CAFETERIA DEAL CAUSES DEFICIT IN UNION FUNDS

$2800 Profit Is Overbalanced By Expenditure
Because of $5000 advanced to the University to purchase cafeteria equipment, the Union has operated at a net loss during the past eight months, according to a financial report requested by The Kernel. The total operating income from July 1, 1949, to February 28, 1950, was $31,255.74, which when added to the July 1 balance of $4,716.85 makes the entire income $36,972.59. The total operating cost was $39,200.

Will Be Reimbursed
The money advanced to the University was used as a part of the $23,000 paid to the College Catering company for equipment when the University assumed management of the cafeteria in January.

Income Is Higher
Excluding University fees, the income was $2,588.04 higher than that of the corresponding eight months last year. Profits from the game room, ballroom, and union meetings were larger.

Running Wild

By JOHN CARRICO

Since the theme of this edition of The Kernel is a discussion of fashions and just what mademoiselle and monsieur will wear this spring in order to be sartorially correct, we thought it only right to get into the spirit of the thing. After all, sports must be an awful bore to women; they must get so tired of reading dreary looks and dull accounts of how some athletic hero turned defeat into victory through a superhuman effort.

It almost brings tears in these old gray eyes to think that while we wasted so much time emphasizing the ability and courage of some player, what the women really wanted to know is what the gentleman was wearing. Was he, to borrow a phrase from the French, en grande tenue?

And so, ladies, we dedicate this column to you. We hope that through this fashion discussion, you will enjoy the athletic contests more; we think that you will understand the game much better if you know that the gladiators are garbed strictly according to Esquire.

Since baseball is just around the corner, it would be best to look at the national pastime first. Coach Moseley has not decided definitely upon the color of uniforms yet. They will probably be aquamarine with onyx numerals. Jaunty caps with short bills will give the player an air of insouciance (indifference, to you men). Hats and gloves will undoubtedly be carried as accessories.

Coach Moseley early discarded wedge-shoes in favor of spiked ones, claiming that the spiked ones served a better purpose (alike, to see beauty sacrificed for utility).

Moseley has also promised that the catcher will be very chic-attired in a double-breasted protector, a mask which gives an air of mystery, and shin guards to match. We have no doubts that our team will be the fashion-plate of the conference.

Switching over to basketball, we find that brevity is the soul of fashion. The well-dressed Kentucky basketball player will appear in scaries of lapis lazuli and shirts of the same color. Knee guards of ebony hue, popular for so long, will continue to hold sway.

Socks will be knee-length with alternate stripes of cobalt and white. Shoes will reach up past the angles and probably the soles will consist of a rubbery material.

Oh yes, the basketball will remain its customary mahogany. Scarlet will prevail in the lights showing time on the scoreboard. Thus, in accordance with national defense and patriotism, the trend will be toward red, white, and blue.

In the physical education classes the usual perspiration ensemble—gray sweat shirt with Wildcat emblem and gray sweat pants—will be seen.

Lastly, but certainly not the least, there is the football team. Wildcat gridiron machines have always been noted for their impeccable dress and next season will be no exception. Since camouflage has been suggested, one would expect a riot of color. Coach Kirvan, however, assures us that there will be no change in the conservative stand Wildcat teams have always upheld.

The standard and acceptable mode for gridlers will be a sable headgear which fits snugly over the ears and shows the profile and neckline to its best advantage. Shoulder pads will be more daring, reaching, perhaps, down to the tenth vertebra. Azure jerseys with large numerals will be the rage on Stoll field and modistes predict a new strapless evening jersey for night contests.

Practice Suspended During Tourney

Baseball practice will be suspended until after the state basketball tournament is over. Coach Frank Moseley announced. This week has afforded the base-ballers excellent opportunity to get in some heavy work. Moseley is trying to round a starting nine into shape for their inaugural meeting with Illinois college April 3. This game will open a 21 game schedule. All men are turning in satisfactory work but Coach Moseley is especially pleased with the showing of Jim Mathewson.

THE SMOKE OF SLOWER-BURNING CAMELS GIVES YOU EXTRA MILDNESS, EXTRA COOLNESS, EXTRA FLAVOR

than the average of the 4 other largest-selling cigarettes tested—less than any of them—according to independent scientific tests of the smoke itself.

