World Situation Continues To Depress UK Enrollment

With only a week left for a student to enter an organized class for the second semester, it is apparent from the registration figures...

Churchill Warns British People Of Early Nazi Invasion Attempt

Big Ben resounded the last stroke of nine o'clock Sunday night in London. The sound vibrated several seconds. A humming noise on the radio grew louder then died out.

AMERICAN-MADE MILITARY PLANE

Third salute was to the English armies in Egypt which crushed the Italian forces of 150,000 men by "model military tactics"...

Turning the page to a darker scene, Churchill said that though England had been fortunate so far, she must expect the German invasion certainly and soon.

was necessary if England's resistance was to continue. The visits of Wendell Wilkie and Harry Hopkins were appreciated, Churchill concluded...

After three days of listless debate, the momentous "lend-lease" bill for aiding Britain by giving President Roosevelt broad powers...

The vote was 260 to 165, a margin which was made high as possible to allow the administration to show almost unanimous support for England.

Several changes were made in the measure by the opposition. Amendments weren't fought by administration leaders, who loaded the bill for all possible legislative speed.

(1) A limit of $1,500,000,000 worth of American defense items on hand, in production, or in appropriation. The house refused a proposal that the bill's total cost should be set at $7,000,000,000.

(2) Congress may rescind any of the powers granted in the bill by a simple majority vote.

(3) A time limit of two years on the president's powers.

During debate on the bill, Chairman of the House foreign affairs committee Sol Bloom and isolationist Ham Fish tangled horns once or twice. Bloom maintained aid to Britain is giving us time to get strong.

"If the dictator war Bill passes unamended, I predict that within six months we will be involved in war in Europe and Asia."

As the lend-lease measure moved toward the Senate, the noted anti-war senator Nye said that his group would attempt to "defeat the whole bill."

Pierre Laval, noted French statesman, is said by several newsmen to be the man who sold out the French government during the German invasion.

Laval was back in the limelight last week after being expelled from the French cabinet last December. Last week Laval was offered a chance to resume his place in the cabinet, probably because of German pressure on the defeated French government.

Latest news was that French Admiral Darlan would form a new cabinet without Laval—and also without Pierre-Emile Flandin, who substituted for Laval in the last shake-up.

NYE'S FLAMES Out in the latter shake-up.

It's Good Business Of The Best Sort

Among the many reasons why residents of Lexington—even school-term residents—should contribute to the city and county Community Chest is the fact that fourteen different humanitarian agencies derive their support from this single annual drive.

These fourteen agencies are necessary agencies. They not only care for the underprivileged whom we have always with us, they provide for organizations which build for the nation's future.

By name, they are: The Boy Scouts, the Community YMCA, the Colored Day Nursery, the Crippled Children's Aid, the Family Welfare Society, the Fayette Community Council, the Florence Crittenton Home, the Girl Scouts, the adeline McDowell Breckinridge Health Camp, the Old Ladies Home, the Railroad YMCA, the Salvation Army, the Social Service Exchange, and the Travellers Aid Society.

As an illustration of the purchasing power which a dollar has when used by the agencies served by the Chest, the following report is submitted for the health division for the past year:

With $12,000 to spend, these three agencies managed to care for 270 crippled children, give medical attention to 30 unmarried mothers, and send 219 undernourished children to health camps.

We doubt if there was in Fayette county in 1940 another $12,000 investment that yielded a return so great as that.

These figures constitute a rough idea of what a Community Chest dollar will buy. Those organizations and individuals at UK which have already contributed may rest assured they have invested well; those who have not yet contributed can easily see, if they will, that there is not a better place in Lexington to get your dollar-for-dollar money's worth.

Let's Have Some More of Them Letters

In stating last September the policy which THE KERNEL would follow during the 1940-41 school year, we said that a true campus editorial page should be a semi-weekly symposium of the students' opinions, and that the best way to have such a page is for the students to write letters to the paper whenever they feel like letting off steam or grinding a few axes.

Up until recent weeks the help we asked for has been given pretty freely, and a number of interesting letters have been written. Lately, however, the flow has just about ebbed out.

We don't know exactly what the cause for the lull is. Maybe it's our fault; maybe our editors and columns haven't been provocative enough.

Or, it may be simply that the pre-exam study sieges got the letter-writers out of stride and they aren't back in the groove yet.

But whatever the reason, we still need your help as much as ever if this paper is to have a live, vigorous, and provocative an editorial page as a college paper should have.

We hereby solicit your aid again.

Booth Tarkington evidently started something when he had one of his juvenile characters use the expression "word" to denote the use of profanity. Now even the hairy-chested Hemingway is having his characters say "obscenity" instead of the real thing, and the British are using the word "he" when they wish to speak of Hitler.

