

WOMAN QUESTION IS DISCUSSED BY DEBATING TEAMS

Over 600 Attend International Argument in Memorial Hall Saturday Evening

ENGLISHMEN TO MEET DEBATERS AT MURRAY

Britons Are Entertaining in Description of Woman as Stupid and Selfish

Before a group of approximately 600 in Memorial hall Saturday evening representatives of Cambridge University, England, and of the University of Kentucky debated the question "Resolved that the Emergence of the Woman from the Home is a Regrettable Feature of Modern Life." N. C. Ostridge, Cambridge and Hugh R. Jackson were affirmative debaters while A. E. Holdsworth and William Ardery, Kentucky, upheld the negative.

Dean F. P. Boyd, of the College of Arts and Sciences, presided at the debate, which was preceded by a program of organ music by Dr. Albert Kelly. No decision was rendered. Hugh R. Jackson was the first speaker of the evening, and made his argument on the biological differences of man and woman and saying that if the race to continue the family as a unit of society must remain in existence. Many differences in the physical make-up of man and woman were pointed out and Mr. Jackson attempted to prove that due to these differences woman is unfitted for emergence into our industrial order.

Organization of University "K" Club Is Planned

Plans for the organization of a "K" club at the university have been completed, and a petition has been submitted to the Board of Trustees. A committee, consisting of Cary Spicer, Louis Toltz, Kenneth Andrews, and Tom Phillips, drew up a constitution, which will be submitted to the Board of Trustees by the university Senate.

The club will consist of all letter ball, basketball, baseball, and track. Coach Bern Shively, line coach of the football team, and Dean of the university are among the members of the club. The constitution declares in part: "The purpose of this club shall be to foster the formation of a more beautiful friendship among the wearers of the 'K' for better understanding and fellowship among the athletes in Kentucky. Membership shall be restricted to those who earned their 'K' in any one of four major sports, and who shall be voted upon and passed by two-thirds of the active members. Regular meetings shall be held the first Monday in every month, and dues will be 50 cents a month. Honorary members shall be elected by the unanimous vote of those present. Such members shall be exempt from initiation and payment of all fees."

Necking is Less Standardized in Merrie England, Say Debaters

Kentucky girls, say Messrs. Ostridge and Holdsworth, Cambridge, are far more sophisticated than are the far more uncivilized and less sophisticated girls of Merrie England. When asked if the institution of necking existed in England Mr. Ostridge raised eyebrows and in a decidedly English accent, "Oh, no, no, no, you do it is not so standardized in our country. Both gentlemen found the horse farms of the Blue Grass comparable to the parks of England but seemed to think that hedges a more beautiful means of demarkation than our stone fences. Any English university other than Oxford or Cambridge is provincial and Oxford is merely a good imitation of Cambridge, said the debaters. After hearing one of our prominent etes as a "Hoey," Ostridge asked, "Yes and what could you mean by that? Something rather sickly and sweet, I should suppose." Both Britons, however, seem to have gained an intimate knowledge of the American viewpoint although they still carry handicaps in their knowledge of our culture. They considered vulgar in England if one did not "behave" and insisted that American etiquette was terrible. The gentlemen seemed to desire that their names be omitted from the scandal column of the "K" for better understanding and fellowship among the athletes in Kentucky. Membership shall be restricted to those who earned their "K" in any one of four major sports, and who shall be voted upon and passed by two-thirds of the active members. Regular meetings shall be held the first Monday in every month, and dues will be 50 cents a month. Honorary members shall be elected by the unanimous vote of those present. Such members shall be exempt from initiation and payment of all fees.

Army of Kentuckians to Mobilize in Crusade for Sacred Beer Keg

Hordes of Big Blue Supporters Will Encamp Beneath Walls of Knoxville in Epic Battle; Barbic Charm Will Be Evidenced in Feminine Furs and War Paint

By WALLACE MCMURRAY Richard the Lionhearted once led a crusade into the heart of the Moslem's stronghold to regain a wooden cross. On Thanksgiving Day there will be another crusade—a crusade of the twentieth century. A vast army of Kentuckians will mobilize in the heart of the bluegrass and behind the vanguard of a frenzied group of Wildcats will roll wildly over the hills of Tennessee to encamp beneath the walls of Knoxville. This crusade will be launched to obtain possession of the sacred beer keg.

A beer keg, thousands of enthusiasts fans, two groups of students and several teams of cheerleaders are slated for a pitched battle against each other.

NOTED PHYSICIAN MAKES ADDRESS

Dr. A. F. Morgenstern Is Entertained by German Club and Other Organizations at University

Dr. A. F. Morgenstern, physician of international repute, addressed the second convocation of November at the University of Kentucky on Friday under the auspices of Pan-Tulane. The subject of his talk was "German History—the Evolution of Peculiar Racial and Geographic Conditions."

As a background for his remarks on the future of Germany, Dr. Morgenstern sketched the past history, naming the various forms of slavery which have been tried and the influences that have affected the nation from the time the Teutonic tribes overran Europe until the present day. He said that the German people have always been distinguished by a certain pessimism, which resulted in their clinging to their ancestral land, and their aversion to the idea of migration or merging in one government as did the more stochastically minded Romans.

Dr. Morgenstern said that the world is being slow to realize that the future of Germany is the future of Europe, because of her geographic relationship, which places her in the center of the continent, and because she has been cramped since the war, and unless she is allowed to regain her former position as a world power, Europe will remain without a bulwark against invasion from strident Russia.

Dr. Morgenstern was entertained at Maxwell Place with a luncheon on Friday noon, and then he showed lantern slides in Dickler hall, which were given by Jim Tier. He is being entertained by the German club, and many persons, not students of the university. Dr. Morgenstern is the guest of the International Relations club, where he made an informal talk to its members. This convocation served as a climax to the student activities of the month on the subject of Germany, which has been sponsored by Pan-Polition. The study of this subject will be taken up by them in the near future.

Law Students To Hear Judge Chalkey

Judge Lyman Chalkey will speak at the law college convocation this morning at 10 o'clock on the subject "German Jurisprudence." His address will be given in connection with the program of Pan-Polition, which has chosen Germany as the topic for this month.

Holiday Rule

Three Credit Hours to Be Added for Absences

The Thanksgiving holiday will begin after classes on Wednesday afternoon and will end Saturday at 6 o'clock. All absences on the day immediately following the holidays shall be considered unexcused unless an excuse presented to the Senate is accepted. The penalty for violation of this rule is the addition of three credit hours to the number required for graduation. This rule, however, does not apply to juniors and seniors with a standing of 2.4 last semester nor does it apply to graduate students. In these cases, no excuses for absences are required, but each instructor may record and report absences as he sees fit.

EXCHANGES

A convenient way to get a vacation would be to follow the example of the Chi Beta fraternity of the University of Illinois when the third time in two years it was placed under quarantine for scarlet fever when one of the members contracted the disease and was sent to the hospital. While the martyr rested in the hospital, the brethren lounge comfortably at home.

Ohio State has gone into the dating business on a commercial basis. The dean of women has sanctioned a date bureau which will equip the national Sigma Delta Chi convention under that campus with pretty co-eds. NOTED VIOLINIST IS AT WOODLAND

Famous Artist Appears for Recital at Auditorium Under Auspices of Lexington College of Music

Lea Luboshutz, recently described by American critics as one of the greatest geniuses of the violin, was heard here under the auspices of the Lexington College of Music at Woodland auditorium Monday night.

Miss Anna Chandler Goff in charge of the ticket sale. Madame Luboshutz, when not on tour, is a member of the faculty of the Curtis Institute of Music in Philadelphia, being associated with Carl Flesch, the direction of that department. She is the first woman to become a member of the violin department of that institution.

Madame Luboshutz speaks of her work at the institute with enthusiasm. "I love to teach," she said in an interview recently given at her New York home. "Already several of my pupils have given successful recitals in Europe and America; I have only one theory of teaching—work, work, and again work. Let your students hear you play; let them see how you do it; let them be shown by their teacher how to play. Discipline is the secret of power. The will to conquer difficulties, the will to learn and understand, the will to live besides music are essential to the great artist. There must be feeling, there must be intelligence, but above all there must be power."

