A NEW REGISTRATION SYSTEM
Registration for the second semester again demonstrated the inefficiency of the system used for enrollment of students at the University.

chances on the afternoon of the second day. At most, this system would produce only one afternoon of confusion rather than two whole days.
Another alternative suggests itself in the form of registration by classes. Under this plan, freshmen could register the morning of the first day, sophomores in the afternoon, juniors and seniors the morning of the second day, and those who failed to register at the time specified for their class could "take their chances" on the afternoon of the second day.

When an evil continues for a number of years, many come to believe that nothing can be done about it. It grows, as a wart on a face, and becomes a permanent fixture. So it is with registration—students and faculty alike have complained of the situation for years, but with the feeling, "What's the use, we can't do anything about it."

The Kernel believes that something can be done about it, despite the over-cynical attitude of many in regard to conditions. To this end we offer two suggestions which we hope may lead to a betterment of the ever disconcerting situation with regard to registration.

The first alternative is a registration alphabetically arranged. The group of students whose names run from A to L, for example, could register the morning of the first day of registration, I to P could register in the afternoon, P to Z the morning of the second day, and those who failed to register at the times specified could "take their

While we do not contend that either of the systems suggested above are perfect, we will certainly maintain their advantages over the present haphazard way. Also, their simplicity is distinctly toward facilitation of operation. With the idea of constructive criticism, we therefore suggest their future trial.

"PRO BONO PUBLICO"
With the next edition The Kernel will inaugurate the publication of a series of statements by American university presidents with regard to the value of military training and education in American universities and colleges.

In presenting these quotations The Kernel does not intend to take sides in the controversy which has been raging in the Student Opinion column in regard to the merits and deficiencies of military training at our university. To do so would be to stifle the right of free speech and free thought which The Kernel strives at all times vigorously to maintain.

The purpose will be, rather, one of cooperation with the administration, which permits and encourages military training at the university for definite reasons. Its side of the argument has not been presented in the letters published in the Student Opinion column and The Kernel seeks merely to act as organ for its viewpoint.

Another reason for the publication of these statements of American educators presents itself in the fact that there is a strong suspicion that many of the points made in the anti-ROTC letters are merely propaganda which has been obtained from a central authority. If such is true it is only fair that authorities on the other side of the question be quoted in the matter.

ABRAHAM LINCOLN
One hundred and twenty-seven years ago there was born in Kentucky a boy destined later in life to lead his country in its period of greatest strife. When Abraham Lincoln entered the White House as the Nation's Chief Executive 50 years later he carried with him many of the attributes he had learned as a lad in Kentucky.

These qualities, gotten in his early youth through difficult lessons, made him one of the most outstanding figures the world has ever known; he gave the world a lesson in honesty, perseverance, straightforwardness and respect for the thought and opinion of his fellow man.

These qualities earned him a place in the ranks of great Kentucky men. He joins the others who, being Kentuckians, were people of high dignity, honor, and who counted among their other traits, that of being endowed with true gentlemanly instincts.

Hoi Polloi
Reflexions of a Scandal Columnist
Human nature is a funny thing. To the writer of a so-called "scandal column," human nature is "everyday interesting and amusing—particularly amusing."

As the conductor of Hoi Polloi, the scandal column of this official organ of the University of Kentucky, I have had many occasions to observe students' reactions to publicity, especially publicity which would not be considered as beneficial. My experiences have indeed been very interesting.

Some students call me on the telephone to tell me some things which their friends have done; others perform silly little melodramas in my presence so that I might have something to print about them. Still others write me little anonymous notes which I know perfectly well are written by the person whom the "scandal" concerns. Such is human vanity.

More interesting than the actions of individuals wanting items printed about themselves are the reactions of students to what has been printed. I have classified students according to reactions into the following five distinct groups:

1. PLEASED. This group takes to those students who are pleased because something about them has appeared to print about them. Still others write me little anonymous notes which I know perfectly well are written by the person whom the "scandal" concerns. Such is human vanity.

2. INDIFFERENT. In this group are those who are neither pleased nor displeased. To the writer of a "scandal" column, these people stand out as the type which are the most desirable kind of reader.