The Slave Of The Future

In a recent piece about Mrs. Lindbergh's The Wave of the Future, Columnist Allenby Winer made the statement, "no matter which side wins this war there will be a change." If we understand Mr. Winer correctly, we do not exactly agree with him; we believe he quoted the wrong word.

We accept, of course his premise that there will be drastic changes in our known world order at the end of this war. But we do not believe there will be any doubt whatsoever as to whether the winning side has actually won. The final victory, when it comes, will be so complete that the victorious political-economic system will be assured of world domination for centuries to come.

The term we think Mr. Winer should have quoted is the word "side." It is the two opposing forces in this war which are not yet clearly defined—not the outcome. To say that the present lineup (the British Empire and the United States versus Germany, Italy, and Japan) represents a clear-cut struggle between Democracy and Fascism is almost fallacious.

There is a clear-cut struggle, yes; but it is the life-and-death struggle between the positive forces whose source dates back to the French Revolution and the negative forces which emerged at the same time but which lay more or less dormant until Herr Hitler awakened and resold them to the world during the decade of the '30's.

It is, in short, an issue of whether the so-called "common people" are capable of ruling themselves, or whether they are so incapable that they can only be ruled, the "democratic" or "anti-Fascist" philosophy says they are capable; the "Fascist" or anti-democratic philosophy says they are not, and should be ruled by a self-chosen elite.

But to say that Britain and America per se represent the former viewpoint and that Germany, Italy, and Japan represent the latter is not merely an oversimplification of fact—it is almost a misstatement of the truth.

The so-called Fascist nations are as yet merely near-Fascist, since Fascism does not permit the opposition to declare itself. There is an anti-Fascist force present, but it has been driven underground.

And the so-called democratic nations are only near-democratic. There is a strong Fascist force present, but it is clever enough to disguise itself in folklores that are familiar enough to be accepted without a great deal of objection.

Thus the present situation becomes complex. And sitting on his Moscow perch overlooking the entire scene and taking advantage of the muddiness of the distinctions between the warring nations is the Communist vulture, Joe Stalin. He has hopes that out of the confusion will come a bankrupt, physically shattered, embittered world which will be easy prey for his own political creed. And by refusing to recognize the real issue at stake the Western nations are playing directly into the hands of the third and last possibility—Communism.

No, it isn't so much a question of whether either side will "win" the war as it is a question of which are the opposing "sides" in the war. And until this question is more definitely decided, the United States had best keep its A.E.F. on the home grounds.

TECH, VANDY SLASH FENCERS

Jones, Beasley Star For Cats

The University fencing team went South over the week-end only to meet with two disheartening defeats at the hands of Vanderbilt and Georgia Tech.

In Saturday's match with the Engineers, the Wildcats captured seven matches but Tech's superiority in the epee contest ran their total to ten. Virgil Beasley and Johnny Jones were outstanding for the Wildcats.

Vanderbilt took the measure of the Blue men on Friday when they won ten matches while Kentucky took six. Fols were the only weapon used in the Vanderbilt meet. Beasley and Johnny Jones were best for the losers.

Other members who made the trip were Donald Day, Al Jones, Johnny Carson, and Bob Drake. The team will go to Charleston, West Virginia, Saturday to meet the Charleston Fencing club.

Running Wild

By JOHN CARRICO

When the Golden Gloves entourage left at 7 o'clock last night for Nashville, there were four University students in the party—Dickie Taylor, Bob Taylor, Herbie Moore, and Elwood Chambers.

Naylor will represent the lightweight, the welterweight responsibilities rest on Taylor's shoulders, and Moore will carry the middleweight standard Chambers will act as coach for the entire team.

Anyone interested in boxing at the University is familiar with the names of these boys. Naylor lost the 1940 intramural crown to Tommy Pettus in one of the closest fights ever staged here. Incidentally, before losing the fight, Dickie had just an hour or two before annexed the intramural wrestling diadem in his class.

Naylor became so absorbed in the manly art of self-defense that it cost him $1500 and that's a lot of logs. It seems that Dickie was busy out at the gym annex throwing punches while a downtown theater was throwing legal tender his way. Not having the body beautiful there at roll-call cost Dickie carfare for a couple of hundred years.

Taylor Is Winner Of Double Crown

Taylor is the contradiction to the old saying "jack-of-all-trades master of none." For Bob is "master of both," having been the only man this year to win both boxing and wrestling championships. In fact they think so much of Bob's ability that they hung an action picture of him in the student union grill—sort of a strong man among weak cokes.

