Louisville, Ky., Oct. 11.—(INS)—More than 200 golfers merrily cluttering up the tricky Country Club course here with practice shots today gave fair warning that tomorrow's inaugural of the Louisville open tourney for $5,000 and another mad free-for-all scramble.

FIND AMMUNITION HUT

Moscow, Oct. 11.—(INS)—A hut built by the Arctic explorer Raouf Amundsen on his polar expedition of 1919, which served as the last home of his two brave companions, Kjusden and Crenshaw, was found last August 7 by a Soviet wintering party on the Bay of Chelyud. It was discovered in a message reaching Moscow today. The Soviet party found the following tragic notation in Gessen's diary, discovered in the hut: "We feel we are leaving this place possessing enough canned beef for us and our dogs for 15 days. We wish any wanderer who will visit this hut every comfort."

DR. J. H. MARTIN REVIEWS PLANS

Head of Poultry Department At UK Addresses Group at Annual Poultry Field Day; AAA Speaker Attends

Dr. J. Holmes Martin, head of the poultry department at the agricultural experiment station, in an address at the annual poultry field day, declared that the experiment station is saving farmers thousands of dollars annually in selling them what not to do. He related several instances where farmers, possessed of wild, get-rich-quick schemes, had been put right. The station has done much to keep farmers from using so-called stock remedies, egg producers, and other methods alleged to produce magic results, he said. Doctor Martin reviewed in particular the work of the poultry department in formulating rationing, breeding experiments, control of diseases and pests, housing and other problems. The department was formed more than 20 years ago by D. D. Slade, now in the hatchery business in Lexington, president of the International Baby Chick Association and chairman of the national poultry code coordinating committee.

Mr. Slade and W. D. Termohien, representing the Agricultural Adjustment Administration, discussed the hatchery code with a large number of breeders following the speaking program in the afternoon. Another delegation of visitors, guided by W. M. Insko Jr., inspected the Experiment Station poultry plant and flocks.

Speaking at the morning session, Mr. Termohien urged the need of better organization of the poultry industry in order to take full advantage of the Agricultural Adjustment Act. He discussed codes, marketing agreements, production control, government purchases for relief purposes and other plans to help stabilize the poultry industry. Among benefits of codes, Mr. Termohien brought out that racketeering had been eliminated from the poultry industry in New York.

Senior Cabinet Discusses Plans For Convention

Cabinet of YMCA Holds Regular Meeting in Alumni Hall

The senior cabinet of the Y. M. C. A. of the University decided at its regular meeting Tuesday night in Alumni hall the number and the nature of the topics to be discussed in the fraternities, dormitories, and rooming houses. Plans for the forthcoming state Y. M. C. A. Convention were discussed.

The state student cabinet of the Y. M. C. A. decided at a meeting Monday, that the State Conference will be held at Morehead, December 7, 8 and 9. The group was presided over by E. S. Lospitch, state secretary of the Y. M. C. A. A program was drawn up for the forthcoming convention, and it was decided that Dean Thomas W. Graham, of the Theological School at Oberlin College, would be the chief speaker.

Mr. R. H. King, regional secretary of the Y. M. C. A., made a short talk to the assembly. The following representatives were present:

Arthur Wildcraft, Gilbert R. Hubbard, Elbert Johns, Dear W. Colvard, Cecil Culbertson, Berea College; George W. Bailey, Morehead College; Woodrow Chamberlain, Hugh Jefferson, Centre college; E. S. Lospitch, Louisville; and Glenn Clark, Union college.

The freshman cabinet meeting was presided over by Arthur Plummer, president of the freshman cabini, and Jack Carry, director. Dr. C. C. Ross, College of Education, addressed the group. Plans for a membership drive were discussed.

The second of the regular weekly meetings of the Y. M. C. A. was held in Bradley hall at 7 o'clock last night. Prof. W. R. Southerland, department of English and public speaking, was guest speaker.

Delegates Discuss National Meeting

Reports of the national Home Economics convention held this past summer in New York were given at the annual meeting of the Home Economics club last night in the Agricultural building. Isabelle Nadelstein and Eleanor Saecker were representatives of the club at the convention. Miss Nadelstein reported on the production and social features of the convention, while Miss Saecker discussed the student's viewpoint.

A social hour followed the reading of the reports with refreshments served by the entertainment committee.

The first business meeting of the club was held a few weeks ago. At that time plans for the year were discussed and freshman girls were assigned to upperclass girls to serve as "little sisters." Margaret Jones was elected freshman representative to attend the business meetings of the club.

Advanced English Courses Offered

In a bulletin issued today by the University extension department, it was announced that tentative arrangements have been made by the department in conjunction with the English department to offer two courses in advanced English at the Ashland high school. Dr. W. F. Galloway, assistant professor in the English department, will be in charge if plans now in the process of completion are put into effect. Doctor Galloway visited Ashland last Thursday and met with a group of students to discuss the courses.

PRE-MED STUDENTS HEAR DR. MAXWELL

Dr. Rufus Allie, prominent physician and member of the Lexington Clinic, spoke to the pre-med students and interested public at the University of Kentucky Museum of Archaeology last night. The subject of the lecture was "Cancer, and Its Effects on the Body."

