Frosh Should Be Thankful For Those Freshman Caps

Each year's new crop of freshmen has seriously questioned the advisability of perching undignified caps on their heads.

In 1923 the Student Council officially banned this more drastic practice and adopted the blue and white freshman cap with numerals on the front and side, styled similarly to the military doughboy cap.

So freshmen, when you voice your next complaint about your cap, remember the "head shaving" days... and be thankful.

CUT ANNOUNCED IN NYA ROLLS

College Allotment Is Decreased

Reduction of appropriations to the college division of the National Youth Administration program has made it necessary to reduce the University's NYA rolls, Dean T. J. Jones has announced.

Under the national administration program of monetary aid to self-supporting students, the federal government allocates approximately $100,000,000 per year for NYA expenses.

Under the present set-up the amount given to the University for NYA work has been reduced to such an extent that slashing of the University's rolls was made necessary, he explained.

Last year, 357 men and women students received approximately $48,135 for part-time work, according to Dean Jones on a maximum yearly basis of $135 per person.

This year, past allocations have reduced the local rolls to about 320 students. Applications for jobs have been received from approximately 450 students, he said.

Providing total enrollment reaches 4,000 students, current applications will about equal the 10 per cent of enrollment "maximum set for all schools."

A.J. The Vice Of The People

By John Spicer

Just three tangled lines, moaned Don "Dum-Dum" Lat, when he heard that his own Alpha Xi, Phi Gerald has been playing hearts with Emory Johnson behind his back. Dum-Dum only recently gave Phil an expensive silver bracelet.

"My heart belongs to daddy," says dashing Anne Adams who has to do away with romancing and start studying if she wants to remain in school. This is in on production.

"Mrs. Samara, wife of managing John, strenuously objects to John Ed saying they live on North Line. It's Paris Pike, she says. Better be careful John Ed or she'll invite you out to supper.

Jean Foley, making her university bow this semester, is honesty. This kid's going places, watch her. Paul Cavisie, perennial freshman from Brooklyn, who has been searching for a pretty girl to call his own, has finally clicked. The girl is Betty Ellsworth, pretty little freshman from Hensley, Clay.

The Dot Manning-Russell Gresham summer romance is on the skirts. Owen Cox is leaving for the States. Julie Jones of football fame returned from Louisville one day this past summer like a sun flower. His usually lustrous dark hair was bleached a platinum blonde. "Cute," said preacher Sam Huletta. Next day he was also a platinum blonde. Not to be outdone, Parula and Zoeller also followed suit.

'The People Callet It Good And Did Shell Forth Rubies'

By ANDREW ECKDAHL

Now it came to pass in the reign of Franklin the Spender that the solons of a certain country known as the United States did become sore afraid when they contemplated the armed might of the nation.

For they heard of wars and rumors of war and of a madman of the east, called Adolf, whose hordes advanced in horrible metal monsters that crawled over towns and trenches and in screaming diabolical Messerschmitts. And he did treat warrior nation and peaceful nation alike.

And they heard of rumblings in the west where a race of men called Japs did make noises like unto belligerents, and they were crafty, sinister men because they had slant-eyes.

And in the north was man named Joe, the Red, sometimes called Uncle, who was a bad man and not to be trusted.

The solons talked among themselves and spoke thusly: "Let us build ourselves powerful fleets and many metal monsters and flying birds so that we can stop this madman Adolf or wiley Japs or the sinister Joe."

When the people of the nation heard these words they were heartened and did applaud the solons, except a few who were named Fifth Columnists and who were liken unto rats and colored Red.

And to pay for fleets and tanks and flying birds the solons did levy a heavy tax on the vices of the people, and they set July 1 for the day to begin collecting these taxes. And the people, except for those who were Fifth Columnist and were Red, called it good.

In the province of Kentucky it was liken unto the days of Ruby the Ferguson, when the people did pay three pennies, sometimes callet rubies, for every dollar's worth they did buy, or of the days of Happy crippled petite Ada Perkins into accepting his pin. K. D. Betty Lonsworth's bright young charms seem to be focused on Phil Zan Mayor Morris. Paint hearse never won fair lady. Mayor my boy. Lets tip our hat to Tom Bolling, proxy of the Delta, who has ousted Buddy Barret and Billy Prebble from Louellen Penn's back yard. Tom pinned Louellen a few days ago.

Juanita Moore forsook a green rushee, who was placed in her care, in favor of a heart throb from the south side of town. That's not cricket, Juanita.

Sigma Chi Carl Miller is in love with whom? We promised not to tell. Louise Brightwell is also in love. Don't two and two make four?

