PREFACE

The primary source materials for Baptist history in Missouri are to be found largely in the printed minutes of the various district associations in the State. These small booklets, usually printed locally each year, contain a record of the proceedings of the associations, giving the place and date of meeting, a detailed report of proceedings, copies of reports, statistics on the status of the individual churches and list of ministers.

A large number of the district associations in Missouri are confined to county boundary lines. However, in some cases, they comprise two or more counties. The names and boundary lines of the district associations have changed throughout the years. The following is the present (1941) association boundary lines for Missouri. When any county in an association is not included in the associational title, the name or names of the counties are given in parenthesis.

The Missouri Baptist Historical Society has collected the association minutes over a period of more than 50 years. The Society has the most comprehensive collection of Missouri Baptist district denomination minutes in existence. They are located at the headquarters of the Society in the library of the William Jewell College, Liberty, Missouri.

The following Bibliography shows the name of the association and the years for which minutes are on file in the archives of the Society. The publication of this booklet is sponsored by the Missouri Baptist Historical Society. The information for the Bibliography was made available through the courtesy and cooperation of Dr. H. I. Hester, Custodian of the Society. The minutes are available for research students, historians, or anyone interested in church history.
