SOPHS PULL SURPRISE ON MIGHTY SENIORS

Six-to-Nothing Score Tells Sad Tale of Upper-classmen's Defeat

WINNERS ARE CHAMPS

The crisis had come. The small crowd of faithful fanatics shivered with cold and trembled with excitement until each outshook a Honolulu hula. Proud and haughty the mighty Senior legion had marched upon the field, full of confidence and prunes. They had practiced for over a week.

The little band of unsophisticated Sophs had walked on the field nervous and fearful. They had no big men like Bill Collins and Potts and they were too little to fill up the big Wildcat suits that Dr. Tigert had lent them.

But what a surprise! Rabbit Gardner and Pug Longworth had torn thru the line until the ball rested in the shadow of the goal.

Professor Weaver took off his kid gloves, got his pencil out of his pocket and scratched his head. His beloved Seniors were getting theirs. They had possession of the pigskin but three times straight the Sophs had held.

The Seniors lined up again. But wait! Addison Foster, looking as pretty as any Swede you ever saw, pulled off his big white sweater and trotted on the field. The players stopped. From the Senior camp a mighty yell went up. With steady stride and beaming face the mighty Foster marched upon the scene. He was a kicker against whom the fabled Maud sank into insignificance.

He took his place to punt. He kicked his cleats into the sod. The ball snapped and against the pigskin went great Foster's foot. But here came charging like mad Kaiser Wilhelm Heinrich Frederick Schneider. With a dull sickening thud the ball bounded against his breast and over the line. The flying Dutchman danced across the goal line and dove upon the ball. So the Sophomores had made a score and all Addison had kicked was the W. K. bucket.

This is really the whole story of the game. After that it was a cat and dog scrap but the early lead of the Sophs was enough.

The game settles the class superiority of the University. Another significant fact is that the interest in the game shows that class football has met with favor among the students and is a success. It had been discarded for the past two years.

The stars that shone are as thick as the notes that people the W. K. sunbeams. Gardner looks like there is real football ability in him and seems to be a find. He tore thru the lines in a way that made visions of "Doc" rise in the mind's eyes of the crowd. Longworth and Whaley also did stellar work for the Sophomores.

EVERYTHING IS READY FOR I. P. A. CONVENTION

Delegates From All Parts of Country Will Attend

DEC. 28-31 IS THE DATE

The Bi-ennial National Convention of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association will be held in Lexington, December 28-31, and Kentucky students will have an opportunity to see a number of prominent speakers and in addition what is probably the greatest student oratorical contest in the country.

The local committee and the Prohibition Club of the University are co-operating in making plans for the entertainment of the delegates, and for the time being Kentucky will have the eyes of the college world on her. The convention was brought here largely thru the efforts of Joe M. Robinson, business manager of The Kentucky Kernel, and he has been active in all the preliminary work.

According to present plans special trains will leave St. Louis and Chicago Wednesday evening, December 27, arriving in Lexington about 10:30 Thursday morning, in time for delegates to complete their registration and be ready for the opening session of the convention on Thursday afternoon. A national secretary of the association and a railroad representative will accompany each train and take charge of all arrangements. A third special from Knoxville, carrying delegates from the southeastern states, is also under consideration.

Large Attendance Expected.
Ever since the opening of the colleges in the fall I. P. A. national secretaries have been in the field, reaching nearly every part of the country and stirring up interest in the big student gathering. As a result, enthusiasm is reported to be high, and the convention is expected to break all previous records for attendance. A thousand delegates is the goal set by the national officers, and if interest continues to grow there is no doubt that the attendance will be well up toward the thousand mark.

According to the tentative program former Secretary of State William J. Bryan will be the principal attraction on Thursday evening, the opening night of the convention. Mr. Bryan's recent espousal of the cause of national prohibition and the energetic personal campaign he is making to induce the Democratic party to approve national prohibition, make his appearance here doubly interesting. It is expected that he will be given a rousing welcome when he gets up to speak. It is said that a banquet in his honor is being planned by some of his friends.