THE SMOKE'S THE THING!

YES, when you smoke the slower-burning cigarette... Camel... you have the pleasing assurance of modern laboratory science that you're getting less nicotine in the smoke. Not only extra freedom from nicotine—but other important extras as well—extra mildness, extra coolness, and extra flavor, too, for Camel's slower way of burning means freedom from flavor-dulling excess heat and the irritating qualities of too-fast burning. There's economy in Camels, too—extra smoking per pack (see below). And by the carton, Camels are even more economical.

LIGHTS...MIKES... CAMERAS... ALL SET FOR "AMERICA'S MOST TELEVISED GIRL!"

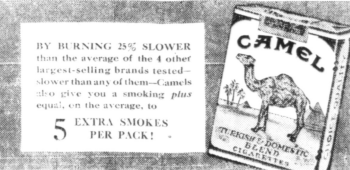

Beauty, voice, dramatic ability—it takes more than one talent to click in television. And it takes more than mildness to click with television actress Sue Read in a cigarette. "I smoke Camels," she says. "They combine a grand extra flavor and extra coolness with the extra mildness that is so essential to me."

SUCH A GRAND-TASTING CIGARETTE—CAMELS. AND THEIR EXTRA MILDNESS IS VERY IMPORTANT TO ME!

THERE ARE NO "RETAKES" in television. Every night is first night. "That's the thrill of it," says Miss Read. "And the thrilling thing about Camels to me is that they always taste so good. I don't get tired of smoking Camels. And they really are so much cooler and milder." The more you smoke Camels, the more you'll appreciate the freedom from the irritating qualities of excess heat... the extra mildness and extra coolness of Camel's slower-burning counter tobacco. And you'll enjoy Camel's full, rich flavor all the more. Smoking for the world of independent tastes that you're getting the most time in the smoke (see above, left).

CAMEL THE SLOWER-BURNING CIGARETTE

BY BURNING 28% SLOWER than the average of the 4 other largest-selling brands tested—slower than any of them—Camels also give you a smoking plus equal to the average of 5 EXTRA SMOKES PER PACK!

Comes Spring!

.... And With It The
Gayest, Smartest Season
Of Styles that Lexington
Stores Have Ever Offered.

This Spring Miss "Campus Coed" will wear screaming South American colors with tailored coats and pleated skirts. She must join the Navy with brass buttons and braid. Suits of navy blue with bright red accessories are being featured in early Spring. Her hats with new softness in line, will heighten her casual smartness, and a novel feminine charm will intensify her youthful lines. Dance drama and that glamour for gala evenings will feature rayon and more rayon, in jersey, crepe, and chiffon. She'll be seen in spectator pumps with new spring suits, and lower heels will appear on her dress shoes. Spring is here, and comfort is the thing.

On the campus Mr. "Well-Dressed Man" will again be seen in smartly tailored sport coats, with dark grey flannels, covert, and gabardine slacks. The military influence will be greatly emphasized in the tailoring of his suits. His shirts will feature numerous and varied collar types. He will wear bright wool, foulard, and crepe neckties, often matched by colorful socks. Sport-shirts, sleeveless sweaters, and jackets, will dominate his informal wardrobe.

Lobsters, Fruit Lighten Lapels Of Spring Suits

By AIMEE MURRAY
Don't be dull or drab this spring. The colors are the gayest ever and the jewelry corresponds. Lapels are resplendent with fiery red lobsters, gay Indian beads, and medicine masks, or maybe a jaunty little cowboy complete with hat and felt sombrero. For the flip type there are little men from Mars, all done up in their Buck Rogers outfits of superman paraphernalia. These little men are a riot of color, red and peacock blue enamel, shiny gold and rhinestones.

For the dainty, feminine type there are splendors of the garden variety, such as sprays of moonstones, of delicately colored enamel and brilliants, love birds, fruit pins, sea life. One pin was a little sparkling birdhouse suspended from a luscious spray of pastel and rhinestone flowers set off by a little bluebird.

