Gov. Nunn Asks Record Budget For Education

By ROBERT F. BRANDT
Gov. Louie B. Nunn presented his recommended $2.5 billion biennial budget to a joint session of the General Assembly Tuesday night with a major emphasis on education and with the first increase for school operating expenses and capital outlay allowances in the last eight years.

The total general fund recommended for the University for the 1968-70 period was $98,662,770. The trust and agency fund for UK totaled $69,154,700.

The 1968-70 recommended budget will allow continuation of all present instructional programs and a projected 11 percent enrollment increase. Faculty salary increases will maintain the University's present competitive position.

The budget also provided for the opening of two new community colleges at Hazard and Maysville, and continued activation of Jefferson Community College.

Money for expanded activity in the UK agricultural experiment station is included. Extramural support for research at the University has increased about $5 million in 1966-68, and continued expansion is expected in 1968-70.

A proposed two-cent-per-dollar increase in the sales tax, and a vehicle license increase from $5 to $12.50 are to finance the budget increase. It would raise $192 million for the general fund and $52.4 million extra for the road fund. The remainder of the new money would come from federal grants.

Gov. Nunn said in his address to the assembly "Approximately 66 percent of the total general fund budget is going to education. Its major function is very properly upon education," he said. "In its pages are the faces of children who depend upon it for their education; the faces of young men and women who depend upon this budget for their university and college education."

"It recognizes the long-term economy of investing $170 million in the next two years to enable Kentucky's sons and daughters to attend our six major institutions," he said.

Republicans cheered Gov. Nunn's new budget. Democrats didn't believe what they had heard. House Speaker Pro Tem Terry McBrayer (D-Greenup) said, "It's a hell of a lot more than he needed during the campaign."

The assembly is to reconvene Wednesday although it is not known when or if the budget will be approved.

Tables Turned

It is usually the newsmen who ask all the questions. But Lexington Herald Editor Don Mills found the tables had turned on him Tuesday afternoon at the Foci luncheon. Now it was he who had to answer questions from University faculty members. Story on page 2.

Grad Says Charges Unfounded

By LARRY DALE KEELING
James M. Jones Jr., the teacher suspended from Gallatin County High School for discussing controversial subjects in class, denied Tuesday that he had discussed abortion with a seventh grade class, as previously reported, or that he used Playboy as a textbook.

Mr. Jones, a UK graduate said that newspaper reports of the incident were false on these two subjects.

"I teach 10th, 11th, and 12th grade American history and government," he said. "The only thing I have to do with the seventh grade is a study hall."

He said that he had discussed such topics as abortion, new morality, hippies and the Pueblo incident with his classes (but never with the study hall) because the students had had a poor background in current events.

"Abortion is something that we will have to vote on in a couple of years," he said. "I didn't say it was good and I didn't tell anyone to go out and get one."

Mr. Jones also denied the charge that he had used Playboy as a textbook.

"I brought a wide variety of magazines to class to show the students what would be found on a reputable newsstand."

"I did not teach out Playboy. I didn't use it as a textbook. It was only on display."

Mr. Jones said that he also brought Atlantic Monthly, Harper's, Ramparts, Life, Look, Time and Newsweek among others to the classroom.

Mr. Jones said that when the principle of the school said that Playboy should be taken out of the class that he agreed to do so. "But I refused to relinquish my right to discuss controversial subjects," he added.

He is to appear before the school board on Feb. 29 for action on his suspension.

Trustees Hold Routine Meeting

3 Officials Change Titles

By MARTIN E. WEBB
Business went as usual yesterday during a routine meeting of the University Board of Trustees—the "ayes" had it, as all recommendations suggested by President John W. Oswald were approved.

The appointment of Jack Hall, former associate dean of students, was approved by the board to fill the new position of dean of students.

Joe Burch, legal counsel and staff assistant for student affairs, was approved to fill the position of assistant to the vice president.

In a half-hour talk, President Oswald touched briefly on the various programs and research activities being carried on at the University.

Activities ranged from the first "teleducation" link from Lexington to the Paducah campus to research studies being conducted in the area of "heat elimination in desert lizards."

Dr. Oswald also pointed out to the board that spring enrollment for the University was 1,200 above last year's figures.

