YOUR PART

While this preachment is addressed primarily to those Alumni of the University of Kentucky who live in Kentucky, it can be applied to those who no longer live within its borders, but who are in touch with their former home. We also must exhort ourselves for again expounding on this subject. We excuse ourselves for the repetition because of the importance of the subject which we are about to repeat.

The University of Kentucky this year will ask the General Assembly for funds with which to maintain the institution for the next two years. In addition to the funds for maintenance there is also a pressing need for funds with which to construct new buildings on the campus and for the general program of expansion. Anyone who has had any connection at all with a state maintained institution knows that to get funds necessary for that institution, every effort possible and every bit of assistance possible must be used. We, here at the University of Kentucky, know this too well. We will need assistance and we will need it greatly. This assistance is what the Alumni can and must give if the university is to go forward.

There are comparatively few persons in the state who know the scope and extent of the services of the University of Kentucky to the citizens of Kentucky. Only a comparatively small number realize that the University of Kentucky is as much a public school as any high school or graded school in the state. The University of Kentucky is merely a higher public school than your own high school. Few realize that the University of Kentucky is the greatest factor in the cause of higher education in Kentucky. There are few who know that within the past ten years the enrollment has more than doubled and that in that time there have been no new buildings erected in which to give these young men and women instruction. The officials of the University of Kentucky have been forced to utilize basements and other unsuited quarters for classrooms. Few know that for the 1,200 or more men students on the campus there is dormitory space for approximately 100. Here alone is enough material for you to use in your work for the University of Kentucky.

Here is what we are asking you to do for your Alma Mater. Meet the representative and senator from your district, if this is impossible, write to them and tell them what we have just told you. Tell them what is needed here on the campus and ask them to pledge their support to the University of Kentucky. More than likely you will find them with mistaken ideas of the University of Kentucky which you can set right in a few minutes. Get their promise of support and tell them that you will be watching for their influence at Frankfort. If every representative and senator is approached in this way the cause of the University of Kentucky will be furthered to a marked degree and the way would be opened for us who will carry on the fight actively in Frankfort.

Formal initiation of Mr. Robert Oliver followed the banquet.

Miss Mary Graham Williams presided as toastmistress and the following interesting responses were given: "Wishing," the pledge toast, by Miss Louise Gott.
"Vision," the active toast, by Miss

Lella Payton.

A BLESSED MEMORIAL

With this issue, the last until after the holidays, The Kernel takes the liberty to bid a brief good-bye, and God-speed to its comrades on the home-bound journey, and also to bespeak for them a happy, healthful and joyous Yuletide.

Whatever schemes, plans, or visions for the future we entertain in this hard-fisted battle of life, in the midst of this age of iron and steel and electricity; this age of terrific strife for gold, and the fleeting satisfaction glory brings, it is reassuring to pause for a moment and meditate upon the significance of the most tremendous and potent fact in the history of twenty centuries. The Kernel is not a religious paper. Rather, it prefers to maintain the even tenor of its way as a purely secular publication. However, it cannot refrain from emphasizing at this time the inspiration that comes of reflecting upon the life of the man, Jesus—that life with its mystery of birth in a manger, its 33 short years of intense sacrifice for humanity and its tragedy of death upon the cross.

Some profess to believe that He was merely the son of Mary and Joseph; that it is illogical to assume that his birth was divine and his mission other than that of a brave and tender soul with vision, intellect and understanding, many centuries ahead of his time. Upon this subject The Kernel does not care to decant. What is divine is that which He taught and the impress He has left upon these twenty centuries of life and its manifold problems. The change, the miracle He has wrought in the hearts of men—that, surely, is divine.

So, upon the approach of this most solemn festival of the year, upon the approach of the day called Christmas—in the memory of Him, The Kernel would have its readers celebrate as He would have them celebrate this season—by bringing joy and a new vision of peace and of consolation to those about us. He, who does this will make it a memorial meet unto Him who said: "Inasmuch as ye have done it unto the least of these, my brethren, ye have done it unto me."

THE PRIME "REASON"

"And the readers I should most wish to serve are those who have recognized their college graduation, not as the goal, but the starting-point of a culture with which the leisure time of their whole lives may be filled."—Richard George Moulton in his Preface to The Modern Study of Literature.
One of the most amusing ways to pass an hour is to pick up one of our current periodicals and to read an article on "The American College."

The articles purport to tell, "Why one should go to college, who should go there, and the purpose of education. All these are, of course, tolerably serious questions and the magazines treat them in a painstaking, serious manner. The amusement enters, when one examines the reasons commonly assigned for a college career, reasons which all good people, seriously inclined, must find entirely adequate, but which a collegian with one-half grain of discernment, must find laughable. That some collegians do not possess this one-half grain of discernment is to be deplored, and one can, on occasion, apologize for them.

