Parents Coming—Be Prepared!

By MOLLY McCORMICK
Kernel Staff Writer

If your parents plan to be a part of the wave of alumni who will soon be hitting the campus for the weekend, be prepared!

There's no need to make the usual preparations—this is a special visit for Mom and Dad. Don't worry about cleaning up that chaotic mess that's been accumulating in your rooms for the past six weeks, girls. And fellows, don't bother about hiding your collections of bar signs and other souvenirs of good times.

These things won't matter to them now. You need to make another kind of preparation. Before the fateful arrival of these people you've learned to obey and respect, ready yourselves for an experience that may be disillusioning or even shocking. You're about to see your parents, for the first time, as they might have been if you had never existed and as they probably were at your age.

Begin your mental adjustment by admitting to yourself that your parents aren't really 85 years old. Next consider that they were once your age and that problems of the college-aged person are universal.

Remember that they attended UK and have been exposed to the same worldly conditions that you now are. (Here they probably have a great advantage over you. UK has the reputation for being much tamer in recent years.) Consider your parents as swingers. Look upon yourselves as sinks who haven't yet learned about the world.

Now you're ready. Oh, one more thing. Expect the unexpected and don't be embarrassed by their actions.

At the first encounter expect them to be in a jovial mood. Dad will be slapping everyone on the back like a regular BMOC and Mom might be giggling like a coed. The conversation most likely will concern the game. Let Dad take the lead and don't contradict him. His opinions on the lull in victories for UK are backed-up by years of spectatorship. Mom probably won't say much. She'll just sit there, wearing her big, white mum, and agree with her campus hero (Dad, not you).

UK Alumni Leaders In Many Fields

By LINDA MILLS
Kernel Staff Writer

Among the alumni of the University are leaders in education, business, and athletics. Graduates from the last half century are active today in a wide variety of fields.

Two college presidents, Sarah Gibson Blanding and Elvis J. Stahr Jr., received their A.B. degrees from the University.

Sarah Blanding, Vassar College president, is noted for her outspoken condemnation of premarital sex relations before an audience of 1,450 college women in 1962.

Her talk and several succeeding published articles stirred up a nationwide and still unresolved conflict on a college's right to dictate the moral standards of its students.

A 1923 graduate of UK, she is now in her 17th year as president of the college. She is a native of Lexington.

Before going to Vassar she was the dean of women at UK.

Elvis Stahr assumed the presidency of Indiana University after resigning his post as secretary of the army, a post which he held during the first year of President Kennedy's term.

He began his career as a college administrator at UK in April, 1954 when he was appointed to the newly-created post of provost. He later became the vice chancellor of the University of Pittsburgh and the president of the University of West Virginia. His hometown is Hickman.

UK graduates are leaders in the business world, too.

Student Party: Clean Sweep

Paul Chellgren was elected Student Congress President yesterday by about 10 percent of the total vote over his nearest rival, Robert Stokes.

Chellgren's Student Party scored a clean sweep in the campuswide voting. Sam Burke, Candy Johnson, and Steve Beshear took the other three top congress posts.

The official voting results are as follows:

For president, Chellgren 978; Pitts 659; and Stokes 764.

Chellgren is a senior commerce student from Ashland. He is a member of Sigma Chi fraternity, Keys, Lances, and a former member of the Student Congress assembly and the debate team. He is treasurer of Lamp and Cross and past president of Beta Alpha Psi. He has served on the Haggin Hall Council, is a member of Scabbard and Blade and Tau Kappa Alpha.

Sam Burke, vice presidential candidate on the Student Party won the vice presidency of the Student Congress last night by a margin of 82 votes. Burke, polling 912 votes, placed first, while James Svava, vice presidential candidate for the COUP Party received 830 votes. Jack Reisz, endorsed by the Pitts' party received 626 votes. The total vote in the vice presidential contest was 2,386.

Burke is a junior pre-law major from Hopkinsville. He is secretary of Phi Kappa Tau fraternity, vice president of the Young Democratic Club, treasurer of Keys and a past president of the Kentucky 4-H Association.

Candy Johnson, the Student Party secretary candidate, won by 70 votes in the Student Congress election. Marty Minoque, running for secretary on the COUP ticket polled 831 votes.

Students in the College of Nursing will select their Student Congress representative Monday. An assembly will be held at 4 p.m. Monday for nominations and voting will be from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m. Tuesday.

while Debbie Delaney, endorsed by the Pitts party received 650 votes. Total vote cast in the race for secretary was 2,381.

Miss Johnson is a sophomore education major from Lexington. She is a member of the Student Center Board Personnel Committee, the ROTC sponsor corps, Troupers, and a stand-by member of the cheerleading squad. She is a member of Kappa Alpha Theta sorority and was Lambda Chi Alpha pushcart derby queen.

Steve Beshear took the treasurer's job with a 879-vote total.

PAUL CHELLGREN
SC President-Elect

SAM BURKE
Vice President-Elect

Jim May was second with 750, and Paul Kiel was third with 738.

Breshear is a sophomore pre-law major from Dawson Springs. He is a pledge of Delta Tau Delta fraternity, and a member of the debate team, Phi Eta Sigma, Eta Sigma Phi, and an adviser to the Freshman Y. He has a 3.8 average.

A 74-vote discrepancy exists between the 2,450 voters and 2,376 signed-in voters. The Elections Committee ruled that possibly 74 people voted without signing in. The election will stand unless contested within five days.

The ballots from the two polling places were sorted by colleges. Each college card was a distinctive color and contained different punch codes.

University women may be staying out late Saturday night. Saturday, homecoming, will be the date of the penny-a-minute night at UK, reported Ann Combs, president of the Associated Women Students.

Miss Combs explained that all women's housing units will allow late permission until two o'clock Saturday. "But," said Miss Combs, "for every minute past one o'clock each student has to pay a penny."

The proceeds from penny-a-minute night will be used by the AWS to finance Stars in the Night and other programs.

