

can readily see that we would need all this time to earn money and to get ready both for that great event and for such a wonderful trip.

I have been wondering how much it would cost and if we could earn and save enough so we could not only get over there, but also get back again.

I can't tell you how enthused I am over the prospects of going with you home. I realize you will never be quite satisfied until you have made such a January 10, 1924.

My dearly beloved David:
It was with great expectation that I waited for your letter, perhaps you in turn have been waiting for my reply. I have been crowded for time by my many lessons and finally decided that whether I study tonight or not, first I must write to you on this very important subject.

It was a very wonderful letter and the sermon you enclosed was fine, but what