Oratory Will Feature.

WELCOME!

The Kernel this week is largely devoted to the convention of the International Prohibition Association which will be held here December 28 to 31. A number of extra copies have been printed, which will be distributed among the delegates who will represent many of the principal colleges and universities thruout the country. The Kernel takes this opportunity of extending a hearty welcome to all the delegates and of wishing them a successful meeting.

Noted Writer and Speaker Delivers "Quiet Talk" to Students

ADDRESS INSPIRING

S. D. Gordon, of New York, well-known author and speaker, delivered one of a series of "quiet talks" in chapel Tuesday morning, his subject being, "Temptation."

"Temptation," the speaker said, "runs along the natural groove of a man's life." Temptation has always existed and will continue to exist to eternity. In itself, there is no harm, but with man's aid it becomes an exaggerated evil.

Temptation affects different men in different ways, Mr. Gordon said. Some lie down and are trodden under foot like a dog; some play with temptation and make a pretense of fighting it, while others really fight it. Such a man uses will power and if he must go down, he is still undefeated.

Mr. Gordon said that temptation was weak in itself; that it can do nothing without partnership. Its power depends upon how man takes it.

If a man yields in the beginning, he makes no show of fighting; if he plays with temptation, he is whipped, but if he fights he will win out with the help of God. Man is no match for temptation by himself, but with divine aid, he can subdue it.

"Who is there to help?" is the question often asked. The answer is Jesus. He was a human being, a real man, and he had to fight against the same temptations that we do. In the fight he never slipped and in the end was victorious. In conclusion, the speaker said that all men were agreed in this: "Jesus clearly overtopped and over-tops the whole race of man."

PREMEDICS MEET.

The Premedical Society held its last meeting before the holidays, Monday evening in the Science Building. Harry Abell, president of the society, presided, and a very interesting program was carried out. The next meeting will be held early in January.

KENTUCKY STUDENTS ATTEND CONFERENCE

Y. M. C. A. Men, With Faculty Members, Journey To Georgetown

GIRLS ENTERTAINERS

The University was well represented at the Y. M. C. A. conference held at Georgetown the latter part of last week, about twenty students and seven members of the faculty attending. The attendance from other colleges was very good and this meeting is considered as one of the most successful held recently. "Social Service" was the theme of the conference. The speakers of the occasion were Seely K. Tompkins, of Cincinnati; Dr. W. Rauschenbusch, of Rochester, New York; C. G. Hounsshell, of Nashville, Tenn.; Harrison S. Elliott, of New York, and President Ganfield, of Centre College.

The faculty conference on Saturday was largely attended and prominent speakers presented their views. Those attending the conference were entertained in the homes of the people of Georgetown. Saturday afternoon the girls from Georgetown College attended a reception given in honor of the conference and gave a program of music and recitations. Those attending the conference representing Kentucky were; of the faculty, C. R. Melcher, George Roberts, J. M. Davis, C. W. Mathews, P. P. Boyd, L. L. Dantzer and Judge Lyman Chalkley. The students who went were Bart Peak, J. A. Hodges, Otis Taylor, Dick Duncan, Elmer Robertson, William Lindsay, R. B. Fenley, Harry Milward, Frank Lancaster, J. P. Ricketts, O. C. Green, R. Rogers, George Park, C. L. Wilkey, M. L. Watson, H. F. Adair, Lee Rector, Roy Barnhill, George Reddish.

JOURNALISTS HOLD ANNUAL BANQUET

The Henry Watterson chapter of Alpha Delta Sigma, the national honorary journalistic fraternity, held its annual banquet and initiation exercises Monday evening at the Leonard Hotel. Professor Enoch Grehan was toastmaster and the following toasts were responded to: "Joy in the Running Press," William Shinnick; "Impressions," Thomas R. Underwood, and "Circulation," Herbert Graham. The others present were called upon to make impromptu responses.