Social Sidelights: Focus On Homecoming

By NANCY LOUGHRIDGE
Well it's finally here, the END of midterms of course.

There is one other minor event that also takes place this weekend, it's called Homecoming. It's that much hailed happening when wet eyed alums remember the good old days and whip out their equally wet pens and dry checks.

The fun for the weekend started long ago. I don't have to tell you, there's been display stuffing going on for weeks, intermingled with tests.

As I sit here, with test-weary brain in temporary repose, the neumatic drills are playing their sweet tune as the concrete behind McVey Hall fades into oblivion. What a joy with your 8 a.m. class.

Because of a real lack of space this weekend I'll dash right into the activities since everybody and his brother seems to be doing something. I hear that the dogs may even have a leash chewing spree.

The first thing aside from working on displays is that there will be a mammoth pep rally starting at 4 p.m. today in front of Haggin Hall and proceeding down Rose to the Athletic Field behind the Student Center. This means that everyone along that route is to join in and make it the best yet. When they reach the appointed gathering spot the team will be on hand as will the coach and cheerleaders. As an extra added attraction the five queen finalists are due to stage a brief appearance.

This combined with some real cheering should get us in the mood to hurry back and finish our displays before the judging starts at 9 a.m. Saturday.

If you aren't in the mood to build a display, there are a few souls who have different ideas.

Take the Phi Taus for instance, they have picked this off night to have their fall formal. The Sultans will be on hand to provide the background.

And if you're just in the mood to swing the KA's have found the answer to what shall we do for kicking off Homecoming activities: a party at the house with music by the Houserockers. No fuss, no muss, and no display to tear down.

But if you have a date with an SAE, Kappa Sig, or Fiji you'd better wear your cutoffs and sweatshirt. They're all planning on a work session centered around finishing their displays.

The International Students will have their own festivities tonight by attending a Halloween party at the BSU at 8 p.m. So don't forget, the members of BSU have planned a great evening.

If you aren't too tired from tonight's round of activities, better arise early because the judges will be around with the sun to see your masterpiece. Oh, who goes to bed anyway the night before Homecoming, there's too much to do.

A word to those of you who have ordered mums; don't forget to pick them up between 9 a.m. and noon at the Donovan Hall Cafeteria.

There will be a cornerstone laying at the Alumni House at 11 a.m. This building is by far the most beautifully decorated of any in the Lexington area.

Well, before you get in such a hurry to go to the game, of you have a date with a member of Phi Tau you'll be treated to a buffet lunch at the house. And if you are an Alpha Gam, there should be work for you with the alumni tea at 10:30 a.m.

Now then to the game. We play Georgia. This may have slipped your mind since there has been so much to do this week. Of course most people will be going at the crack of dawn to get a seat. But by half time everyone should be seated and settled when they announce the Homecoming Queen and her court plus the winning house display.

Let's hope we don't have any microphone feedback this year, that would be more than our new Student Congress president could take, what with the riggers of the election and all. Or maybe they'll do away with that segment of the festivities.

After the game there will be no lack of places to go. The ZBT's are having an open house for their alums at 5 p.m. This also goes for the Fijis, who will sponsor a tea for their tired alums.

The ZTA's are having an open house after the game. It's good to see that the sororities are getting in the spirit of this. Seems the ADPI's want family and friends to drop in also for some coffee and chatter.

Continuing in the welcome alums vein, the Sigma Chi's will hold a reception and buffet. Then they plan to end the day with a coat and tie affair slithering to the sounds of the Night-crawlers.

The Phi Taus—a very busy bunch this weekend—will hold a party at the house with the Continentals on hand to keep the beat.

The Sig Eps will be putting on the dog with an alumni buffet which gives the old group a chance to get to know the young whipper snappers a little better.

The ZBT's are planning an evening of dinner and dancing for the alums at the Congress Inn.

Still partying, the TKE's will have a buffet and then welcome alums, dates and friends to an open house starting at 8 p.m. alums.

The Kappa Sigs likewise have big plans, with a buffet followed

HAD ENOUGH?
Vote
NUNN-LAWRENCE
Young Republican Club

by a Homecoming party with the Maroons playing at the chapter house.

The AGR's will also have a active to be followed by a Victory dance with the Pacesetters setting the pace.

The Fijis will dance to the sounds of the Crescents and the SAE's will get elegant as they journey to the Imperial House for a party with members and alums.

So goes the weekend, it looks like a full calendar for all, so let your hair down and enjoy the freedom from midterm terror, the grades won't hit you for another week. Yea Wildcats, Beat Georgia.

Take Down The Signs

The Student Congress campaign is over and we've elected a Homecoming Queen. Now, there is only one thing left to do: TAKE DOWN THE SIGNS.

The campus is covered with posters from all the elections. They're on trees, fences, buildings, and bulletin boards and in little or no order. In short, this campus is a mess!

It doesn't speak very highly of the students here when visitors are coming to campus. This being Homecoming weekend, we will have the largest number of visitors here at anytime during the year. Many parents will be on campus who perhaps have never been here before.

We feel that it is the responsibility of each student who ran for a position in the elections to see that all his or her campaign signs are taken down. This job should not be left to the Maintenance Department or students who have had nothing to do with the election.

It is too bad that we must remind college students to do something as simple as take down campaign posters; however, past experience indicates that such a reminder is definitely in order.

Previously, signs have been found on campus months after an election. These served no useful purpose except to make the campus unsightly.

So, we ask you to PLEASE TAKE DOWN THE SIGNS!

Campus Parable

In "Cat On a Hot Tin Roof," Tennessee Williams has Margaret ask a question of extreme importance: "What's the victory of a cat on a hot tin roof? I wish I knew. . . . Just staying on it, I guess, as long as she can. . . ."

As midterm reports become available this question also may be of value to college students. What's the victory of a young person when all around him lies the scores of tests inadequately mastered and books filled with material he fails to comprehend?