This eminent violinist is a native of Odessa, Russia, and obtained her early musical education at the Moscow Conservatory of Music at Moscow, where she won a gold medal and a special gift of a wonderful old Amati violin in recognition of her great talent that after she became a brilliant pupil of Ysaye—her extraordinary playing being a sensation in Europe. She came to this country three years ago for successive seasons of concert work and appearances with the leading symphony orchestras.

Three Sororities Win Attendance Contest

Alpha Delta Theta, Alpha Xi Delta and Theta Sigma Phi were the winners in the attendance contest at the art exhibit, held at the Art Center from November 3 to 7. These three groups showed a 100 per cent attendance record. Sigma Alpha Epsilon had the highest percentage in the fraternal group but fell a few points short of the 100 per cent mark.

The exhibit included contemporary American paintings and prints. It was presented by the College Art Association.

Girls' Glee Club to Radio-cast Sunday

The Girls' Glee club will broadcast a varied program of musical selections over WLAS Sunday, November 30 from 6 to 8:30 o'clock. A musical playlet "The Last Tea of Stank" will be the principal number. This is a scene from an ancient legendary Japanese story and depicts the queer superstitions of these oriental people. It possesses a fine-ness and a beauty which is not always found in music of this type.

Miss Mary Ann O'Brien will give a group of half solo and a double quartet will present two numbers also. The double quartet is composed of Bessie Jane Denton, Bessie G. Mathis, Molly Mack Obit, Margaret Lewis, Emily Hardin, Beryl Hardy, Cole Robinson, and Levetia Bitterman.

The chiefs of staffs of the new Gotham Hospital planned by the Woman's Medical Association of New York City will be women physicians and surgeons.

6. By the way, would you be interested in some very pretty bonds just off the press?

7. Do you intend to be a bond salesman all your life or do you want to get to work, at some future date? (Note: Each question is worth 60%-75% discount for cash.)

"An Agency"
By PROF. PAUL LINDBERT
FRANK and MARSHALL

In my reverie the first thing that occurs to me is that the Student Christian Association is an agency through which the highest values of college life may be brought to the limit. A student enters college with high hopes—his own and those of his parents and friends. Too often he leaves the institution much less a man than he might have become during those four years or less. Not only that a percentage fall entirely, but that a larger number are satisfied with superficial achievement and mediocre development. The Christian Association exists that students may have life, and have to the full—the richest, most satisfying, most useful life possible during those four years. The Association is not a mere organization; it is a living influence which "tones up" all phases of student life, making college experience meaningful and creative. To use mathematical terms, it is not a fraction of college life, but a co-efficient, raising all of life to the nth power. In an environment where it is so easy for thoughtlessness and self-interest to thrive, the Student Christian Association seeks to make brotherhood prevail. In a situation where provincialism and aristocracy so often are entrenched, the Christian Association strives to cultivate social vision and world-mindedness. In an atmosphere where distraction and sophistication may readily become dominant, the Christian Association offers the peace and depth of purpose which come only through worship. Well may one give of his time and energy to an organization like this which has no axe to grind, no special interest to promote, but seeks to make the total college experience wholesome. That the Student Christian Movement at least occasionally achieves the goal of enlightenment is indicated by the remark of a senior who, after holding more offices in student organizations than any other person in the college, declared that his responsibility as president of the Christian Association had been of more value to him than any other activity in which he had engaged.

BOOK REVIEWS

THE GIANT OF THE WESTERN WORLD

By Francis P. Miller and Helen D. Hill

The chairman of the World's Student Christian Federation and his wife have put their time, in the vantage point of Geneva (Switzerland) where they have been residing for the past three years, to very good use by studying the political, economic and cultural forces and tensions at work in the north Atlantic world. The result of their observations is a brilliantly written book on the most timely of all topics, the effect of America's growing power upon the rest of the world.

The book will become indispensable to all who are trying to understand America's position in the post-war world and who are anxious about the perils and possibilities of her awkward strength. It describes the economic penetration of America in England and on the Continent, through increasing loans, sales and ownership of productive properties. It tells us the strategies of Europeans to checkmate American expansion and to profit by American methods. Among the most interesting and valuable chapters are those dealing with the psychological reactions of envy, fear, admiration and hatred with which Europeans view the course of American expansion. The literature about America having a rapid growth in Europe and the sentiments expressed in it run the gamut from naive admiration to hysterical depreciation.

Looking Over The Magazines

By NICHOLAS WINN WILLIAMS

The peril of the situation created by the combination of America's economic penetration of Europe and her effort at political isolation is best described in the author's own words: "The paradox of the situation is that America is at one and the same time proclaiming her championship of peace and releasing the forces which make for war. Our verbal victories in the interest of peace may actually increase the possibility of armed conflict by hindering us to realities of the present situation. It seldom occurs to us that we are witnesses of the only state that can afford to be pacific. No one is threatening us. No one will ever invade us. Our immense power gives us absolute security. It is we who are creating insecurity for the rest of the world. It is we who are on the offensive. It is we who are invading the markets of our neighbors. And when we ask them to sign a treaty to recognize war as an instrument of national policy we are asking them to make far greater sacrifices than our adherence to such a treaty represents for us." The fact that only an infinitesimal portion of the American electorate can possibly understand the logic of these words makes it rather difficult to hope against hope that America will not become the chief threat to the world's peace.

This brilliant book addresses itself in other words, to the most urgent and the most desperate problem which confronts western civilization. It may not be irrelevant to suggest in conclusion that the rapid rise of a giant in the east, Soviet Russia, may possibly aggravate some of the problems so ably treated in this book and it may also reduce some of them to comparative insignificance beside the new and larger problems created by this new thrust of force into the not too stable equilibrium of the economic and political forces of the western world. It will require more social

EDUCATORS WILL MEET AT MURRAY

Dr. Wellington Patrick Will Make Address Before Association Conference November 28-29

Dr. Wellington Patrick, head of the extension department of the university, will be a speaker at the First District Educational Association which will meet at Murray College Friday and Saturday, Nov. 28 and 29. Approximately 1500 teachers will attend the meet. Nationally known lecturers have been secured by Secretary Frank Irwin.

Many prominent educators will address the association. Friday morning Dean M. E. Haggerty of the University of Minnesota will speak on "The Place of Play in Education." F. L. Harned, educationist, will address the morning meeting on "The State Luxury Tax of Tennessee as it Affects the Educational Standards of the State." Supt. N. O. Martin, head of the Lyon County Schools and president of the association, will deliver the president's address Friday morning.

Dr. Drennon, G. Ivan Barnes, director of Vocational Education in Kentucky, and Dean Haggerty will address the high school department during the meeting. Dr. R. E. Jaeger, state supervisor of rural elementary schools of Kentucky, will give the first address of the afternoon to the elementary department. He will speak on "Elementary Education in the Public School Program." "Progressive Trends in Elementary Education" will be the subject of Dr. Danbury Bolser, head of the department of education of the University of Alabama.

Much will be furnished throughout the meeting by the Murray band, directed by Prof. J. H. Dammann. A play written by Murray students will be presented by the Sock and Buskin Club at the meeting of the association on Friday evening.

Other speakers during the meeting will be Dr. R. M. Tyson, president of the University of Chicago, L. R. Gregory, president of the Kentucky Educational Association and superintendent of the Louisville city schools, and Dr. Wellington Patrick, head of the extension department of the University of Kentucky, who will discuss "Teaching as a Profession."

The meeting will close with the election of officers.

Officers of the present association are: N. G. Martin, superintendent of Lyon county schools, president; M. O. Wraether, superintendent of the Calton county schools, vice president; Tullus Chambers, superintendent of the Benton city schools, secretary; Frank Irwin, principal Heath High school, secretary.