Those present at the banquet were: Professor Enoch Grehan, J. Owen Reynolds, Owen S. Lee, J. H. Coleman, Herbert Graham, William Shinnick, McClarty Harbison, Frank H. Ricketts, John R. Marsh and the new members, Wayne Cottingham, Ray H. Ruttle, Frederick M. Jackson, J. Thornton Connel and Thomas R. Underwood.

POPULARITY CONTEST WINNERS ANNOUNCED

Photos of Ten Co-Eds To Appear In 1917 Book's Feature Section

NEARLY 500 BALLOTS

The contest has been decided, and the most popular co-eds of the University are known. The ten girls who received the greatest number of votes in the election last Friday in chapel will be seen in the feature pages of the Kentuckian next May. There are many more who are popular enough to go into anybody's book, but the student body decided for itself that it wanted this particular ten, and in they will go.

Nearly five hundred ballots were cast in the contest, and as each ballot had ten names, the counting was a tedious process. Inspired by oratory and mindful of the admonition to "let conscience be your guide," the great body politic of the University of Kentucky rose in its majesty and elected whom it would.

The votes were counted by Frank Street, C. R. Smith and William Shinnick, and that every one may be sure the count was conducted fairly, Frank and Bill voluntarily went before Miss Joyeux, who is a notary public, and made affidavit concerning the matter. The affidavit follows. It tells the whole story:

"To Whom it May Concern:
"We, the undersigned, Frank Street, editor of the 1917 Kentuckian, and William Shinnick, feature editor of the 1917 Kentuckian, hereby declare that we have counted the ballots cast in the Kentuckian's popularity contest December 8, and that the following ten co-eds, having received the highest number of votes, are the winners of the contest: Nancy Innes, Dorothy Middleton, Mary Downing, Ann Molloy, Josephine Thomas, Frances Geisel, Lula Swinney, Mildred Taylor, Mary Ricketts and Juliet Lee Risque.
"We further declare that the ballots were counted in fairness to all parties and that to the best of our knowledge and belief the count was correct.

"Signed,
"FRANK T. STREET, Jr.
"WILLIAM SHINNICK.
"Subscribed and sworn to before me by Frank T. Street, Jr., and William Shinnick this 12th day of December, 1916.

"LILA A. JOYEUX,
"Notary Public, Fayette Co., Ky.
"My commission expires January 28, 1918."

Nearly two hundred co-eds received a vote or votes, and quite a number polled upward of seventy-five, the winners, of course, going much higher. The contest proved so popular that the editors of the annual are contemplating a contest to decide the ten ugliest men in the University.

was one of the most enthusiastic of the year. William Shinnick presided and short talks were made by Herbert Graham, Virgil Chapman and Captain Fairfax, the latter on matters not germane to the contest. Harry Cottrell, a valued member of the Kernel staff, was present, and after it was all over he went down into the rooms of the Journalism room and "rassled" with a typewriter. The result follows:

How Cottrell Felt About It.

The sun shone, warm breezes and gentle zephyrs floated here and there about the campus, nature smiled and answering smiles lighted the faces of the throngs of students on their way to chapel last Friday morning, for the ten most popular co-eds were to be selected by the votes to grace the pages of the 1917 Kentuckian with their beauty.

Never was there an atmosphere more truly Kentuckian than at chapel Friday when the famed chivalry of this our native state extolled the million virtues and the unmatched beauty of Kentucky's womankind and students filled out their ballots with the names of the ten girls which were to their minds the most popular and beautiful in the University.

Chapel was given over entirely to the staff of the 1917 Kentuckian for the election of the aforementioned ten most popular co-eds and before the battle of the ballots that peerless orator Virgil (middle name deleted by the censors) Chapman told the students things about the female of the species that they had known from infancy, as true Kentuckians, but could never have clothed in such flowery phrases as did Chapman. His speech warmed the cockles of the most hardened woman hater's heart and brought tears of pleasure to the eyes of those who had long been worshippers at the co-eds' shrine.