With Margaret he may answer that victory lies in staying on the roof as long as he can. But if this is the case, he also must share with Margaret the dream of new life through the love of another person. And if being alive is more important than mere survival, true victory possibly lies in being released from the "hot tin roof."

The President's Statement

Background Of New Loan Fund Cited

(Editor's Note: The following is the statement issued by Dr. John W. Oswald, president of the University, to the Executive Committee of the Board of Trustees concerning the establishment of a general University scholarship fund.)

Recommendations: (1) that a Scholarship Fund of approximately $60,000 annually be established for unrestricted scholarships to be supported by annual estimated surpluses from the Campus Book Store and from revenue obtained from campus vending machines; (2) that this Fund be administered by the University Committee on Scholarships and Student Loans; and (3) that this Committee recommend to the president policies and procedures which will govern these awards. Such policies and procedures shall reflect careful consideration of the amount of the awards, distribution of the awards (freshman and upperclass), the terms of the awards, and methods of selecting recipients.

Background: The University currently has approximately 55 freshman scholarships available (varies from year to year based on endowment income and accessibility of funds) administered by the Committee on Scholarships and Student Loans. Approximately one-half of these awards are for the freshman year. These awards have a total value of approximately $20,000. Sixteen scholarships carry a stipend of $500 or more; sixteen range from $300 to $400; and twenty-three are valued at $250 or less.

The majority of these scholarships are restricted to particular fields of study. Of the sixteen having a stipend of $500 or above, only three are unrestricted. Ten are restricted to the College of Engineering; two to science, engineering, or business administration; while one is restricted by geographic locality.

Of the sixteen awards having a value of $300 to $400, only one is unrestricted. Ten are restricted to the College of Agriculture; one to engineering; and four are restricted to specific geographic locations.

Of the twenty-three awards having a value of $250 or less, fourteen are unrestricted. Five are restricted to the College of Commerce. The remaining four have other restrictions.

The Committee on Scholarships and Student Loans receives annually between twelve to fifteen hundred freshman scholarship applications. In the spring of 1963, 1,350 applications were filed. One hundred and thirty-seven applicants ranked in the 99th percentile on the College Qualification Tests; three hundred and seventy ranked between the 95th and 98th percentiles with 212 ranking between the 90th and 95th percentiles. A total of 706 applicants ranked in the top decile.

These facts indicate that there exists a large number of able students seeking financial assistance through the scholarship program annually and that the University is able to assist only a small number of these students. In summary, the total picture reflects:

1. Insufficient scholarship funds;
2. A small number of unrestricted scholarships (three in excess of $500; one for $300; and fourteen for $250 or less.)

3. Approximately one-half of the scholarships are not renewable after the freshman year (only three unrestricted are renewable).

The number of scholarships available after the freshman year are extremely limited. Currently, only four sources of funds exist for making these awards. Two of these are unrestricted while the other two are restricted to women students. Approximately 10 scholarships with a value of $250 to $300 each are awarded from these funds.

In addition to the foregoing, there are a limited number of scholarship opportunities over which the University Committee on Scholarships and Student Loans exercises no control over the selection process.

To meet these needs the establishment of a $60,000 annual Scholarship Fund is recommended from income sources primarily related to student activities.

Recommendation: that $200,000 from past surpluses of the Campus Bookstore be deposited immediately in the University Student Loan Fund, this sum to be used for providing adequate loan money to meet the financial needs of University students.

Background: At its last meeting on Sept. 17, the Board of Trustees requested that the president and appropriate members of the business and administrative staff review student loan policies, purposes, and availability of funds from various sources. This has been accomplished. Attached is a copy of pertinent information relating to the current status of the University Student Loan Fund.

This review reveals (1) that the resources for matching Federal contributions to the National Defense Student Loan Program are being rapidly depleted, (2) that there has been inconsistency and uncertainty in the receipt of annual Federal capital contributions to the loan program, (3) that there is an increased demand of the general University population for National Defense Student Loans, and (4) that there are limited resources for miscellaneous, restricted, and short-term loans.

It should also be noted that in addition to the needs suggested above, it will be necessary for the University to provide matching funds in order to participate in the newly established program for medical and dental student loans under the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1963. Demands for loans by medical and dental students will continue to increase as the University's Colleges of Medicine and Dentistry move toward maximum enrollment.

Final determination of the most appropriate use of this money shall be made by the Committee on Scholarships and Student Loans. The Committee shall be guided by presently established policies and procedures governing financial assistance to students, by a desire to achieve proper balance in the loan program, and by full consideration of the total student body in a maturing University. It is recommended that $200,000 from past surpluses from the Bookstore be allocated to meet this need.

'Big' Cincy Line Faces Kittens In Second Tilt

By KEN BLESSINGER
Kernel Sports Writer

A massive line, averaging 215 pounds a man, is the obstacle which must be hurdled Monday evening when Kentucky's freshman football team invades the University of Cincinnati campus.

The Kittens, fresh from their 28-14 conquest over Vanderbilt, will be playing their last road game of the season with the Queen City trip. Coach Jim Carmody, the Kittens' head mentor, reports that the Bear-Kittens have had one game already, and although he has been attempting to find the outcome, he hasn't been able to.

As the Kittens prepare for the game, they are confronted by the ever-present problem of injuries. Because of the thinness of the UK varsity, the freshmen have had to work out against them every day, and this has led to many banged-up boys.

Among those who are hurt, Mike Cassidy is listed as definitely out of the Cincy contest, Jerry Davis is listed as doubtful, and Ed Settle, Homer Goins, and Rodger Bartley are in the questionable category.

In discussing the Vanderbilt victory, Carmody stated that he was most pleased by the play of Don Danko, Frank Antonini, and Dan Spanish. Danko is the pile-driving fullback, Antonini is the hard-running left halfback on the first unit, and Spanish mans a defensive end post.