Among the least asinine reasons assigned for coming to college are: that the collegian man earns $150,000 during his lifetime; virtually all members of the United States Supreme Court have been college men; nineteen presidents of the United States have gone to college.

Now as regards statistics, the gentlemen are without doubt, entirely correct, but as to ascribing these laudable ambitions as reasons for going to college is somewhat a matter of doubt. At least The Kernel does not feel that such petty considerations as that have led any of the present excellent young men and women to the university.

For it can be easily seen that earning $150,000 during one's lifetime, or being a justice of the supreme court, or president of the United States, while all are worthy goals, are not the end, nor the reason for a college education. And likewise, it is easily to be seen that many students may not reach these vantage grounds.

The Kernel believes that the reason for, and the end of a college education is simply that the student may learn to enjoy life, and above all, to enjoy himself—with the intangible wealth that his years in college give him.

The reason for, and the end of a college education then, is a purely idealistic one.

THE NEW STAFF

With this issue of The Kernel, a new staff comes into office. This staff assumes its responsibilities with no little trepidation on its part, having in the course of preparation for its job, gained some slight knowledge of the problems arising out of the running of a university paper. It is therefore, not in the sublime confidence of ignorance, that this staff takes up its work.

Johnny and Niel, as they are affectionately known, have directed the destinies of The Kernel for the last two years. They have left The Kernel in higher standing than it has ever enjoyed before, and they leave us, the new staff, with a standard of college journalism that we may well be proud to maintain.

For John Bullock and Niel Plummer were exceedingly alert editors and they are to be complimented, in that no sooner did journalism or the university take a step forward than The Kernel too, took a forward step. Thus, The Kernel's progress has been attuned in every way to what was best. If the new staff is capable of doing as much, then it is certain that The Kernel will improve.

Therefore, do you, the students, the faculty, the alumni and all of The Kernel's numerous friends, pledge anew your support. The Kernel will try its best to serve you.

WAILS OF THE WEEK

Our girl thought that we were praising her the other day when we said that she was "like an angel." We really meant that she was always up in the air and harping about something.

Which reminds us how unreliable that printer was who made our society editor say: "Her mangy friends wish her all the happiness in the world." What a short of a difference a "g" will make.

The best explanation which had so far been advanced to explain the distorted visage of Capt. Claire Dees appearing in The Kernel last week, is that a snare flake fluttered by just as the photographer snapped the picture. Take it or leave it.

"A lass! A lass!" bawled the youth who had been cooped up in a prep for another term.

The freshman who said that a panther was a man who made "panths" was at least original.

LITERARY SECTION

ELMER GANTRY, BY SINCLAIR LEWIS

(By John Rice Bullock)

Whatever may be its virtues or its faults, "Elmer Gantry" bids fair to be placed in the annals of literature at the most widely-read, most discussed novel of the year. Following his successes in writing "Arrow-smith," "Rabbit," and "Main Street," the sensational Sinclair Lewis became more sensational, more cynical, and more denunciatory than ever. The result was "Elmer Gantry."

"Elmer Gantry" claims to be the biography of the productive years of one Protestant minister of the faith in Rupert Hughes' "Life of Washington." As Hughes attempts to show the human side of the "Father of Our Country," so Lewis sketches the shortcomings of one of the ministerial profession. The fact that, in so doing, he makes his prototype one of the greatest hypocrites to be found in the realm of fiction does not seem to worry the author one whit although it has already caused more commotion in the church than any literary work of the past decade.

There is much of the sordid in "Elmer Gantry"—consequently we can safely predict that it will have a tremendous sale. The author makes no attempt to disguise the sordidness of his story which he starts off by relating one of the drunken brawls of the college life of Elmer Gantry.

Probably Sinclair Lewis described accounts of Elmer Gantry's amorous conquests to gain popular interest. It is exceedingly doubtful, however, if in so doing he does not disgust his readers. For the leader of the "highest calling" strays often from the narrow path of chastity, and his paramours are selected indiscriminately from all classes of society.

It is probable that few people who begin reading "Elmer Gantry" will put it aside unfinished. But it is equally doubtful if many readers will be able to pounce all of its hypocrisy and sordidness without frequent intermissions and plenty of wholesome fresh air.

In short, "Elmer Gantry" is a book that everyone thinks should be suppressed so far as everyone else is concerned, but which he himself should read in order that he may intelligently denounce it.

Music, Stage and Screen

The music department of the university is to be exceedingly active this week. Three programs will be presented. Those who have not heard the girl's band will be interested to know that they will present their second concert of the year, Sunday, at 6:30 p. m., in the men's gymnasium.