3. FALSIFIED ANGER. People in this classification are the actors. Something is printed about them. They are not angry, yet they think it necessary to act. More than ninety per cent of students who "gripe" to me about the so-called "scandal" are of this type: the type who put up a false front.

4. PURE ANGER. People included in this assortment are the "scandal" writer's nightmare. They are noisy, kick, and threaten, but all to no avail. A threat, such as the threat presented by people in this group, is far the most interesting purgatory to print more about them to see if their real life is in danger.

Recently Channing Pollock, the noted American playwright and author, presented a definition of dignity, which to me is the definition of the majority of those who are pre-empted every time the Kernel carries a column which is headed "Hoi Polloi." Dignity is a pose of the body designed to conceal defects of the soul. Quite apropos to this group.

5. GRIPERS AND GROANERS. This group should be separated from the others, for they are a distinct type. They gripe and groan about items which do not concern them at all, and many times misinterpret the news. Just like the small town gossipers, they must poke their noses into other people's affairs. They can't even get their griping energies toward their own affairs, and not toward those of others, is difficult to determine.

In a recent issue of the Kernel was an item in this column which was misinterpreted by this group. The "bit" was misinterpreted by those individuals in this classification and brought to a head something I have had on my mind for some time.

That is, a so-called scandal column is a fine thing in a campus publication because of the in-quisitive nature of the students take in it. As long as there is a big enough sucker to do his best to please the student body by writing this "most read" column, the Kernel should print Hoi Polloi. But not if I'm picking up my marbles and quitting. It is anything but a creditable job. People enjoy reading it but jump at the chance to censure the judgment of the writer.

able, and not deeply involved in theory and involve specific reading. More practical and less theoretical courses. Bigger and better athletic teams. Swimming, golf, handball, tennis, etc., for all students at a minimum expense.

G-E Campus News
in Buenos Aires. The plays were carried by the shortwave stations W2XAF and LSX, of North and South America, respectively.
W2XAF, in Schenectady, used a feed-back circuit that short-wave listeners all over the world, tuned to the one station, could follow the playing with as great ease as the 500 kibitzers who jammed Rice Hall. This was the first international bridge broadcast in which the principals were all recognized experts. The North American team, captained by Culbertson, won by a margin of 1030 points.
CRASH!
It's a thunderstorm sweeping over Pittsfield, Massachusetts. But G-E engineers, instead of hiding under the bed, go up on the roof of the Pittsfield Works. They have built and equipped a lightning observatory. By means of an ingenious periscope and a high-speed, motor-driven camera, any lightning flash occurring within many miles—north, south, east, or west—can be automatically photographed. Its characteristics, as recorded on the film, can then be compared with those of the artificial flashes produced by the 100,000-volt lightning generator in the laboratory.
An observatory has to have a hole in the roof. To keep the rain from falling on the 12 lenses of the camera—and from running down the engineers' necks—compressed air is blown upward through the aperture. When next the thunder rolls over the Berkshires, and timid citizens are covering under the bedclothes, these G-E engineers will be up on the roof taking notes on Jove's own kind of lightning.
CAME BID
DOUBLED! Redoubled! North led, but the dummy was 6900 miles away. He bids low and fast when a North American contract-bridge team, including Mr. and Mrs. Ely Culbertson, played a "bridgeless" tournament with a high-ranking team from Argentina. The North Americans were seated on the stage of Rice Hall in the General Electric Company, at Schenectady, N. Y., while the Argentine team played at the Casah Club.

Going to town with Luckies
A LIGHT SMOKE
of rich, ripe-bodied tobacco

Over a period of years, certain basic advances have been made in the selection and treatment of cigarette tobaccos for Lucky Strike Cigarettes. They include preliminary analyses of the tobacco selected; use of center leaves; the higher heat treatment of tobacco ("Toasting"); consideration of acid-alkaline balance, with consequent definite improvement in flavor; and controlled uniformity in the finished product. All these combine to produce a superior cigarette—a modern cigarette, a cigarette made of rich, ripe-bodied tobaccos—A Light Smoke.

Luckies are less acid

Recent chemical tests show that other popular brands have an excess of acidity over Lucky Strike of from 53% to 100%.