When questioned about the work of interior linemen in the game with the Commodore yearlings, Carmody added that he was pleased by their blocking on offense, but unhappy about their defensive shortcomings.

Carmody indicated the Kittens will rely primarily on a slot-T offense, featuring power running from the "big back backfield" of Danko, Antonini, and Larry Seiple. Sharing the signal calling duties for the frosh are Joe David Smith of Mayfield and Johnny Cain of Cumberland.

The coach rates Smith as a fine leader and a better-than-average passer and signal-caller, while he considers Cain to be an excellent runner. Both of the boys must rely on their own ingenuity to call the plays because the new substitution rules hampers a "messenger boy" system coaches sending plays.

Another disadvantage of the new rule, according to Carmody, is that it doesn't permit a coach to use as many players as he might like. He pointed out that he was able to use only 30 players at Vandy, when he would have preferred to use the whole squad of 41.

Antonini and Danko will serve as game captains for the Cincinnati game, as a reward for their fine performances in Nashville. Carmody announced he plans to repeat this procedure for the duration of the season, to provide a stimulus for the boys to give that "extra effort." Center Calvin Withrow and quarterback Smith served in these capacities for the Vandy game.

Game time for the contest Monday evening will be eight o'clock. The team will leave the University at 2:30 p.m. and will eat just outside of Cincinnati. After the game the team will eat a light meal and return to the campus.

Coach Carmody announced that the starting lineup for the game will be the same as that for the Vandy game. It had Rich Machel and Spanish at the ends, Don Briggs and Maurice Moorman at the tackles, Eddie Mittlebronn and George Withers at the guards, Withrow at center, and Dan Smith, Antonini, Danko, and Seiple in the backfield.

After Monday's game, the frosh have some home games remaining on their schedule against Xavier, which has defeated Marshall 20-6, and Tennessee's Baby Vols, which have lost to Georgia Tech 20-6 and beaten Virginia Tech 46-0.

Editors Pick SEC Games

By WALLY PAGAN and
JERRY SCHUREMAN

Kernel Sports Co-Editors

The Southeastern hosts a full schedule of action this weekend with the exception of the Auburn Tigers who are idle.

At Stoll Field the Kentucky Wildcats will be going after their first win in the SEC. The Homecoming contest pits the Cats against the mighty and potent arm of Larry Rakestraw and the Georgia Bulldogs. Homecoming, though, is a big factor, and the Cats will topple Georgia by seven.

Game of the week in the conference will match LSU against surprising Florida. Charlie McClendon's crew is too deep for the Gators, and LSU will triumph.

Alabama will continue its winning ways by routing the Huston Cougars at Tuscaloosa.

Georgia Tech will slaughter the Green Wave of Tulane.

Mississippi State will romp over Vanderbilt.

Undefeated Mississippi State should stay unblemished with a tight win over Memphis State.

And rounding out the action, Tennessee should have a happy Homecoming with its first win of the season over Chattanooga.

Batting Average: Won 11, Lost 2, Tied 1.

Activities Set For Students

A campuswide pep rally sponsored by the men's residence halls will be held at 4 p.m. today at the Student Center.

This year the traditional Homecoming pep rally will be approached from a new angle. In the past, it has taken the form of an afternoon "Yell like Hell" rally sponsored by Suky. This year it will be held in the afternoon to avoid conflicting with other Homecoming activities taking place tonight.

The rally will take the form of two processions which will move across campus and meet at the Student Center. Half the band and half the cheerleaders will meet at Haggin Hall and will move through the quadrangle to the Student Center. The other half of the band will begin its Keeneland Hall.

Coach Charlie Bradshaw and the football team will be at the Student Center for the rally. Coach Bradshaw will address the students and introduce the team.

"We are very eager to have complete student participation," said Sutherland Sims, assistant director of men's residence halls. "We have tried to schedule it so that everyone will be able to be there."

The Homecoming Committee will judge fraternity, sorority, and residence hall decorations between 9 a.m. and 12 noon tomorrow. The winners will be presented at half-time ceremonies along with the queen and her court.

The festivities will end at 8 p.m. with a homecoming dance in the ball room of the Student Center with the "Houserockers" providing the music.

Don't Worry About The Parents

Probably your parents will be accompanied by other alumni. Don't feel slighted when your presence is ignored; they'll be busy reliving their own UK days and won't have time for a young college kid like you.

The outcome of the ball game will determine what to expect next. If UK wins, prepare yourself for enthusiasm like you never knew Dad possessed. If the big team is defeated, be ready for an hour's oration on the decline of the sport, of UK teams, and of UK itself. But don't worry about his depression, it will soon be forgotten in the midst of the evening's festivities.

Perhaps you and your date will have dinner with the folks. Of course, you've briefed your date beforehand about what to expect from them on this occasion. Again, you can expect the parents to lead the conversation. If drinks are ordered and you're not included, don't fidget. If you are included, console yourself about the evening with this good fortune. At this point, Dad might burst into a chorus of "On, On" or a fraternity tune.

If you spend the entire evening with the folks, say at the frat house, don't worry about your conduct. They'll be celebrating with other alums and not concerned with you.

Watch them as they observe the "Big B" because this may be the only time they'll ever approve of it. Dad may even give it a try. (This could prove fatal to his back, so try to repress him if he gets carried away.)

At the evening's end you can breathe a sigh of relief. The harrowing experience is over for another year. Sunday morning you'll once again be their son or daughter who's spending all that money to come to school to party. They'll return to their roles of providers and protectors of their young.

It will be harrowing for some. At the same time it will be wonderful because you'll know that parents can still enjoy doing the things they once did. You'll have the feeling that they understand you better. And maybe you will get a better understanding of them because you've seen them in a new light—your parents can swing!

Teachers Discuss Classroom T.V.

By BECKY MANTLE
Kernel Staff Writer

Five hundred teachers and school administrators from throughout the state will meet in Lexington today and tomorrow to consider the role of educational television in improving classroom instruction.