Fruit Pins Are Spry

The fruit pins are so definitely spring. You can sprout your favorite vitamin wear, a pear with a glowing green stem, an apple contrasting a brilliant side with a rose half, or enjoy mad naturalism in the plex pins of cats, dogs, crabs, and even buses.

The new moonstones give us that delicate glow. They're all colors, all sizes, to fit your personality. It's the new sets that add the smart touch to your necklace and bracelet with earrings. They're good for daytime and evening wear, but don't limit your carrying time to formal occasions. They're the super accessory sport and tweed wear. So with your new spring suit add the final touch of dash and smartness with earrings in loops of pearls, gold or silver. That Missus touch will pep up even the dullest sweater.

Flowers At Throat

At your throat flowers may twine themselves in filmy sprays. Airy apple blossoms or demure forget-me-nots strung on adjustable cords are for the most feminine. Here again the set influence is dominating with a circlet of flowers on the wrist to match the necklace. Sport jewelry steals the show with polished wood beads of all shades, vivid reds, the new sand stone, and cool greens. The twisted cord necklaces are also especially to sports wear.

Don't forget the army. Be patriotic with a little rhinestone eagle set with red and blue squares, or a liberty bell, shiny and new. Or let a nautical piece rule the waves in a masterful combination of red, white and blue.

But last of all don't ignore your hair braided. Although you've worn it all winter stay in a mad dizzy jangle of dizzy hearts. You'll be wearing them around your neck now. Yes, hair necklaces will match your prized collection on your wrist. They're the biggest thing in the house.

Matching Topcoats With Patch Pockets Are Popular

By ANNE CONNER

If you are planning an outdoor Spring, you must have a suit or two in your wardrobe. Shetland wool suits are in two colors: it style this year.

One style has a four button front with flat pockets, and the other has a five button front with set-in pockets. These suits can be had in all the pastel shades for about twenty three dollars.

Other lovely suits are the imported tweeds that come in all colors. These are very soft and comfortable and are made on the newest lines with long coats and roomy patch pockets. There is a yoke across the top with small pockets set-in. The skirt is gored. To complete this outfit, you can get a topcoat in the same material. Each is priced at thirty five dollars at Lexington's Mayfair Shop.

Gabardine Popular

Gabardine is becoming more and more popular because it is light weight and yet warm. It doesn't wrinkle either, so you can keep it on for a long time and still look as if you had just stepped out of a hand box. These coats are shown with three buttons down the front and a pocket on each side. There are three inverted plaits in the front and back of the skirt which give it a very tailored look. You can buy these suits in green or Copenhagen blue for about thirty dollars.

Checks now as always are good buys for Spring. There is a brown and green check suit at the Mayfair Shop which is particularly good looking. It has the smoothly fitted jacket that is so popular and a bias skirt with plaits in the back and front.

Another suit which has a tan and brown check and a four gored flared skirt is very smart. Both these suits are about thirty dollars.

Jersey Suits Are Economical

If you are looking for something loopy and something you can wear on any occasion, be sure to buy one of the jersey suits, for only eleven dollars. They come in red, blue, beige, and dusty pink. The coats are lined with a soft silk and are made in two styles. One has a round neck with no collar, and the other has a V neck with small lapels. They button with five or six buttons and have set-in pockets. The skirts are gored and full.

Covert cloth is very new for suits this season. Suits made of this in green and brown with three button coats and an inverted plait in the back and front of the skirt are very smart for your spring outfit. This material never wrinkles and first anything better for school and all around sport wear. Covert cloth suits sell for about thirty dollars. However, no matter what you wear with your suits, you certainly must have at least one weskit; they can be worn everywhere and for every thing.

Cut Or Buy More Hair For 'Bang-up' Spring

By LAURA LYONS

If you wear bangs you'll have a "bang" start in fashion hair-do's for this spring. Not the straight, sophisticated type of bangs but the large curled bangs, side bangs, and even double-feature bangs, are being worn this year.

Some of you may have to chop a bunch of hair here and there, and you may even have to purchase one or two locks, but with the many new styles that are being shown this spring you ought to be able to find one that is comfortable, becoming, and not so hard to fix—but be sure to have a pompadour.