Doctor Allie is teaching a course in pathology at the University this semester. His lecture is under the auspices of the University Pryor Pre-Medical society and is given annually. Actual specimens and slides were used as illustrations. The lecture dealt with the kinds of cancer and the problem of the disease being transferred from person to person.

FIRST MEETING OF MATH CLUB IS HELD

The White Mathematics club held its first meeting of this semester Thursday at 4 p. m. in room 103 McVey hall. Officers for the coming year are: Dorothy Lykins, president; Anna Jeanne Blackburn, secretary; Henry Spragens, chairman of the program committee.

The program consisted of a short history of the club given by the president, Dorothy Lykins, and a talk by Dr. C. C. Latimer, of the mathematics department.

Lexington Alumni Choose Officers

Miss Marguerite McLaughlin Re-elected President At Meeting

Miss Marguerite McLaughlin, assistant professor in journalism at the University, was re-elected president of the Lexington Alumni club Monday evening following the regular meeting held in the Rose Room of the Phoenix hotel.

Dr. E. Cronley Elliott, Annette Kelly, and Robert Sabers, were elected vice-president, secretary, and treasurer, respectively.

The business of the meeting dealt with plans of the organization for the annual homecoming game with Alabama, which will take place November 3.

Miss Helen King, Miss Mildred Morris, James Salvers, James Shropshire, Miss Betty Hulet, Miss Billy Whitlow, Robert Salvers, Niel Plummer, and Maury J. Crutcher all were appointed to serve as a committee to formulate plans for the celebration.

Plans completed by the association included arrangements for the annual basketball game with the student loan fund and a get-together-reunion for the members.

CHALLENGE CHATS

Conducted by Sylvester Ford

Certainly a great deal is constantly being said about playing fair with others. Today's discussion deals with the reverse of that position, namely,

Playing Fair With Ourselves

We are component representatives of our daily thoughts, actions, and reflexes. Each subtle suggestion that fits through our mind may in itself not appear to have molded any deeper the lines of our character, but in the aggregate, we find character made up of these tiny etchings of circumstance and their voluntary reflexive responses. Excluding the classic dispute over the relative domination of character by heredity and environment, instead of actually formed by the nature of our selective agency, representing some of the dormant traits in the individual mind, and activating others, depending upon the nature of circumstances involved. To this degree the old maxim, "we are a part of all that we have met, true, and the elements of good or bad in one's character depend on whether the preponderance of his experiences have been of a constructive type.

Certainly in any one sphere of activity, which is the normal condition of all individuals, there are encountered but a constant number of opposing circumstances. That this type is the only one stimulating mental or physiological reactions is apparent. One considers that one is never aware of conditions homologous to the elements of our gradually expanding sense of perception. We grow progressively oblivious to the commonplace of our experiences, so it appears that for the development of the timbre of excellence present in varying degree in all persons, new and unique conditions calling forth hitherto unknown reflexes are essential.

Regarding these observations, it seems apparent that we are obliged to exert every possible effort toward the appropriation of as many constructive stimuli as possible, assuming that we are morally responsible for the development of inherent capabilities. If there are alternate experiences within our grasp, the one offering an unfavorable situation should be chosen, believing that the demands made upon our faculties by this novel situation will be more profitable than meeting with known situations the second time. Always circumstances of potential value are to be preferred to those of potential dissipation, and in choosing between two possible goods, the one of greatest developmental possibility is to be preferred. We should adopt our perceptions and our acquired discretion to meeting those situations most likely to present opportunities for further development of character as a response to our duty to ourselves and to the infinite Wisdom supplementing and stimulating our finite personalities.

COOPER TO ADDRESS FIRST AG ASSEMBLY

Dean Thomas Cooper will welcome students of the Agriculture college to the first general agricultural assembly of the year at 9 a. m. today in Memorial hall. An extensive and interesting program has been planned and will include violin music by Eva Mae Nunnaley and a speech by Carl Camenish.

Mr. Camenish will give his original prize-winning speech, "Why Educate for Life on the Farm," which won first prize in a state-wide contest, and fourth place at a regional public speaking contest held at Waterloo, Iowa.

The assembly is the first of a series to be held every second Friday.

'Deutsche Klub' Is Out to Have Hot Time Today

Der "Deutsche Klub," der Universität Kentucky blickt nun mit Stolz die auf erfolgreiche Tätigkeit des vorigen Jahres zurück. This is not a subtle method of dirty-nosing the German professor; neither is it a foreign dispatch concerning the prospects of a war with Germany. It is merely a touch of local color, splashed across a dull gray piece of copy paper to brighten an otherwise impersonal announcement of the first invitational dance of the year.

The invitation is extended to all students who are indulging in German this season; to all students who have an uncontrollable love for poems by Heine, or music by Beethoven; and to all students who are aware of Hitler's latest whims, or who have a friend who is.

To be specific, anyone who had enough curiosity to wade through the opening paragraph of the message under consideration is invited, implored, and beseeched to enjoy himself from 4 to 6 p. m. Friday in the recreation room of Patterson hall.

There will be absolutely no admission, no snappy, hook or crook methods of extradits due out of the German club members, and no German questionnaire to face upon entering.