Their forum is UK's 40th annual Educational Conference and the 29th annual meeting of the Kentucky Association of Colleges, Secondary, and Elementary Schools.

"The importance of the topic to education in Kentucky at this time cannot be overemphasized." So wrote University President John W. Oswald and Dr. Lyman V. Ginger, dean of the College of Education, in letters inviting Kentucky school people to this week's meetings.

The keynote address at the opening session will be given by Dr. Harold Wigren, Washington, D.C., the National Education Association's consultant for educational television. Dr. Oswald will preside.

At the college section, Dr. Wigren will discuss "The Responsibility of the College in Preparing teachers for the Use of Education." Don Bale, head of the Bureau of Instruction, Kentucky State Department of Education, will outline his department's plans for educational TV.

A third speaker will be Leonard Press, executive director of the Kentucky Authority for Educational Television. He will explain the mission of that agency and report on its status. The elementary section of the association will hear talks by Bale, Press, and Miss Mildred Cobb, educational TV producer-coordinator in Jefferson County schools.

The Kentucky Association of Registrars and Admissions officers will hold pre-conference meetings at UK on Thursday. Dr. Charles F. Elton, the University's dean of admissions and registrar, will discuss the American College Test program and its value to registrars.

The professional education honoraries, Kappa Delta Pi and Phi Delta Kappa, will give a coffee from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m. Saturday in the University Club of the Student Center. It will be open to all persons attending the campus meetings.

The new Helen C. King Alumni House is viewed from its Rose Street side. The building, a dream of Miss King's, was made a reality with the contributions from the Century Fund members, and other "friends of the University." It will be officially dedicated tomorrow morning before the UK Homecoming football game. Dedication ceremonies, including a brunch for the alumni will begin at 11.

Helen King Alumni House Ready

Old Grads Arrive To Dedicate 'Home'

By BLITHE RUNSDORF
Assistant Campus Editor

As has been the custom for many years, today is the day we welcome back alumni.

It is traditional that we welcome you back with all the pomp and circumstance, "hoot 'n holler," and hospitality that is the trademark of a Dixie Homecoming.

Today's is a special welcome, though. Before, we have welcomed you back to a University, a past way of life. This has been all.

We are still welcoming you back to a University; to a past way of life . . . but today we welcome you back to more.

We, the present members of the University, welcome you back to a house. YOUR HOUSE. The new Helen G. King Alumni House.

The word "house" is used, when perhaps "home" would be a more apt word. It is definitely your HOME . . . but until you arrived to use it, it was a house.

A house is a "structure for human habitation." It is four walls, a floor, a ceiling, and rooms. It is a facade. It is an inanimate object.

It is a building, an edifice, a structure.

A house is a banquet room without a banquet. It is a meeting room with empty chairs and ashtrays.

It is a library with unread books . . . a bar with rows of unfilled glasses; a carpet without footprints.

It is chairs and sofas still unused. It is halls not walked in, and doors unopened.

It is color without motion and darkness without light.

It is a $600,000 tribute to a hero still unnamed.

It is a house, lacking in the one ingredient to make it a home. You, the alumni. But now you have come. You have made it a HOME.

You have given it life, breath, and a heart. You have given it a name and you have come to live in it.

You have given it a spirit, and you have made it a tradition.

Tomorrow, when the cornerstone is laid, and the building officially dedicated, you will have written a page in history . . . you will have erected a monument to the devotion you felt for your school.

You will enshrine the memories that you reaped in your days as a student, and you will have left a heritage for those who follow you.

You will fill your home with the knowledge you have gained from life. You will have erected a memorial to the passions of youth and the wisdom of maturity.

Here, at any time, you may sit and reminisce with fellow graduates; the folly and fun of things past . . . and speculate on those to come. With each word you will build the foundation, to which new alumni will add.

You will begin an eternal story . . . and end a chapter.

We are greatly indebted to your thoughtfulness; as you are greatly pleased with your contribution.

Seventy-four years ago, 16 alumni returned to the University for the commencement exercises of the class of 1889. These alumni drafted a constitution and by-laws; the Alumni Association was born.

1911 saw the publication of the first "Alumni Bulletin." In 1929, this publication became an independent alumni publication; the present "Kentucky Alumnus."

The passing years saw many changes on the University campus. New buildings emerged, and the campus grew.

The end of World War I put stars next to the names of those alumni who had lost their lives fighting for their country. World War II made it necessary to put additional stars next to those who had again made the supreme sacrifice.

The good times and the bad times were recorded in the "Kentucky Alumnus" for posterity . . . and as a tribute.

Women began to play a larger role in the annals of college history.

It is true that there have been many outstanding alumni over the years. Some have been more recognized than others . . . but each has been, in his or her own way, outstanding.

cated woman, the money would have meant nothing.

Helen G. King, we the present student body and we are sure the alumni—though many are now scattered all over the nation—extend to you, a personal "THANK YOU."

To recognize outstanding alumni . . . in all fields of endeavor . . . the Alumni Association has conceived the University Hall of Distinguished Alumni.

A secret committee has screened these distinguished graduates. The first group to take their place in the Hall will be announced at the dedication ceremonies tomorrow.

The Alumni Association is now actively established in almost every state. The present number of UK alumni is more than 30,000.

There will not be 30,000 alumni present for the Homecoming activities this weekend, but it is expected that more of you will be here than in any previous year.

Again we sincerely welcome you to your new home. We invite you, in the words of the poet, Adam Reiter, to:

Come sit beside my fire, old friend,
And revel in its glow—
We'll watch the shadows on the screen,
And dream of long ago . . .
We'll talk of things of bygone days,
That seldom come to mind;—
Old times, old scenes, almost forgot,
And leave the world behind!

We'll toss aside the faded years—
We'll both be boys again—
Forgetting all the serious things
That haunt the realm of men.
We'll romp and play as boys must do,
(Though foolish it may be)
And roam the once-familiar paths;
We too—just you and me!