The Marjorie Randolph-Kenny Rush and Frances Renfro-Don Orme are doing nicely and expected to take the step soon.

Freshman Meeks, much publicized high school football star, can't seem to forget lovely Betty Roberts, whom he met at a rush party last week.

Beth Ware and Lee Huber, basketball and tennis star, have called it quits.

Charming Lyda Short, Porter Witt and Jim Myers have formed the well known triangle. Handsome Jim seems to have the inside rail at the present time.

Kenneth England, one of coach Rupp's hopefuls has taken to tennis in a big way. This summer, he could be seen every morning at four making his way to the tennis courts, where he would play till seven, and then to the gym, better stick to basketball Ken.

Ruggel Tom Zinn has no alternative but to keep on loving his home town girl, for hasn't she all his athletic trophies.

Pi Kap "Buster" Stephenson and Betty Hunter were quite chummy this summer. Could it be love?

Bud Servant, runaway with top honors at the R. O. T. C. camp this summer, winning medals for wrestling, track, and marksmanship. Just another good little man, eh Bud?

Southern Education Suffers Another Setback

The state auditor, in his recent allegation concerning UK staff salaries, reveals indirectly a universal condition which for several years has concerned informed students in a number of state universities throughout the South.

That is the all too obvious fact that Southern university professors, in comparison with members of other professions—most of which require even less intelligence and training, are sadly underpaid for the services they render their respective states.

In the first place—to bring the matter close to home—UK salaries in excess of $5,000, unnoted, (sic) though they may be, are not necessarily unwaranted. The pay limiting provisions in question comprise a section of a state constitution which was adopted in the 1890's, and although $5,000 may have seemed a great deal of money in 1890, today it is only a week's wages in the eyes of such "useful servants" as the Jack Bennys, the Glenn Millers, and the Tysons Powers.

And, in the second place, we should like to point out that the 15 "supra-legal" incomes named constitutes the very peak salaries, and that average University professor's income (even for those who have worked years for Ph. D. degrees) is more in the neighborhood of $2900-$3000.

When one views these facts, and at the same time realizes that nowhere in the South are there more highly trained intelligent, competent groups of persons assembled than in the universities, then he is tempted to wonder if the citizens of Kentucky—and of the rest of the states of Neighbor Dixie—are as concerned as they should be with the welfare of those men and women to whom they have entrusted the higher education of their sons and daughters.

Convocations, Believe It Or Not, Are NOT 'Terrible Orgies'

Incoming freshmen and campus "old-timers" will have the opportunity of meeting Dr. Thomas Poe Cooper for the first time as acting president of the University at the year's opening convocation at 10 o'clock this morning in Memorial Hall. Concurrent with the introduction, President Cooper, formerly dean of the agriculture college and successor to Dr. Frank L. McVey as president, will acquaint the student body, especially the freshmen, with "Kentucky's University".

Cooperating with President Cooper this morning will be Football Coach Ab Kirwan and Athletic Director Bernie Shively. Elevating the sporting side of the session, the date will point in "De-banking Football".

At Last 'The Decameron' Has Won The Citadel Of The Saddle-Shoe

By ALLENBY E. WINER

Centuries ago, within the Church of Santa Marie Novella, fate one day brought together ten persons of destiny whose profound understanding of life and command of language (not to miss mentioning of their chronic extroversion) enabled to be recorded for posterity a powerful collection of short, super-ripe anecdotes. These ten persons were the creatures of Giovanni Boccaccio, and are known to moderns through the Italian novelist's puritan-rocking book, 'Decameron'.

The sun of their meeting was one hundred stories, touching deeply upon the most delicate shores of the soul and making a general circus out of the most pious convalescents, much to the contempt and disgust of conventional critics. No wrath, however, could brake their popularity down through the years, and so appealing became their nature that literary giants like Shakespeare, Keats and Tennyson used them as foundations for some of their works.

The Decameron has been kicked merrily around the world and has seen the inside of a handful of courtrooms where it faced trial for its life as lascivious literature. Despite reversals in several quarters it still managed to sneak through lack windows and became such a popular rogue with the literary world that rigid restrictions had to be dismantled in order to dodge embarrassing situations. The book won an acquittal in the high courts of New York state many years ago, at which trial the learned judge had to admit the hundred stories made good literature. B-cause such fine fellows like Shakespeare and Tennyson had been inspired by them. That was a crucial decision for had the judge ruled otherwise Shakespeare and the other greats would this day have their noble handles slightly tarnished.

Why such a fuss was made over the Decameron is obvious in one way. For timid souls the book does not make an especially digestible dish, but after all, why can't these pusillanimous people stick to the Rover Boys and the adventures of Helen Trent.