ROAMIN' HIGH RIALTO

With Thomas C. Riley

"Billy the Kid" the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer picture now playing at the Ben All, presents a glorified western melodrama in a very palatable style. Particularly effective are the performances of John Mack Brown in the title role and Kay Johnson as the feminine lead. Slickening of money, she turns out the history of a famous bandit of the Old West whose adventures lead him to love. King Vidor has accomplished wonders with the direction of this outdoor picture. It moves swiftly, although long in footage, and surely to the end. Wallace Beery is also in the cast but his part is not very large. "Billy the Kid" is a top notch production for those who like adventure and thrilling action.

Perhaps the unusual story makes "Laughter" one of the best pictures we've seen in a long time or it may be the performance of Fredric March. At any rate, Fredric March certainly ground out a winner on this one. Nancy Carroll, the star, contributes little to the drama save her smashed and sugar was spilled in the Cottage Saturday evening. There was evidently some slight difficulty between two of the employees and they seem to have insisted upon an immediate and physical settlement of the matter. As we dashed into the rear that we might give our readers an eye-witness account of the combat a negro reminded us of our status by shrieking "You ain't in that, you ain't in that." Which we are happy to admit.

We should be writing advertising copy, ladies and gentlemen, what we have done in our spare time without even trying hard.

WOMEN JOURNALISTS TO INITIATE FIVE AT ANNUAL SERVICES

Chi Chapter of Theta Sigma Phi, women's national journalism fraternity, will hold initiation in the Red room of the Lafayette hotel this afternoon at 5 o'clock.

The initiation will be followed by a dinner in honor of the new initiates, who are Misses Virginia Nevins, Virginia Dougherty, Edythe Reynolds, Eleanor Smith and Fannie Curie Woodhead. The speaker, Mrs. Enoch Orphan, Miss Margie McLaughlin, faculty advisor, and Misses Eleanor Dawson, Alice Bruner, and Mary Elizabeth Price, honorary sophomores, will be guests of honor at the initiation.

A short business meeting was held yesterday afternoon at 3 o'clock at which time plans for the coming year were completed. Margaret Cundiff, Henry Eita Stone, and Mrs. Reid Mencham were appointed on the committee of arrangements. Miss Frances Holiday, president of Theta Sigma Phi, will preside at the initiation.

WOMAN'S CLUB TO ENTERTAIN

The Woman's club of the university will give a dinner for the members of the faculty Friday evening, Nov. 28, at 6:30 o'clock at Boyd hall, in honor of the seventh wedding anniversary of Dr. and Mrs. Frank L. McVey. The finance committee, in charge of the arrangements, urged the faculty to be present. Tickets may be obtained from Mrs. W. S. Webb.

ONE OF THE STANDARD MUSICAL COMEDY 'NAMES' IN AMERICA IS MARYLIN MILLER

Miller whose latest First National picture, "Sunny," is now showing at the Strand theater. This production, although not as beautiful to the eye as "Sunny," presents the star as a better actress than in her screen debut. She also has better support in the persons of Lawrence Gray and Joe Donohue. "Sunny" is good entertainment and includes several excellent songs in its length. Miss Miller is cast as a circus performer who finds herself on board an ocean liner as a stowaway. Discovered, she earns her passage across an entertainer and enters America. Of course, despite her many difficulties, she finally gets the man she wants and everything ends happily. O. P. Heggie, Inez Courtney, and Clyde Cook are in the cast.

May we remind you that three unusually good pictures will soon open in Lexington? "Old English," the latest from George Arliss will be on exhibition at the Strand theater beginning Thursday. "Morocco" will open at the Kentucky Saturday and "A Lady's Morals" is scheduled at the Ben All Sunday. Do not miss these pictures.

Sneers Snickers Scandal

By WILLIAM ARBERY

It is gratifying to note that W. Somerset Maugham's "Cakes and Ale" is being received in America as a "best seller." As was pointed out a moment ago, a "best seller" is a human commodity undesirable, but in this case it hardly can be true. Perhaps "Of Human Bondage" is a better title for his English literature. In this novel Maugham caught beauty and came upon a real philosophy. It will be remembered that he caught the meaning of life in a Persian rug. Critics often resort to the trite; we shall truly say that Maugham is worthwhile. He is writing a series of stories for "Cosmopolitan," the first appearing in the December number. It is called "The Human Element." The editor of "Cosmopolitan" says that W. Somerset Maugham "apparently knows more of what goes on in modern hearts than women do themselves." That may be a lot.

California Students To Visit Universities

Three students of California Institute of Technology have been selected to tour European and American Universities to study the housing and social organizations being developed and to report their findings to the student-faculty committee working on the new undergraduate housing plan.

The plan committee desires to incorporate into their scheme the most progressive and successful features being used in community student life here and abroad. The first units of the plan will be completed next fall, and more than half of the under-graduate students will then be living on this campus. This is expected to revolutionize the social life of Cal-Tech students," writes Howard Nagashi, N. S. F. A. chairman.

The three men chosen to travel are: Robert Lehman, Philip Scheller, and Walter Scholtz, all members of the N. S. F. A. committee at Cal-Tech. They will arrive in New York City on November 18th, and will sail directly for Europe.

here that debating can be as interesting as football and other athletic contests and in the debate Saturday evening the gentlemen from England certainly contributed a great deal toward making this belief an actuality. Throughout the entire evening it seemed to have the single objective of amusing and entertaining the audience, and this, the Kernel believes, is the primary purpose of debating. Debate must not necessarily conform to the dull, dry, uninteresting conventionalities which were formerly thought to be the only way to be done.

The forensic team at the university are attempting to remove the old evils of debate and an endeavor is being made to have large audiences at intercollegiate debates by creating a new interest among students and townspeople. The audience Saturday evening was composed largely of townspeople and members of the faculty. The few students who did attend were not bored, they were entertained.

KERNEL WINS NATIONAL HONOR

Competing with numerous tri-weekly and semi-weekly newspapers published by colleges and universities throughout the United States, The Kentucky Kernel tied for first place in the contest sponsored by the National Collegiate Press Association at its annual convention held November 19, 19, at the University of Pittsburgh. Though only a few weeks only in its semi-weekly status, it was acclaimed as having the necessary attributes of a real newspaper.

Of approximately 50 papers representing the larger schools of the United States, The Kentucky Kernel was the only one which owned its plant. All others were dependent on near-by printing shops for mechanical work on their publication. It is with a feeling of profound gratitude to those who have made such achievements possible that we have reached a realization of the possession of the outstanding factors.

The officials of the university, particularly Prof. Enoch Grehan, head of the department of journalism, and university students have been far-seeing. They have worked zealously toward the goal of producing the best student newspaper possible. In their work, the student staff has been aided by university faculty as well as by Lexington citizens. The Kernel values this co-operation highly. Too much cannot be said in praise of the willingness of others to assist us in publishing the best paper possible.

STROLLERS AWARD

Strollers is the only active student dramatic organization on the campus. It is the custom to present two productions annually, and the plays are sometimes written as well as produced by students. Last year the fall production was a musical-comedy which was produced by students.

Strollers is offering a fifty dollar award to the student submitting the best original play before December third. In this way the organization is encouraging active creative thought among students. If there were more students who would take advantage of such opportunities and more organizations which would sponsor such contests the college world would be far richer.

TO GRADE OR GO GRADELESS

To throw away grade books and drop-cards, to lessen faculty labor and student frenzy, to convert our colleges into genuine institutions of learning—this can be done by abolishing the grade system. But can it?

The grade system, as applied in most colleges, consists in classifying a student by some scale of grading with respect to the amount of material he has learned from a book. He spends long hours learning the book three days before examination. When he makes his 'A', he spends short minutes forgetting it.

To balance the disadvantages of parrot-memorizing induced by the grade system, we have the following virtues: Many students of no serious purpose may be incited to attain high grades and thus learn to strive for other goals. The giving of grades urges the student to survey his fellows, which of course results in a more thorough education. His grades enable him to see how he appears to others, since the instructor usually bases his grade on qualities of leadership and service as well as of scholarship, and is able to portray a fairly accurate picture of the student's personality in class.