But look! It's fading swiftly now—
There's but an ember glow—
Our fire-side hour of dreams is done;
Our fire is burning low;—
But then, 'tis something rare and fine,
Of which I never tire . . .
A trip into the Long Ago,
With a friend—beside my fire!

A black and white tile floor, red carpeting, and traditional furniture highlight the Great Hall of the Alumni House. Overlooking it is a balcony that extends around the perimeter of the room. Card tables are available on the balcony, which also serves as an entrance to two meeting rooms, and two three-room suites, as yet unfurnished.

Professors Barnhart, Amyx Are Featured In Art Exhibit

By SID WEBB
Kernel Feature Writer
"I dared more, and there is more assurance in my recent work," Raymond Barnhart, professor of art, said last week in an interview.

Recent relief-constructions and drawings by Mr. Barnhart are displayed at the UK Art Gallery in an exhibit that opened Oct. 13 and continues through Nov. 10.

Another UK artist, Prof. Clifford Amyx, has exhibits in the show that he did in Italy, in areas around Florence and Cannes.

Mr. Barnhart, discussing his art constructions, said there is more physical commotion and freedom in his art than previously.

The change may be an outgrowth of his five-month stay in Japan last school year, but he does not feel that Japanese art influenced his work.

"I was hungry for my own culture and enthusiastic to use the textures and materials that I found in the desert," he said.

All 24 of the relief-constructions on exhibit were made in the Mojave desert, California, after he returned from Japan.

Mr. Barnhart was reluctant to evaluate his pieces in the exhibit, but in discussing particular constructions he admitted a special feeling for "Grayvesong."

He cited "Grayvesong" as an example of his "more out-going, more powerful" art.

Is there a chance of losing this special feeling found in the desert and projected into his art?

He said that a good artist changes by following his inclination and finding meaning in something new or better to do. His recent work, he thinks, is a part of his evolutionary change as an artist.

Mr. Barnhart collected materials in the Mojave, and has enough to make pieces to fill two exhibits the size of the present one.

Finding materials and perspectives for their use are no problem, he said.

"When I run out of desert materials or lose my feeling for them, I'll begin using things I've found around here.

"I know the region around Lexington, and I constantly pick up objects that I might use."

He said he picks up materials he "takes a fancy to" and are pleasing at the time, with no preconceived plan for them. The outcome of what he makes depends on the materials and how they lead him.

All but one of the 11 drawings on display were made in Japan.

At the time he made them, he had no plans for their exhibition.

"I made them for my own pleasure," he said, "because it seemed like a nice thing to do at the time."

"In Japan, I might do one drawing over and over."

He did about 15 of "In Kimono," he said. Most of them he gave to his Japanese friends.

Once he had mastered the handwriting art," he could "write" it over and over again. The approach is similar to the Japanese art of calligraphy.

Nun Devotes Life To Teaching Art In South Africa

By DENNIS LEE ROYLE
Associated Press Staff Writer
MARIANHILL, Natal Province, South Africa—For the past quarter of a century German-born Sister Pienta Selhorst has devoted her life to teaching art to Africans in this country.

"They are the greatest natural surrealist artists in the world," she maintains. "They need little guidance in this form of art which to them is the expression of a primitive mind uncluttered by modern conceptions and ideology."

Sister Pienta should know, for she has spent a good part of her 49 years studying art and teaching it to Africans at the Marianhill monastery, a sprawling miniature city on the fringe of a range of mountains known as the "Valley of a Thousand Hills," near Durban.

The missionary settlement is of German origin, founded in 1885. It provides education for Africans from infancy to high school standards. It has a modern hospital, its own newspaper and an orphanage.

Sister Pienta recently discovered two African art students whom she maintains are of top world caliber. So enthusiastic is she about her newfound talent that for the next two years Sister Pienta will feed and clothe them so that they may continue with their studies.

"It seems a pity to send these boys back to their mud huts just because they lack funds. I shall keep them for two years and then they will earn their own living as independent artists," she says.

After her day's work teaching Africans, Sister Pienta devotes herself to the enormous task of designing eighteen stained glass windows for the Bloemfontein Cathedral in the Orange Free State of South Africa.

The work will take her a year. Each window will differ in design but all combining to depict the story of the life of the Redeemer.

"It will be very modern, in keeping with the times," she said.

Outstanding Alumnus Helen King

Alumni will relive the hectic days of their undergraduate years at least for a weekend as they return for UK homecoming festivities.

The Alumni Association has scheduled a full slate of activities, ranging from brunches to balls, to keep alums in a whirlwind during the weekend.

Dominating the celebration will be the newly completed Helen G. King Alumni House on the corner of Euclid and Rose.

First on the calendar was a Senior Associates meeting yesterday at Spindletop. This group is composed of outstanding graduates of the University who have been out of school for a minimum of 35 years and have the talent and interest to make contributions to the University.

The first event planned for the new Alumni House is a reception for the Century Fund members at 4 p.m. today. These are the people who contributed to the building fund.

Tomorrow morning, activities begin with registration of returning alumni between 9:30 and noon.

Dr. Frank Dickey, former pres-

The Woman Behind The Coach

By NANCY LOUGHRIDGE

Once upon a time there was a university and that university had a football team. The team had a new coach, a nice man, who had high aspirations for his boys. He was expected to produce great things from a thin number, he was criticized and praised, liked and disliked. But one thing they forgot, the coach is a man, and behind every successful man there is a woman. In this case, women, his wife and his daughter.

By now you know that the man I've been describing is Charlie Bradshaw and the women, his wife Marsha and his daughter Lee. It's strange how a man who is so well known on a campus is so little known as a person. The papers print facts and figures on the team, the coach's comments, and other little items but they never say much about the other important part of his life, his home.