Tschakovsky's famous, "The Year 1812" overture, rendered by the university concert band, and violin solo, by Prof. Carl A. Lampert, not to mention the rendition of "The Volga Boatman," by the Men's Glee club, will top a real festival of music at the university. The above mentioned program will be rendered, Monday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, in the men's gymnasium.

Romany theater, in its presentation of Sutton Vane's comedy, "Outward Bound," has given one of the outstanding productions of its career as an organization. No special mention will be given. Each member of the cast were equally good in their characterization.

Coming to the Strand theater, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, is another of these stupendous Westerns. "The Flaming Frontier" is its title and it has a historical background for the action of the story. The part of General Custer is played by Dustin Farnum. Hoot Gibson, star of innumerable western productions, is the lead in this picture. Other notable in the cast include Kathleen Key and George Fawcett.

"The Joy Girl," with Olive Borden as the star, is the Strand's attraction for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. Allen Dean, one of the screen's best known directors, has charge of this production. The picture has for the scene of its action, Palm beach. Neil Hamilton, one of the screen's most promising young stars, has the male lead.

Vera Reynolds, one of our flapper artists, is the star in "The Little Adventurer," the picture coming to the Ben Ali theater next Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday. The settings of the picture are said to embrace futuristic color schemes. That sentence was for benefit of the art student. William de Mille is the director, and the film itself was adapted from A. A. Milne's successful play, "The Dover Road." Among our favorites in the cast, is Theodore Kosloff.

"The Broken Gate" is the Ben Ali presentation for Thursday, Friday and Saturday of next week. The

Looking Over The Magazines

(By J. Clark Graves)
The monthly magazines for December have an interesting assortment of articles. Judge Ben B. Lindsey, an advocate of companionable marriages, pleads in the December "Forum" for a house of human welfare for the "weary, heavy laden, and the spiritually and physically sick." I also found Joseph Fort Newton's article, "Thomas Jefferson and the Religion of America" in "The Forum." This is interesting and worth recommending to students of law and government.

My reactions to George A. Schuyler's article, "Our White Folks," in the December "American Mercury" were quite different. Mr. Schuyler is at present on the staff of the "Messenger," organ of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters. His vindictive complaint is directed against the white folks' understanding of the negro. And certainly we can afford to understand the negro better, only if we are afraid Mr. Schuyler's attitude will never effect such a reconciliation. He takes an attitude of wounded hostility and places his race slightly above ours, and he endeavors to reveal the amazing ignorance of the "whites" in almost every endeavor relating to the negro. The article impresses one as being rather a severe lapse in the kind of fact that would be of a decided benefit to Mr. Schuyler's efforts.

Thomas Graves' article in "The Mercury" on Albert Ryder, a not well known American painter, will perhaps be of interest to students of art.

"Judge" continues its bombastic fun with "wise cracks" and cartooning that I find decidedly entertaining. A more sophisticated journal of the same nature is "The New Yorker" and for brief, yet wise comments on movies, etc., I find it unexcelled. Speaking of sophistication, let me mention "Vanity Fair." This extraordinary magazine strikes me as being one of the surliest embodiments of American advertising. I never fail to enjoy the rococo pastels and drawings that are certainly made to appeal to a very fastidious type of readers. And besides the advertisements, I highly recommend the drawings of Covarrubias with whatever fiction Mr. Theodore Dreiser and Mr. Sherwood Anderson may see fit for New York debutantes to read.

"The Saturday Evening Post" has an article, "The American Book of Wonder," by Garet Garrett, on American prosperity from the German and British standpoint. Mr. Garrett is well known in his line and he makes some interesting observations. He points out, for instance, that many of our labor-saving devices were brought over from England, to be improved upon until their value became almost doubled. The Germans, he further tells us, by taking over some of our machines, have reduced work in some instances, from twenty men to one man without, however, a saving in cost. Mr. Garrett is thoroughly rational and can be read with real interest.

The President is not adverse to for economy, but solely because he abundant trousers around the ankles dislikes to see trousers that "drag because of any instinctive penchant and flop."

Behind the scenes with Columbus

THERE is a forgotten chapter in the life of Columbus which in its way had as much to do with the discovery of America as the voyage itself. We refer to the years spent in preparation before he set sail—years filled with painstaking study, planning his voyage with the aid of what crude maps and geographical data he could procure. In telephone, too, the success of each new development depends on the years of intensive research and careful planning that precede actual construction. Bell telephone men are continually mapping out the course of this great industry for years to come.