A breakdown by classes shows 2,935 freshmen; 2,682 sophomores; 3,247 juniors; 2,866 seniors; 1,885 graduate students; 45 auditors and 13 transient students.

In other business, it was approved that the University enter into a formal agreement with the Blue Grass Association for Retarded Children, principally to provide "resources and programs for the training of teachers and other personnel" necessary for the program.

One objection was raised, however, when board member

A. B. Chandler questioned the financial obligations the Lincoln school would incur on the University.

Mr. Chandler questioned the implications of a contractual relationship with the school. He said that a contract implied formal obligations which would result in financial demands by the school.

A Lincoln representative explained that at present the school only wants to use UK classroom facilities and other similar resources. He foresaw no financial obligations, on the part of UK; but he said he couldn't predict what might happen in the future.

Quiz Winners

SEN. KENNEDY

Kennedy: Education Is Appalachia's Hope

Kentucky College Press Service
PIPPA PASSES, Ky. — Sen. Robert F. Kennedy, touring Eastern Kentucky to see rural poverty first hand, said Tuesday night that Appalachia's future is its educated people.

"Without people with education this area is going to continue to suffer," he said. "But people with education can make a major difference."

Sen. Kennedy stopped overnight at Alice Lloyd College here after a day of hearings and field inspections. He visits the Whitesburg area today.

"There is great wealth here, great possibility here, but there has to be people who will go out and fight for Eastern Kentucky," he said. "That's what's desperately needed—people who will stand on their feet and fight for the area."

A great deal can be done here, he went on. "The ones who are going to make the difference are you, those of you with education. The people who can help those who so desperately need help, as well as make a difference for their own lives, are you," he told the students.

Says Stay In Kentucky

He urged the youth "to stay in Eastern Kentucky to speak up," and to form an active political force. "You have a major role to play; I wouldn't discount it. When you see injustices, speak out, and try to remedy them. There is no reason you have to accept them. Speak out, say that because of your education, your training, your strong feeling on these matters, you are going to work to bring a change. I think a lot can be done."

College students have a special responsibility, obligation and chance to change this, he said. "If all of us meet our responsibilities . . . it will benefit the people of Eastern Kentucky, who so desperately need it."

After a brief talk the senator fielded nearly two hours of questions from the audience, largely Alice Lloyd students. He reiterated his plans to "stay out of the 1968 presidential election" and that he opposes the way the war is being fought. The crowd gave him a standing ovation.

Sen. Kennedy is conducting this tour as acting chairman of the Senate subcommittee on employee and manpower, which writes anti-poverty legislation. With him is Congressman Carl Perkins (D-Ky.) and representatives of Sen. John Sherman Cooper (R-Ky.) and Gov. Louie B. Nunn.

He began the day at Vortex, where residents told him the biggest need was jobs. New industry, they said, would help keep young people from being lured into big cities.

Stopping at a one-room schoolhouse in Breathitt County, he talked with the young pupils. Some had come to school without breakfast.

The junior senator from New York visited several homes along the way, asking about their needs. Sen. Kennedy's caravan also stopped at an ex-coal mining community on Yellow Creek in Knott County. There was also a tour of a strip mine which has devastated the hillsides.

"I'm really impressed with what I've seen," he said in the evening, "and I'm impressed with what needs to be done."

Movie: 'Madding Crowd' Captures Old England

By D. C. MOORE

"Far From The Madding Crowd," now showing at the Strand Theatre in downtown Lexington, is a movie of superb photography and excellent characterization.

The movie based on the Thomas Hardy novel captures the past with considerable accuracy.

The locale of the movie is rural England during the Victorian era. In a farm setting along the English seacoast, Bethsheba Everdene (Julie Christie) has inherited an estate which she decides to run by herself.

There are three men who desire her, the first being Gabriel Oak (Alan Bates), a sheepherder who comes to work for her almost by accident; the second, William Boldwood (Peter Finch) a man who owns an adjoining estate and seeks to marry Bethsheba. But Frank Troy (Terrence Stamp), who is a soldier, is the one who first wins Bethsheba's hand, but he loves another woman Fanny Robin (Prunella Ransome).

From the start of the movie to its finish, the characters play in an outdoor setting that is natural. From the top of cliffs to the sea, from the sowing of corn to the harvest, there is nothing that is false in the setting.