More and more, colleges and universities are considering the worth of the learn or leave doctrine as opposed to the principle of 'make 'em' while the midnight lamp shines. The ideal solution to the problem would be the maintenance of the regular college course for which grades are given. In addition to this, an advanced school could be established in which each student would be allowed to choose his own course, study in his own way, and assimilate knowledge on which no grade is given.

STUDENT GRADERS

Many professors at the university regularly employ the services of student graders in order to hasten and lighten their own labor in correcting examination papers. In many instances the students employed are incompetent and incapable of grading an examination paper correctly and fairly. It has been charged that favoritism is shown toward any friends they might have in a class and that errors are frequent in their judgments of the merits of student examinations.

The Kernel believes that a professor should not be required to conduct more classes than the number he can properly supervise and that every instructor should oversee personally the grading of every examination which is submitted to him. In some cases professors employ several student assistants. Each of these assistants has a different valuation for the same examination and the grade is often a matter of luck rather than merit.

WHEN NOTHING IS SOMETHING AND SOMETHING IS NOTHING

By WALLACE McMURRAY
Editor of The Kernel, when asked for a suitable topic upon which to write a column of nonsense, unhesitatingly replied: "NOTHING!"

So here it is. OLD MAN WEBSTER'S conception of "nothing" was "a state of non-existence." Very well. What we want to picture is the actual meaning of the word "nothing" to the University of Kentucky students.

"NOTHING!" When books are high and tuition the same; when other dues prompt the reply, "It's a losing game"; when we ask dear Papa's aid while in a pinch, his answer's almost a cinch.

"NOTHING!" When first-hour classes must be met, when sleep seems to say, "Not just yet"; when the alarm announces a new-born day, is it usually classwork or play?

"NOTHING!" When caps and gowns are in array and diplomas given away; when books are tossed to the corner to stay; when we face the world in our crude way—

"NOTHING!" When we stroll arm-in-arm with freshman girls we're charmed; but when prof asks what you learned, the trick is turned.

"NOTHING!" When Wildcats knot muscle and smew while the Crimson Tide tries to buck through; when all's lost save hair-breath time; when

Phipps, Johnson, and Kelly again shine, who fails to yell, "Hold that line!"

NOBODY! When the "Moonshiner" creeps, to probe the nook where Scandal sleeps; when its columns are gloat-ed with what it reaps, who isn't guilty of scanning its sheets?

NOBODY! Why do we like to go on a spree or stay out late in the old settee;

KING FOOTBALL

With the coming of frost and snow to the gridirons of the nation, King Football gathers his regal robes more closely about him in anticipation of abdication. Before he relinquishes the scepter of power, however, a series of climaxes must come to his kingdom. One of these is the Kentucky-Tennessee game at Knoxville on Thanksgiving day, the latest addition to a long series of athletic contests between the two schools.

We already have written much about football this year, but we feel that we have not done justice to the sport. It is not that our writings have not been fair to the game at Kentucky, but that no matter how much or what is said of the importance of football at this school, justice remains with covered eyes.

And so we come to the final game of the year, anticipating a great contest from the teams. Anticipation, in this case, is easy, due to memory of the annual outstanding battles of past years. And we believe in Kentucky to the extent of predicting a victory for the blue and white, one that will break a tie extant over a period of two barren years. Thursday, twelve of Kentucky's Wildcats will don their molekins for the last time. They are seniors who have done their bit for their Alma Mater, who have thrilled to the game as the thousands have thrilled to their performances on the gridiron. To the twelve, the university and The Kernel bid a fond farewell.

At Kentucky there are none of the distinct traditions for the seniors such as exist at other schools. There is no senior tackle, no smokes-banquet before the close of the season, etc. But, it seems to us, there is something even greater in its significance—the game with the University of Tennessee Volunteers. It is in this contest that seniors at Kentucky reach the top of the ton in friendly rivalry, in school spirit, sportsmanship and the football season year after year. Compounded of all the elements most desirable to the schools and to their athletic relationships, the Thanksgiving day game has become a tradition in itself for the graduating seniors of both teams. As such it is a tribute to football. As Thanksgiving is a day of thanks for the worthwhile things that have been bestowed upon us this and other years, let us add our voices to those of the nation, and let us include in our thanks our gratitude for the continued sportsmanlike reign of King Football between Kentucky, of the blue and white, and Tennessee, of the orange and gold.

In a telegram to The Kernel, Buddy Hackman, president of the student body of the University of Tennessee and Volunteer backfield ace, invited students of the University of Kentucky to be the guests of the Tennessee undergraduates for the Thanksgiving game. The Kernel believes that the attitude expressed by the message is the highest and most sportsmanlike which could exist and that the Volunteers can also be termed "an old and honorable foe."

There is probably more sportsmanship and color in the annual battle with Tennessee than in any other Wildcat grid encounter. There has always been a keen rivalry between the two schools but throughout the many years they have met on the gridiron the finest sense of sportsmanship and fair play has existed. The message from Buddy Hackman is merely another expression of all that has made the annual contest one of the hardest fought and most sportsmanlike grid games in the South.

THE INTERNATIONAL DEBATE PROGRAM

Continuing the program of international debating which was instituted at the university four years ago by Prof. W. R. Sutherland, debate coach, two representatives of Cambridge University, England, and two Kentucky representatives Saturday evening debated in Memorial hall before a large crowd. The split-team method of debating was used in which one Kentucky and one English debater represented each side of the question. By this means a more intimate knowledge of English and less stress is placed on merely winning the debate. It is the theory of the forensic department

BEER KEG IS TROPHY FOR TURKEY DAY BATTLE

By LAWRENCE CRUMP
Kentucky's Wildcats and Tennessee's Volunteers will battle on Shields-Watkins field Turkey Day for glory and a painted beer keg. Early season injuries flurried the title hopes of the Vols and they bowed before a superior Alabama eleven as did Kentucky two weeks later.

The fact that both teams have been defeated will not spoil a good football game. Starting lineups of both teams will contain names that have dominated sporting headlines for the past three years—names that will shortly be followed by that distinguishing "all-Southern." The seniors of both teams who have faced each other for two successive years and battled each other to a standstill will meet for the last time Thanksgiving day.

Captain Forquer of Kentucky will line up across from Captain Thayer of Tennessee, both men playing their last game of intercollegiate football. At quarterback for Tennessee is Bobby Dodd, the Vols' great triple threat back and a cinch for all-Southern. The catch phrase for "Hack and Mack" did not fly with Dodd so he was overlooked by the publicity agent for a time until it became generally known that he kicked a football consistently in the neighborhood of 60 yards. Calling signals for Kentucky is Casey Spicer, also rated as one of the South's best generals. On his last appearance at Shields-Watkins field Spicer popped up from nowhere and intercepted a pass from Dodd and ticketed for Hackman that would have won the ball game and the Southern Conference crown for Tennessee. Spicer and Dodd are stellar backfielders and will meet again before the year is over.

Dodd has been invited to play a charity game at Los Angeles on the same date that "Floppy" Forquer is scheduled to appear in the Yank Stadium in a similar contest.

Thursday will see the end of the well known "Hack and Mack" combination that ran up so many touchdowns. "Hack" is playing the same game while "Mack" has one more year. Injured in scrimmage before the season had started, McEver decided to pass up football for a year and according to Southern Conference rules has one more year of eligibility.

Hug and Brandt, all-southern selections of last year have recovered from injuries received in their game with Centre and are to start against the "Cats." Both men have been great performers and only tough luck prevented them from winding up with a bang.

Dusty Williams and "Connie" Rose are the remaining seniors to start in Kentucky's lineup. "The final whistle at Knoxville will put an end to college football for these boys and Gamage's worries about replacing them will start about that time. "Dusty" is in line for all-southern and only the breaks, mostly bad, have prevented Rose from occupying the same position. Other seniors almost sure to break in are Toth, Bronston and Baughman. The fact that only 11 men can play at one time keeps these boys on the bench.