From another point of view, there is nothing at all wrong with the Decameron. It is as frank as your family doctor, and not professing to tell only the truth, it is as true as any novel.

If Boccaccio is immortal, then is Walt Whitman and Bret Harte. If Decameron is lascivious, then so is Leaves of Grass and Luck of Roaring Camp and The Heathen Chinese.

Some educational circles have actually awakened to the fact that Boccaccio wasn't such an ugly bird after all, and this day his Decameron is on the must-read list of many prominent Universities. It certainly took a long time to make the climb, and the picture will be most discouraging if it takes as long to bring into college classrooms other equally fine literary attainments. It seems that no matter how much the education engineers fiddle around designing class programs and fancy football uniforms, they still manage to mull the ball over frequently when it comes time to do some remodeling inside the classroom, on professor and student.

Writer Objects To Boost In Non-Resident Tuition

To the Editor of the Kernel. In light of recent revelations concerning the size of the salaries paid to certain University officials I cannot refrain from remarking on an apparent inconsistency in the policy of the University. The out-of-state tuition is raised to $86, and at virtually the same time we are informed that fifteen officials have salaries above the constitutional limit.

It is rather difficult to believe that the board of trustees is attempting to revive that oft-fought conflict between the states. However, in searching for some explanation of this financial discrimination, it is rather difficult to arrive at a satisfactory conclusion. Does the board believe that the influence of outsiders is harmful, or do they feel that the average of 15's out-of-state students are crowding Kentuckians from the classes?

Perhaps Harvard, Yale and Princeton are entirely misguided when they offer academic scholarships to other than their own professional ball players, from every state in the union in an effort to secure that cosmopolitan atmosphere which one rather expects to find at important places of learning. However, disregarding that, and assuming that Kentuckians are content to mingle only with others equally lacking in sophistication, does it not seem a bit unfair to raise the tuition costs for students who have already been in attendance for a year or more, and who have planned their four year budget in accordance with a certain rate? This increased rate, I believe, will prove a dubious benefit as we have already lost this year, amongst others, a fine track man.

Margaret Lester Will Head Women's Residence Halls

Kathleen Shedd Accepts New Post In Boyd Hall

Miss Margaret Lester, Knoxville, Tenn., will serve as the new director of the women's residence halls, and Miss Kathleen Shedd, New Haven, Conn., has been appointed to fill the new position as head resident of Boyd Hall.

The charming and gracious director succeeds Miss Jeannette Scudder, who resigned this summer to become dean of women at the University of Arkansas.

Miss Lester received her bachelor of arts degree from the University of Tennessee and master's degree in education with a major in student personnel administration, from Syracuse university.

Last year at Syracuse the youthful halls' director was head resident of a girls' living center and attended classes at the same time.

Miss Lester feels that the halls should not be referred to as "dormitories." This word implies a place to sleep rather than a place to live.

"We want to make the residence halls a place for the girls to enjoy themselves, to learn social grace, and to entertain friends in an attractive atmosphere," Miss Lester stated.

Commenting on her new environment, Miss Lester, whose home is in Knoxville, Tenn., called a part of "God's country."

A graduate of Smith college and a Phi Beta Kappa, Miss Shedd attended the Ecole Internationale at Geneva, Switzerland, from 1931 to 1933 and studied at the University of Munich for a year with a fellowship from the Institute of International Education. She worked as an assistant to Professor Hans Kohn of Smith college after obtaining her degree.

He could have been "The Man Most Likely to Succeed"

but indifference, like using a faulty pen, kept him behind the 8-Ball

Harry had everything, except a sense of discrimination. Perhaps he leaned too heavily on his natural gifts. Anyway, he never added to them in college, but laughed things off—like the times his old-fashioned pen ran dry in classes and exams. His bright alumnus is out in the world today—a man who could have given orders, he is taking them. Sure, it seems far-fetched, but you'll be surprised when a great big difference it makes in your grades to carry a new-fangled pen like the Parker Super-Vacumatic. It's this revolutionary streamlined Beauty that never runs dry unless you let it. For its sleek Television barrel holds nearly twice as much ink as our old type, and it lets you SEE days ahead if it's running low. It's the only Style that looks like circles of shimmering velvet—ring upon ring of lustrous Pearl and Jet. The One-Hand sleek filler with the "lubricated" Point of extra fine-ground 14K Gold, extra resilient—tipped with Osmidium that writes "as smooth as oil." It's the college favorite by nearly 3 to 1—so it rates one "in the Know" to carry the genuine.

Be sure to look for Parker's Blue Diamond—it means Guaranteed for Life. Avoid all substitutes—then you'll have no regrets. The Parker Pen Co., Jucaville, Wis.