That is how it affected the male members of his audience and if the co-eds were affected as were the boys, Virgil should have had by now at least a dozen proposals, two dozen dates, not the stuffed kind either, for the Ada Meade, and just oodles of boxes of candy. As Bill Shinnick expressed it, "Would that I were a celestial cowboy and could tend the cows along the Milky Way; yea, even throw the bull," or else round up the truant keys of this typewriter to form words which would give some semblance of justice to an account of the inspiring sentiments uttered in behalf of the University's greatest treasures, the State's greatest assets and the world's most valuable possessions, our girls.

NOE'S LATEST BOOK IS
FAVORABLY REVIEWED

"The Blood of Rachel" and
Other Poems Just
Off Press

SHOWS VERSATILITY

"The Blood of Rachel," a dramatization of the Book of Esther, and other poems, compose the latest book of Professor J. T. C. Noe, which is just off the press. It is, of course, difficult for any reviewer familiar with the lovable character and geniality of the head of the Department of Education to criticize any book of his without bringing in the personal equation, but it is the belief of one who knows his work almost as intimately as he knows his personality that the new book is an advance on anything that Professor Noe has done and puts him in the front rank of Kentucky poets.

Professor Noe is nothing if not versatile. The longest of his poems, "The Blood of Rachel," is a tragedy that has to a marked degree the great dramatic qualities. This play was produced at the Lexington Opera House two years ago by the members of the Canterbury Club and the Strollers, and was at that time most favorably reviewed by critics. Since that time the author has revised the text in places and improved some of the lines. He handles blank verse as few present-day authors can and his lines have an easy sonorous flow that is little less than remarkable. He has portrayed faithfully the melancholy steadfastness and the self-sacrificing spirit of the ancient Hebrews. How could the idea of the triumph of national sacrifice over human passion be better expressed than in these lines of Esther?

"I hear the wail
 Of Rachel weeping for her children still;
 I hear my lover playing on his flute,
 Who waits the coming of a faithless bride!
 But Mordecai has stayed the hand of Death!

The daughter of a Benjamite will lay
 Her heart upon the altar of her blood.
 Hear you the crimson riot in my veins?

'Tis Rachel's voice! I would that you could know!

The lights die out beyond the palace walls.

The stars are hid . . . . I can no longer hear

The wailing flute . . . . Return unto your hut.

Ahasuerus calls with mantling wine.
 My place is yonder by the king. I go!"

Every character in the drama is clearly drawn, from the most majestic to the most ludicrous, and there is no reason to doubt that it is suitable for presentation on the legitimate stage.

The other poems range widely. There is in all of them the haunting beauty of the line and the refinement of conception that goes with great poetry. Each one bears within itself a bit of the beautiful, optimistic philosophy of its creator. In his work there is nothing of the morbidity and dissatisfaction with life that many modern poets exhibit. His is a contented philosophy and each poem is but an evidence that he loves the world, that the lilt of life does not pass him unheard, that he is one who joys in the laughter of little children and sympathizes with the sweet foolishness of youth.

Lack of space will not allow a fuller review of the new book, but the writer would like to recommend particularly "The Old Dog Irons," "Just to Dream," "A Tragedy in Birdland," "The Electric Age," and the sonnets on Riley and Rice, which are among the shorter poems.

The book is from the press of John P. Morton & Company, and is very attractively made up and illustrated. A copy of the work would be a very neat Christmas present for any one.

CRUM REFUSES TO
ACT PART OF "HOLE"
IN SAD TRAGEDY

Is the right honorable Senator Frank Moore Crum a "hole"? This is the latest enigma before the august Seniors, altho the entire student body is eligible to tackle the aggravating issue if it so desires.

This peculiar query arose after the smoke of Saturday's gridiron battle between the Seniors and Sophs had cleared away and the quin had passed around. During the course of the battle, when the pig-skin was in the pugilistic hands of one of the Sophomore back-field men, the Soph quarterback entreated him to go thru the center portion of the opposing line where he had seen "the hole." Whereupon the honorable Senator on hearing himself referred to as a "hole," rose upon his dignity, or rather upon his dimpled elbow, and voiced his sentiment thusly: "Where's a hole, do I look like a hole?"