Herbie Moore is a two-time Golden Gloves winner. A transfer from Transylvania, he is doing graduate work here. He helped to train some of the boys entering the intramural tournament.

Chambers Fought On UK Boxing Team

The last member of this pugnic quartet, Elwood Chambers, fought in the intramurals and was a member of the now defunct University boxing team. The fact that he was chosen to coach the team is mute testimony to his ability.

We wish the boys the best of luck in the Southern tournament and we feel confident that their showing will prove that Kentuckians are still the L1 Abner type (as 'yo' kin plainly see).

Evening, Saturday Courses Planned

Registration for part-time and special students began Tuesday, and will continue until Monday, February 17. No student will be allowed to register and enter a class later than February 17.

Departments offering courses are art, bacteriology, commerce, education, English, geology, history, hygiene, library science, mathematics and astronomy, music, physical education, political science, and social work.

Allen Scorches 'Bama Hoop As Cats Triumph, 46-38

Blues Turn In Best Performance On Home Floor

In their best home performance of the season to date, the Kentucky Wildcats turned back the Alabama Crimson Tide Saturday night in Alumni gym 46-38.

The game was featured by an offensive duel between Kentucky's Ernal Allen and Alabama's Leo Storey, with Allen taking honors with 15 points, three more than Storey could garner. Both men utilized the capacity crowd of 3900 with spectacular long shots.

With a starting lineup composed of sophomores and juniors, the Wildcats jumped into the lead when Marvin Akers dropped in two gratis shots and then followed with a crisp Alabama came back with Storey and held a lead which Kentucky just managed to shade and go ahead, by 23-22 at the half.

The second period was all Kentucky. Alabama had difficulty penetrating the Kentucky defense while the Wildcats were gaining a sizeable lead.

SPRING PRACTICE GETS UNDER WAY

39 Men Report For First Workout

The Vanguard on the 1941 football squad, thirty-nine strong, broke the sod yesterday afternoon as spring practice got under way.

Z-club men, freshmen and boys who did not play last year will be the only ones to work this week; varsity men will begin workouts next Monday. Athletic Director Shively said most of the practice sessions would be devoted to fundamentals, with heavy contact work coming in three or four weeks.

Head Coach Kirwan is counting on approximately sixty men when the entire team is in uniform. He is faced with the task of replacing nine of last year's starting eleven of whom only Jones and Mullins are returning.

Kirwan is not worrying about these losses weakening the team inasmuch as the Z-club and freshman squad should provide ample replacements. Early practice will be hampered less than usual by basketball, for Ernal Allen is the only footballer on the cage squad.

Practice sessions will be run for five or six weeks, lasting about one hour each day. The practice will be closed with the playing of the annual Blue & White intra-squad game. The K-Club will sponsor this game and the receipts will be used by them to furnish their recreation room.

Bacteriologists To Hear Reports

Scientific papers presented at the recent meeting of the American Bacteriological society in St. Louis will be discussed by members of the University Bacteriology society at 7:30, Thursday, in room 204 of the Biological Sciences building.

Leading the discussion will be Dr. Morris Scheraga, head of the bacteriology department. Dr. R. E. Weaver, professor in the department, and graduate assistants Edward Kass, David McFadden, and Minnie Schrieber, all of whom attended the association's convention during the Christmas holidays.

Dr. Scheraga and Weaver presented papers on various phases of bacteriological research at the convention.

Intramural Basketball Teams To Swing Into Action Tonight

The Greeks have a word for it. They call it basketball, but one group who vent their fraternal anger tonight as the intramural basketball tournament swings into action, have almost made it a survival of the fittest.

The intramural department has promised better refereeing this year though, and in an effort to improve this item of the game, have conducted an officials' school which chose the referees yesterday in a competitive examination.

Alpha Nu's last year's League A winner, shapes up as a potent power in that division this year. The loss of Charley Harris and Pete Young has robbed the Euclid boys of part of their scoring punch, but Bud Wilson, Hugh Owen, Dale Booth, Charles King and Davis Vaughn shape up as a formidable aggregation.

The Sigma Nu's meet Gamma Tau Alpha at 7:50 tonight in the Gym annex just after Phi Kappa Tau and Delta Tau Delta have settled their hardwood differences at 7 p.m. Other games slated for tonight are Phi Sigma Kappa and Alpha Tau Omega at 8:40 and Kappa Sigma against Lambda Chi Alpha at 9:30.

Firing on the League B line will begin Wednesday night when the Frosh Rifle Team Candidates To Meet

A meeting of all the first year basic course ROTC members interested in trying out for the Freshman rifle team will be held at 9 p.m. Wednesday in Room 303, Barker hall. Lt. John L. Carter, coach of the team announced yesterday.