The true telephone pioneer is he who brings vision and initiative to his work as supervisor, engineer or executive—and who backs this up with the painstaking study needed to crystallize the dream into the reality.

NATIONAL ICE CREAM

is made of pure cream, milk and sugar flavored to suit your taste. It contains a high percentage of milk solids from fresh, whole milk, much of the water being vaporized and thrown off by boiling the ice cream mixture under vacuum at the low temperature of approximately 130 F. In this manner National Ice Cream retains the body building solids from fresh milk instead of adding condensed or powdered milk and other fillers. No butter, condensed or powdered milk is used in making, and only the finest milk and cream go into National Ice Cream. It quite naturally follows that in this delightful product you enjoy a clean, wholesome flavor and the high percentage of milk solids and butterfat of pure sweet cream makes it an ideal health food in addition to a splendid dessert or delicacy. That you may more thoroughly appreciate the merit of National Ice Cream, may better understand why it really and truly does "mean so much more" than ordinary ice creams or frozen products—Enjoy its wholesome deliciousness today, note its marked superiority of flavor, its velvety smoothness of texture and you will thereafter patronize National Ice Cream dealers. The annual Christmas tree which is given each year by the Y. W. C. A. and Y. M. C. A. of the campus for the children of Lincoln school, will be given this year at the school on West High street, December 29, at 4 o'clock.

On account of the destitute conditions at Lincoln school this year, much more money will be needed and it is hoped that the entire student body will cooperate in helping these children to have a good Christmas.

Consequently, boxes will be placed in every building of the campus and any donation whatsoever, will be greatly appreciated. For any further information concerning this work, see Ray Valade, chairman for the Y. M. C. A. or Mildred Kidd, chairman for the Y. W. C. A.

Tuesday evening, at 6:45 o'clock, vesper services of the Y. W. C. A. will be held at Patterson hall. All girls are cordially invited to be present.

Kappa Sigs Win Intra-Mural Volleyball Championship Cup; Basketball to Start Soon

The Kappa Sigs won the volley ball championship of the university by defeating the Phi Taus in the final of the intramural tournament held in the Men's gymnasium last Thursday evening.

The winners started off like a whirlwind, taking the first game by the score of 15 to 1, but the Phi Taus came back strong in the second match and put up a hard fight only to lose by the score of 16 to 14. Bill Gess, "Eggie" Marshall, and Dave McNamara of the Kappa Sigma team, form a combination that is hard to beat.

In the semi-finals, held the night before, the Kappa Sigs defeated the Sigma Nus in two straight matches, while the Phi Taus were fighting hard to defeat the Pi K A's in three close games.

The members of the championship Kappa Sig team are: Gess, Hill, McNamara, Oliver, Newman, and Marshall. The Phi Kappa Tau team was composed of Dodson, Bryant, Davis, Barnes, Bowser, Epps, and Adams.

This is the first volley ball tournament ever held at the university, and, taking into consideration this fact, there was a great deal of interest shown in it. There were eight teams competing this year, and it is hoped that there will be several times that many next year.

This completes the intramural sport program before the Christmas holidays, but after the holidays intramural basketball will start. Last year more than 300 boys competed in intramural basketball. Many more are expected to take part this season. There will be four leagues, or divisions, this year. There will be a division for fraternity teams, one for military teams, one for church teams, and for those who belong to no organization there will be a division for independent teams. It is urged that those who do not belong to any organizations, form an independent team and compete.

There will be more trophies awarded this year than ever before. Ten trophies will be given to the various teams winning honors, and 18 trophies will be given to individuals.

After the champion team is determined in each division there will be

Stroller Dance Will Be Given in January

The Stroller dance will be given Saturday, January 7, in the Men's gymnasium from 8:30 to 12, according to an announcement by Hunter Moody, president of the Strollers. The music will be furnished by the Masqueraders. The dancing is scheduled for the first Saturday after the Christmas vacation and it is expected to be one of the best of the season. The proceeds from the dance will be used for the spring play which will be given sometime the first of March.

WILL PLAY FIRST GAME AFTER HOLIDAYS

With 46 men aspiring to become members of the Kitten basketball squad when the call was sounded December 1, Coach Fred Major settled down to work and sorted out the best and now has on hand a list of around 46. Due to the large number reporting, the fresh coach has been holding two private sessions, one in the afternoon and one in the evening.

Practice periods have been devoted to the fundamentals of the system, being established by the varsity coach, Johnnie Mauer. Scrimmage with the varsity has been merely for play without any regard whatever to an offensive and defensive attack.

Each man on the squad has an equal chance to make the first team because the new system is entirely different from any system they have known. The main object is to develop the members of the squad to such a fine point of efficiency that they can easily break into the varsity system of play next year without any trouble.