When you drive up to the Bradshaw's home you are greeted with a charming view of suburbia. The single story traditional house of old brick gives you an inkling of the residents way of life, solid and comfortable. Mrs. Bradshaw, a charming blonde, opens the door and you enter a beautifully decorated home. Done in shades of blue, it has that restful quality that a man who works long hard hours needs.

The family room of warm woods and Early American furniture lends itself to the atmosphere of a real home. You can see this at every turn, it's the little things that make it that way.

Aside from being the coach's home, it is the place that contains a very rare breed of woman, at least these days. Mrs. Bradshaw is attractive, yes, she is warm and friendly, true, she abounds in southern hospitality, certainly, but more than all that she has a certain quality that every hard working man needs to come home to, serenity.

In these days of the working mother and clubwoman, Martha Bradshaw is a fine exception in that she believes in being a wife and mother first.

When we first began to talk, she told me that she really wasn't a very interesting subject to write about. But it was soon evident that even though she's not a big gadabout and clubber she is something far more important. Her goal is to have a smoothly run home where the coach can come and relax. The men around this office say that to them this is all that a man could ask for. Someone who's life is planned to help her husband.

A native of Alabama, Mrs. Bradshaw said that she and the coach had gone together in high school. And when he returned from World War II they were married and moved to UK and the world of football. They've been here on and off ever since.

Aside from football, the center of the family's activity is seven-year-old Lee. Mrs. Bradshaw explained that seeing her daddy during the season was a big oc-

Cats Go For First SEC

Cats Attempt To Build 'Doghouse' For Georgia

By WALLY PAGAN
Kernel Sports Co-Editor

There's only one result when Cats square off against Dogs—the fur flies.

This is expected to be the case tomorrow when the Kentucky Wildcats take on the Bulldogs from Georgia in a 2 p.m. Homecoming encounter at Stoll Field.

The Wildcats will be attempting to put Larry Rakestraw and Co. back in the "doghouse" for the first time since 1956 when the Cats last downed the stubborn Georgians.

On the other hand, the Bulldogs will be going after their sixth straight victory over Kentucky after posting a 7-7 tie last year.

Stoll Field could easily be mistaken for a circus menagerie with the fur-flying antics of aerial artists Rick Norton and Larry Rakestraw. The two quarterbacks are running 1-2 in the passing department of the SEC with the Bulldog signal caller leading by a large margin.

Rakestraw also leads the total offense in the conference with 941 yards to Auburn's Jimmy Sidle's 922 yards.

This gives coach Charlie Bradshaw plenty of worries. For the fifth straight week, the Cats will face a top-notch quarterback in Rakestraw. Bradshaw admits to the problem of Kentucky's porous defense dilemma.

"We have had our backs to the wall all season long he declared. Aside from other aspects of each opponent, we have been faced with the task of stopping a great quarterback passer."

"I know this week we will be up against one of the best boys in the country and it is going to take our greatest effort to hold Rakestraw in check. But I feel our young men have enough pride to get themselves ready for such an effort."

Adding to the possibility of a dominated aerial game are Kentucky's Darrell Cox and the Bulldogs' Pat Hodgson. The two currently placed 1-2 in the passing snagging department of the conference with the edge going to Hodgson.

With the No. 1 and 2 pigskin tossers and receivers on the same field, a prospective passing duel is more than likely. Between Norton and Rakestraw, the pair has exploded for 1,345 yards and seven touchdowns via the airwaves. They have hit on 87 of 182 tosses.

Kentucky's answer to Rakestraw's potent air attack will not only be Norton, but also one of the league's most dangerous backfield combos.

Opening at left half will be soph Rodger Bird who is among the SEC leaders with a 4.8 average while Bob Kosid will run from the other scabbard spot. Kosid is the second leading ground gainer on the team. Ken Beard will start at fullback.

Four sophomores will hold down line spots. John Andrighetti and Rick Kestner will open at the ends, with Rick Tucci at tackle and Jerry Murphy at guard. Rounding out the lineup will be senior Herschel Turner at tackle, junior Jim Foley at guard, and junior Clyde Richardson at center,

Win Against Georgia

Rakestraw Proves Tough On Norton's Good Night

By BILL BAXTER
Kernel Sports Writer

Last week at this time, Kentucky's sophomore quarterback Rick Norton was second in the SEC in passing yardage, only 20 yards back of Georgia's Larry Rakestraw, and seemingly catching up.

Rakestraw and Norton are still 1-2 in the conference, but UK's young ace must be wondering where Rakestraw went over the weekend.

Norton had one of his best nights of the season, hitting 13 out of 24 for 163 yards against an LSU defense that held Miami's George Mira scoreless.

Now, instead of being 20 yards back of Rakestraw, Norton is 264.

Rakestraw, the lithe 6-2, 195-pounder from Northside High in Atlanta, didn't really bomb favored Miami—he blew up in their faces.

He hit 25 of 48 passes for an NCAA record of 407 yards, erased the SEC single-game total offense record with 414 yards, and set a new single-game completion record.

Georgia won, 31-14.

The Bulldog senior also took the conference total offense lead away from Auburn's Jimmy Sidle, 941 yards to 922.

Rakestraw can be stopped, though. Two weeks ago at Clemson, Georgia played the ACC Tigers in what is affectionately called "Death Valley" by Clemson opponents.

As the game started, it began to rain. In the second period, a thunderstorm hit the stadium. When the teams came onto the field for the second half, it was hailing; and by the fourth period the end zones were under water.

Rakestraw could complete only three of 12 passes, and the Bulldogs were tied, 7-7.

Kentucky is ninth in the conference on pass defense. Georgia is last.

Ordinarily fans might expect a passing duel here tomorrow because of the respective weaknesses on pass defense. However, both are teams low in rushing defense.

UK's Charlie Bradshaw has shown a preference for the running game when he can use it. The Bulldogs have allowed 113 yards per game on the ground, and Bradshaw may prefer a balanced attack to a barrage of passes.