However, there will be an orchestra directed by Bob McCaughy, playing real American music, and German refreshments which go over pretty well in this country too. Kommen Sie zu der Bräwie!

Strollers' Point Requirements Will Remain Unchanged

Continuing its present policy, Strollers will award points toward Stroller membership to students who serve on the production staff, as well as to students who are selected for the cast of the spring production, according to a statement by W. T. Bishop, president.

While no try-outs will be held this fall for students who desire to work on the production or business end of the spring offering, names of those students interested in this phase of play production will be enrolled October 16 and 17, from 3 until 5 p. m., at the Guilgen theater.

On these dates try-outs will be held for students who are interested in acting. The students who show up best in the try-outs will participate in the annual Stroller amateur night. At this time the winning boy and the winning girl will be awarded silver trophies.

Appointments for try-out for Stroller eligibility and Amateur night may be made by calling W. T. Bishop at the Pi Kappa Alpha house after 6 p. m.

Victor R. Portmann, assistant professor in the Journalism department, will address the National Collegiate Press association convention in Chicago this week. Mr. Portmann's topic will be "Collegiate Journalism." He is executive secretary of the organization.

Bird Study to Be Made by Scientists

Kentucky Ornithologists to Hold Annual Meeting At Wickliffe

The twelfth annual fall meeting of the Kentucky Ornithological society opened yesterday at Wickliffe, and will last until October 14.

The first two days will be spent at the site of the Ancient Buried City, Wickliffe, and headquarters will be moved to the Walnut Lodge hotel, Reelfoot lake for the remaining days.

Many leading ornithologists of Kentucky and adjoining states will be present. Now is the exact time for the study of migrating birds, as numerous flocks of them are passing through this region toward the South, and the trip should prove instructive as well as interesting.

The Ornithological society was organized in 1923 for the scientific study of Kentucky birds. Membership has grown from the original three to more than 100.

Brusher C. Bacon, Madisonville, will preside at the meeting. The four days are being spent in a series of lectures, round-table discussions, and hikes.

The society has for its official organ "The Kentucky Warbler," edited by Dr. Gordon Wilson, Bowling Green.

Dutch Lunch Club

The Dutch Lunch Club will hold its second meeting of this year at noon Friday in the recreation room of Patterson hall. The president Miss Nancy Becker, will preside and Reverend Wilbur Wilson of the First Methodist church will speak.

Kappa Delta Alumnae

The alumnae of Kappa Delta held a meeting at 7:30 p. m. Tuesday at the home of Miss Ruth Mayes on South Hanover. Mrs. Robert Baker was assistant hostess.

Mrs. J. C. Lamb, president of the alumnae, was in charge during the business meeting and Miss Faith Kuter, national inspector made a short speech on "National Phases of Kappa Delta." Following the meeting, a bridge game was enjoyed and refreshments were served.

Meetings of Mothers' Clubs

Kappa Delta Mothers' club met at 2:30 p. m. Tuesday at the chapter house. Mrs. W. T. Fowler presided, and Mrs. William Heintz, housemother, received the guests and served tea and cakes following the meeting.

The Mothers' club of Alpha Xi Delta met Tuesday afternoon at the chapter house. Mrs. William Heintz was in charge of the business meeting at which election of officers was held. The election resulted in the reappointment of Mrs. Heizer, president; Mrs. Davis, vice-president; Mrs. Burrier, secretary; Mrs. DeLong, corresponding secretary, and Mrs. W. J. Carrell, treasurer.

The Delta Tau Delta Mothers met Monday at the chapter house. Out-of-town guests at the meeting were Mrs. W. E. Difford and Mrs. Carroll Weisiger, Louisville.

Alpha Delta Theta Dinner

Alpha Delta Theta entertained with a dinner Tuesday night at the Tea Cup Inn in honor of its initiates, Misses Martha Honerkamp and Betty Tiemeyer.

Autumn flowers were used as decorations and small shoulder bouquets were presented to the honored guests.

Those present were Misses Marianna Lancaster, Agnes Worthington, Ethel Smoot, Lois Robinson, Edna Brumagen, Mary Edith Bach, Stella Bach, Fernie Osborne, Dorothy Martin, Margaret Scott, Mrs. Harold Hill, Mrs. Bertha Allen, housemother, and Mrs. Carroll Ball.

Mrs. Allen Honored

Alpha Delta Theta honored its new housemother, Mrs. Bertha Allen, with a formal tea given yesterday afternoon from 4 to 6 o'clock at the chapter house.

Receiving were Miss Margaret Scotlow, president of the active chapter; Miss Marianna Lancaster, province president; and Mrs. Allen. Mrs. Carroll Ball presided at the tea table.

Guests were the alumnae and patronesses of the sorority; representatives of other campus societies; the sorority and fraternity housemothers; women members of the faculty; and Mrs. Frank L. McVey, Dean Sarah Blanding, and Mrs. P. K. Holmes.

Minerva Club

The Minerva Club of Sigma Alpha Epsilon held its first meeting of the year at 2:30 p. m. Thursday. The mothers of the new pledges were guests of honor. Mrs. Ballard Laxon assisted in entertaining.