RULES CHANGES WILL LENGTHEN PLAYING TIME

Other Changes Aim To Encourage Shovel Passing

Most apparent outcome of the rules enactment and revision for the 1940 season is the attempt of the national football rules committee to lengthen actual game playing time.

The committee hopes to achieve this aim by shortening the time needed in putting the ball into play. As most time is lost in the huddle, maximum huddle time has been reduced from 30 to 25 seconds. Leading sports authorities have termed this revision a prominent factor in the desertion of the huddle system by many squads. Kentucky is an ardent disciple of the huddle system.

Other important revisions deal with passing, equipment changes, and "free ball kicking". To encourage shovel passing and short passes behind the line of scrimmage, a forward pass striking an ineligible player on or behind the line of scrimmage now will be ruled as a loss of down only. Formerly the penalty was loss of down plus a 15-yard penalty.

A pass touching an eligible player behind the line in an attempt by the passer to evade losing yardage is ruled as an intentionally grounded pass—loss of down and a 15-yard penalty. If a passer is roughed, the penalty is inflicted from the spot of the previous down.

From The Hill

By FRED HILL

You can learn almost as much of what went on on the football field Saturday afternoon by listening in at the Saturday night "sweat and swing" sessions in the Union building as you can from a seat in the press box.

It's the team's night off—they can stay out till 11:30—and they like to congregate in the lobby of our red, white, and blue "patriot's parlor".

Like the postman who takes a hike on his day off—or the sports-writer who goes to the ball game on his—they spend most of the time talking over the afternoon's action.

For instance, after the B-W skirmish they doped out the reason for some late last quarter confusion, when the offense started looking a little ragged.

It seems that along toward the end of the game, the Baldwin-Wallace eleven, desperate in its effort to make some impression in Kentucky territory or at least stop the fast-moving Blue offense, starting shifting its defense while the other team was in the huddle.

This forced Junie Jones, who was calling the signals to check his first and change his course of action. With huddle time cut to 15 seconds there isn't much room for this.

Thus the confusion and the occasional fumbles.

But why, ask you, can't every one of our opponents shift their defense and confuse us in the same manner?

1. A hastily put together defense is as dangerous to one team as it is to the other. It makes for confusion perhaps, but it also makes for touchdown plays.

2. Much of the disorder shown Saturday will be done away with as the team adjusts its timing to the short huddle.

3. There were a lot of sophs in on that last quarter against B-W, playing their first varsity game. They need more experience before they can adjust themselves to such situations. There won't be many, or maybe any, inexperienced players in the line-up against teams like Tennessee, Tech, and Alabama.

4. Coach Kirwan was experimenting with team combinations; he could afford to with the lead he had. A dood team must practice as a unit—some of those probably never had.

So don't worry about the Cats being ragged. This is only the opener, and at that they looked smoother this game than they did in first contest last season.

Yellowjackets Wilt In 95-Degree Heat

Cat Pass Defense Appears To Be Only Weakness

The temperature on Stoll field Saturday was 95 degrees. And the Wildcat offense was just about as hot as it swamped an over-rated Baldwin-Wallace eleven, strong in spirit but weak in reserves, in a downpour of nine touchdowns to win 59-7.

Showing much better form than they did in last season's opener against V. M. I. the Kentucky team deadlocked with the Berea, Ohioans, who were picked by Cleveland sportswriters as the boys to upset the Blue and White until late in the first quarter, when Mullins plowed across from the two yard line to rack up the first score.

After that the Yellowjackets almost devoid of reserves, went to pieces under the dazzling attack of Coach Kirwan's B team and reserves. They showed opening minute form only once again, and that midway in the second frame when they combined three passes to score their lone tally.

Cats Pick Up Power
After Dave Zoelner's beautiful 31-yard pass to Henry "Dynamo" Deaham which put the Cats in scoring territory, Noah Mullins went two yards through the center of the "Reddub" line to score first again in the second half.

Then Coach Kirwan decided it was time to experiment with his sophs and inexperienced gridlers, so it was they who carried on the attack. Claude Hammond, pile-driving junior fullback from Williamson, W. Va., culminated a 29-yard drive, after Junie Jones made a brilliant return of a Yellowjacket.

Kentucky goal-line, scoring standing up. That was the only time that the Wall-men made a serious inroad into Cats territory. Despite its obvious deficiency of pass-defense, the Kentucky team on the whole proved too strong for their opponents. Filled with veteran line-men like Captain John Elbert, who showed all-American potentialities, the Blue forward wall proved almost impenetrable, yielding but a net 21 yards to the enemy rushing plays.