As yet a definite schedule for the freshmen has not been arranged. However, no games will be played until after the Christmas holidays, when teams of a higher calibre only will be engaged on the floor. The purpose of this is to create a sort of efficiency through contact with the best teams.

SOUTHERN TEAM PLAY WESTERNERS

Senior Men Named by Conference to Play Charity Game at Los Angeles, December 26; Mohny Unable to Make Trip.

Twenty players representing the best senior talent to be found in the south this season were named by the Southern Conference Saturday, December 10, as members of the squad that will journey to Los Angeles for a charity football game Monday, December 26, against an All-Western senior team.

The selections were made public last Saturday afternoon after the morning session of the executive body of the Conference, at which all the important business before the association was decided.

The squad was formed by a consensus among coaches of the entire conference who were in attendance at the annual meeting here. The players selected were given the honor in a thoroughly fair and just manner, those getting the most votes being the ones included on the squad as regulars or alternates.

In view of the fact that several of the players slated for the regular squad may not be able to make the trip, the committee in charge had the

REEPING 'EM

(By Bill Reep)

The Wildcat basketballers will officially open their net season tonight, stacking up against the Clemson College five from North Carolina.

Very little is known concerning the Carolinians except that they are reputed as having an exceptionally strong team this year. Clemson has always furnished their opponents some mighty stiff opposition, and according to the dope, this year will not be an exception to their reputation.

We believe that Kentucky will have a basketball team this year that will rank with the best in the south. It may take a little more time for the men to master the finer points of the game, but once they know them the Wildcats are going to have a team that will be mighty, mighty hard to defeat.

Each year our university is making better progress in the field of athletics, which is, of course, pleasing to both the graduates and students. In my mind there is no better way of stimulating athletics and developing unknown and unseason material than through the department of intramural sports.

In a football game two weeks ago between two of the college fraternities, it was brought out, from the two teams playing there were four or five men who with the proper coaching would have the possibilities of making real football players. Men of promising ability would be welcome to any coach's football squad.

The uncovering of unknown material is one of the objects of the intramural department and its work will prove mighty valuable in the long run. Through rivalry in athletics among men students of the university, it will be possible to stimulate the desire for improvement of their ability. The intramural department is doing this very thing and so far they have had good success.

It is a well known fact among the populace of the university that our president, Dr. McVey, is very much an advocate of intramural athletics. When the president of the school shows such an interest in sports, it would be well worth the while of others to follow his example.

The committee in charge of the selections and which will coach the players for the game is composed of Dan McGugin, of Vanderbilt; Wallace Wade, of Alabama, and W. A. Alexander, of Georgia Tech.

No Kentucky men were named either as regulars or alternates. It was understood that Gayle Mohny, one of the best defensive and all-around backs in the south, would have been named had it not been generally known among the coaches that he would not be able to make the trip.

Team Selection

The players selected are as follows:
Centers—Sharpe, Vanderbilt, and Butcher, Tennessee.
Guards—Bowdoin, Alabama; Barnhill, Tennessee, and Thompson, Mississippi A. and M.

Tackles—Cardwell, Virginia; Hood, Georgia Tech, and Pickard, Alabama.
Ends—Creson, Vanderbilt; Nash and Shiver, Georgia, and Crowley, Georgia Tech.

Backs—Spears, Vanderbilt; McDowell North Carolina State; Middlekauf, Florida; Cohen, Ole Miss; Brown, Alabama; Estes, Georgia; Menville, Tulane, and Thomas, Maryland.

The alternates selected are: Patterson, Auburn; Mandy, V. M. I.; Tipps, Washington and Lee; Spotts, Washington and Lee; Andrews, Auburn; Eskew, Clemson; Godfrey, L. S. U.; and Dodson, Tennessee.

Boots! Boots! Boots! Writer Views With Dread, Russian Influence

(By C. W. Hume)

Boots! Boots! Boots! It has come to the place that a common person on the campus of the university can't tell whether a particular fad is collegiate or just plain Russian. Of course, we should know since we've heard Russian songs, seen Russian dances, read Russian books, eaten Russian food, and played Russian games, in fact we have reviewed it all from

A to Z, but these Russians are just really a mysterious race. Reports gathered from Lexington shoe stores indicated a tremendous sale on boots during the past month, one dealer ventures to say that four out of five girls wear them. Now and then a touch of Russian culture may be noticed, depending on one's power of observation, among the males, but whether they got up too late to shave or are actually cultivating the thing, one knows. If the Chinese and Italians are as successful in imposing their customs and costumes on us as the Russians, it will spread concentration to every heart for, no doubt, the college mill will come forth some morning garbed in Russian boots, the pajama-like dress of the Chinese and a set of Italian brass earrings.