Shelby Hall Houses Twenty Students

Shelby hall, the newest addition to the University women's housing unit, is now occupied by 20 women students, who are former 4-H club members from various parts of the State. The hall, which is a residence at 609 Maxwellton court, is operated on a co-operative plan.

Mrs. E. A. Beard, who is hostess for the hall, is in charge of operations. The plan under which the hall is run is worked on a co-operative basis, each resident of the hall furnishing a part of the food which in many instances is brought from the various homes of the girls as a result of their 4-H club canning and preserving program. House work is divided among the residents, each one working on certain days, with expenses divided among the group.

Block and Bridle Club Plans Dance

The Block and Bridle Club will sponsor a dance tonight in the Stock Judging Pavilion. It was decided at the regular meeting of the group held Monday night.

Musical for the dance will be furnished by the Kentucky Colonels, and the admission will be 25 cents per person.

The dance will be sponsored to finance a livestock judging team, which will represent the University in a livestock judging contest to be held at the International Livestock Exposition at Chicago in December.

Preceding the business session, at which plans for the dance were discussed, an address was made by Prof. W. E. Anderson on "The Accomplishments of the Trotting Horse."

Librarians to Attend

Miss Margaret Tuttle, University department librarian, will address the 25th annual convention of the Kentucky Library association in Louisville at the Brown hotel this week.

Miss Margaret I. King, University librarian, will attend the convention with several other Lexington members and will extend an invitation to the organization to hold its 1935 convention in this city.

Books are Received

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser, dean of the Graduate school and head of the department of zoology, today announced that he just received approximately 2,000 books bequeathed to him by the late Dr. Frederic W. Goding, eminent entomologist. The library consists mostly of scientific volumes on the "Homoptera," which Doctor Funkhouser is especially interested in.

This addition to Doctor Funkhouser's own library now makes his collection of manuscripts in this particular field very complete, being one of the largest of its type library in the United States.

Petite Piece

The kind of weather for cutting classes is here. Of course, you can cut any time, but right about now with Indian Summer, a new V8, and a few other things, cutting is more inviting than any other thing I know of. What are we going to do about it?

I once read a feature written by some local fellow who took his car over the hills of the Bluegrass and wrote that he saw during the escapade. One thinks of poetry in combination with autumn, pumpkins and corn shocks—all those things we learned in the fourth or fifth grade—but this little sketch was one of the most informative and entertaining things I have come across in a long time. One could learn a lot about the geography of these counties close to Lexington from the discourse.

There's another thing that happens in the fall that is fun to watch. If there are a few oak trees close to where you live, it's great sport to see the squirrels scampering from tree to tree, via the short route—that is, across the telegraph wires. It was a much surprised columnist who learned that they wave their tails to balance themselves. These present day wonders!

It would have been worth any admission price to have seen the big show over a fast play that the crowd didn't appreciate at Navin field last Tuesday. It would even have been worth the price I would have had to pay, the ultimate result of the tilt; seeing my kinkfolds blasted to the four winds. Poor Tigers!

Splinters—Frank McCown should either blush or get awfully proud very suddenly, for he gets more than his share of publicity this week. To begin with, there is a Hank with the same handle on the Clemson team. And to end with, someone called McCown's frat house and asked for "Yank Myntightown." You can guess what the poor bewildered pledge had to say. And McCown is the goat captain they tell me!... Along with the others who failed to

PRIDE OF KENTUCKY
All the world loves a winner. He is feted, praised, glorified; he is king for the hour. But when his laurels are wrested from him and he ceases to be champion, then sadly enough the public interest in his conquests wanes.
Last Saturday saw the birth of a potential victory. Kentucky's football team traveled to Cincinnati a humble aggregation whose abilities were doubtful and whose hopes for supremacy over the highly touted Ohioans were slight. From somewhere sprang up a spirit of fiery determination, on indefatigable will that was not to be denied. Perfect coordination, teamwork, dazzling execution of formations that bespoke excellent training—all united to bring a triumph to the Blue and White—and the fate that awaits a champion.
Kentucky has shown that she does have a good team, a team that is not wanting for courage and power and brilliance, but it is not an unbeatable team. They are riding high now, but the road ahead is rough and an upset is not to be wondered at. Prior to the conquest of Cincinnati, the school spirit of the University student body was hardly admirable; as the touchdowns were added in that game, so did the enthusiasm and dream castles grow. Potentially our team has great strength; whether they will develop into a mighty scoring machine is a moot question. Much is in their favor; injuries are few and time is steadily improving their playing; they have in Chet Wynne a fine and ambitious coach; the student body, although belatedly conscious of their duty, is now squarely behind the team.
Tomorrow Kentucky once more sends her team out to do battle, and once more it is with a redoubtable foe. Victory is the goal but defeat is possible. In either event, let us continue still to look upon our Wildcats as champions and keep alive the glowing pride that is Kentucky.

sentatives of the foreign affairs of European nations refused to express their opinion of what might be the unfortunate result of the tragedy.
That war might break out at any minute was the general expression of Europeans—but that war would not break out under any condition was the opinion of the youth of Europe.
United with the organizations throughout the world, the pacifist youth movements in France, England, and the Balkan states have continually said "We won't fight." And when the time comes for the propaganda of the war departments, the youth who would be called to arms will be found wanting.
No propaganda addressed to the American student justified the participation of the United States in that crime war to preserve democracy" of 20 years ago. They fought because they knew no better.
But the propaganda of the military leaders of this generation will fail on unheeding ears for the youth of the United States as well as Europe and the rest of the world know that they are merely the unfortunate children of "passé" diplomacy or the insignificant tools of munition makers.
When propaganda begins to come from the militarist student who will face student on the battle field, it won't be the patriots who sit at home, ordering war and making the millions.
And so there will be no war—youth won't kill itself.