Don't wear the same one you wore last year but change it to fit the new fashions. Hats are designed to be worn over the new pompadours and to give the effect of the women of the Gay Nineties.

Page-Boy Is Latest

Most of the college girls will be glad to know that the page boy bang is the latest fashion in cleverness fixing this spring. With this style time will be saved and attractiveness will be achieved for both night and daytime affairs. By brushing your top knot back and turning the hair under at the ends you will get the effect of a pompadour when you look at it from the side. To get the best effect, wear your hair in a simple roll or chignon at the back of your head.

If you must have a part in your hair, and still want a pompadour bang, wear some ringlets at one side of your forehead. Another flattering hair-do is created when the bangs are brushed together over the forehead and the rest of the hair is made into a knot at the base of the neck. This type of bangs can be worn for evenings and the back hair may be brushed up into small curls.

In order to have this big pompadour the hair in front and sides must be cut short but the back hair should remain long enough to be brushed into loose curls or into a knot. By all means leave the hair long in the back.

Some of the hats this year are made off-the-face in order to expose the front bangs, and some are made to show the bangs at the side of the head. Many school girls will wear toppers, show all sides and the front toppers, to show all sides and the front hair.

Accessories Set The Pace

By SHIRLEY KEPLAR

Accessories, be they tiny feather hats or braided saddle leather purses, set the ace for spring suits.

Those who want the sporting motif in their spring outfit will find these natural-colored purses, either braided or stitched, in sizes to hold coats of stuff and still look slick, at two to five dollars, in Mitchell, Baker, Smith's. To go with them are matching belts, to buckle up your tweed skirt, at a dollar each. Vari-colored belts, and some fashioned of pieces of bamboo strung on bright cords, also sell for a dollar. Spring neckwear, always a thing of beauty and a joy until it is laundered, is daintier than ever this year. Exquisite lingerie touches on dresses and suits add that Easter morning look all season. Mitchell Baker's have all the types, large pique yokes, sailor collars, revers of lace and sheer orandy or net, inserts of program ribbon and Irish lace, and even bibs, to add a bit of spring to a winter dress for only a dollar. Some of the sailor collars, especially smart anyway, have a dickey front to hide round or square necklines on the dress beneath them.

The smart gloves are natural or white "doekins" in four-button lengths. They're washable, and sell for two dollars.

Coat Styles Inspired By Military Uniforms

The Caucasus, now in Russia, was a place of myth to the ancient Greeks. They believed it the spot where Prometheus met his torture and the region where the Argonaut sought the golden fleece.

Brass Buttons And Gold Braid Will Be Popular

By HELEN POWELL

Since the motif this year hangs on the "present world situation" coat designers have turned wholeheartedly to the military blues and reds, gold braid and brass buttons, and the strictly tailored and swank flares seen on our soldiers, sailors, and airmen.

Naturally, as materials are important this season, a mention of the favorites might be interesting. Covert cloth is the delight of both coeds and BWOCs, on and off the campus. Tweeds — always good — have gained their extreme popularity this spring in bright and distinguishing colors. Plaids, generally a winter classic, have made a grand debut as a spring pattern.

As to colors—the top rankers are surprisingly enough beige and all shades of blue, from the lightest baby blue to the ever popular navy blue. In fact, almost any shade of your liking is acceptable. But there is one outstanding feature—red. Chili-bean-red flannel, with braid and epaulets and big shiny gold buttons, has caught the feminine eye.

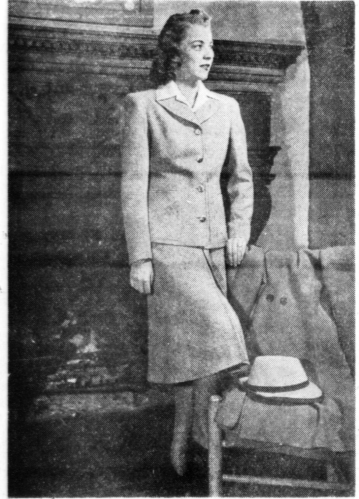

In Lexington, coed shoppers will be glad to know that Perkins is carrying the best and most novel of the current trends. In their stock they are featuring Rothmoor line; Carmel styles, which are famous for their "one of a kind" coats; and Swansdown coats, extremely fetching in lustrous plaids.