The Russian movement proved a failure among the males. It was expected that some suave pace-setter from the male seniors who was able to sprout a mustache, the collegian-kind with three whiskers on each side of the nose, would appear some morning at an 8 o'clock class in full Russian regalia, including the felt boots and dynamite, and warn the unsuspecting professor not to let such a thing happen again. We were disappointed.

Just so long as girls care only to wear short boots, that will be all right, but if they ever adopt those abominable Russian trousers, the Freud theory will be disproved, the university will never be the same, and Elmer Glyn will starve to death. Yes, it's tragic to think about, but all Russian stories are supposed to be tragic.

Apple Growers From Sixteen States Are At Louisville Meeting

Three hundred apple growers from sixteen states attended the joint meeting of the Kentucky Horticultural society, the American Pomological society, and the officials of the College of Agriculture of the University of Kentucky at the Brown Hotel in Louisville on December 6, 7 and 8.

Among those attending from Lexington were: A. J. O'neer, W. D. La Vallu, W. W. McGill, C. W. Matthews, and Walter Hillemeier. Professor Magill made the opening address, and Mr. Matthews and Mr. Hillemeier were also on the program for speeches.

A feature of the meeting was the annual student's apple judging contest. Teams of four from the following states took part: Massachusetts, Ohio, West Virginia, Missouri, and Kansas. The team from Ohio state won the contest and won the silver trophy cup awarded by the American Pomological society.

take us where the tumult dies. They say there is one place in the cyclone where the quiet is perfect and a baby may be unharmed. It is at the center of the storm. In this strife-torn, war-bled world there is one place of perfect calm, of holy and triumphant peace. It is at the center. It is where men learn that God is their Father and that all men are brothers. It is where they surrender to the one supreme law of love. It is Jesus Christ who knows the path to the center. He has walked that path with nail-pierced feet, and He waits and longs to take a war-torn world by the hand and lead where all the flags of hate have been forever furled and "His banner over them is love."

Christ's message is peace. His method is love, and His goal is human brotherhood. Any effort to give Christ's message that leaves out peace is defective. Any orthodoxy that clamors for a dogma and that leaves men in a mood of hate is worse than heresy. Christ said: "I shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. He did not say: 'The truth shall make you zealous to destroy freedom.' He was the Apostle of peace, the Prince of peace.

His method for translating His message into the life of the world is love. He confidently stakes all on love. He has but one law for a regenerated world, but one principle for the new social order, but one element for the kingdom. It is love. If He can get men to love God with all their hearts and their neighbor as themselves, He is careless of all else. Was there ever such recklessness? The politicians call Him a dreamer. Even the preachers are disposed to go lightly. The denominational journals and the apostles of sectarianism and strife would spiritualize Christ's teachings on love until the meaning shrivels to their moods. But Jesus meant what He said, and when He can find a generation that will take Him at His word and dare adventure civilization on love, the star of world peace will wander earthward, and the Christmas angels will sing again the song of advent.

RELIGIOUS DISCUSSION
JESUS CHRIST, PEACEMAKER
By James I. Vance
Pastor, First Presbyterian Church Nashville, Tenn.

Who believes, if Jesus had His way with this world, that there would ever be another war? We may decry internationalism, we may ridicule pacifism, we may brand as crazy doctrines the people who oppose military training, we may eulogize a red-blooded race and halo Valhalla, we may fight the League of Nations and the World Court, we may shout: "America for the Americans!" until we croak, but after the skies clear and the tumult of the shooting cease, there stands that quiet figure on the world's skyline: He is not a soldier. He said to Peter: "Put up again thy sword into its place: for all they that take the sword shall perish by the sword." That is enough for disarmament. He is not a politician. He said to His carrying critics: "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." We must look further than the politicians if we ever are to have world peace.

Christ is not merely a reformer, a social worker, the founder of a cult, the promoter of a creed. He is more than a churchman, an ecclesiastic, a theologian, a teacher. He is a Savior, and men are not saved until they are reconciled to God, and when they become reconciled to God, it is but a breath until they are reconciled to one another. Jesus Christ, then, is the world's hope of peace. He is mankind's peacemaker. His is the voice that must make the mad waves still. He is the only figure on the world's skyline tall enough for race leadership, and not until the nations have armed themselves with the mind that was in Jesus will they beat their swords into plowshares and their spears into pruning-hooks and learn war no more.