After the sad and heart-breaking hour had ended, it was noticed simultaneously by the spectators that the atmosphere surrounding Stoll Field and the campus was warm, even sultry. Alibis upon alibis floated thru the air, hence the sudden change. No change was reported until Monday morning, when the temperature improved a little.

Sunday afternoon the mob scene from "Alice in Wonderland," was again presented with the old dormitory serving as the background and one Schaber, acting as interlocutor for the howling mob, "defied" a lonely Sophomore to show wherein the Sophomores had the better team. Consolation services were held by the heart-broken and purse-broken speculators. A stranger coming into the midst of the mob would have gathered the impression that a millionaire's club had suddenly broken loose and were considering the elimination of that word "currency" from their repertoire. The ranks of the "Belated Betters Bee" were greatly swelled by the influx of new members and the "What'd I Tell You" club also reported many new members added to their already long list.

The I. P. A. Convention.

The National Convention of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, to be held in Lexington December 28-31, will bring to the city more than a thousand students representing practically all the colleges and universities of the country and a number of speakers of nation-wide reputation. In a sense the delegates and speakers will be the guests of the students of the University of Kentucky and it will be our duty and our pleasure to see that they are treated with all the warmth of hospitality for which Kentucky is famed.

The committee and the Prohibition Club of the University have been hard at work for several weeks getting ready for the meeting, and they have accomplished a great deal, but there is opportunity still for good work by those who have not done anything yet. All students who can should co-operate with the club and the committee in making arrangements, not so much because they should aid the cause of prohibition as because they should aid in maintaining the traditions of Kentucky hospitality and the fair report of the University of Kentucky.

There are some of us who are not convinced that national prohibition is practicable at this time and a few of us who are not not convinced that it is desirable, but no college man should allow his prejudices to lead him to refuse to hear "the other side" of any question. The Intercollegiate Prohibition Association, if the snap judgment of the writer may be trusted, is not open to the charge, often made—and truly—of other similar organizations, of being a fanatical or self-seeking body. It goes about its work in a gentlemanly, dignified manner, making its appeal to the intellect rather than to the passions of the students of American colleges. The student is never asked on joining the association to give his unqualified support or his enthusiasm to the cause of prohibition. He is requested to become a member of a class studying the liquor problem and to base his opinions of the traffic in alcoholic liquors on his studies. It is a scientific organization rather than a propagandist body.

It is a welcome relief in these days of fanaticism, of suffrage and anti-suffrage, of parades and red-fire meetings, of anti-hyphenism and soap-box alleged oratory to find a body of men who seek to meet a great issue in a great manner, to fight a fair fight with fair weapons, to match facts with facts and draw conclusions that have the ring of truth. The Kernel is glad to welcome such a body of men as the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association to Lexington.

Whatever our personal predilections on the subject, it is our duty to see that the delegates, college men like ourselves, are entertained as we would be entertained away from home. Kentucky students are fortunate in having the association in Lexington this month and every student who can do so should attend the meetings.

The governor gets summoned,
The trustees, they get mad;

Interested gets the public,
With eagerness imbued;
Old Man Lykelle gets results,
The student—he gets stewed.

This Week's Short Story.

Ferdinand Skaggs, a wealthy handkerchief importer, died, leaving his son, Ethelbert, a bequest of ten thousand fancy cotton handkerchiefs. Ethelbert was a wasteful lad and gave, lost and otherwise disposed of the above-mentioned handkerchiefs until his store was well nigh exhausted.

A severe, damp winter capped the climax. One blustery night young Skaggs opened his kerchief box and found, to his consternation, that only one handkerchief remained from his once bounteous supply. "Here's where I blow in the last of my father's legacy," he muttered as he resolutely took the little square of cotton from its resting place.

Announcements.

We have been requested to make the following announcements:

All persons who return in time to attend the prohibition convention will be presented with miniature silver corkscrews by the local chapter as a mark of appreciation.