"That last whistle that up till now meant only the end of another ball game will send all of these boys to the showers for the last time. It is fitting that they should be playing against each other in Kentucky-Tennessee football game.

You will find Edgeworth at your nearest tobacco shop—15¢ the tin. Or, for generous free sample, address Larus & Bro. Co., 105 S. 22d St., Richmond, Va.

EDGEWORTH
SMOKING TOBACCO

Edgeworth is a blend of fine old tobaccos, with its natural savor, enhanced by Edgeworth's distinctive eleventh process.

Play Edgeworth anywhere in two forms— "Ready-Habbed" and "Plug-Slow." All sizes. 15¢ pocket packages to handstand tin.

VOLUNTEERS WHO ARE TO MEET BIG BLUE

"Buddy" Hackman ("Bobby") Dodd and Quinn Decker, famous Tennessee gridlers, above, are slated to start in the annual contest with the Wildcats at Knoxville Turkey Day. Hackman and Dodd were two important factors in repelling the Big Blue on Stoll field last year and are expected to contribute a great deal toward the difficulty the Wildcats will have in defeating the strong Volunteers aggregation Thursday.

Throughout their college careers Hackman and Dodd have been outstanding backs for the Tennessee. Dodd has distinguished himself as a punter extraordinary and it is believed by Volunteer supporters that this may aid in keeping the Big Blue attack in check.

CONFERENCE HIGH SCORER

Carey Spicer leads the Southern Conference backs in the scoring department. His ability to run, place kick, and recover fumbles has put him at the top. The Tennessee game is certainly Spicer's football career, but we still have the basketball season to look forward to. This winter he leads the basketball team as captain.

JAWBONE MAKES ELEPHANT

This scientist who claims that he can take a jawbone and construct an elephant may not be a Republican but his sympathies are evidently safe with the Grand Old Party.

CAPTAIN 'FLOPPY' TO BE IN ALL-STAR GAME

Captain Floppy Forquer of the University of Kentucky Wildcats will play for charity at the Yankee Stadium in New York City. The game will be played December 27 and will be between two teams composed of the outstanding college players in the country. All players on the two teams will be made up of seniors as the participants will automatically lose their amateur standing and be ineligible for further collegiate competition.

It is expected that the game will attract more than 75,000 spectators which will be the largest attendance of the many charity games to be played between the official closing of the football season and the playing of the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, Calif. It will mark the second time that Floppy has done his bit toward helping the less fortunate of the land. Captain Forquer was one of the main cogs in the northern division of the charity game played in Atlanta, Ga., last year when Messrs. Tennessee and company defeated the Southern division 18 to 0 in a game played for the benefit of Shriner's Crippled children fund.

The game this year in which Floppy will appear will probably have the greatest galaxy of star football players ever brought together on one team. This is accounted for by the fact some of the nation's most outstanding football players as seniors and all are anxious to do their bit.

Captain Forquer will make his last appearance in college competition when he leads the Cats against the mighty Vols of Tennessee in Knoxville Thanksgiving day. Hundreds of loyal friends and boosters of the team are planning to be present for the game in which not only will Floppy make his last appearance but ten of his team mates who have done much to put the University of Kentucky at the top of the heap in the Southern Conference and make them one of the most feared and most respected teams in the entire South.

HOLDS HIS OWN AT GUARD

"Connie" Rose is another senior playing his last game for Kentucky. Connie occupies the berth opposite Forquer, and he holds it down in a manner quite becoming to a guard. With Williams, and Forquer as running mates, he does more than just good; he does excellent.

COURSES ARE ADDED

Several new courses for the Arts and Sciences College were approved yesterday at a meeting of the faculty of that college. The changes are as follows: English, a three-hour course in Elizabethan drama (Ben Jonson, Tette, Loy, Marlowe and Greene); political science, a three-hour course in County Government and the Kentucky Constitution; journalism, the change of several courses to senior rank.

CONSTRUCT WALK

A walk is being constructed across the campus from the main driveway to the Training School building for the convenience of those students going from the university to the school grounds. The walk will be of macadam finish, six feet wide and five hundred feet long, and will be completed soon.

PROPAGANDA REFUTED

During the past week, propaganda has been spread that the university students would be admitted to the Kentucky-Tennessee football game on receipt of fifty cents and their student athletic books. Authorities of the university said that this was not true, and that all university students would be obliged to pay the regular admission price to see the game.

Intramural Football Entries Are Due Wednesday

First Games Begin December 2; Gamage And Shively Officials

Intramural football will be inaugurated at Kentucky December 2, with approximately 16 teams scheduled for a series of elimination games on Stoll field. The grid tournament for the university football championship is being started with the idea of uncovering material for the 1931 Wildcat machine.

Coaches Harry Gamage and Bernie Shively will officiate at the league contests and while calling the plays will watch for boys who look promising for varsity competition. The coaches will select an all-intramural team at the close of the games. The entries expected from 18 fraternities and three independent teams, must be in the hands of C. W. Hackensmith, director of intramural athletics by November 26. Schedules will be posted immediately upon receipt of entries.

The first game will be played December 2 at 4:05 o'clock in the afternoon, and others will follow on successive afternoons. The championship game will be played just before the Christmas holidays.

Sigma Alpha Epsilon seems to be leading the Greeks in the first division of volleyball, and the Phi Tau hold the edge in the second division. Handball and indoor golf also is progressing, and basketball will be started February 1.

CLASSICAL CLUB HOLDS MEETING

The regular November meeting of the Classical club of the university was held at 3 o'clock Thursday afternoon, in McVey hall. Following a business session, several stories from Greek plays were presented. Officers of the club are: Margaret Robinson, president; Isobel Ertle, vice president; and Mary Esther Sheridan, secretary and treasurer.

LAST GAME FOR KENTUCKY THURSDAY

"Dusty" Williams is the best center in the South, according to verbal vote cast in the Press Box at each game of the season. During his career he has never thrown a poor pass; it is due to his passing that the backfield is able to get into action so quickly and easily. Watch him carefully during the Tennessee game and notice the perfection of his passes, the way he stops the opposing center, and the way he gets through the line on the defensive plays.

Kentucky's 1931 Grid Card Includes Eight Conference Contests

By Ed Conkey
Last week the athletic council of the university announced the 1931 football schedule. Six games have been definitely arranged, while two other games are almost certain to be had for the Cats.

There will be three games played away from home. Most of the teams which the Wildcats play are powerful teams. All of them are conference foes. If Kentucky wins all her games next year, she will easily be the champion of the Southern Conference.

This year, the Tulane team with the wins that the Crimson Tide of Alabama claims, is tied for first place with the Wademen. Alabama will no doubt be given first consideration because of her impressive schedule. Tulane has lost only one game, to North-western last year, early in the season. But North-western is the Western Conference champion.

The first game will see the Tigers of Clemson College back again on Stoll field. Clemson two weeks ago, was the highest scoring team of the country. They met Tennessee and against such powerful and powerful defensive aggregations, their record was checked.

Clemson was a highly touted team when they came here last season and justly so. But in the opening minutes of the game, "slip-wreck" slipped down the sidelines on the first play from scrimmage and this broke the morale of a great team. Then a great play, a halfback was carried from the field, seriously hurt. The game ended in a rout, 47-0.

The next game will be with the Generals from Washington and Lee. The Virginians always put up a great fight and until recent years, have succeeded in defeating the local team. It is believed by many that Jimmy DeHart, the crazy little coach of Duke, will once again take the reins of the Washington and Lee boys. Whenever Washington and Lee plays Kentucky there will be a great battle and on October 11 of that day will mark their meeting in Lexington on Stoll field.

The third game will find the Wildcats pitted against a newcomer, the University of Maryland. Maryland is not so strong as the great teams known for their strong eleven. They play on October 17 in College Park.

The next game will no doubt be with the Virginia Polytechnic Institute from Blacksburg, Va. The Tech team is a powerful team and should make the afternoon an interesting one for Wildcat fans. The game is scheduled for October 24 on Stoll field.