Christ's bequest was peace. To those distributed disciples, He said: "Peace I leave with you." To the disturbed world He is saying it still. He lived in the midst of strife and storm. The world was constantly trying to destroy His peace, but all His efforts were powerless, for He had the sublime secret. He knew where peace comes from, whence it is to be had in unspent and serene power. Therefore, when He went away, the one thing that He had to bequeath was peace. Peace was the song of the angels at His advent, and peace is the last will and testament of the Son of man.

What the nations need is to sit at the feet of Jesus and learn of Him. We must look further than Geneva, higher than Lausanne, beyond London and Paris and Washington. We must lift our eyes to the white throne. Religion is the only cure for a war-mad world, but it must be the religion of Jesus Christ, peacemaker. He can

DOCTOR GRAVES TALKS TO SOCIETY

Urges Pre-Medical Students to Take Three Years of College Work Before Entering School of Medicine.

Dr. Stuart Graves, dean of the Medical School of the University of Louisville, gave an address recently on "Pre-medical and Medical Education" to the Pre-Medical Society of the university. The purpose of the address was to help the student who is contemplating a medical career to get started on the right road. In the course of the talk, Doctor Graves said that he would endeavor to give the students "sufficient information to plan correctly how they may expend to the best advantage the large amount of time, effort, and money necessary to the proper preparation for practice and teaching of modern medicine."

Doctor Graves says to be a good medical student, one must get a thorough knowledge of three main things, namely, morphology of the body, diseases and causes, and cure and preventive. He also recommended a four year college course, or at least three years college work before entering a medical school. The student should have sufficient funds to take him through the first two years in a medical school, and if it is necessary, part time may be devoted to outside work during the other two years.

According to Doctor Graves the man of medicine should have good training, a keen observation, and should spend a large amount of time in reading in order to meet the situations bound to occur in this profession.

Doctor Graves is well known in the medical and educational fields. He received his A. B. and M. A. degrees from Syracuse University and did his post graduate work at Boston, Mass. He has been professor of pathology and bacteriology in the University of Louisville since 1914, and dean of the medical school since 1922. At the meeting of the Southern Medical Association, at Memphis, Tenn., in November, he was elected chairman of the committee on medical education.

'GRAUSTARK' IS NEXT PRODUCTION

Fascinating Love Triangle Will Be Presented By Roberson-Smith Players All Next Week At Lexington Opera House.

"Graustark," that fascinating love triangle, so well known to millions of readers and theatre-goers, is to be presented by the Roberson-Smith Players at the Opera House next week, beginning Monday.

This story of American chivalry, heart interest and delightful comedy, needs no introduction to those who follow the stage. Grace Hayward has prepared a delightful dramatization of George Barr McCutcheon's best book, thoroughly modernizing it in every way. It has met with unloyed success on the screen with Norma Talmadge and Eugene O'Brien in the leads, and as an opera presented on the New York stage by the Shuberts, and is something entirely different from the plays that have been presented by the company during the past few weeks.

"Graustark" is a love story in terms of the most dashing, red-blooded romance and intrigue, making it entirely apart from the usual dramatic fare. Leaders on both the stage and screen have been anxious to share in its tremendous popularity.

PLAN NEW BUILDING

A motion was made, seconded and carried at the November meeting of the Board of Trustees of the university, authorizing the chairman of the committee for the memorial building, to execute a contract with Warner and McCormack, of Cleveland, Ohio as the architects for the new building.

WILDCATS PLAY CLEMSON TONIGHT

of the undefeated Kitten five last season, will take the floor against the Clemson outfit. Judging from the fight shown in scrimmage sessions the past week these five men will make any basketball team live hard for 40 minutes.

For five long weeks, the Wildcat coach, has drilled his charges, and tonight he will be given a chance to test their real skill and ability against opposition. With the sophomores fighting it out with the regulars of last season for positions on the first team, any team placed on the floor by the Blue and White mentors, may cut down all opponents.

Following the game with Clemson, Miami University, of Ohio, will drop into Lexington on the eve of Christmas holidays. This will only give Coach Johnny Mauer one day in which to prepare for the Miami, till, but with capable reserves on hand, it is not likely that the men will be overworked.

UNIVERSITY FOLK ASK FOR THE IMPOSSIBLE

folks around here can have everything else, so you see I'm being very unselfish. However, they, too, are generous. They don't want it all. Doctor McVey only wants a library that can seat a thousand students on any occasion, and a kind-hearted legislature to give it to him. Doctor Funkhouser, noted anthropologist, is presenting students with his treatise, "Evolution of the Ford in the University of Kentucky." Professor Dautler would like to have a first edition of Shakespeare, complete. Professor Greah wishes to run for president in the coming election, seeing that Mr. Coolidge does not choose to do so. Miss Margie McLaughlin wants an aeroplane, as she plans to cross the ocean next summer in one day, but she prefers to pick her own pilots, only football men being eligible.