MAKING NEW FRIENDS
Why is it that students accuse each other of committing in the proverbial "dirty-nosing" if they appear to be making friends with their professors? After all, some of them are likeable beings and their company is extremely enjoyable.
Another question one might ask is, why do some professors shrink from "making intimacy between them and students in their classes?"
A great injustice is committed against the student many times when he is accused inwardly by the instructor, with whom he is trying to become more friendly, of trying to "get a good grade." Presently, we will admit, such an act is attempted, but many times the student has grown to like his professor through classroom association and opinion on various phases of life in general.
It must be acknowledged that it is difficult for some members of the University faculty to ascertain the meaning of student outside-the-classroom actions. Just how they may judge these actions more accurately is a problem for them to solve; some professors do this readily and others find no place for solving such puzzles.
The faculty will find that students after all, believe in many worthwhile things and not just dances, dates, and frivolities. Just because the wretched things of life do not register themselves on the outer surface does not mean that they are not to be found in student opinions. Youth is youth and needs some accurate weighing before final judgment is passed upon it.
As a word to the instructors, insignificant as it may be, keep your classes interesting; be yourself in the classroom and meet the student half way in all lanes in University life. You may find him a pleasant diversion from older and more learned acquaintances.
To the students is given the advice of trying to consider the position of "prof" and also express your desire for real companionship with him by keeping your grade above the suspicion that you are attempting to do otherwise.

We see by the paper that Rudy Valle is in court but strangely enough not for disturbing the peace.
No matter how clear the skies, no matter how brightly the sun shines down, the wise man will equip himself with raincoat, umbrella and overcoats before going to the game tomorrow.
After having to have a dozen or so pictures made for the 1935 year-book some of our "social climbers" will be sorry they ever joined up with so many campus circles.

SCANDAL SNICKERINGS
By CAMERON COFFMAN

A Rose to You, Polly Rose—whole bunch to Polly Johnson, the attractive Alphagam pletebette from Somerset. Her affiliation with the Alphagams adds much to the personnel of that popular group.
The KA-Phidelt Keg Again—Believe it or not, we actually received a note from "The Keg". The note is lengthy to publish in its entirety, but several interesting facts are brought to light. "The note says, 'I am safe but was kidnapped and am being held by a very unsuspected person in a very unexpected place.'"
It goes on to say, "Neither a Phidelt or a KA was responsible for my departure from the Kappa Alpha Lodge." "The little keg says it has been filled with some fluid (for aging) while in this period of forced hiding. . . . It states that nothing quite so good filled it during its stay on Linden walk. The kidnaped keg informs us that its picture was made several days ago. . . . If there is any doubt as to its existence maybe we can compare it with the picture through this column. . . . The note ends thus:
"Kegs may come—Kegs may go—But let me live on forever."
EDITORS NOTE: Now that the Phidelts have been released temporarily from the accusation of this diabolically deed maybe we can pin it on the Tridlets).

Winchell on the Job—This column clerk is 3 p. m. Wednesday. . . . In exactly one hour a marriage will take place. . . . No announcement has been previously made. . . . Yes, you guessed it. . . . It is supposed to be a secret. This matrimony union will be Kodas Ann Thomas "Tommy" Denton and Sigmanu? . . . Our congratulations and best wishes go to you both. . . . Many happy years to you, Tommy.
Who Is Martha, John?—A note from St. Louis sends regards to Sigmanu John R. Harkless in this form, "Love and best wishes to a great flunk out," signed Martha.
How About Some Cigars, Mill?—Chlo Marian Johnson is the proud possessor of an ATO pin. Mill Rush is the proud owner. . . . congrats, Mill.
Is His Name Alruz, Betty?—This reported that Chlo Betty Bosworth missed a week-end in Cincy last to fill one date. . . . Well—well, Betty, we missed the same week-end and we had no date, so don't feel so bad about it.
It's a Warning, Gus—KA piab, Gus Barnett, the Shelbyville lad is hereby and hereon warned that he should not stand little girls up on dates. . . . That's bad business, Gus.

It comes in bottles, doesn't it? The senior lawyers tell this one on Bob Hutton, erstwhile scholar of the Law college. . . . It seems that the "shysters" were discussing the chat of "Cream of Wheat vs. The State of South Dakota. . . . Bob was discussing the aforementioned case when he referred to it as "The Cream of Kentucky vs. South Dakota." . . . Needless to say Bob's statement evoked an uproar from the lawyers, many of whom are familiar with the brand mentioned by Hutton.
He Lives in Pittsburgh, Huh?—Word comes to us that Chlo piab, Mary White, has left for an extended visit in Pennsylvania.
How Are Ya, Doin' Haggard?—'Tis rumored that Sara Slack, populi' Kappa freshie from the Mountaineer state, recently broke six dates. . . . These dates, as the boys, were filled by our mutual friend, J. D. Haggard. . . . Did you tell the little boys this was the reason, Sara?
Deit, George Nagel is very anxious to see his sister, Jean. . . . After a dozen trips to the Tridlet house George has quit looking. . . . Anyway, George sends his regards to his sister.