The name of the Crimson Tide of Alabama embosoms the headlines for October 31 as the famed 'Bama team once more takes on the Kentucky boys. Alabama will have a great team next year, but some of the past traditional glamour of the Kentucky-Alabama games will be missing.

Alabama has beaten us for the last seven seasons. Each year the name of Wallace Wade was at the mast head of the program, as head coach. Each year the boys of Wallace Wade was on the lips of every fan. Wade leaves Alabama this season.

The Crimson Tide, with many of this year's stars and bone-cutting artists back next fall, will be a powerful contender for championship honors. Alabama will be handicapped with the presence of a new coach and a new system, the Rockne system, which the new mentor, non-combatant. His shoulder has started aching again Friday and Saturday he appeared on the field minus his shoulder pad. No hard work for him. He would ruin himself if he tried to do any.

Johnson is a great football player, but he hasn't shown any greatness this year. He couldn't handle the work not let him. But he showed courage and Coach Gamage is looking forward to the time the war here from Ashland will do next year when, and if, he is in good condition.

Frank Thomas will install. Thomas is now backfield coach of the Georgia squad.

On November 7 the Blue Devils from Duke will invade Stoll field. Just one year to the day, the Carolinians, with the scalp of the Cats of 1929, will endeavor to duplicate their previous win.

With Wallace Wade at the helm and with the great Duke stars back next season, the game should be close.

The Flying Squadron of the Virginia Military Institute will meet Kentucky next year at Lexington, Va. The Virginians will meet the Cats on the same Saturday as for the past three engagements. Two years ago the Cadets put up a great exhibition of courage and fight only to lose, 23-13. This year, the score was 26-0.

Last, but by far not the least of the football teams, are the Vols of the University of Tennessee. They play in Lexington in the last game of the season and with the all-American McEver in the Vol backfield, the Tennessee team should be much respected.

Tennessee has defeated Kentucky ten times in about 24 games. The last time Kentucky won was in 1925, 23-20. Thursday, on Thanksgiving, the Vols and the Cats of Kentucky have their annual struggle for supremacy in Knoxville. Kentucky But two years ago they held Tennessee, 0-0. Last year only the breaks of the game, and the work of Bobby Dodd, potential all-American quarterback this year, gave Tennessee a 6-6 tie.

This marks the third time the Wildcats go to Knoxville with the odds against them. But fate doesn't bother them. They intend to win. Six games were scoreless ties. Kentucky claims the greatest one-sided victory. It was 27-6, in 1924, the year before we won our last tussle with the Vols. The Wildcats have scored 175 points to the Vols 189 for the 24 games the two teams have played. When Tennessee plays Kentucky it will always be a great football game and we look for another great game and a Kentucky victory Thursday afternoon in Knoxville.

Injury Jinx Rides Herd On Ellis Johnson During His First Varsity Season

By NEVILLE DUNN
In Lexington Herald

There's many a slip 'twixt the cup and the lip, the best laid plans of mice and men and a half dozen other axiomatic expressions occur to us as we reflect on the peculiar position Ellis Johnson has had on the University of Kentucky football team this year.

A great high school star, a splendid fellow personally, possessor of all the qualities of a football player, Ellis Johnson was expected to play a leading role with the Big Blue this season. But Ellis Johnson has not had chance to show his worth. Injuries have hampered him ever since he received his first major injury in a football game in the last tilt of the season for the University of Kentucky Kittens last year.

Johnson received a blow on the head in the Tennessee-Kitten battle last year that rendered him unconscious for hours. He was in poor health the greater part of the winter as a result of it. Then, just as he was beginning to regain weight and to make plans for joining the varsity in spring football practice, he was laid low with an attack of appendicitis and underwent an operation. He missed spring practice and he could do very little hard work in the summer. He rested and took as good care of himself as possible so that he could be in good shape for the fall grid campaign.

So he had not been practicing long before he suffered an injury to his hip. That kept him out of blocking and tackling practice, very essential fundamentals, for several days. A little while after his recovery from that injury, he tackled a freshman in scrimmage and the clavicle bone in his shoulder was separated.

A clavicle separation is a painful wound and it takes time to heal. But Johnson nursed his shoulder carefully and, while he still had to stay out of blocking and tackling practice, he hoped to get in a game sometime or other.

The shoulder injury healed fairly well and Johnson, with heavy pads at the point of the separation, managed to get in a couple of games. Everything went well except that Coach Harry Gamage was afraid to use him very much in tackling and blocking practice.

The Alabama game was looming, the shoulder felt pretty good and Johnson buckled down to his work, and, bingo, he twisted his knee. He and Trainer Frank Mann worked on the leg desperately. It simply had to be well for the Alabama game. But it wasn't well, and Johnson went into the tilt in a crippled condition. He played a courageous game, but every move he made was painful.

And now, with the Tennessee game, the last of the season, just a few days off, Johnson faces the prospect of going through it as a

Totsy Selects Vols; Hopes He Is Wrong

By TOTSY ROSE

The best football menu of the year is ready to be served to the southern sporting fans Thursday. Thanksgiving is the most colorful day of the season. The Wildcats are fought, old feuds are renewed and upsets are in order. Football prognosticators never get an even break in trying to guess the outcome of these Turkey Day battles.

The most important game in the conference will be the Alabama-Georgia contest. The Crimson Tide must win this game if they expect an invitation to the Tournament of Roses. Georgia will present the best balanced team that Alabama has met this season. The Bulldogs have lost only one game and are possibly the third strongest team in the south. The Crimson Tide must play their best game of the year if they expect to turn back these old rivals. Tennessee would be a close and hard fought game, the breaks deciding the outcome.

TENNESSEE FAVORED

Tennessee is favored to win from Kentucky in their annual game. The Wildcats have been the underdogs against the Vols for the last two years, but Tennessee was forced to be satisfied with a tie game on each occasion. Kentucky usually plays their best game of the season against Tennessee; this year the Wildcats will have to play a much better brand of ball than they have displayed so far this season if they expect a victory over them at the game. We hope we are wrong, but the Vols appear too strong for the Wildcats. Mississippi will meet Ole Miss in battle for the state championship. Dope means nothing when two old rivals like these meet; both teams are very weak and the result appears to be a toss-up. Duke should be able to down Washington and Lee without much trouble. The Blue Devils were tied by Wake Forest last Saturday, but they still appear to be much stronger than the General.

GO TECH! GO TECH!

The Florida-Georgia Tech game has never defeated Tech, and this year they have a great advantage on the old dope sheet. Last year Florida was a heavy favorite over Tech but the Engineers played their best game of the season to down the Gators. We believe Tech will upset the dope again and send their rivals home on the short end of the score. In another traditional battle V. M. I. will meet Virginia Tech. This should be a close and hard fought game, Tech has had a much better season than V. M. I., and for this reason we believe they will win.

In an interstate affair, Tuame will battle Louisiana State. The Green Wave should have a field day against Louisiana; the only thing that State can offer in opposition to Tuame is their own wish to North Carolina is expecting little trouble from the Virginia Cavaliers; Louisiana State should have a very pleasant surprise in these gentlemen from Virginia. This is a hard game to figure, anything may happen; take your choice.

South Carolina appears strong enough to down the struggling Auburn eleven. Auburn has not won a conference game since 1926, and there is only a bare possibility that they can win from South Carolina Thursday. Maryland will meet John Hopkins in their annual battle. Maryland should be able to take it easy against their old rival.

Our selections for this week follow:

To Win	To Lose
Tennessee	Kentucky
Alabama	Georgia
Duke	Washington-Lee
Georgetown	Louisiana State
Virginia Tech	John Hopkins
Maryland	Maryland
North Carolina	Virginia
South Carolina	Auburn
V. P. I.	V. M. I.

MAY WE INTRODUCE...

JAMES E. SALYERS

With the prospects of a Thanksgiving holiday in view, every one should be quite happy. Keeping this in mind, I struggled to get an introduction to the class of the other eye open before the class was over. My short naps were constantly interrupted by a voice in the back of the room asking the prof questions concerning the Kernel advertising staff, and naturally the following thought—an interview. That thought awakened an interview.