There are a lot more people on the university campus, but they forget to ask me about it, and anyway, what do they think this is, a correspondence bureau? I hope this epistle will find all the little Clauses with correct subjects and predicates, so I will close with that well known quotation, "Give my love to the Eskimos."

SHE ISN'T DEPENDING ON SANTA, HE KNOWS

people. Usually they are able to solve his problem for him—but such a solution! Like having a bad tooth pulled, painful but necessary. Listen, ye gods! If you notice about nine-tenths of the male population of the campus walking around this week looking like a felt hat after a hard rain, it isn't fit or pneumonia. It's a far more deadly malady—Christmas.

ASK U. OF K. STUDENTS TO PLAY SANTA CLAUS

clate any assistance you college folk could give."

About fifteen blocks from the university, is Lincoln school. It is a barren-looking building facing rows of tumble-down shanties. There are several hundred students who go there—bright, intelligent American kids. Money isn't very plentiful among these school boys and girls, for daddies who work on the railroads and as day laborers find it difficult to keep growing children fed and clothed. Still, these youngsters expect at Christmas time the toys and playthings that delight more fortunate children throughout the year.

"Please, lady, I want a new red dress for a present," 9-year-old Allie Mae whispered, her blue eyes glowing bright. "Not a doll or a toy, but something I can wear."

Nellie, 7, whose tousled hair fell over soiled little forehead, clasped her hands appealing. "A doll with real hair, lady, that's what I want Santa to bring me. I ain't never had no doll!"

A happy grin brightened Cecelia's thin face when she spoke, "Lots of good things to eat; candy, and meat, and cakes, and—and ice cream! That's what I want!"

Dark-haired Lena looked down at her worn-out shoes. "I want a pair of slippers, pretty shiny ones, please mam. Mine ain't no good any more."

"Aw gee, who ever heard of shoes for Christmas?" the reddest-headed, most freckle-faced little Irish boy I ever saw, exclaimed in disgust. "I want a cowboy suit and a new pair of pants, please mam. Mine ain't no good any more. Andrew, aged, hitched up his ragged trousers and said hesitatingly, "I want one of them little wagons, so I can deliver things and make money. Then I'll buy mama a new dress."

Lizzie, tossed back her two blonde "pig-tails," smoothed her blue-patched skirt, and said shrilly, "My doll broke. Do you think Santa will bring me another one if I pray to him to-night?"

"I ain't gonna git nothin'," a tiny girl in a soiled blue gingham dress spoke up. "Oh Marthie!" a chorus of small, shocked voices exclaimed. "Well, I ain't," Marthie stubbornly maintained. "Tain't no use. Last year I prayed for a dolly and—and Santa didn't bring none. There ain't no Santa Claus!"

"There is so, too! 'Tis so. Ain't there a Santy Claus, lady?" "Of course there is," I told myself as I left Lincoln school. "I'm sure university students will prove it to that little girl by giving contributions to the Y. M. and Y. W. C. A. so they may decorate a big tree with dolls and wagons and Christmas goodies for the Lincoln school children."

Fraternities and sororities that would like to make up a basket of food or of clothing for some of the destitute families the Salvation Army knows of, can do so by calling The Kernel office. All gifts, from ten-cent dolls to ten dollar bills, will be appreciated by those poor persons whose chimneys are too small for Santa Claus. The Kernel asks every student to "give a little." Then, when the Christmas holidays arrive, every one can go home, gladdened by the thought that he has helped to spread good cheer, and ready to say with Tiny Tim, "God bless everybody!"

It is estimated that $300,000,000 worth of automobiles are stolen annually in the United States.

'OUTWARD BOUND' IS BIG SUCCESS

Dr. J. C. T. Noe, as the "Great Ex-aminer," Godhead-like person, who renders the final verdict on those who have passed life's horizon, has the difficult task of being theopneptic in a clerical cloth, but he managed to make his anthropomorphism entirely genial.

Leon Wigglesworth, William Tuttle, Bennett Tucker, and John Jewell are the other persons in the drama.

Good. That's what it is . . .

No USE trying to put a definition around Camel. It is as diverse and fugitive as the delicate tastes and fragrances that Nature puts in her choicest tobaccos, of which Camel is rolled. Science aids Nature to be sure by blending the tobaccos for subtle smoothness and mildness. One way to describe Camel is just to say, "They are good!"

Each smoker telling the other, we suppose. At any rate, it's first—in popularity as well as quality. It has beaten every record ever made by a smoke. Modern smokers have lifted it to a new world leadership. Camels request a place in your appreciation. Try them upon every test known. You'll find them always loyal to your highest standard.