Mary Grooves, the little gal from Pat hall was reported to have been wading in the campus creek last week, it is said to be the possessor of a fraternity pin belonging to Jimmy Carroll, the Tarzan of the Cincinnati game.
They tell this one on Professor Webb of the physics department and it happened sometime ago, but it may get by us here. . . . It seems that Professor Webb was telling the freshmen engineers the importance of physics. . . . The whole point is to have them say so-and-so. . . . In the west coast we have so-and-so. . . . In the east coast we have Commander Byrd. . . . And at the north pole we have . . . At this point he hesitated a moment. . . . Some alert freshman grasped the opportunity for this remark as he echoed "Santa Claus."

Our blonde blizzard friend of the Tridlet stables, Polly Craddock, did not appreciate her bit of publicity with Delmar Adams, the carrot-top peddler Kernel Romeo, in Tuesday's Kernel.
A police car stopped in front of a fraternity house recently. The case was that met that girl was an upperclassman with a vicious looking padlock being held at bay by a freshman.

Strange
Strange, the things I see in your eyes! Behind the match's shining glare Two clear blue circles shine, lighted With a glow that flamed high once

In ages past, when a certain priest-shuttered as the hot blood of her victim Rolled forth in a darkening crimson stream.

Strange, the things I see in your eyes! Shaded by lashes in the candle's gleam, They darken slow, becoming as two drums Giving out weird rhythms. . . such rhythms As haunt the untrodden forest depths When voodoo chanters beat the smooth tops And strain to follow the dance of a priestess.

Strange, the things I see in your eyes! Caught by the caress of drifting moonlight, They sparkle with a cold warmth, and Become two distant stars, shining in the depth Of your eyes, shadowed by your cloud-hair.

A long look, and I am yours in infinite space. Strange, the things I see in your eyes. —Anon.

In all this university, with its many witty persons and students, isn't there at least one person who can write verse? For heaven's sake, youse guys and gels, come on up to the library and see something else besides class notes, and your head for something else besides hats and quizzes! Surely you are in love? Or at least on the brink of it? Well, why don't you break out in the emotional furor of inspiration and dash off a little poem or two?

After all, this column is run for your benefit. The whole point is to give students a chance to burst into print with any sort of creative talent they may have along literary lines. Satires, poetry, ironical sketches, short stories (very short, please), essays, or anything else you choose to write. If you're never seen your own work in print, you've got a real thrill coming up.

Don't be bashful. If you don't wish to let all the world know that you write, send your stuff in under a pen name, initials, or you may even leave it anonymous if you wish. The main idea is to cram the literary box in the Kernel office with nice new bits to go in the column twice a week.

If all pleas are unavailing, the literary eds do here and now issue a challenge: we dare you to give us something to print!

Countess Alexandra Tolstoy, daughter of the late great Russian novelist and to some degree an inheritor of his philosophy of life, managed to slip out of Russia and make her way to U. S. A. When she left everyone asked her: "Will you come back, Alexandre Lvovna?" And for political reasons Alexandra Lvovna said that she would. But she might have hinted to a few close friends that she intended to "stay abroad until the end of Bolshevism." Countess still waits and in the interim whiles away her time with accounts of happenings in Russia in the good old days. "I Worked For Soviet" is truly an exciting title. Countess Tolstoy worked in a war hospital when the Revolution broke out—she went to jail as a political prisoner and stayed there for months with no good reason. She was in charge of a large hospital unit at the front, however, during those ten days that shook the world.

"How about the land for the working class? Should the general come to inspect the horses, the soldiers declined to bring them. So the Countess bribed the men with four gallons of wine to bring out their nags, and the general inspected them. You can readily see that Leo Tolstoy's daughter was no natural Bolshevist. She told Countess some years later, quite emphatically, "Terror, exile, capital punishment, no freedom, all that would have been unbearable to my father." "Oh, those are only temporary measures," said Kallinin. "How about the land for the working class? The eight-hour day?" "Shall I tell you the truth?" the Countess interrupted, "If my father were alive he would have written another 'I Cannot Be Silent.' And who knows, perhaps you would have put him in prison for counter revolution."

Thing-ma-jigs:
Chlo Dita Phi, honorary literary frat for women is on the lookout for some new members. . . . here's your chance to have a try at it, gals. If you are interested, turn in some of your work to any active member of the chapter. 'Tis rumored that they have a swell time at their meetings, as said meetings are very informal, and business is put over in short order so the rest of the time can be spent in more pleasant ways.

Dr. Brady seems to get a big kick out of razing Cheree Jean Anderson in comparative literature class, but she can take it.

Dr. Galloway breaks some sort of record as a giver of notes. He covers life spans in the flick of an eyelash, and a decade or so with one lecture. His students say he is a "breaker breaker," but also add that they know something when they get through with one of his classes.