After class I cornered my victim with the usual name and activity questions.

"I am Jim Salyers," he said. "Kappa Sig, Alpha Delta Sigma, national advertising fraternity, member of the Kernel advertising staff, and treasurer of the Kentucky Intercollegiate Press Association."

"Ah this was really a help—no prying questions to be asked, but I was kept busy writing.

"Where did you go to high school?"

"I went to Carrollton and Richmond," he answered.

"Your activities there?" I queried.

"Thinking for a moment he answered, I was a member of the Athenian Literary Society, Latin and Greek clubs, basketball captain when a junior; football quarterback, and baseball two letters teams. I also took part in several plays. At Madison High I played football and basketball, coaching the Madison midwest team, which won seven straight victories that year—was a member of the H. Y. and Glee clubs, and reader of the news well."

"Did you come to the university your freshman year?" I asked.

"No, I went to Eastern," he replied.

"And your activities there—?" I asked.

"Oh, football, Little Theatre Club, member of the advertising staff of the 'Progress,' and treasurer of the freshman class," he replied, seeming rather anxious to get to his next class.

Sending back the interview was at an end I said, "Thanks for the trouble, and stepping aside, I let my victim scurry while I let down—junior in the Education College.

ELEANOR SWEARINGER

As impossible as it may seem there are students on this campus who make the grade, have a big time, and are raised as just "the thing." Eleanor Swearinger, senior in the college of Arts and Sciences, is among the most outstanding of this unusual group.

She is pretty, peppy, and a peach of a girl. These really aren't any need for me to say that, because somebody has already discovered her charms, and now she is wearing a fraternity pin. Can you guess? Piling from here and there, she is so busy and active all the time that even her closest friends just catch a glimpse of her. If it's not a Y. W.

VOLS RATS WILL MEET GREENIES HERE SATURDAY

After a season of being kicked about as scrummers material the varsity Coach Pribble's Kitten squad will become the center of attraction Saturday afternoon on Stoll field where they will battle the Tennessee Rats.

The coaches, customers and sports writers will be there to dope out the result of next year's Kentucky-Tennessee tilt. This will be the first time this season that the Kittens as one team have appeared on Stoll field or anywhere else. Even the coaches don't know how the Green team will stack up against another team of equal experience. The Rats have spent most of their time playing high school teams and the only indication they give is that they will be expected in a 45-0 win over Vanderbilt freshmen.

Lexingtonians will turn out to see Ralph Kerchival kick football again. Ralph is Coach Heber's contribution to Kentucky football for this year. Kerchival will start at quarterback along with Bach, quarterback and Cassidy and Flidder, halfbacks.

James is Pribble's cheer for the instant on the green ground they trod; with the yells of the savage and the groans of the Kentucky pine tree suffering could conceive, establish and observe such a day; if in the end it is not a day of thanksgiving and the civil wars; if during the recent tragedy of the ages that shock and shocked the civilized world; if in those years of pestilence and famine, a reverent grateful Kentucky could sincerely observe a day of thanksgiving purely we, whose misfortunes in comparison divide into nothingness, may not ignore the duty timeliness the sacred privilege of observing such a day.

We indeed a chosen people. Always our blessings material and spiritual far surpass our misfortunes—our misfortunes individual and as a state and nation are much less than those of the peoples of the earth. Always under the munificent providence of God, and through the patient guidance of his public servants, we emerge untrifled and renewed

Governor Calls Upon People to Give Thanks

Governor Sampson, in issuing the proclamation for the observance of Thanksgiving Day throughout the state, said that misfortunes, intensified by drought and industrial depression, have been "trivial compared with our blessings and the woes we are spared."

The proclamation follows:

"For the third time, it is my privilege, as chief executive of this great commonwealth to summon its people to an annual day of praise and thanksgiving to the giver of so many good and perfect gifts."

"In the year just gone the usual trials that attend individual and national life, have been intensified by drought and industrial depression but this is passing away. Poverty and distress, always with us, are at the moment apparently greater, but not actually more threatening than usual. How trivial are our misfortunes and the woes we are spared! If the founding fathers, for the instant on the green ground they trod; with the yells of the savage and the groans of the Kentucky pine tree suffering could conceive, establish and observe such a day; if in the end it is not a day of thanksgiving and the civil wars; if during the recent tragedy of the ages that shock and shocked the civilized world; if in those years of pestilence and famine, a reverent grateful Kentucky could sincerely observe a day of thanksgiving purely we, whose misfortunes in comparison divide into nothingness, may not ignore the duty timeliness the sacred privilege of observing such a day."

Always our blessings material and spiritual far surpass our misfortunes—our misfortunes individual and as a state and nation are much less than those of the peoples of the earth. Always under the munificent providence of God, and through the patient guidance of his public servants, we emerge untrifled and renewed from every crisis, political, financial and social and we will through His grace do so again.

"Wherefore, in obedience to our long established custom, I, FLEM D. SAMPHSON, governor of the commonwealth of Kentucky, proclaim Thursday, Nov. 27th, Thanksgiving day and call upon all our people to come together at their churches and other places of worship and give thanks to Almighty God for the manifold blessings which we have enjoyed through the year and pray a continuance of His beneficence for homes and firesides, for regretting fields and gardens, for flocks and herds, for men and women who grow in strength and character and courage through endurance of their trials; for the countless mercies and blessings, it should be not only a day of thanksgiving and praise, but a day of reunion of families and friends, for the renewal and dedication of their unselfish affection and service one to the other."— Lexington Leader.

SPIRIT OF FUZZY

By RALPH E. JOHNSON

In the first place Fuzzy is dead. Yep, he hanged himself when his fine intuition warned him of approaching Alabama disaster. The Tennessee Rats was a real blow to the team, and they dropped two games in a row. But that is over and the spirit of the cat has returned to the Wildcats, and is intent to beat Tennessee as a final high school year.

Ever since Coach Juneau was here in the early twenties, we have had a wildcat mascot at every Tennessee game. This year every year, his place our departed mascot has failed and it seems as though we will have to enter the hunting grounds without a cat. Nevertheless Fuzzy's spirit will pervade over the Wildcat team and they are bound to claw the Vols down.

Each and every member of the Wildcat team will become a living, breathing image of their late mascot. They will resist with claws set; they will charge with fangs bared, and they will leave the field after having done well by our little Fuzzy.

The feature of the edition is the "On to Knoxville" article pertaining to the annual Kentucky-Tennessee football game. Thanksgiving. The cover of the Journal carries a road map showing the paved roads of the two routes to Knoxville, one through Williamsburg and Jellico and the other through Barbourville, Russellville and Middleboro.

Mrs. Della Akely, noted explorer, plans to spend a year among the pygmies of the Belgian Congo. Native Akelans will be her only companions.

At a meeting, she is attending a meeting of Theta Sigma Phi or Chi Delta Phi.

BLUE BAND WILL MAKE TRIP TO TENNESSEE

UNIVERSITY OF KENTUCKY'S BAND

The University of Kentucky band, 90 strong, with attractive Miss Virginia Dougherty, sponsor, comprising the "Best Band in Dixie," will be on board the Wildcat Special when it pulls out of the Southern station Wednesday night, bound for Tennessee. The same band, respondent with its two drum majors, that paraded before a homecoming crowded stadium with such success, will delight the eyes and ears of those attending the Kentucky-Tennessee game. Two weeks' practice has given the band a new set of formations even more intricate and dazzling than those used at the Alabama game, and it is almost certain that the "Big Blue Band" will be at its best for the Thanksgiving game.

Vying for honors with Kentucky's band will be that of Tennessee, a band almost as large. There has been intense rivalry between the two musical organizations in past years and an even keener competition is expected this year. Not only in the actual musical-making ability of the horn tooters, but also in the beauty of the two sponsors does strong rivalry exist.