If you do decide to go see the film, be sure to watch for some surprise photographic tricks that highlight the movie.

Graphics '68 Extended Week

"Graphics '68," an exhibition of recent American prints, will continue at the UK Art Gallery through Feb. 18. The show was earlier scheduled to close on Feb. 11.

An extensive catalogue, documenting the exhibition with an essay, numerous illustrations and biographical sketches of each of the 82 artists represented, has been published and is now available at the Art Gallery.

The Art Gallery, located in the Fine Arts Building on Rose Street, will be open for the remainder of the "Graphics '68" exhibition at the following times: Monday through Friday, 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m.; Saturday and Sunday, 1:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m.; Tuesday and Thursday, 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m.

Exhibitions at the Art Gallery during the remainder of this semester are: "John Tuska: Recent Ceramics," Feb. 25 through March 17; "Ray Barnhart: Recent Work and A Retrospect," March 24 through April 21, and "Art Students Exhibition," April 28 through May 15.

Who Writes Those Loaded Poll Questions?

New Editor Defends Herald At Foci

By DANA EWELL
Faculty Foci started Tuesday noon with the focus on the state legislature, but the spotlight soon turned to what one person called "the Wachs rebellion."
The program and the signs said that Fred B. Wachs, general manager and publisher of the Lexington Herald-Leader, was to be guest speaker for the faculty luncheon. But Mr. Wachs said he had other business responsibilities and sent Herald editor Don Mills.

Mr. Mills, a graduate of UK's Journalism Department and press secretary for former Gov. Ned Breathitt, has been editor of the Herald about four weeks.

Although Mr. Mills talked of major issues facing the General Assembly this session, the faculty quickly switched attention to the news and editorial policies of the Herald during a lengthy question-answer period.

In somewhat of a classroom situation, faculty members raised their hands and fired questions at the editor.

What control do you have over Herald news coverage? Who decides what news stories will be used? Who writes the loaded poll questions, like Saturday's "Should students at state-supported colleges be expelled for anti-American activities?"

Mr. Mills answered the questions, reminding his audience several times that he has been editor but for four weeks and is still "investigating" Herald policies himself.

"I set the editorial page policy," Mr. Mills said. "The publisher is in charge of the news. I just make suggestions. And over a period of time the publisher, sometimes indirectly, sets the tone of news coverage," Mr. Mills added.

Mr. Mills cited slight coverage of race riots as one example of Publisher Fred Wachs' news philosophy. Mr. Wachs, Mr. Mills explained, feels he is performing a community service by not "playing up" news which might aggravate the racial situation in Lexington.

"I think one of the purposes of a newspaper is to lead," Editor Mills said. "A newspaper should serve its community and the people ought to play a part in what the newspaper says."

"I came to the Herald because it offers me a challenge and an opportunity to express my views on local and national issues," Mr. Mills added after the meeting. "I see areas of the Herald in need of improvement. I think it should serve the academic community as well as the city of Lexington."

"The academic community should express itself," Mr. Mills said. "The publisher may not agree, but then that's his right." The luncheon was like that.

Questions and answers drew both applause and laughter, but they all expressed a concern for the quality and content of the community's news coverage.
"Now I know why I'm here," Editor Mills quipped.

Students To Vote On Issues And Primary

WASHINGTON (CPS)—College students will vote April 24 on 14 presidential candidates and three referendum questions on the Vietnam war and on urban crisis.

The 11 student leaders who make up the board of directors of Choice '68, the National Collegiate Presidential Primary funded by Time Magazine, have announced the candidates and issues to appear on the April 24 ballot.

Listed on the ballot for president will the Democrats Lyndon Johnson, Robert Kennedy and Eugene McCarthy, Republicans Richard Nixon, George Romney, Nelson Rockefeller, Ronald Reagan, Mark Hatfield, John Lindsay, Charles Percy and Harold Stassen.

Also on the ballot are former Alabama Gov. George Wallace (American Independent Party), Dr. Martin Luther King and Fred Halstead of the Socialist Workers Party.

The candidates will all be listed in alphabetical order. Students will pick their first, second, and third choices. The first choices will be used to determine the winner, while the second and third choices will be used for analysis. Write-ins will be permitted.