Seems sorta funny not to see Jane Ann Mathews, former ed of this column, wandering around McVey with big books thick enough to fill a good sized wagon. We always wondered how she could keep up with the profs, while writing that very round, precise hand of hers. But she had it all over us, because when she got ready to hone for a quiz, she could read her notes—ours usually looked like somebody had been tr'ning out a series of fountain pens without any definite purpose in mind.

Not being narrow minded, we don't mind giving another columnist a big hand. Stand up and bow, Lepera, for your very swell "Petite Piece."

SEEN FROM THE PRESS BOX

By JAY LUCIAN

That old phrase "You haven't seen anything yet" aptly describes Coach Wynne's Wildcats. Those loyal supporters who saw the Cats turn on against Cincinnati will have their eyes opened wider when the Cats go into action against Clemson. The Big Blue team daily is learning new tricks, which if practice indications are any criterion, should result in scoring in any football contest.

Jack Jean has recovered from his illness and is back in the first string backfield with Bert and Bob, the totting twins, and McMillan. Jean has kept pace with the signals and during this week's scrimmages gained fully as much yardage as did Johnson and Pritchard. Jean has a great change of pace and is unusually shifty, besides packing a lot of power. Jack gained his high school "rep" as a ball-kicker, but when he first played varsity ball last year he proved to be the best blocker on the team and was the only player with a blocking back with no chance to carry the ball.

This year at right halfback he will be utilized not only as a blocker but will have the opportunities to carry the ball alone with Bert and Bob. His all-around playing will add greatly to the scoring possibilities of the backfield; while on the defense he is the logical choice for backing up the line, a job he handled to perfection last year. This backfield will average close to 150 yards per game and will carry speed, shiftness, passing ability and the best blocking and tackling on the team.

The second backfield is composed of Walker, Farris, Hay, and Ayers. Although not quite as shifty as the first outfit, they are a close second in the other departments of the game and, taken as a whole, they are their equal in blocking, tackling and passing. Any practice boys can step up in the first backfield and hold their own. Farris showed up mightily well in scrimmages as the first string during the week. This 200-pound sophomore is working mighty hard for a position on the first string.

The line situation is much the same. Rupert and Long have the ends cinched, while tackle Wagner, Jobe, Nevers, Olah, and Pribble have their positions still undetermined. James is drawing considerable worry from Meyers, usually good defensive work. Huddleston and Darnaby seemed to be receiving the call in place of Potter and McClurg, last week's starting guards. Anderson is nursing a sore leg. With the competition so keen the boys will be working in there every minute for a position.

Clemson will make a good game for the Cats. Kentucky should win but they will have to play at top speed and as Clemson has proved in earlier contests they play a rattling good game to the final whistle. Led by Woodruff, the Cats possess a fast backfield that had no help from Lady Luck in scoring against Duke and Georgia Tech.

DID YOU KNOW THAT? Ted Husing, foremost sports announcer in the country is barred from broadcasts at Harvard because he called Barry Wood, Harvard's great quarterback, putrid in one of his broadcasts. Babe Ruth has received more than 2,000 walks in baseball which measured would amount to over 500 runs. His well over 700 home runs would constitute a distance of nearly 50 miles. One doesn't have to touch a football on the ground to the end zone to make the six points valid. It's an old-time carryover which coined the expression "knocking down." Many fans don't know that you can carry the ball over the goal line for the extra point instead of kicking or dropping the ball. Billy Grant, midwest tennis star of Atlanta, although only 5 feet four and weighing 120 pounds, has defeated all the top ranking stars in the country and now holds down the no. 7 position. Mickey Cochrane says that "Schoolboy" Rowe learned more big league baseball in a year than Lefty Grove did in six. Mickey ought to know, he caught them both. Dizzy and Daffy Dean's dad says that his boys gained their wonderful control when they were youngsters, knocking squirrels out of trees. Maybe their youthful association had something to do with their present cognomens. Sam Byrd, outfielder with the New York Yankees, makes with the best of the golf professionals. On a certain course he shot a 69, three below par and it was raining hard too.

INTRAMURAL

With rapidity and cooperation that have never before been exhibited, the fall session of the intramural department is reaching a conclusion.

The weather has been particularly favorable and the participants have been quick to take advantage of the existing conditions and have made good every minute of the time.

The tennis courts due mainly to the able supervision of Lee Powers are in excellent condition; the horseshoe pits have been reconstructured and although not as good as they should be are still far superior to what they were last year.

From all indications the S. A. E. and Sigma Chi's are going to be hard pressed for honors this year. Unexpected strength has been shown by the Phi Delta and Phi Sig contingents. The Phi Delta, mainly through the efforts of the two Hillmen, are going strong in the inside in the horseshoes.

Two Phi Deltas, Hillenmeyer and Plippen, and one K. A. Steele, have gained the semi-final brackets in the golf series. The two ball boys, some brackets have been completed. Howard and Davidson, Sigma Nu, will meet in money and honors in one semi-final match; while Elliott and Finley, Phi Delta, meet two fraternity brothers when they meet off with Hillenmeyer and Hillenmeyer in the other match.