Student headquarters during the convention will be established in the Phoenix Hotel check room.

Students who leave the University before the twenty-first or return later than the third of January will positively not be excused from classes unless they ask their respective profs for such privilege. All who violate this regulation will be liable to a letter from the registrar, if he is not tired.

Owing to the weight of public opinion and general unpopularity compulsory general will be abolished during the holidays.

All students desiring railroad fare home are hereby notified to write home for it.

As a result of added expenditures for Christmas gifts all who graduate at the end of the first semester will be compelled to pay ten dollars as a diploma fee, instead of five dollars as heretofore.

A Short History of the Year.

Registration; resignation;

So ended sweet September.
Football, Jubilee and turkey
Was the lay-out for October and November.
Petition; prohibition;

MAKERS OF HISTORY

J. D. V. CHAMBERLAIN.

There is something in a name, after all. We present for your inspection today Jerome De Vize Chamberlain, erstwhile of Uniontown, whose name forced him into the paths of oratorical glory. Some people have the ordinary piebald appellations of Bill or Sam or Joe wished on them in very early youth, and forever afterward try to live it down, but "Vize" has tried to live up to the mellifluous and soul-satisfying front three sections of his name, with results that are really astonishing. Any man named Jerome De Vize would have to be a great speaker, but he wouldn't have to be a real man the size of Chamberlain.

Chamberlain is a student in the College of Law, a Senior and one of the best students that ever graced the upper part of the Natural Science Building. To him have come honors galore, and all of them he has taken in the spirit of a true gentleman. In him every good cause has a friend and every bad one an enemy. His standing with the faculty of his college is illustrated by the fact that he was appointed last year associate editor of the Kentucky Law Journal. This year he is editor-in-chief, and in comparison with the work of his predecessors his own efforts do not suffer.

The subject of our sketch is particularly noted as a debater. He was a member of the law debating team two years ago when it defeated the University of Cincinnati and he was on the University team last year. In both the Henry Clay and Union Literary Societies he has been a leading light. He is attorney-general in the Henry Clay and president of the Union. He is a member of the Tau Kappa Alpha fraternity and president of the local chapter.

So famous has J. D. V. become that the Democratic chairman of one of the northern counties called on him to make speeches during the recent Hughes-Wilson controversy, and so eloquently did he extol the President that that county gave a Democratic majority larger by several hundred votes than it had ever given before. In the University Democratic Club he has always taken a leading part. If he keeps out of politics it will only be because he is lucky.

The popularity of Vize with his class is evidenced by the fact that he was elected class representative by a comfortable majority.

The only thing that can be said about him that is not to his credit is that he never gives the ladies a treat. He is a faithful member of the Jilted Brethren and so hard was he hit once upon a time that he brags that he has never had a "date" since his college career began. But all great men have their little peculiarities. His is to be handsome and haughty in the presence of the gentler sex.

The writer of this little sketch has known him personally and intimately, and has for him a warm admiration. He is a leader of men and a respecter of his own ideals. Conscientious, brilliant and genial, he is a man who will be an ornament to his profession and a credit to Kentucky.

FARMERS' WEEK TO BE HELD JANUARY 2-5

2,000 Farmers From State Are Expected To Attend

EXCELLENT PROGRAM

The annual Farmers' Week will be held at the University beginning Tuesday, January 2, and continuing until the end of the week. Considerable interest is always manifested in this event and it is expected that 2,000 farmers from all parts of the state will attend.

The usual poultry show in the Armory will be held in Richmond this year instead of here. Altho this show has always been a drawing card it is not that that the attendance will be affected.

The committee in charge of Farmers' Week is composed of the following: Professor Bryant, chairman; Dean Roberts and Professor Good.

As many meetings as possible will be held in the gymnasium and armory. The armory will probably be converted into an improvised stock-judging pavillion. The corn show will be held in the gymnasium as usual. Following is a schedule of meetings of the various organizations:

Tuesday, January 2.—Kentucky Corn Growers' Association and Kentucky Dairy Cattle Club.