Also on the ballot are two questions on Vietnam and one on urban problems. They are:

"What course of military action should the United States pursue in Vietnam? Immediate withdrawal of American forces, phased reduction of American military activity, maintain current level of American military activity, increase the level of American military activity or 'all out' American military effort."

"What course of action should the United States follow in regard to the bombing of North Vietnam? Permanent cessation of the bombing, temporary suspension of bombing, maintain current level of bombing, intensify bombing or use of nuclear weapons."

"In confronting the 'urban crisis,' which of the following should receive highest priority in governmental spending? Education, job training and employment opportunities, housing, income subsidy or riot control and stricter law enforcement."

The organizers of the ballot hope to have 1,500 colleges participating. Bob Harris, executive director of the project, says that more than 1,000 colleges with enrollments of over five million students have already agreed to participate.

Harris and members of the board of directors emphasize that Time's involvement is limited to funding the program and that all decisions about who went on the ballot, as well as the tabulation in April, is being done independently of the magazine. Harris said the group was trying to set up a television special to announce the results.

The board of directors met for the last four days in Washington. Besides long sessions of writing the ballot, they also met with newsmen and young Republican and Democratic leaders, and spent 45 minutes at the White House meeting with President Johnson.

PAG To Picket Dow Recruiters

The Peace Action Group (PAG) made plans Tuesday night to "peacefully picket" the Dow Chemical Co. recruiters at the placement office in the Old Agricultural Building today.

Rick Rose, meeting chairman, stressed that the demonstration would be a "constant and fluid motion through and around the building, no blocking of ingress or egress," just members carrying signs.

"If anything we've done in the past means anything we have to be out there tomorrow picketing," Dave Elkinton, Arts and Sciences junior, said. "All we can do is make our moral presence known."

Individuals within the group suggested that Dow would be "lamponed" without the PAG demonstration. Acting at their own initiative, without PAG endorsement, several planned to schedule interviews throughout the day to talk with the recruiters.

UK Official Dies

Associate Director of the UK Physical Plant Clyde Lilly, 52, died at St. Joseph Hospital at 4:25 p.m. Tuesday.

The apparent cause of death, according to the attending physician Dr. Ernest Welch, was gastro-intestinal bleeding. He said Mr. Lilly had suffered a week's illness before dying.

'68 Oldsmobile: Great spot for a sit-in.

You're looking at the year's sweetest place for a sit-in—Olds 4-4-2. This is the scene: Louvered hood up front. Crisp sculpturing in the rear. Rally Stripe and Custom Sport Wheels available in between.

And what gleams beneath that rakish afterdeck? Two telltale flared exhausts that give voice to a 400-cube, 4-barrel, 350-hp Rocket V-8. And look where you live: in foam-padded, bucket-seat comfort.

The center console is also available, as is the clock/tach/engine gauge Rally Pac. And with all the new GM safety features, including energy-absorbing steering column, 4-4-2 is the greatest sit-in you ever sat in.

Olds 4-4-2—one of the youngmobiles from Oldsmobile—named "Top Performance Car of the Year" by CARS Magazine.

Some History Ignored

This is National Negro History Education Week but it is evident that UK's history department, inadequately funded and under-staffed, will not be celebrating it this week, next year, or even the year after that. A petition asking for an Afro-American history course and signed by 900 UK students will be presented to the history department this week. While it is more than obvious that this neglected area of history should be offered a more flagrant omission exists. There is no course offered by UK's history department on the second largest continent in the world, a continent with some 41 nations and over 300 million people. For the student body Africa still remains the "dark continent" a place with no history.

Dr. Carl B. Cone, chairman of the UK history department said that Africa was a legitimate field but that the department had no one qualified to teach the subject, nor extra funds to allocate to such a person. There are courses offered in the Otterman Empire, Middle Eastern History and the British Empire which touch on some aspects of Africa but no one course that specializes on Sub-Saharan African history, past and present.

It is disturbing that the history of millions of peoples is placed in the background, especially so when the United States is making an effort to extend help to the African nations and influence them. If America finds it necessary to influence the nations of Africa then it is necessary for her people to understand Africa. Vice President Humphrey can not be our sole ambassador.

Student Center Director, Frank Harris, who taught in Tanzania for two years, said that it would be to our advantage to offer a course which studies the current and past history of Africa. "At present it's just a large continent but in the future many of the small nations will combine, someday all uniting in an astronomical power bloc."