Bradshaw can't call Georgia's plays, though. If Georgia's running attack falters, Rakestraw will undoubtedly throw.

Hailstorms, anyone?

Mrs. Bradshaw The Exception To Modern Wives

casian since he was only home to supper on Tuesday and Thursday nights. The rest of the time he's out of the house by 6:30 a.m. and doesn't get home until after Lee is tucked in bed.

When asked about any special routine or change that goes on in the household routine during the season Mrs. Bradshaw said that they didn't do anything special. Just a calm, well run home.

In some cases, the coach's wife is usually another mother to the boys. But in Mrs. Bradshaw's case she says she drops in at the football house occasionally but she feels they see enough of the staff. Besides when they want to see girls it's the young pretty ones they're interested in.

"Of course, I'm interested in the boys and I feel that I know them very well, and I do become involved with their problems and accomplishments, but I don't see them very often."

She began to talk about the coach and his feelings about the boys. With such a strong belief in his aims and ambitions for the team they are bound to become the best.

"You know that the real reward of coaching is in seeing what the boys get out of it. This is foremost in our minds, the character the boys build as they play. Of course, winning is important but so is the teamwork that goes into it and the effort that each boy puts out towards this."

Winning is important to Lee. The first thing she asks on Sunday morning is whether UK won. But as her mother explained she is still too young to become too involved. She listens to the game for a while but then she is off playing a few minutes later.

When her daddy comes on TV Sunday she'll watch him come on but that's all.

From what I could find out she really loves her daddy, he's the big man in her life and his word is law in her book, just as it is with all little girls.

Mrs. Bradshaw usually travels with the team since if she went any other way she would not arrive home until the day after the coach. Lee stays with friends on those weekends.

From talking to Mrs. Bradshaw and seeing her home, there is but one conclusion for one to draw, a house is a house but a home is the product of those that live in it. The Bradshaws have a home filled with warmth and football. It's a close knit family that has high goals and Martha Bradshaw intends to provide the conditions that will keep it that way.

As I said before, it's easy to see the man but his home and his family are usually in the background. No man is an island unto himself and coaching is a lonely game, especially when you lose a game, but when you have the home that Charlie Bradshaw does there's always tomorrow and another game.

Counseling Service Helps Undecided Majors

By ANNE MITCHELL
Kernel Staff Writer

A sophomore looks at his adviser and sighs, "But sir, I don't know what I want to major in."

A senior stares vacantly out the window and wonders, "I majored in English because I liked it, but now what am I going to do with it?"

A junior asks his roommate, "How do I go about telling Dad that I can't make the grade in engineering?"

The above are three situations which are as common to college students as finals and bluebooks.

Fortunately for some, the first year and a half of University curriculum is taken up with fulfilling general requirements, but by the spring semester of the sophomore year, a student begins to feel the pressure and need of making a definite decision concerning his major.

His predicament is no worse than that of a junior who thought he had his mind made up when he entered college, but who suddenly realizes that he is acutely miserable with his major.

Neither of the two situations are any worse than the plight of a senior who doesn't have the vaguest idea of what he wants to do after he leaves the University.

Reactions to these situations take many and varied forms, but the most common result is poor grades.

"What's wrong with me? Why can't I find my place in life?" the student asks himself. Combined with a guilt complex about his indecision, the student begins to feel as if he has no definite purpose in college or the courses he is taking. Consequently, his grades begin to suffer.

Mrs. Stanley Rose, acting director of the University Counseling Service, noted that students often choose a major or career simply because of pressure exerted from society, high schools, and parents.

She explained that students who choose their majors unwisely are often ashamed to change their minds because they are afraid of parents' and friends' reactions.

"Students fear that their parents will be terribly disappointed in them if they change their minds," Mrs. Rose said.

"Half the time, this is not the case at all," she said. She attributed this misunderstanding to a basic lack of communication between student and parent.

"The parents are probably totally unaware that their child is miserable, and the student does not realize that his parents only want him to be happy," she said.

Mrs. Rose also said that upon investigation, a student desiring to change his major usually finds that he won't lose as many hours and credits as he thought.

"No matter what the trouble, if it makes you happy, it's worth it," she concluded.

Often, a session of interviews with the Counseling Service may provide a student with meaningful insights concerning his capabilities, his academic aptitudes, and his ultimate career or major. Mrs. Rose urged those students who are undecided as to a major to take advantage of the testing services.

Besides counseling in three areas, vocational, academic, and personal, the Counseling Service offers four aspects in psychological testing: intelligence, personality, vocational interest, and aptitudes which don't come in the classroom.

These tests might prove advantageous to those who come to college with a definite idea of their major, but without a realistic appraisal of their abilities.

A vocation file with professional occupational descriptions will prove to be of invaluable help to the senior who is perturbed about his post-college career.

With the help of the federal government, the Counseling Service is able to keep up-to-date files on new careers and the various phases available to students with certain areas of concentration. The file also gives information concerning where to write for jobs.

Mrs. Rose stressed that all Counseling Services are on a voluntary basis.

THE BELL TELEPHONE COMPANIES SALUTE: TOM ASHWORTH

Southern Bell Telephone Accountant Tom Ashworth (B.B.A., 1953) is one of his company's most knowledgeable experts on computers.

Tom has harnessed computers to many tasks. After general assignments and five months' training in punched card data processing, Tom was put in charge of converting the existing manual billing of Long Distance calls to a mechanized operation in Memphis. His job was to decide how the work would be done and to develop new procedures for doing it more swiftly.

His reward came in the form of frequent salary increases plus more responsibility.

After following up the first Memphis conversion job, Tom skillfully handled another. As a result, he was promoted to Special Accountant in the Nashville district, where he still teaches computers new accounting feats.

Tom Ashworth, like many young men, is impatient to make things happen for his company and himself. There are few places where such restlessness is more welcomed or rewarded than in the fast-growing telephone business.