Wednesday, January 3.—Kentucky Beef Cattle Breeders' Association; Kentucky Alfalfa Growers' Association; Kentucky Poultry Raisers' Association, and the Market Conference.

Thursday, January 4.—Kentucky Swine Breeders' Association; Kentucky Bee Keepers' Association, and a meeting of the Kentucky Jack Stock Breeders. This is also Women's Day and canning club work, household economics and various other activities of women in the farm homes will be discussed and the meetings for women will be held.

Friday, January 5.—Kentucky Horse Breeders' Association; Kentucky Horticultural Society and the Kentucky Sheep Breeders' Association.

W. L. MCKEE HERE.

W. Lindsay McKee, a graduate of the University with the class of 1916, was a visitor here last week while en route to Vicksburg, Mississippi, where he is in the automobile business. He was just returning from Toledo, Ohio, where he attended a convention of automobile dealers. While at the University, Mr. McKee was a member of the Kappa Sigma, Mystic Thirteen, Alpha Delta Sigma, and Lamp and Cross fraternities.

The winning society in this debate will gain possession of the Barker trophy for the coming year. In addition to determining who will assume the protectorate over the loving cup, the contest will also determine who shall represent the University in the inter-collegiate debate, this honor being conferred on the three best debaters regardless of the society they represent.

DISCOVERY OF ERROR RAISES TEAM'S SCORE

U. K. Stock Judges Were Not Fifteenth in Beef Cattle

RANKIN FINISHES 8TH

The team representing Kentucky in the Students' Stock-Judging Contest at the recent International Livestock Show at Chicago stood ahead of some of the leading institutions of the country, according to Professor E. S. Good, who had charge of the team. Kentucky stood seventh in the contest with fifteen colleges, an error found in the addition of the score of one of the Kentucky men on the rings of beef cattle giving the team a much higher rating in cattle than was at first announced.

Of the men on the Kentucky team R. B. Rankin made the largest total score, and stood eighth out of eighty competitors from all the institutions. Curtis Park, Jr., was the highest man of the Kentucky team on beef cattle, with a score of 221 out of a possible 250. W. D. Sutton was second in the beef cattle with a score of 220. T. C. McCown led the Kentucky men in the judging of hogs, while J. T. Campbell received the highest score in the judging of sheep.

In judging sheep, Kentucky led the lowest team by 183 points and ranked third of all the teams. The total score received by the Kentucky men on horses was 893 points, on beef cattle 1,045 points, on sheep 241 points and on hogs, 719 points. All the Kentucky men did well on the breeding classes of cattle, but did not do so well on the fat classes on account of not having any representatives of these classes to do preliminary work with before going to the show.

The Kentucky men are well pleased with the showing they made in competition with teams from institutions with large appropriations which afford them many specimens of the different kinds of livestock to work with in preparing for the contests.

CANTERBURIANS TAKE IN 3 NEW MEMBERS

The Canterbury Club added to its number three new pilgrims Thursday night, initiation ceremonies being held at the club rooms in the Education Building. The new men who started on their way from the Tabard Inn to the shrine of Thomas A. Becket are R. F. Richey, F. O. Mayes and Thomas Underwood. Mr. Richey is the author of a number of poems, some of which have appeared in the Kernel during the last few weeks; Mr. Mayes has written both short stories and poems. Mr. Underwood is best known to the students as the entertaining sporting writer on the staff of the Kernel, and he has done other writing of various kinds, mostly in a humorous vein.

The Canterbury Club bases its membership on original literary work, and is designed to encourage and develop any talent of this sort among the students. The patron saint of the organization is that prince of story tellers, Dan Chaucer, and the motto of the club is "To ayery nothyng a habitation." This being the poet's definition of imagination, necessary in all literary work.

Only two men were taken into this organization last year and only one the year before. The present membership is Professor J. T. C. Noe, Professor E. F. Farquhar, Professor Charles P. Weaver, Franklin Corn, Herbert Graham, William Shinnick, John R. Marsh, and the three men who were taken in last week.