Most important of all, the price range is placed within anyone's financial reach. The popular price seems to be around $25, but Perkins has varied-price coats, from the simpler styles, about $22, to fur-trimmed coats, around $89.

Do you like shirtwaist dresses and blouses? Then for sure you'll like the new shirtwaist coats. They are made like regular shirts with white pique collars and long loose sleeves and turned-back cuffs fastened with cuff links.

Knock-Abouts Popular

Full swing skirts and soft, loosely-draped shoulders are best in general utility coats. For a more exotic style the fur-trimmed coat should be put on your "luxury list." However, the casual knock-about styles seem to be held in highest regard by the majority of the younger set.

Matching Coat And Hat Are 'Must' For Spring

By LUELLA MAGGARD

Hats which match coats and suits are an important spring note.

For spring sports and campus wear, there is the tweed hat of the make-your-own kind with quill or cockade flaring off the face or coquettishly covering the eye, and the tailored hat of felt or straw. Dress hats are trimmed with flowers and veils, thus giving the coed many pretty things from which to choose.

Suits are even more popular than coats this spring. Jackets are some-what long and fitted; skirts are colored with plaids.

Colors Range

Color combinations in suits range from navy to pastels, from solid colors to plaids and stripes. The materials range from the traditional, such as gabardine, covert, and novelty weaves.

Middie and sailor dress (like mother wore during the World War) are here again. The nautical trend is reflected in navy, brass buttons, gold braid, anchor-and-bars, red-white-and-blue; the military influence is shown in the use of military insignia and braid.

Tweed Coat For School

For school wear there is the tweed jacket and flannel skirt with contrasting colors in sweaters, and solid pastel jackets with plaid skirts.

Navy suits with red blouses, matching navy hats with a touch of red, and red bags are also being featured for early spring wear.

There is a great variety in style and color in spring shoes. The brown and white saddle oxford which has had great popularity for several seasons, is slowly losing ground to moccasins and casuals in light tan and two-tones of tan and light brown. Wedge and novelty heels will take the lead in campus shoes.

Spectator pumps in patent will be worn with the new spring suits, and here's a tip—heels on dress shoes are not so high. Comfort is the word for spring.

Indian Colors, Designs Adapted To Fashions

Designer Picard Wants To Subsidize Tribe Craftsmen

When the vogue for Tyrolean fashions swept the world, the Swiss Government suddenly woke up to the fact that the Swiss peasant made interesting and beautiful designs as the Austrian Tyroleans. They sent for Fred Picard.

This was his first job at designing clothes with traditional Swiss costumes as his source of inspiration. Yet they "caught on" at once. People found them gay, wearable, and brimming over with imagination. His ski clothes became famous, as did his shop at St. Moritz, which soon became a mecca for well-dressed Continental and American sport enthusiasts. Movie stars and glamorous figures from the rotogravure pages were steady customers. As a designer, Mr. Picard was launched.

Fair Brought Him Here

It was the New York World's Fair which brought Mr. Picard to America—to help with the display at the Swiss pavilion. Tales of his success with ski clothes had flown on before him, and it was not long before Mr. Picard found himself transported to the vivid sunshine of our "wild West"—to Sun Valley in Idaho, to be specific. There he set up a ski shop. At present he is completely—well almost completely—carried away by our American Indians. Their designs and handicrafts intrigue him. He has discovered nothing half so interesting in the East and South.

In some modern costumes he has with such taste and restraint embodied American Indian embroideries, ribbons, and bead work. An expert in his knowledge of handicrafts, which first attracted him as a hobby, Mr. Picard finds great inspiration in the work of the American Indians. He has collected some very beautiful and very simple examples of Indian art work and applied their motifs with pleasing appropriateness to clothes for the modern woman. Embroidery, weaving, bead work, jewelry, and the Indians' cunning work with porcupine quills have all been utilized.

May Reveal Lost Art

Mr. Picard would like to see the Indians subsidized to such an extent that they might continue their handicrafts despite the pressure of the modern demand for speed.