Many historians have compared the African nations to the American states and predict a United States of Africa in the near future. Harris added that we should be better versed in African history in light of the potential power bloc.

Dr. Hanchel, UK professor in the Agricultural Economics Department commented that the total university offerings on Africa are inadequate. "Obviously Africa is going to be a major area of world attention and we better know something about it," he said.

Georges Nzongola, a UK student from the Congo said that Black Americans here believe that there has not been any significant history taking place in Africa, and thus their ancestors were failures. Ezekiel Oke, UK student from Nigeria said that most big universities in the North offer African history but not in the South. "If they can introduce African history it would be a great benefit," he said.

Etim Ituem, UK student from Nigeria, said that Americans should know the truth about Africa because it is the truth that makes us free. Africa today has influence today on the whole world, he added, and it is good for the American people to understand the whole of history, not a part of it.

The UK history department should seriously consider the addition of an Afro-American history course and a Sub-Saharan African history course in the near future. Many universities are setting up African Studies Programs. The very least we can do is offer these two courses. History today demands it.

Kernel Forum: the readers write

To the Editor of the Kernel:

I trust that you can find space for a letter from a former Kernel Editor and present subscriber—not that I expect to accomplish anything by it further than to cause some indulgent smiles over the effusions of an old grad and "square" of the class of 1916.

When one reads in your issues of the tremendous travail of certain students over civil rights, free speech, the conduct of U.S. foreign policy, the right of our country to call men to the colors for war service, and the like, he wonders when and how the undergraduates find time for such things as study and athletic endeavor for dear old Alma Mater.

How different from my time in college, when the students were content to let the management run the university and the duly elected political leaders take care of the state and nation's governmental problems. Our idea of academic freedom was the freedom to go somewhere else if we did not like the advantages the university had to offer.

Most of us also had the idea that a university newspaper should have something of a literary flavor, with at least a sprinkling of humor, if you will pardon the stroke of the dagger.

The cartoon on the editorial page of your February 2nd issue villifying the Daughters of the American Revolution and attempting to glorify the rude and mannerless Miss Kitt was, in my opinion, an insult to the George Washington pictured in the cartoon and to the men and women of our country who have loved it and served it, including those named in our beautiful campus memorial building, such as Reuben Hutchcraft, Raymond Schoberth, Howard Kinney, Blevis, and many others who laid down their lives for their country in a foreign land.

While I am writing let me propose a question about your campus hearts that bleed so profusely over free speech and the like when some Godless communist or preacher of violence is denied the privilege of speaking on the campus. It is this: Can you not study venomous reptiles without taking them into your bosom?

Though a resident of Tennessee I have the honor to be a native of Kentucky and a proud graduate of her great university.

To the Editor of the Kernel:

After reading your editorial of Feb. 6 entitled "and letting a Draft in?" I was overcome with a sensation of sickness and disgust that can only be topped by eating at Donovan cafeteria.

This journalistic disaster completely circled the issue of the draft, but did not actually touch upon it at any time. You "masterfully" (sic) stated the case against the draft, but left several gaping flaws readily apparent.

Granted, the compulsory military service system makes some people go against their own ideals, but this is only because these people wish to remain in this great country. If Don Pratt, or anyone else, decides that he cannot conscientiously serve, no one is going to stand behind him with a gun and make him stay here.

He can leave just as easily as anyone else. If an individual chooses to live in a particular society, he must obey the rules that the majority of that society set forth or get out.

In America the draft is one rule that has been imposed by the majority. If Danny Dissenter doesn't like it—TOUGH. He can either take it or leave.

You also stated how "military men are often proud of dropping a bomb that kills hundreds of people as sane men would be of saving that many people." This is easy for you to say sitting in your comfortable office, pecking on your pansy yellow typewriter with backbone to match.

I seriously doubt the average person gets any joy out of killing, and yet, believe it or not, military men are people. It is highly questionable that the combat pilots write home bragging of the masses that they have annihilated.

I find it unbelievable that the typical U.S. field soldier gets a thrill out of shooting a Viet Cong. The war in Vietnam, as in other wars, poses two alternatives—kill or be killed.

It is hard to believe that you would start peace talks by running through the rice paddies of Vietnam flowering the Cong with your peace and anti-draft editorials, but you seem to think so.

