Mrs Morris introduced Jesse Dukeminier, a law teacher at the University, who spoke on the general subject "Are the Horse Farms Drowned?"

He told of the drastic way the landscape is changing around Lexington, due to our "building civilization around the automobile". The change of our landscape is attracting subdivisions that mushroom even at a considerable distance from town.

This brings in shopping centers, and the tendency is to take in more and more farmland for building. This is expected to increase to three times present area in 25 years. Another factor is through highways which will attract developments around intersections. It is evident that the things that attracted development in the first place will soon destroy it unless something is done to channel building in less hurtful directions.

It was a clear and forceful talk that brought out several questions and much discussion, and made us all want to rush out and do something to help the situation.

We were invited to the dining room for a delicious and refreshing tea. From there we wandered around visiting and enjoying Mrs. Bremers many quaint and lovely things in air - Conditioned Comfort. The garden also was shady and perfect, and was exclaimed over by many members and guests.