"If you do not subsidize these fine craftsmen, their work will become a lost art," he said. "Subsidy is the only answer. Only the old men and women of the remaining tribes know the secrets of the beautiful colors and designs that characterize their patient handicrafts. Let the younger generation learn these secrets. But they can do this only if they are maintained during the slow period when they are learning."

"I believe," Mr. Picard continued, "that there will be a small, but steady market of collectors who would consume their output. I hope too, that the work will never be cheapened, or shoddily copied, or popularized so that it loses its distinction. The art of the American Indian should come into its own."

Spring Styles Are Reflected By Notions

Women—so they say—have always been addicted to notions. In a mild way. But now that there are fashions in notions, we have to keep an eye on them. No longer may we pass the notion counter with too swift a glance, supposing it to be a mere melange of homey little red pincushions, spoils of thread, and bright-colored darning balls. Notions have grown up with progress in America, and the notion counter is as vivid and alive as any other department in the store. It still caters to comfort—comfort in little things. Things we need so desperately when we need them and can't find them at hand.

For instance, Something women have been wanting someone to invent for years at last comes to light. A neat little bolero to wear beneath your dress—fine lawn edged with dainty val lace. It is just a back shield, to which dress shields have been attached. Simple but inexpressibly useful. Remember how the back of your dress looked between the shoulders last spring? That need never happen again. Not if you wear one of these handy little boleros. And think of the saving on your dry-cleaning bill.

Speaking of dry cleaning, one of the attractive and practical values about certain new dress shields is that they are clean. Yes, just leave them in your dress when you send them to the cleaners. They clean perfectly. Another variety of shield is completely rubber-beries, light and airy—made to be worn with the daintiest gowns and as an assurance of perfect freshness.

For instance, Something women have been wanting someone to invent for years at last comes to light. A neat little bolero to wear beneath your dress—fine lawn edged with dainty val lace. It is just a back shield, to which dress shields have been attached. Simple but inexpressibly useful. Remember how the back of your dress looked between the shoulders last spring? That need never happen again. Not if you wear one of these handy little boleros. And think of the saving on your dry-cleaning bill.

Puffed waterproof bottle kits lined with Denecep and made safe with slide fasteners are useful for carrying cosmetics when you travel and these bags are not only smartly designed, but inexpensively priced. Keep your eye on fashions in notions, if you are on the lookout for new ideas. As your grandmother might have said, "They are nice—nice and notional."

'He And She' Hats

Probably the most important style item in casual hats this spring is the companion hat, known also as the "he and she." "Mr. and Mrs." and "twin" hats. These are merely hats that look alike, one for men, and one for women.

Actually the hats are a blessing, both to men who have put up with some pretty wacky looking women's hats in the past, and to ladies who are always looking for something new.

The distaff twin hat is, of course, out and out larceny. It is styled to duplicate the sportier men's styles, such as telescopes, pork pie, derbies, felt caps and in the so-called double brim safari felt.

Kentucky Women Prefer Jodhpurs To Riding Pants

By DAWSON HAWKINS

Since Kentucky is well known throughout America for its fine horses, Kentucky lassies should be the best dressed horsewomen in the world.

Jodhpurs are being used more this season than riding pants. Kentucky jodhpurs have large pockets and are reinforced on the inside of the leg, both for protection and comfort. The legs are full length with leather straps buttoning under the foot.

Tweeds are featured by Meyers Brothers in brown and green. The coats this season have three buttons for a stylish effect. Shirts are in all gay colors patterned with horse heads to give a dash of color to the riding habit and still the conventional white shirt always looks neat and becomes the rider.

To have a complete outfit, one should have a flap-brim hat and a pair of the sporty string gloves. These are very smart for either riding or with your tailored suits for horse shows or the races. Derbys are always correct for a brisk ride in the morning.

Accessories such as horse-pins, tiny saddle leather jewelry and matching belts are always good and do wonders towards dressing up your outfit.

So, come, girls,—live up to the reputation that has already been laid down for you and have the proper riding apparel for your spring horse-back rides.