112 W. MAIN—5 DOORS WEST OF LIME

Seen From The PRESS BOX

By MAXIE LANCASTER

Another football game at college writing is about to be indulged in while "the olde sports editor," Joe Quinn, catches up on some of that soap he lost last night while studying that ancient art of poker playing.

While this little bit of sports slash is put into your P. O. box the Kentucky Wildcats will have won or lost another basketball game.

They are sojourning in the famous basketball state of Indiana where they played Notre Dame last night at South Bend, and swe-p own on an Indianapolis tonight to encounter the highly rated Butler Bulldogs.

Every hing seems to be "hunky-dory" down in Knoxville today. Major Bob Neyland is in town. And there to seek victories with the Tennessee Volunteers for the next five years.

Neyland left the Tennessee institute last year following military orders and the famous Volunteer football team that Major had been building up since 1928 completely, losing games to five of their strongest rivals.

When questioned the other day about football coaching Neyland said, "I don't think I'll ever back to the Army. It's football from now on."

Maybe Coach Adolph Rupp should schedule the New York University Violets on some court other than Madison Square Garden. The Violets lost two games last week, one to Georgetown University of Washington, D. C. and one to Temple University.

Marion Miley, Lexington's gift to feminine golfism, suffered another loss Saturday afternoon in Miami. Patty Berg, Minneapolis school girl, hauled Mar on the water, and second time this season the Minnesota red-head has conquered the Lexingtonian.

The annual race for state basketball honors seems to be gaining momentum at the present time. Athletic teams to be selected to represent the state at the national basketball tournament, sponsored by the University, are the University of Kentucky, the University of Tennessee, the University of North Carolina, and the University of Virginia.

SECOND ALABAMA TILT GOES TO CATS 40-34

For the second time in the same week Kentucky's Wildcats overpowered Alabama's smooth-working basketball squad when they scored a 40 to 34 win over the Tide-men last Friday night in Alumni gym.

Outplayed and outscored in the early stages of the contest, the Wildcats, gaining new life with the insertion of J. Rice Walker into the lineup, ran roughshod in the final few minutes of the first half to gain a one-point edge at half time.

time. During the 'cat rally the ball changed hands so rapidly that the large crowd was on its feet in excitement for several minutes.

After the second half got underway the final issue was seldom in doubt. Kentucky immediately added several points before Alabama could register and opened up a gap which the Tide was never able to surmount.

The game started off slowly with both teams feeling their way cautiously. After a little more than a minute had been played McLeod counted with a long heave for Tom's first points but Lewis rebounded to tie up the game.

Soon after the second period began, Anderson made a free throw and Lewis and Ralph Carlisle chalked up four points between them before McLeod scored for the Tide. Carlisle, Donohue and Walker added more Kentucky points as the 'Cats pushed far out in front before ten minutes had passed.

After Walker had been banished on fouls, the Tide started another assault on the hoop which brought them within five points of the home team but Anderson's crisp along with Carlisle's one-handed and a field goal and free throw by Garland Lewis kept the Wildcats well out in front and they coasted in a deservng victory.

Ralph Carlisle with 15 points and Garland Lewis with 11 were high men for Kentucky with J. Rice Walker in third place with 7 points. Noel, Alabama back court man and Boska, forward, combined to total 21 of Alabama's points, mainly through their distance shooting efforts.

Sport Sketches

By BOBBY EVANS

While in Knoxville Tuesday and Wednesday for the Kentucky-Tennessee boxing meet, we were able to get the latest reports on Herbie Tade, and to mold this in the form of a sport sketch.

Herbie was born at Faduah, Ky., in 1914. He is 6 feet tall and weighs 185 pounds, a junior in the College of Education and a member of Vols Program Committee.

Although every fraternity on the Tennessee campus has made a strong bid to stick a pledge pin in the Kentuckian's lapel, Herbie is all a member of the G. D. I. (great deal independent).

We have already read about this irreproachable character, but to make sure that these reports were true and not for the purpose of making a living martyr of the injured athlete, your correspondent made a thorough investigation of the question to find that the statements were decidedly true.

Some of the reports about Tade's condition were discouraging; others were more optimistic. Only his closest friends are allowed to visit him. His speech has improved very little and his memory is still vague.