Again, if a person finds the draft morally wrong fine! Kosygin, De Gaulle, Ho, and any number of other countries would love to have him.

But if he loves this country enough, he realizes that two years is an infinitely small sum to pay for the lifetime benefits of being an American.

Tennessee's Tom Boerwinkle (35) defends against UK's Dan Issel (44) in Monday night's 60-59 Wildcat win. Boerwinkle said UK and UT would meet again this season—in a playoff.

Boerwinkle Sees UK-Vol Playoff

By DON CASSADY

As the steamy Tennessee dressing room door opened 20 minutes after Kentucky had defeated the Volunteers 60-59, Tom Boerwinkle strolled out.

One couldn't miss him. Face unshaven, he was clothed in a white trench coat and had the look of a defeated player.

He walked from the dressing room to the playing floor where he met some friends from home. Boerwinkle chatted with them awhile before two pro scouts hustled him off to a corner.

Boerwinkle told them that he had no preference as far as teams were concerned.

"Whichever one drafts me first, I'll go there," he told them.

Next, he strolled over toward the press table. Before he got there Big Tom met his sister at midcourt. After exchanging greetings, Boerwinkle stopped and talked about the conference race, Dan Issel, and the game.

"The conference race has definitely tightened up," he said. "We go to Vandy Saturday. That should tell us something."

Lambda Chi, DTD Gain Frat Final

Delta Tau Delta and Lambda Chi Alpha posted semi-final Fraternity League basketball victories Tuesday night and will square off at 9 p.m. Thursday in Alumni gym to find out who is tops in Greek basketball.

A tenacious Sigma Chi defense kept LXA from scoring a single field goal during the second half, but Lambda Chi netted 17 free throws to gain a 35 to 29 win.

Delta Tau Delta's Danny Corbett hit for 13 and Greg Scott swished 10 as DTD downed Alpha Gamma Rho 32-29.

"I believe Kentucky will lose another game. They haven't been to Georgia yet and it's rough down there."

The senior from Independence, Ohio scored 18 points and grabbed 15 rebounds. Dan Issel, UK's sophomore center, scored 15 points and pulled down seven rebounds.

"Issel's a good ball player," stated the seven-foot center.

"He's a good shot and has a lot of moves. He's a good boy. Issel's got a lot of time to improve, too."

Already Issel is tabbed by many as one of the best SEC centers. What does Boerwinkle think about this?

"I don't know. I'd say he's in the top half. He's not as tough as (Neal) Walk or (Bob) Lienhard. Neal is the toughest center in the league."

In the Vandy game this Saturday, Boerwinkle faces 6 foot 5 inches Perry Wallace. How is Wallace working out at center?

"Against us the first time he didn't score and only got two rebounds. I really haven't seen him too much."

Kentucky's defense charged only slightly from the first time the two teams met in Knoxville. Then Kentucky used a zone and a man-to-man defense. Monday night the 'Cats used only the zone.

MANDATE (Is For Women Too)

Finally, A New Approach To Computer Dating!

Insignificant factors such as the speed of your backhand at the ping pong table, your cunning with the pin ball machine, and your interest in the dodo bird are not used by MANDATE in computing your dates.

Instead, we have decided to match college students according to mates that have proven to be more important in determining the success of a relationship between a guy and a girl. Topics ranging from sexual values to political opinions are used to predict mutual attraction for you and your dates.

In addition to this, MANDATE also has the following features:

—a different computer run will be made for each school to insure that your dates will be exclusively from the University of Kentucky.

—a rapid reply is guaranteed (2-3 weeks) if you forward your "response box" within 5 days of this publication.

Read the instructions and then proceed with the questionnaire. Before you fill in the "response box," you might want to make some copies for friends who would enjoy a new twist in computer dating.

GENERAL INSTRUCTIONS

After each question, you are given several alternatives for your response. For each question there is a corresponding number in the "response box." Merely write the number of the alternative you select after the appropriate number in the "response box." Then cut the "response box" out, and mail along with $3.00 to:

MANDATE P.O. Box 1687, Madison, Wisconsin 53701

On questions such as number 8 where you are given a scale with 5 choices, select the number (1-5) which is most representative of your position on this scale. Have fun and happy dating.