Pioneer Donner Directs Newsreels

Vivyan Donner, director of fashions for Fox-Movietone newsreel, was judged one of the four "great women of the screen" a few years ago. She is the only full-fledged woman director in the newsreel field, and of two in the entire motion picture industry. Dorothy Arzner is the other.

Miss Donner is the pioneer of living mannequins in newsreel, showing the latest in styles. She says that neither she nor Fox-Movietone had any idea of the enthusiasm with which her features would be received by the public, the theater managers and the dress manufacturers.

Gabardine Band

Score another first for Eastern college influence on hat styling. A University hat with gabardine band and binding, first seen in New Haven—like most college styles—is spreading up and down the Eastern seaboard and thence westward.

When Buying A Hat

If any college man feels the need to go anti-Joe College, and actually buy a spring hat, will he please remember, ask the hat designers, to watch the proportion of hat and brim.

Particularly important in the Homburg and off-the-face models is the choice of a hat to suit the wearer's build and face contour.

Fashion experts have predicted higher crown and wider brims for spring, but that doesn't mean that a five foot five and a six foot sticker can wear the same height crown and the same width brim.

Those southern military camps are all right in the winter, but not in the summer, when the mosquitoes start drilling too.

Red, White, Blue Are Favorites In Accessories

Colors change with the times, and conscription and record enlistments in both the Army and Navy have made red, white, and blue favorites in men's accessories. It is a trend which started last summer and is increasing with such rapidity that spring will see these colors rampant on most campuses.

There are red and blue striped suspenders; red, white, and blue ties in stripes and ensembles; and handkerchiefs, garters, pajamas and shirts that have become nationalistic overnight.

Some of the new shirts are blue with a small red and white stripe, others white with blue and red stripes, and all of them styled with taste and a conservatism that prevents them from looking like a flag draped over the shoulders.

The American idea may go even further with the combination of red and blue in suitings. Stars and stripes have no place in these accessories, but the popularity of the colors is growing, and when combined with taste the patriotic touch, particularly at the present time, is a good one.

What Not To Wear

With everyone becoming clothes-conscious, now that it's that time of year, Ruth Hamm, writing in the Valparaiso Torch deems it necessary to warn all the college folk about what is not fashionable.

Beware, says Miss Hamm, of bad color mixtures, such as blue and green, royal blue and aquamarine. Sunday afternoon dresses with anklets and saddles; anklets with dressy shoes and skirts that do not strike the happy medium—too long or too short.

Likewise taboo are half-chipped nail polish; poorly pressed trousers and blouses; wrinkled skirts; hem lines that sag; crooked seams of hose, and jangly or evening jewelry with sports attire.

What The Well Dressed Army Man Will Wear -- Besides His Uniform

The coming months will see thousands of young men of America starting off to training camps scattered over the country and although their wardrobes will consist basically of uniforms and prescribed garments there will be nevertheless many times on leave and off duty when they will be seen in civilian clothes.

These men, as well as those in colleges, are quick to sense the new trends in sports and daytime wear, and before June many of them will have at least one gabardine suit in their wardrobe.

New Shades Coming
There is a range of new shades this spring called Diamond Brown, running from champagne to cognac, which looks particularly well in gabardine. There is also a new intermediate shade of gabardine which may well replace the natural shade, popular for so long.

Gabardine, this spring, is not going to be restricted to suits. With covert cloth, it is becoming a favorite for slacks, replacing the well-worn gray flannel, and it is being used increasingly for sports jackets. Many of these jackets are made up in a bi-swing model, a military influence in styling which may become more pronounced in ensuing months.

Plaid Shirts Popular
Year in and year out plain blue and white shirts of Oxford cloth with the button-down collar, remain an essential part of any man's wardrobe. These shirts are still in high favor among college men, although in the past season there has been an increasing demand for the low slope collar, particularly the model with the wide-spread points.

Every man's shirt wardrobe starts from the two hardy perennial types . . . solid shades and narrow stripes. Both of these are always good, and they are easily blended into any ensemble. In addition to white and blue, there are solid colors this season in tan, brown, green, and gray, most of them with collar-attached. There are also several new colors—sand, canary yellow, and light pastel blues, which will be shown for the first time.

