professor McEllistrem because one part states "department may not apply a 'drop the lowest score' policy to common exams..." He added that departments did not do that, teachers do. Secondly, "may not apply a 'drop the lowest score' policy" is a vague statement. His feeling is that will cause problems. He feels he knows what it means today but a year from now he may not know what it means. Chairman Leigh pointed out that is the existing interpretation and it is in effect a rule because it has been adopted by the Senate. Professor Bratt stated the item is a codification and whether or not it passed, the rule is still there. The Senate Council wants it to no longer be an interpretation of the rule.

Chairman Leigh stated the motion on the floor was to separate the two for voting purposes. In a voice vote the motion unanimously passed.

The Chair placed on the floor for consideration the first half of the paragraph. He stated the change was to add the word "And" and to make the interpretation a rule. Professor Fulks stated the interpretation is reiterated under the excused absences section of the Senate Rules.

Student Senator Mehran Jahed called for a quorum. A quorum would be forty-five voting members of the Senate. There were forty in attendance.

The Chairman adjourned the meeting at 4:25 p.m.