Three S. A. E. doubles teams have won in the ways to the quarter finals in the horseshoe doubles. These teams are Campbell and Irvine, Fall and Banks, and Nichols and Ward. Other quarter finalists are Brown and Carroll, Delta Chi; Simpson and Atkinson, Alpha Gamma; Rhee and Denton, and Bringardner and Gottshall, Sigma Chi.

Five horseshoe throwers have reached the quarter finals. These are: Fisher and Cullen, Phi Sig; Irvine and Pugh, S. A. E.; and Bringardner, Sigma Chi.

A formidable band of racquet wielders headed by Evans, favored to win, and Elliott, former champ, have earned their right to further competition in the quarter finals of tennis. Others in this bracket are Voll, Harrison, and Vannoy.

Bringardner and Gottshall are the only doubles team to reach the quarter finals in the tennis doubles.

Displaying the dash and ability that was expected, the contestants in the All-Campus competition moved on into the second and third rounds in the first of the major tournaments that are to be played. Composed of the best of tennis talent on the campus the new tournament threatens the place held by the fraternity intramurals. Professors, graduate students, and under grads furnish a field from which it is possible to draw a considerable host of the cream of the crop in each department represented.

The tennis tournament will be run in the manner of the intramurals with each round having a definite date as the deadline. The second round ends today; it is hoped that the finals will be played between October 20 and 23.

C. W. Hackensmith is in charge of the executive end of participation and is being assisted by Lee Powers, who has supervision of the actual playing of the tournament.

Leach, by virtue of a 6-1, 6-4 defeat of Westbrook, took his place beside McQuitty in the quarter finals. Professor Pardue defeated Bud Foster 4-6, 6-1, 6-4, and is scheduled to meet Bob Evans in the third round this week. George Skinner was forced to the limit to beat Professor Downing but managed to come out on the long end of a 9-7, 6-4 score.

From Enemy Camps

By JOE QUINN

With the football season gathering momentum in all sections of the country, the problem of forecasting the winners becomes tougher on each successive Saturday. The majority of the teams have put their warm-up opponents behind them and are heading for trouble with admirable celerity.

Bearing in mind last week's unhappy events, we look down the list of games scheduled for tomorrow, with a considerable amount of misgiving and trepidation. The quarter we used last time must have been lead, judging from the results we obtained, so we've acquired a new penny which we hope will be more accurate.

Starting with the Southeastern conference teams we'll list the following: Kentucky-Clemson. The Wildcats playing as they did against Cincinnati, should be a little too painful for a good Tiger team. Georgia-North Carolina. We take Georgia, in a close battle down at Athens.

Alabama-Mississippi State. Coach Frank Thomas should give his Crimson Tide a good workout at State's expense. Tennessee-Mississippi U. Ditto for the Vols and Bob Neyland with Ole Miss on the receiving end. Sewanee-Tennessee Wesleyan. Sewanee should prove the stronger. Tulane-Florida. The Green Wave from New Orleans looks like the winner from this corner although they will be forced all the way.

L. S. U.-Auburn. "Biff" Jones' Louisiana team, one of the strongest in the conference, should take Auburn's Finisemen. Vanderbilt-Cincinnati. Unless the Bearcats show a decidedly marked improvement the Commodores appear superior by about three touchdowns.

Duke-Georgia Tech. We like Duke's chances over its Southeastern conference opponent, but of course we may be wrong.

Outside the conference and around the country there are some mighty interesting games on tap. We'll take a chance on a few of these clashes.

Michigan-Chicago. Despite Michigan's defeat of last week, it has too much power for the Maroons of Chicago.

Syracuse-Cornell. One of those traditional battles where anything may happen and probably will. Syracuse is on choice, judging from the best seasonal record of both teams.

Ohio State-Illinois. This is rather tough picking, but Ohio State has looked plenty powerful so far and so gets the call.

Michigan State-Carnegie Tech. Last week's victory over the Wolverines makes Michigan State our favorite in this battle.

Pittsburgh-Southern California. Probably the outstanding attraction of the day. We look for Pitt to continue its winning ways over a tough band of Trojans. A close game.

Princeton-Williams. The Nassau Tiger should claw out a win over a valiant little Williams team.

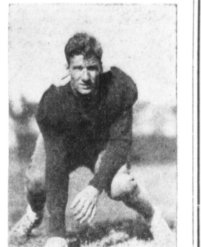

Stanford-Northwestern. Maybe the long trip will account for it, but for some reason we figure the Cardinals to be at least one touchdown better than the Wildcats from Evanston. Navy-Maryland. Navy with the sensational "Bugs" Borries to lead the attack should be a little too tough for the Old Liners of "Curly" Byrd.

Yale-Pennsylvania. We took the Eli's last week and they failed but should show the necessary punch to take Penn.

Notre Dame-Purdue. We would gladly let you take your own choice in this one, but we are personally inclined to give the Ramblers from South Bend a slight edge.

Fordham-Boston College. This game, played this afternoon, should give Jimmy Crowley an opportunity to see what his Fordham Rams are capable of doing. We'll take the New York team.

DARNABY: Local boy makes good! This lad has played in the backfield, and now in his senior year is playing guard... a product of Henry Clay High School... Darnaby decided he would show the home folks he could make that State team... during the past week he has received the No. 1 call for right guard so he may start the Clemson game.