Light-weight madras is back in circulation for shirts this spring, made up usually in stripes, which looks extremely well with solid color or small all-over patterned ties.

Air Force Blue Favored
There is a definite patriotic feeling about the new clothes for men, and it is a safe bet to count on almost any combination of red, white and blue. Air force blue is running high for favorite honors among the new fabric colors for 1941. You'll find it in any number of combinations in both single and double-breasted suits. Often it comes in soft flannels striped either with white or an off red. This shade is also being used in the harder weaves and as a basic color in plaids and diagonals.

To get back to red, white, and blue. There are red and blue diagonal striped ties . . . red, white and blue checks, neckwear . . . and white madras shirts with the narrow red and blue stripes, which look extremely well with solid blue or gray suits.

Socks Are Striped

Red, white and blue stripes run up and down and across in socks. The same colors can be found in stripes for pajamas, suspenders, and garters, and practically every other garment for the male animal. As the draft gets under way and more and more men go up, this feeling for patriotism is bound to grow, as will the tendency to express it in the colors selected for clothing accessories.

Don't be surprised this spring if you see a hat with crown and brim of contrasting shades. These are new on the market, and they have a good chance of becoming popular throughout the country. Browns are favorites, with the crown of a slightly lighter shade than the brim. The band separates the two colors and believe it or not, many of your friends will not even notice the two colors until you tell them.

Coats Are Longer

In suits for spring the single-breasted model continues to hold its popularity, with the coats slightly longer . . . many of them with three buttons, and the trousers somewhat narrower. Plaids and checks are good; the favorite colors include shades of brown, and mixed in natural colors, and will be worn in tweeds in which green, some red, in many cases for business, usually and lots of gray and blue are used, with the soft wool ties that go best. Shetlands are again popular, some with them.

Three Complete Outfits Are All A Man Needs

interchanged to suit all the social functions.

For the college he may wear a loosely-woven Shetland jacket with blue stripes on light brown and cream colored herringbones. Both tan and blue shirts harmonize with such a jacket. The shirt will be a button-down, collar-attached oxford which goes well with a striped, crocheted silk tie and a tan Shetland pull-over.

Gray flannel slacks and brown moccasin shoes tone in with the jacket. Hose should match the tie in stripes or a solid color. The new soft khaki felt hat with the University stitch can be worn with either a slope crown or a pork-pie. Gloves may be either pigskin, buck or soft wool. A tan worsted gabardine rain-coat with removable lining furnishes protection from the weather.

Outaway For Tea Dance
For a tea dance a black or oxford gray suit with a cutaway is the thing. The coat should have plain edges and the trousers should be cuffless. A white shirt with a pleated bosom or soft neckband and a striped or figured tie of gray silk will blend with the suit. Hose should be black or gray silk, lisle or wool-ribbed, plain or cloaked. Black calf low shoes with plain toe caps are appropriate.

Accessories will consist of a white linen handkerchief, red or white garters and gray suspenders. The same clothes may be worn for the buffet supper at the fraternity or for the sorority open house.

Tailcoat For Formal
A complete formal outfit consists of either a black or a midnight blue tailcoat with dull silk or satin peaked lapels, or satin shawl collar. The buttons may be bone or silk-covered. The waistcoat is either single or double breasted white with a V front.

Trousers are of the same fabric as the coat, with two medium-width braids set closely at the sides. The shirt is a two-stud, stiff-bosom white piece of simple design, with single cuffs and bold wing collar. A white pique butterfly, ribbon, or pointed-end bow tie may be worn. Black or midnight blue silk hose and patent leather low shoes are suitable.

Hat may be either high silk or opera style. The topcoat should be black or dark blue single breasted with fly front; double breasted, or ranslan with a military collar.

Correct accessories are a white silk scarf, white linen handkerchief, white or clove red carnation or gardenia, and white suspenders. Jewelry will be two studs of pearl or other stones with matching cuff links, pocket watch and key chain.

Two-Tone Hats

The two-tone effect featured on the highways these days is breaking into men's hat designs. Several designers have announced two-tone felts with crown and brim in contrasting colors.