DEBATERS DISCUSS DANGEROUS SUBJECT AT FORENSIC MEETING

By PAT BARKIN

The fourth international debate, within the last five years, on the subject "The Emergence of Woman from the Home is a Regrettable Feature of Modern Life," was held in Memorial hall Saturday night before a fairly large crowd of intellectuals, near intellectuals, and non-intellectuals.

Such a subject is fraught with all kinds of pitfalls and difficulties. It can only be a matter of individual preference and depends upon the temperament of each person, consequently a debate upon such a subject resolved itself into opinions, which unfortunately came from such unauthoritative sources as to be worth little if anything.

We have always had our pet theories as to the various constituents of women, and the courses of some of their incomprehensibles, but it remained for Mr. Jackson to inform us that woman is a composite of calcium salts, and many other equally obnoxious things. In fact when he got through with the fair sex, he made it resemble the waffles concocted by the ingenuity of Eddie Cantor.

Another surprising feature of the evening, which we expected to find present, was the absence of any mention whatever of Solomon, who, should undoubtedly have been able to give some insights which even ecologists have overlooked, or by their inexperience, have failed to note. We went home, read the Proverbs of that ancient sage and found that he made not more than a dozen references to women, and then mostly in an illustrative capacity.

The inference naturally thrusts itself upon us that either they had Solomon completely fooled, and he realized it, or he thought them so stupid and inconsequential as not to be worth the trouble of mention. It is singular that Anatole France, the modern sage, made a study of them, and died as completely baffled as he was when he undertook the task. It was with no disappointment then, that we came away from Memorial hall as ignorant as ever, with the firm opinion that they are pleasing, infinitely sweet, but dangerous.

The debate coach at the university is a most affable man. He has probably done more good for the students, in awakening them from their rustic complacency than any other instructor upon the campus, but he indicts almost everything on the ground that it is a product of this "ACQUISITIVE SOCIETY." Such an indictment was made concerning the emergence of women from the home. We have no reasons to make and no arguments in favor of our present society, but this, we have observed, and that is the fact, that there is one in this universe which is organized on a theory directly contrary to that of this country, and that state is communistic Russia, where, more (we might say) than anywhere else, are women urged to leave their homes, and send their children to be cared for by a government nurse.

The conclusion that if the present state of affairs is perpetuated, or at least continued, woman will cease to be interesting and will take on the sickening air of the androgynous.

Kappa Chapter of Phi Beta, musical fraternity gave a program of German music at the vesper services, Sunday, November 23. Solo and ensemble work, both instrumental and vocal were presented. This was the second program of German music of the month.

Dr. Sidney Durst of the College of Music, Cincinnati, Ohio, gave an organ recital Sunday, playing entirely from the German composers. Dr. Durst is well known here having presented several programs last year. He will give three more organ recitals this season.

Sunday's program: Organ—Toccata and Fugue in D Minor—Bach, Dr. A. W. Kelley; German Composers, Miss Mary Lou McDowell; Double Quartette 1. Gradie Song—Brahms; 2. Ave Maria—Brahms; Harp Solos—1. Mazurka—Schereuchner; 2. Waltz in A Flat—Brahms; Miss Mary Ann O'Brien; Double Quartette 1. Gypsy Life—Schumann; 2. Seraphic Song—Rubinstein; Pledging exercises of Phi Mu Alpha, honorary men's musical fraternity; Organ—Wagner Blüt—Strauss, Dr. A. W. Kelley.

Wildcats Prepare to Invade Tennessee

By Forger, "Dusty" Williams, "Barnacle Bill" Coker, Connie Rose, Carver Epler, Jake Bronston, "Primo" Baughman, Tony Gentle, Lawrence "Big" McGinnis, Otho McElroy, Louie Toth, and Ollie Johnson.

Of this number, six have played in every game this season, and the other six have seen action. Coach Harry Gamage will see that each has his last chance to fight for Kentucky.

Kentucky will be in excellent physical condition. Indications are that every man on the squad will be able to play all or part of the game. And every man on the Wildcat roll call believes Kentucky will defeat Tennessee.

Three special trains and a horde of automobiles will carry Kentucky rosters to Knoxville. University officials have declared Friday a holiday in order that students may have ample time to make the trip.

Few Kentuckians, outside of the university, think the Wildcats will defeat the Volunteers. They have an almost unorthodox belief that Kentucky always has a better chance to lose than win when Tennessee is the foe. Equally unorthodox is the belief on the part of Kentucky students that Tennessee can not win.

Kentucky's 90-piece band, "the best in Dixie," will be on hand, but Pusy, Kentucky's Wildcat mascot, which watched the last two games, will not be on hand. Pusy is dead, having hanged himself by the chain which held him prisoner at the beginning of the football season.

Ancient Custom to Be Observed Thursday

Thanksgiving day in Knoxville will again see the renewal of an ancient and time honored custom which as usual will take place during the half of the Turkey Day game with the Volunteers. This custom known as the "keg" ceremony has been rather vague to the students of the university in the last three or four years but William Young and Vernon Chandler, SuKy representatives to Knoxville who will work in cooperation with the Beaver Club, vow and declare that they are going to bring the "keg" back to the Blue Grass.

Last year a ceremony was held in McLean Stadium during the half of that surprising and tragic game with the 1929 edition of the Volunteers. Kentucky's representatives had the keg practically home when—oh, you remember. The game ended in the annual tie and the keg went back to the mountains.

SuKy is helping to finance the band to Knoxville and also to send other leaders enough to instill pep in the Kentucky rosters. All the seats in the Shield-Watkins stadium are sold and a crowd of 2500 are expected to see Kentucky's band and team strut their stuff on Thanksgiving Day.

Debaters Discuss Woman Question of the system as a whole," Mr. Ardery stated.

The gentlemen from England were primarily interested in entertaining and amusing the audience of Lexington by the Cambridge debaters. Mr. Ostridge described all women as being stupid and selfish.

In rebuttal Mr. Jackson said that he regretted the present order and that as a feature of this order the emergence of woman was regrettable.

The Cambridge representatives left Lexington Sunday afternoon and appeared in a debate against Murray State Teachers College, at Murray, Kentucky, Monday evening. From Murray they will go to Memphis, Tennessee.

EDUCATORS TO MEET

Several members of the Training School faculty will go to Richmond, Friday and Saturday to attend the Central Kentucky Educational Association convention to be held at Eastern Teachers College.

Among the university men who will be on the program are: Dr. Frank L. McVey, Dean Taylor, Dr. Henry H. Hill, Prof. J. H. May, Dr. McHenry Rhodes, Prof. M. E. Lyon and Prof. J. B. Hollaway. Other members attending are Dr. Jessie Adams and Dr. C. C. Ross.

A questionnaire was drawn up and sent to those collaborators in different universities most likely to be able to help in the countries interested. Visits were made and contacts established in Germany, Austria, in Hungary, Czechoslovakia, Poland and Roumania, and at the same time the help of professors and specialists was sought both there and in countries where calm study of the difficulties is easier. One result of historical research as to the reasons of the present anti-semitism is a book by Mr. Parkes, I. S. Study Secretary, entitled "Jews and Antisemitism."

Sufficient material has been gathered since the Bienville conference to warrant a second conference for the study of the Jewish problem. It will take place from the 4th to 9th of January at Eocarno. There will be some forty representatives. The program will take up particularly the question of the place of the Jewish intellectual and above all, of the Jewish student in the life of the country in which he lives.

FOOTBALLERS CRASH

Football at Kentucky narrowly escaped a serious loss Friday night when an automobile bearing two Wildcat stars collided with another car on South Limestone street. It became known Saturday afternoon when Babe Wright reported for practice suffering from an injury to his arm. Dick Richards was with Wright at the time of the accident, but escaped without injury. Wright's arm is expected to heal by Thanksgiving Day.

FUNKHOUSER TO SPEAK

Dr. W. D. Funkhouser has accepted an invitation to be the principal speaker at the annual dinner of the Society of Colonial Wars which will be held tonight at the Queen City club in Cincinnati. The subject of his address will be "The Prehistoric Culture of the Mississippi Valley."
